It is hard for us to realize that defeats have the ability to bring along about final victory. The greatest defeat in human history, of course, was the crucifixion of Christ the crule murder of the best man who had ever lived. But it was followed by the resurrection, which was all victory.

In our own business we know that certain violent setbacks have been the beginning of his success. Dexter was mourning the loss of what appears a tragic defeat. Don't be too sure about that. It may be the greatest possible step to victory greater than you ever dreamed could happen.

McNamara Sees Jobless More Numerous

Ottawa, Nov. 16 (CP) —Canada may have more "spotty unemployment" this winter than last, Arthur MacNamara, deputy minister of labor, told the national advisory council of manpower yesterday.

The council met up early this year to advise the government on manpower problems — also beaten from Mr. MacNamara that the defence preparedness program should not have any troubles from labor shortages during the next six months.

At its third meeting, the council was advised by the defence production department that in the months ahead — if production fots for arms step up—both labor and management may have to accept some changes.

"On the part of labor, this might involve a willingness to learn new trades and to move to employment in areas where it necessitates a change of home.

Management might have to take part in training schemes for employees, to farm out contracts to areas where there is surpluses of labor and standardize and simplify operations.

It Seems There Were Those Who Wonder

Years ago my father read that a Hindu who had good eyesight said it was because he always washed his eyes every morning with hot water. So my father has used warm water and he tries to make us all wash our eyes night and morning with hot water. (Mary Wisdom.

Answer—Reminds me of my father who tried to make us all take a teaspoonful or two of sand every day. He was sure it kept up his digestion in good order. Many Hindus with good eyesight seldom wash their eyes with hot, cold or tepid water. If it will do any good, which I doubt, tell your father I say his ideas is silly.

Daughter Has Dandruff

Ten year old daughter has dandruff, dry patches here and there which flake when the hair is brushed. We have used many remedies with no apparent benefit. (Mrs. R. D.)

Answer—Patient use of the ponsade as described in the booklet The Hair and Scalp will probably control the trouble. For the booklet send 25 cents and stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Infra-red Radiant Heat Broiler

Husband wants to buy an infra-red radiant heat broiler. He thinks the infra-red broiler makes the meat retain more of the minerals and vitamins because it sets or seals over quickly. I am using my gas stove broiler, which seems all right to me. (Mrs. R.)

Answer—If there is any significant difference it is in favor of the electric broiler.

Posters Placed By Conservatives Are Torn Down

Campbellford, Nov. 16 (CP).—Several complaints have been made at the Progressive Conservative committee room that a number of Welfare Minister Goodfellow's Nov. 22 Ontario general election campaign placards have been ripped from posts, torn up and scattered on the ground.

Last night a man told police he saw a woman tear up one of the posters. He said he followed her home to make sure of her identity, returned to pick up the pieces of cardboard and then went to his own residence.

It was not known whether a charge will be laid.

Mr. Goodfellow, seeking re-election in Northumberland, is opposed by Charles Johnston, Liberal.

Hanley Insists Atrocity Figures Given Correctly

Tokyo, Nov. 16—(CP) — Col James M. Hanley stuck by his figures today while the army investigated the circumstances surrounding his disclosure that communists slaughtered nearly 8,500 American prisoners in Korea.

The world was shocked by the total.

The announcement caught the military by surprise — from the United States Eighth Army in Korea to Washington military circles.

South Korean government officials said today there was nothing new in the atrocity figures.

They were not a surprise, a government spokesman, Clarence Rhee said at Pusan, where Hanley made his disclosure Wednesday. There is nothing wrong about releasing facts of the communists' acts at any time."

Rhee Kept Quiet

President Syngman Rhee said: "We knew about the communist atrocities. We just kept quiet about them."

The rest of the world didn't accept the figures as a matter-of-factly.

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, supreme allied commander, sent his press information officer to Korea to investigate the details of the disclosure, and the figures themselves.

Ridgway instructed Co. Patrick Welch to interview Hanley and Col. Kenneth L. Booth, Eighth Army public information officer. Hanley said the Eighth Army passed on the story.

(Reuters News Agency reported that a U.N. command spokesman said Hanley had been reprimanded. It added, however, that the reprimand was not official, and that any formal action would await the completion of Ridgway's investigation).

Senator Young Curious

Hanley, chief of the advocate's section of the Eighth Army, said the figures "should have been put out long ago . . . to let the GI's know what the reds are doing".

Ridway said there would be no official comment until his investigation is completed.

In Washington U.S. senators said they were puzzled that top military and government officials expressed surprise over the report.

Senator Milton Young (Rep. N. D.), wondered whether the administration was trying to minimize the tragedies of the Korean war. . . I would think anything as important as that would find out top-levels officials informed".

GIVEN $7,500 DAMAGES

London, Ont., Nov. 16. (CP)— George Beadle, of London, who had both legs broken in a traffic accident last July has been awarded damages totalling $7,500 and costs.

Judgment in favor of George Beadle was given by Supreme Court Justice A. M. Lebel against Lyman E. Mitchell, 19, of London, driver of the car Beadle said struck him.

Mr. Justice Lebel assessed Beadle's damages at $15,000, but, because he also found him 50 per cent to blame for the accident, reduced the amount.

Driverless Bulldozer Goes on $10,000 Damage Spree

Milton, Fla., Nov. 16 — (AP)— A driverless bulldozer went on a spree last night, terrifying residents and causing an estimated $10,000 damage in a four-block area.

Police said boys apparently playing around it started the engine, then fled. This is what the bulldozer did:

Plowed through a field for a block, then turned sharply to bowl over five trees and smash 30 feet of wire fence at one home.

Smashed 15 yards of fence, downed five clothes poles, several fruit trees, 10 feet of wood fence and ripped up 30 feet of water pipe at another house.

Crashed through a $2,500 chicken house, crushing $1000 worth of equipment inside, then smashed through one wall of the owner's home and came to a stop inside.

The neighborhood was in a uproar. Some people fled their homes while others, afraid to go outside, covered through windows at the grinding monster.

Egypt Offers To Withdraw Armed Forces

Paris, Nov. 16—(AP)— Egypt told the United Nations today she will withdraw her officials and armed forces from the contested growing Sudan to permit a plebiscite if Britain will do the same.

Foreign Minister Mohammed Salah El Din, speaking in the general debate of the 60-country international organization, said that the "necessary machinery, atmosphere and preparation could be provided with the cooperation of the U.N."

He added, however, he was "more than sure" Britain will not accept his proposal.

The Egyptians a month ago cancelled their 1899 agreement with Britain providing for joint Anglo-Egyptian rule of the Sudan, Egypt's southern neighbor.

Britain refused to recognize this one-sided action. Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons in London yesterday that Britain would remain in the Sudan until it becomes self-governing—probably by the end of 1952 — and can decide its own future.

In London today, government sources said Britain would study any definite Egyptian plan for quitting the Sudan and holding a U.N.-supervised plebiscite. Officials said they would have to be satisfied that conditions of the plebiscite were acceptable to Sudanese leaders and guaranteed a complete free choice by the people.

FOUR MINISTERS RESIGNING

Oslo, Norway, Nov. 16. (AP)— Four government ministers are resigning in a cabinet shake-up in the ruling Labor party announced yesterday. The announcement followed by two days the resignation of Prime Minister Einar Gerhardsen. He was said to have resigned for personal reasons. These ministers were leaving: defence, Jens Christian Thaugen; finance, Olav Meidalshagen; agriculture, Kristian Fjeld, and fisheries, Reidar Carlsen.

Base Metal Use To be Cut More In United States

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP) — United States production officials predicted today that new cuts ordered in civilian use of scarce metals after June 1 represent the worst that will befall industry and consumers.

The National Production Authority announced last night that the auto-truck industry will be allotted only 60 percent of the steel plate needed to meet scheduled production during January, February and March.

This could mean an ultimate rise in price ceilings on cars and truck's. N.P.A. administrator Manly Fleischmann asked the industry to make up the plate shortage by using a more-expensive but less-critical form called "conversion steel."

Manufacturers of "less-essential" consumer goods will get an average of only 10 percent of copper, 35 percent of aluminum and 50 percent of steel, as compared with their pre-Korean usage.

Drastically curtailed items include sporting goods, lamps, venetian blinds, springs and mattresses, dolls, toys and games, cigars, lighters, Christmas decorations, umbrellas, jewelry, signs and advertising displays.

A long list of "more-essential" products also will be curtailed but not as severely. Fifty percent of steel, 35 percent of copper and 35 percent of aluminum will go to the makers of refrigerators, washing machines, radio and television sets, lawn mowers and other products ranging down to zippers, buttons and pins.

The entire field of consumer goods, both more and less essential now is receiving about 58 percent of the steel, 46 percent of the aluminum and 54 percent of the copper it consumed in the first half of 1950.

The new curbs apply to metal allocations for the first quarter of next year and probably will continue until July 1.

Big Four Field To be Scene Eastern Final

Sarnia, Nov. 16.—(CP) — The Eastern Canada football final will be played Wednesday Nov. 21, on the home field of the champions of the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union, Sarnia Imperials were notified today.

The Imperials, champions of the Ontario Rugby Union, will play either Hamilton Tiger-Cats or Ottawa Roughriders. The Riders downed Hamilton 17-7, yesterday to take a 10-point lead in the home-and-home total-points final. Second game is at Ottawa Saturday.

The arrangements for the eastern final were made yesterday in Hamilton at a meeting of Big Four and Canadian Rugby Union officials. The Imperials, who were not invited to attend, were told they would get a flat guarantee or 30 per cent of the gate receipts—whichever is the greater—giving up a home date for the game. The Imperials decided to state the amount of the guarantee.

Winner-Take-All Race Attracts Five Rich Nags

Baltimore, Nov. 16 (AP) — Five horses which have won almost a million dollars between them will shoot for a winner-take-all pot of $15,000 today in the 15th running of the famed Pimlico Special.

The mile and three-sixteenths special, which requires a formal invitation for a horse to participate, has had some of the glitter rubbed off by the absence of Counterpoint and Hill Prince but still rates as a pretty fair attraction.

The quintet entered is topped by County Delight, a tough weight-carrying son of Count Fleet, which will just about sew up honors as the best handicapped horse of 1951 if he can cop the special.

The presence of Eddie Arcaro, who has won four specials aboard County Delight won't exactly hurt either. County Delight will run as an entry in the wagering with Mrs. E. Du Pont Weir's Royal Governor. Both horses are trained by J. E. Ryan, and are listed as the 2-5 choice.

County Delight, a proven weight carrier, has started 19 times this year, won six, and has three seconds, and eight third places. He has won $184,833, all but about $14,000 of it this year.

Others in the special, which will be the first race ever televised coast-to-coast, are C. T. Chenery's Bryan G., Albert Gatteral's Call Over, and Oil Capital, owned by A. E. Reuben and Mrs. Harry Trateck. Oil Capital, winner of the Butler Handicap last Saturday, is a doubtful starter.

All will carry 126 pounds.

Too Ardent In His Love

Los Angeles, Nov. 16 (AP)— A woman who charged her 69-year-old husband with making love to her too often and too ardently won a divorce yesterday, but the judged scaled down her alimony demands.

Mrs. Amiss Day, 57, testified that William P. Day made love as often as five times within a 24-hour period and that it upset her emotionally so that she developed a twisted neck. Day denied that he was overly affectionate.

Superior Judge Wilbur C. Curtis directed that the legal findings in the case be drawn "without reference to evidentiary details"—meaning that it make no reference to the lovemaking charges but simply show that the decree was granted on grounds of cruelty.

And he approved a settlement of $25,000 on the wife, a home, furnishings and $200 a month for one year. Mrs. Day had asked $3,350 a month.

200 Workers Picket News Plant Over Editorial

Fort Wayne, Ind., Nov. 16. — (AP)—About 200 United Electrical Workers idle in a wage dispute, picketed the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel yesterday over an editorial.

The editorial, appearing in Wednesday's News-Sentinel, was entitled" a red pattern?" It asked whether the U.E. Local "is acting on outside orders", pointing out that the work stoppage at Capehart-Farnsworth Corp. stopped production of an electronic gear for the navy.

The pickets paraded in front of the newspaper office half an hour but made no attempt to stop deliveries of Thursday editions.

The pickets carried placards saying "we're good, red-blooded Americans". News - Sentinel stoops to strike-breaking." "We make our own decisions. We take orders from no one."

The editorial recalled that U.E. was ousted by the C.I.O. on charges of communist sympathies.

After meeting with a committee from the U.E. Local, editor Clifford Ward, said in a statement: "We never intended to call them reds. We just asked the question in the editorial whether the Union Local was being used for red purposes by higher-ups."

26 YEARS IN PRISON

Christ Church Congregation Holds 'Open House'

One of the city's outstanding events of the year occurred yesterday afternoon and continued far into the evening, when the Congregation of Christ Church held "Open House" in the form of a bazaar and afternoon tea, followed by a church dinner, commemorating the completion of the newly renovated Parish House.

Following the dinner, the Reverend Canon A. B. Creegan, Rector of the Church, in a brief address of welcome, tendered thanks for the splendid co-operation of his parishioners, and friends of the church who had rallied to the work of rebuilding which had changed the old sombre of dinginess into one of modern convenience as well as one of beauty. Mr. Creegan also brought messages from the most Reverend John Lyons, Archbishop of Ontario and the Venerable R. C. Biagrave, who had been the rector when the Parish House was first built, as well as congratulations and best wishes from the Very Reverend Dean J. Grant Soarling, former rector and Mrs. Sparling of Edmonton.

"The Old Order Changeth"

During the afternoon, one of the season's largest and finest bazaars and afternoon tea held sway to the pleasing strains of the Hammond organ with its attractive Grace Calvert at the organ console. Everywhere the eye turned, pastel-tinted walls and ceilings of palest green, soft indirect lighting and shining brass brought most vividly to mind the words of Tennyson, "The old order changeth, giving place to new." Great, green holders filled with evergreens, mingled with colorful flowers graced every available space and wine, rose, low ledge, and gaily colored shrubs peeped forth from unexpected nooks.

Into this vista of "dreams come true" the thronging guests were welcomed by the president, Mrs. Jeanne Jackson, and Mrs. H. B. Creegan, wife of the rector, after which they roamed about the various booths, looking, selecting and buying.

Delicious Cakes

The homecooking table, backgrounded by orange tinted shrubs and the music from the Hammond organ did a thriving business and the many delicious cakes, including angel with pink icings, clgeed and open - faced pies, both cranberry and apple, as well as lemon, jellies, jams, tarts piled high with frostings, chocolate cup cakes with pink tops shrouded in cocoanut, bermits oozing raisins, juicy baked apples, cocoanut snowballs, and homemade bread and buns were soon disposed of under the conscious Scout Mothers' Auxiliary, and convened by Mrs. A. W. Simpson and co-convener, Mrs. Oliver Owen, with their assistants, Mesdames Burton, Bedford, Fox, Gilham, Gander, Greene, Moorman, Maxwell, Markle, Bishop of Ontario and the Venerable R. C. Biagrave, who had been the rector when the Parish House was first built, as well as congratulations and best wishes, from the Very Reverend Dean J. Grant Soarling, former rector and Mrs. Sparling of Edmonton.

The baby's table, under the auspices of the Evening Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary, convened by Mrs. E. H. Ingram and co-conveners, Mrs. Edwards and Mrs. Ollefs, assisted by Mesdames Bongard, Cooke, Portlock, Hibbard, Lannegier, Wells, Reid, Smith, Mason, Cooper, Newman, Burley, Spencer, the Misses Morton and Reid had a miscellaneous collection of knitted wear including sweaters, socks, bonnets, bonnets, sockets of all colors, little dresses prettily smocked, little dolls in white, both of the fair and dark variety, cuddly toys, two French poodles, one white, the other black, were seen hob-nobbing with a big pretty mud-turtle with yellow feet, and wearing a red cap at rakish angle, dolls' dresses and cerb quilts with a sprightly white Peter Rabbit bringing up the rear.

In a corner booth for "he who runs may read," were books, books and more books from the A.B.C's to the big tomes of Winston Churchill, Agatha H. Carlisle, "Hotel Berlin" by Vicki Baum, Readers' Digest, the Post, and oodles of magazines, all convened by Mrs. H. W. Hollomby.

The fancy work booth was the mecca for worried Christmas shoppers for here was every thing the heart could long for. There were embroidered pillow slips, doilies of all designs and colors, little aprons, bells for the baby, tea cloths, appliqued wall plaques, tatted centrepieces, colorful washcloths in crochet, fancy crochet-edged handkerchiefs, lovely plaid tartan ribbon knitting bags, a huge sewing basket with cushion attached, to hold the needles for all the family, pretty place mats in green with white borders, cheerleaded pets in pineapple design and many other fine items. This booth was sponsored by the Women's Guild and convened by Mrs. G. Pepper and Mrs. F. Welch, assisted by Mesdames, Symons, Colleyes, Button, Armstrong, Colinan, Rowbotton, Collings, Markle, Gelpin, Parry, B. Bears and G. Rogers.

Mrs. H. Burley was demonstrating a most delicious looking Christmas cake in tiny cubes seated on a centre of a lacy, paper doily, complete with recipe for ten cents.

The country store and plant emporium, convened by Mrs. D. Ellis and Mrs R. Holland showed a fine array of squashes, relishes, pickles, jams, jellies, dill pickles, carrots, foliages, cacti and white begonias as well as a pretty climing plant with narrow green and white leaves.

Rhinestone Jewellery

Taffy, chocolate-coated apples were another attraction, sponsored by the Girls' W.A. and convened by Mrs. S. Maxwell. Added to this was a splendid collection of rhinestone necklaces, earrings and bracelets, convened by Mrs. E. Palmer. These would be auctioned later in the evening.

The white elephant table, always a drawing card for those who wish to get something for almost nothing, was replete with all sorts of "What-I-don't want and hopeyou-do" oddments; green water glasses, cookie jar, vases, round and fat, tall and lean, glass and wood; silver cold meat fork; costume jewellery; beads of all colors; plaques in shell work; table-mat set and framed pictures. All these were under the watchful eyes of Mrs. Ivy Poste, and her assistants, Mrs. Alison Brunton and Miss Carol Poste.

This is surely going to be an "Apron Christmas" for the Afternoon Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary, convened by Mrs. H. R. Godden and Mrs. R. Lazenby and their assistants: Mesdames Burdsall, Osborne, Ashton, Pearson, Hollomby and Miss Florence Ayling, with their hostess, Mrs. A. E. Wright, sooo, disposed of the 200 aprons of all kinds, sizes and colors which lined the booth. There were organdy aprons in blue and white; dark aprons in black and mauve; dashing red aprons to make sure the 'blues', plastic aprons, and one especially lovely one in tea aprons style of flowered organdy edged with one inch tatting with a blue ribbon running through the tatted waistband.

"Sweetie"

The homemade candy was a drawing card for the 'sweet-toothed' people, here were chocolates, creams, fudge, and many other varieties, with tiny suckers on little red sleighs. This was conversed by Mrs. C. Ruzzen, and sponsored by the Junior W.A.

For the children, games were provided and consisted of two bran barrels, which were filled with gifts hidden in the bran. To obtain one, the hand had to feel for its prize. Another game was the "Bubbles of Joy" similar to an inverted umbrella, by some wizardry, the little ping-pong balls were blown up through the handle and the lucky one catching a bait obtained a prize which bore the same number as the ball. These were convened by Mrs. J. Greene, Mrs. T. Sherry and Mr. R. Poste, respectively.

The post office, beneath a spreading green tree, soon delivered all the parcels, and was closed up. This was run by the postmistress, Mrs. G. Diment.

The tea room was most inviting with its cosy warmth, its lovely freshness and its nicely appointed tea table, centred with a charmingly arranged, pyramid of roses, in palest pink and yellow, intermingled with baby bronze 'mums, white rosebuds, and asparagus fern with tall spikes of gladioli seed pods, flanked by silver, lighted branched candelabra with flickering green candles, upon a white damask cloth. Those who presided at the silver services included: Mrs. M. Shappee and Mrs. E. Lulgrell; Mrs. G. Young and Mrs. R. Pollwell. The guest tables were centred with rose, yellow and bronze mums.

Those who replenished were: Mrs. H. Lennox, Mrs. N. DePaul, Mrs. R. Smith, Mrs. K. Roulett and Mrs. E. Knip. Those who served: Mesdames Colling, Mills, Bisher, Lazier, Beeby, Sloan, Lennox, Stewart, Fletcher, Matthews, Bateman and Fisher. The tea room hostesses were Mrs. Lois Beeby and Mrs. Dot Halbert, and the convener, Mrs. Doreen Mills with Mrs. Jean Jackson, Mrs. Lois Beeby and Mrs. Bess Clarke.

Off by itself, in a warm and pretty space was the nursery for the tiny tots to play while mothers shopped. This was under the guardianship of Barbara Clarke, Muriel Best, Nancy De Paul and Shirley Amos.

Silver Sari

Others items of much interest were a lovely, diaphanous sari of silver lame having pale violet sprays of oriental flowers, once worn by the Indian Princess Bishma, of Nepal; and the pretty wool afghan of many colors, Both had been donated to the bazaar for auction.

The prize for the oldest lady present went to Mrs. Bowyer, Everett Street; for the farthest from home, to Airman Simpson, of Manitoba, now stationed at Trenton airport; and for the longest married couple, to Mr. and Mrs. Bob Rodgers of Cedar Street.

The treasurers for the afternoon were; Mr. Frank Creegan. Mr. M. B. Button and Mr. Sidney Galpin, with Mrs. H. Pitt and Mrs. D. Stewart in charge of the tickets.

Much credit is due to the convener, Mrs. M. B. Button and her co-convener, Mr. Lionel Baker for an exceptionally fine bazaar and delightful tea, and church dinner, and to all who assisted in making "Open House" such a splendid success.

Mrs. Garn Dobbs Speaks to W.A. On 'Crusade for Christ'

Yesterday afternoon the regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of Holloway United Church met in the church parlors with Mrs. B. Moorman, the president, presiding.

The worship service was conducted by Mrs. Fred Scott and her group. Mrs. Bert Mason read the scripture lesson from Paul's letter to the Philippians, chapter 1:1-11.

Mrs. Jay White spoke on "The Faith of St. Paul and Christian Love," one is another," followed by a poem, by Mrs. Scott, entitled "Guiding Hand," after which the various reports were accepted.

Business consisted of a report given by Mrs. A. C. Campbell, on the plans for the coming bazaar to be held this month, reminding the ladies of their individual parts in this venture, and requesting that each one put her best into it. It was decided to hold a luncheon at the next meeting with the added attraction of a Christmas tree bearing gifts for each lady.

Crusade for Christ

Mrs. Daniels sang a solo, "Ivory Palaces."

The highlight of the meeting was a talk given by Mrs. Garn Dobbs, president of the W.A. of the Belleville Presbytery, on "Crusade for Christ," in which she dealt with the Christian church; fellowship of believers who are pledged to lift high His royal banner; witnesses to Christ taking every opportunity to serve Him, and quoting: "What kind of a church would my church be if every member were just like me."

Mrs. Dobbs challenged each to be faithful to the church and gave in detail the plans the church holds today; of the homes for the aged; homes for the less fortunate and schools for leaders under the direction of the United Church.

In closing, Mrs. Dobbs said "O Lord reform the world beginning with me, where I am in my church, in my home; let the beauty of the Lord, our God be upon us and establish thou the work of our hands, establish thou it."

Mrs. Charles Walters tendered a vote of appreciative thanks to Mrs. Dobbs for her inspiring talk.

Refreshments were served.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

The Two Sides of Crime

By ROY L. SMITH

In most of our discussions of the problem of crime one important factor is almost completely forgotten—the case of the good citizen who traffics with the criminal.

The amount of thievery which goes on, even in a well-governed city, is shocking. But the amount of stolen goods that finally get into the hands of people who did not steal them is disheartening.

Gambling is generally considered to be an evil which undermines good government and law enforcement. In one great metropolis after another the police force has been corrupted by those who have wanted to make the huge profits which go with organized wagering. But there is not a gambling ring on the western hemisphere which could stay in business a fortnight without the traffic that coming from those who like to call themselves "good citizens."

Lawmakers and Lawbreakers

Making laws is one of the simplest tasks to which a modern government addresses itself. If the millennium could be brought in by just laws, ably written, it would have arrived hundreds of years ago, but writing laws does not change the character of the public.

The success of any law depends upon the fidelity with which it is enforced. Criminologists in large numbers are agreed that it is not the severity of punishment that deters men from committing crimes, but the certainty of punishment.

Any citizen who demands that a law shall be passed protecting him in his rights, or his property, must assume the responsibility for obeying that same law when the rights and property of his neighbor are involved. In all too many instances it has been true that lawmakers have become law-breakers, and greater anarchy would be difficult to imagine.

Several Decalogs

This week's lesson brings out a fact which the scholars have called to our attention many times—that there are several decalogs recorded in the Old Testament.

That version of the Ten Commandments to which reference is most frequently made is found in Exodus 20:2-17, but a shorter version quite similar is also to be found in Deuteronomy 5:6-21. In Exodus 23:1-19, we have still another legal code.

The explanation is that as time went on and life became more and more complicated, it became necessary to amend the legal code of the nation in order to take in the new situations. In the wilderness of Sinai, where the man owned land, there was little difference between the laws governing that the people had arrived in the promised land and the people owned fields, houses, and a system of jurisprudence had to be built up.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for November 18: "Laws for the New Nation" (Temperance), Exodus 18—23.

What we have in this chapter of Exodus represents the experience of the people in fashioning laws to deal with new problems. But as a guiding principle in all their laws, they followed the spirit of justice and equity which Moses had established in the wilderness. A law could be Mosaic in spirit which was not Mosaic in authorship.

No New Immortality

Occasionally some one of the intelligentsia refers quite glibly to "the new morality". A wise old rabbi once said, "You cannot have any new morality, for there is no new immorality."

A study of this lesson makes vivid the fact that the ancients as well as the moderns have been plagued with gossip, lying in the courts, the pressure of the mob, justice perverted in favor of the priveliged, prejudice, bribery, irreverence, and scandal-mongering.

Read the codes, and it will be discovered that no new sin has been invented in a thousand years. All we have are ancient sins that have been dressed up in modern clothes.

Three Youths Plead Guilty

Hamilton, Nov. 16 (CP) — Three youths, captured early today after a Hamilton police constable foiled their safe-cracking attempts and fired three warning shots, pleaded guilty to charges of shop-breaking with intent.

Salvation Army Subject of Talk By Viola Clarke

Campbellford—At the meeting of the Rotary Club on Monday in the parish hall, John McElhin proposed a toast to the charter members, two of whom, Dr. H. B. Longmore and H. N. Carr, were at the head table. He commended the foresight of those others; A. D. Bennett, A. J. Armour and H. A. MacColl were absent.

Vice-president Frank DeCarvel occupied the chair and introduced Captain Viola Clarke of the Salvation Army. The captain responsible for Rotary in Campbellford and wished them good health and good fortune. Three spoke on army work. She said that the army was instituted by Calderine and William Booth in 1865 and was for the first 13 years of its existence known as the Christian Mission.

Today it is a world-wide organization, doing relief work in countries where no evangellstic work is permitted. It is a far cry from the old times when Salvationists worked without salary. Today, the army maintains homes for aged men or women, girls, boys and infants. In the latter cases the officers take the place of parents in bringing up the boys and girls. There is much done for those who have been imprisoned.

After the material needs of the unfortunate ones, the Salvation Army always attempts to rebuild their spiritual life.

In most cases, neglect of religion has brought unhappiness and the re-establishment of the criminal or wayward is the prime aim of the army.

Ralph J. Locke thanked the speaker, who was accompanied by Lieut. Chittenden.

CAMPBELLFORD

Pastor H. S. Staples Speaks at Kinsmen's Dinner on 'Service'

Campbellford—Pastor H. S. Staples of the Baptist Church was guest speaker at the Kinsmen Club dinner at the Trent House on Monday evening. Introduced by Former Dennis, Mr. Staples commenced his address with regards to his own work. Not an ordained minister, his job was to rehabilitate for the Baptists, churches which were run down and to re-establish them on a sound footing.

Men of Principle Needed

His message to the Kinsmen revolved around Service—"The greatest service that men can render." He emphasized three points. Morality, education and religion. On the first, he spoke of the need for men of high principle in the government. Too often the best men decline to take any active interest in upholding democracy by offering their services in the political field. About 25 per cent of the people were not even interested enough to vote on election day. The creates a dangerous situation, jeopardizing the democratic way of life, and opening the door wider for "isms" to gain control.

Only Casual Interest

Secondly, the speaker said "parents showed only casual interest in educating their children beyond that required by law, in too many instances; and thirdly, parents also failed too often in the times to provide children with proper religious training. Two-third of our people do not attend church regularly enough to be called church-goers. Only 50 per cent of children today have attended Sunday School. The result was a break down in moral fibre which could result in a greater threat to democracy than communism, because democracy was handed down from our forefathers had regard for the sacred principles on which it was founded—the teaching of the Bible and of the Christian Church."

Bruce Grills moved a vote of thanks to the guest speaker. Kinsmen President Gordon Walroth added his thanks, and welcomed the club's new pianist, Bruce Barnum, whose services were sorely needed at the meetings.

Unanimous Choice

Kinsman Forrest R. Dennis was the club's unanimous choice as hockey representative to handle the Kinsmen team in the town hockey league. He will act on the governing board. Kinsman Bruce Grills reported the Hallowe'en Shell-out a financial success, and club president, Gord Walroth, said he was pleased with this year's venture on behalf of the children of the community and district.

The club set the date for their annual turkey Christmas party at Edgewater Park, on Wednesday, December 12. Kinsmen Bruce Grills, John Hill and Danis Pace were named to a committee to raise funds through a plan explained by Mr. Grills.

The next meeting will be held at Edgewater Park on Nov. 26, when it will be Prospective Members' night, and a special agenda will be arranged.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop brawt home a mouse to catch the mouse that ma heard in the kitchin, and just last nite he set it but nothing hadn't happened by breakfast this morning, and ma said to pop, William, I cant say I feel very safe at the prospect of being alone all day in the house with that mouse trap.

Courage my dear, if you dont feel safe imagine how the mouse must feel, pop said.

And he brawt her good bye and left for his office, and when he came home for supper ma said, William, it happened. I cawt that mouse, I mean the trap did. I'm still shaking like a leef, she said.

I'm sure you kept your head like a Spartan woman of old, pop said, and ma said, Well I did, in a way, but it wasn't easy, with that trapped animal looking at me with the most revengeful eyes I ever saw in a fellow creeture. All I could think of was that I needed immeediate help, and the only person that occurred to me was the big brawny young man that drives the delivery truck for the Luxury Market. I practically never deel them, because they're notoriously expensive, but believe me I called them up in a hurry this morning and used every device in my power to get quick action. I gave them a big enticing order and told them I had an emergency guest, and to give them all due credit, that husky young man was over here with the things in 10 minutes. I show'd him where the mouse was in the cubbord with the pans, and gave him instructions to take him out and set him free, and then I quickly fled from the kitchin, ma said.

Well, Mr. Mouse has probably found another home by this time, pop said, and ma said, Why William, do you think I'd be brutal enough to expose that poor little thing to the dangers of the streets? I told the man to let him loose again in the kitchin, she said.

Being the reason we still have a mouse.

Drive for Higher Pensions For Canadian Vets Gathering Momentum on Parliament Hill

In Britain's Wake

Canada is faced with problem of finding new markets for portion of her export which was previously bought by Britain and France. Following closely upon Britain's recent 10 per cent import slash, was announcement by France's finance minister, Rene Meyer, right, that his country planned to reduce her dollar-spending program for 1951-52 fiscal year by 40 per cent. Both countries gave as reason for arming as main reason for their economy cuts. — Central Press Canadian.

Ottawa, Nov. 16 — (CP) — A drive for higher pensions for Canada's war veterans is gathering momentum on Parliament Hill.

At every point in parliamentary skirmishes, opposition members of parliament needle the government to be generous to the veterans and to give them a head to meeting today's high living costs. Particularly, they want a better break for the men who are prematurely aged by war service.

The drive has been spearheaded by the Canadian Legion, which has asked for a pension boost of at least one-fifth. The insistent demand for immediate action is reflected in opposition suggestions that the government get a move on.

The government already has announced intention to raise the pension scale but the trouble, from the opposition and the Legion viewpoints, is that it has left them guessing indefinitely as to how much.

Veterans Minister Lapointe told the Commons a month ago that legislation will be introduced at this session to increase the pension scale but the amount, $100,000,000 a year, but it hasn't appeared on the order paper yet.

Allowances Paid

The increase is expected to range between 20 and 30 per cent. Canadian Legion spokesmen have indicated they would think it lacking them up — that they won't be satisfied with anything less than at least 20 per cent.

Pensions are paid as compensation for disabilities suffered in the war and to dependents of the dead and maimed. War veterans allowances are an additional payment available to aged or needy veterans on the basis of need. Some thousands of veterans drawing small pensions also get the allowances.

The allowance maximums are $40 a month for single veterans and $70 for married recipients. Some opposition members have suggested these be boosted to $50 and $100 a month.

The pension maximums for rank-and-file ex-fighters are $75 single and $125 for childless married couples. Wives get $30, with double rates for any dependent children. The normal children's rates are $19 for a first, $15 for a second and $12 for other children.

Hundreds of thousands of Canadians benefit from the roughly 300,000 pension cheques mailed monthly. They go to 100,000 veterans, 20,000 widows, 123 000 parents and 13,000 dependent parents.

Advice is 'Vile As Law' Says Church Organ

London, Nov. 16 — (Reuters)— The Church of England's newspaper, in a recent attack on the Pope's recent edict on childbirth, said yesterday that "what may be useful as advice and guidance may be utterly vile as law."

Referring to the "flood of explanations, qualifications and falsifications" by Roman Catholic "apologists," the newspaper's editor said the Pope's edict that a doctor must not destroy an unborn child to save its mother's life still stood.

"The embryo may show every sign of emerging as a monstrosity, but the doctor cannot remove it as a means of saving the mother's life," the editor said.

Though this Catholic rule might in practice rarely apply, "in principle it is upheld by every family," he said.

"Now that the question has come dramatically before them, the general public is right in expressing concern," he added.

In an answer to widespread criticism, Roman Catholic clergy said that loss of confidence in them because of the papal "mother-or-baby" pronouncement would be unjustified.

Speaks for Doctors

Speaking for the doctors, the Guild of St. Luke and St. Cosmas and Damian issued a statement in the Catholic Herald. It said the Pope's pronouncement "condoned nothing new."

The Guild claimed that Catholic doctors who respect the life of mother and child equally are more deserving of trust than a doctor who is prepared to kill the child by performing an abortion.

The Pope, it said, was speaking mainly against abuse of the use of medical grounds for abortion in the pronouncement to Italian midwives recently. The Guild said this has come to the point where it is only necessary for a psychiatrist to say that having a child would cause "mental trauma" (injury) for an abortion to be justified.

With modern methods, the Guild said, the case where a mother would have to be sacrificed to save the child arose rarely.

The British Health Ministry, meanwhile, announced last night that expectant mothers worried about the papal pronouncement may switch their state-paid doctors.

FIRST ROYAL CONCERT

London, Nov. 15—(Reuters)— The King has decided that music should have its annual pink show in the presence of the King and Queen, just as Royal Command performances become an annual event for the movies and vaudeville. The first royal concert is to be held in the new London festival hall Nov. 22.

Not-So-Good Omen for Mr. Eden's Plea

As British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden reached the heights of eloquence in his speech to U.N. General Assembly in Paris, a black cat strolled casually across his path and proceeded to rostrum where the-house-hound rubbed herself on Secretary-General Trygve Lie's knee. Despite this feline distraction, Mr. Eden continued his plea to Russia, asking for an end to name-calling and a sincere effort for establishment of international understanding and world peace. — Central Press Canadian.

Tornadoes, Rain and Snowstorms Hit Mid-U.S.

A series of tornadoes, violent electrical and snow storms in U.S. midwest killed at least one, injured many others with property damage estimated in hundreds of thousands of dollars. Weather forecasters attributed severe storms to clash of cold air against warm southern air which had extended over the midwest the last few days. Poor Fido sits in the wreckage of what was once his home in Gary, Indiana, not understanding the destruction surrounding him. — Central Press Canadian.

Announcement Strips Veil Of Mystery From What Has Been Holding Up Peace Talks

Tokyo, Nov. 16 — (AP) — A highly-placed officer said today the unscheduled announcement that communist troops murdered more than 5,000 United States prisoners of war has stripped the veil of mystery from what has been holding up Korean armistice talks.

The general officer, who is exceptionally well informed on truce negotiations, said:

"The communists don't want to have to answer questions about what happened to their prisoners."

Since the talks began July 10, both the communist and United Nations' delegations have done several abrupt about-faces. Each change has been explained by thousands of words of propaganda.

But the basic problem is in the objectives of the delegations.

The red want a cease-fire; the U. N. wants an armistice.

The U. N. delegation, led by Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, almost got trapped into agreeing on a buffer zone before other armistice details were agreed upon.

The sticky open-field running Joy has been doing lately was to get out of the trap the delegation almost caught itself in.

That would have given the reds exactly what they wanted — a cease fire without having to agree to a full armistice.

The difference between a cease-fire and an armistice is this:

A cease-fire is only part of an armistice. In addition to a cease-fire, an armistice would include agreements for the resumption of fighting, exchange of prisoners and recommendations for the withdrawal of all foreign troops from Korea.

From the start the reds have indicated they don't want anything but a cease fire.

Won First Round

The U. N. won the first round when it got the reds to adopt an agenda. This seemed to guarantee an armistice and not a cease-fire.

But the reds won the second round when the items on the agenda were listed.

The first item was effecting a cease-fire and drawing a buffer zone between the opposing forces.

This is where the Joy team got trapped.

It had agreed to discuss the point where the shooting would stop before the point of stopping shooting until the armistice was signed.

Every argument has been over the fact that the reds wanted a cease-fire.

Given that, the U. N. delegates say the reds will want to stall.

But you can't draw a buffer zone along the present battle line and then keep shooting across it.

The startling information that nearly 5,000 American soldiers have been shot down after their surrender may cost Lt.-Col. James

In Contract Mix-Up

The case of Gen. P. T. Mow (above) is presenting Washington with an unusual problem. With his aide, Col. V. S. Hsiang, Gen. Mow has continued to place contracts for the Chinese Nationalist government in Formosa although "suspended" three months ago. Both officers have ignored orders to return home to face trial for alleged failure to account for $19,000,000 in procurement funds. —Central Press Canadian.

M. Hanley his job.

But what he said hit the nail right on the head.

The security that shrouded early truce talks long has kept veiled the fate of American prisoners of war — a key question in the final armistice.

There probably will be a lot more maneuvering before the truce talks end. Right now it looks as if they might go on forever.

Fourth Man Held In Cattle Theft

Kitchener, Nov. 16 — (CP)—A fourth man, William B. Jackson of Harriston, has been arrested in connection with the theft a week ago of five cattle from Kitchener stock-yards.

Police said Harriston's truck was used to transport the animals to Brantford. He has been charged with theft.

Michael Motte, 21, and Allen Murray, 20, both of Clifford, were charged with theft in connection with the same incident. William Exarchos of Brantford was charged with receiving stolen goods.

The cattle, valued at more than $1,000, were recovered.

Suspected Spy Kills Himself In Secret Crypt

Athens, Greece, Nov. 16 (Reuters)— A suspected communist spy last night shot himself in a secret crypt. He died early today without giving police to whom he was sending radio messages.

For two days Nikolas Vavoudes, 45, had been besieged and cut off from food.

Two hours before he shot himself he started bargaining with police. He also held an informal press conference.

Greek authorities said the Russian born Vavoudes transmitted to communist countries reports about Greek airfields and army movements.

Before shooting himself, Vavoudes burned most of his documents.

Police found him in the crypt while carrying out a roundup of communist suspects.

TEACHERS HELP FUND

Jackson, Mich., Nov. 16 (AP) —The college registrar, Barbara Campbell, posed as "Miss Bikini of 1895" and earned $20.

Her contribution was only one in an unusual campaign by which Jackson junior college raised $2,000 for books for foreign students.

Dean William N. Atkinson got $5 for pressing a student's trousers.

W. P. Rayner, English instructor, was paid $31.90 for a bulk dance.

And a male student handed over $7 for the pleasure of teaching the girl's swimming class for a day.

Young Says Truman Minimizes Tragedies of War in Korea

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON

Washington, Nov. 16—(AP)— Senator Milton Young (Rep. N.D.) said today the way reports of atrocities by communist U.S. soldiers in Korea were made public raises the question whether the administration is "trying to minimize the tragedies of the Korean War."

"These atrocities are terrible and I would think anything as important as that would find our top levels officially informed," Young told a reporter.

At supreme allied headquarters in Tokyo, where some sources had expressed skepticism over the report that 5,500 U.S. prisoners had been killed by the communists, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway ordered a full investigatin.

A full investigation.

Ridway, the supreme commander, directed his press information officer, Col. Patrick Welch, to go to Pusan, Korea, to interview the officer who made the report.—Col. James M. Hanley.

Hanley, chief of the judge advocate's section of the eighth army, had said he understood he had official clearance to give out the report.

Ridgway's headquarters declined comment until the inquiry is completed.

President Truman told his press conference at Key West, Fla., yesterday that the reported atrocities are a horrible thing. If true, he added, it is the most uncivilized thing that has happened in the last century.

Would Use Atom

The reports touched off demands from members of Congress and elsewhere for use of atomic weapons against the communists in Korea, but all information available here indicated the government is standing firm against that alternative.

Indications in official quarters were that there might be a change in the policy, or certainly a remedy of the problem, if current truce talks end in failure.

Young said the report should lead to "an ultimatum . . . warning all communists that if these continue we will use retaliatory measures," possibly including atomic weapons.

Not Slightest Shed of Truth In the Stories

Montreal, Nov. 16 —(CP) — There is not the "slightest shred of truth" to stories that Canadian troops are being cruel to the Korean people, Most Rev. Walter F. Bartlett, Anglican archbishop of Edmonton and primate of all Canada, said here last night.

Addressing the 23rd annual meeting of the Montreal branch of the Fellowship of the West, a Church of England association, Archbishop Barfoot warned:

"Do not believe these lies about our Canadian soldiers fighting in the Far East. I saw our boys handing out their chocolate rations to the children and to the adults. I have seen their kindness and their compassion to the Koreans."

The primate has just returned from a tour of the Korean front and a visit to Japan.

Porter Charges Toronto Star Tried Make Deal

Cayuga, Ont., Nov. 16—(CP)— Attorney-General Porter said last night that in the year after the Charitable Gifts Act was passed the Toronto Star had officials make approaches to the government for "a deal".

"These people . . . came sniffing around, but we don't do business that way," said Mr. Porter in a speech in the Nov. 23 Ontario election campaign.

"If charity is a good thing, then the money left to charity should go to charity, and not be conserved for some selfish interest. If an estate is to be freed of the necessity of paying succession duties on the ground the money has been willed to charity, then that is where it must go."

Mr. Porter gave no details of the approaches he said were made on behalf of the Star.

(The Charitable Gifts Act of 1949 provides that charity trusts may not hold after 1956 more than 10 per cent of any business. The Toronto Star and Star Weekly are operated by the Atkinson Charitable Foundation set up under terms of the will of J. E. Atkinson, Toronto publisher.)

ACROBAT HURT

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 16 (AP)— A Shrine circus acrobat fell 13 feet and was seriously hurt yesterday. It was the second tragedy to hit Shrine shows in 24 hours. The acrobat, Juan Ibarra Mata, 27, fell from a horizontal bar when a guy wire broke. Another acrobat, 17-year-old Evy Troxil, was killed yesterday at Baltimore when she fell 60 feet from a high wire.

Planes Ordered To Drop Bombs On Flooded River

Rovigo, Italy, Nov. 16. (CP)— Planes were ordered out in pea soup fog today to bomb dikes along the raging Po river in an effort to divert flood waters menacing Rovigo and Adrl.

Helicopters were pressed into service to rescue isolated flood victims in Northern Italy, where at least 80 persons have perished in the last week. Property damage runs into the millions of dollars. Hundreds of thousands of acres of fertile Po valley crops are under water.

Muddy waters were already flooding the streets of Rovigo, a provincial capital of 40,000 population. Adria, with a similar population, lies to the southeast.

Authorities hope the bombs will breach the banks of the canal Bianco-Adige within canal-near Arqua and send the water into a less populous region. Arqua is about 10 miles southwest of Rovigo.

Presumably the bombs will be dropped from ordinary aircraft, since the peace treaty forbids Italy from having bombers.

There was one bright spot. As the flood swept down the Adriatic, the situation inland grew less acute. Workers who put up 200,000 sandbags in the emergency dike near Parma staved off disaster there. In parts of Reggio and Parma provinces the waters were lowering.

Technical units from the British and American armed forces in Trieste were speeding to stricken Reggio province.

Throughout the province, refugees were fleeing to higher ground. Helicopters and army planes dropped food and rubber rafts to isolated villagers.

More than 5,000 refugees were reported moved into Rovigo last night. They came from all parts of the province, in which some 170,000 acres are under water.

FRANKFORD

SUCCESSFUL BAZAAR

Frankford — The Women's Auxiliary of the Frankford United Church held their annual tea and bazaar in the Rose-Lowery Hall Wednesday afternoon. A warm, sunshiny afternoon made the day ideal for the affair. As one entered the east door of the hall, a fine display of handwork greeted the eye. On the west side of the hall, a mouth-watering display of homecooking attracted a great number of purchasers. The ladies served tea, and a delicious luncheon at the tables in the centre of the hall.

President, Mrs. Arnold Sickels reports that it was one of the most successful, and best attended tea and bazaar the W.A. has ever sponsored. With the proceeds, the ladies will carry on with the many fine tasks which they perform in the life of the Frankford United Church.

The W.A. of the Frankford United Church will hold their annual Christmas meeting on Thursday, December 13th.

The Evening Auxiliary of the Frankford United Church will hold their annual election of officers at their regular meeting on Friday night in Rose-Lowery Hall.

A euchre party will be held in the Orange Hall on Friday evening.

Mrs. Glen Sickels, of Glen Miller, visited relatives in Frankford on Wednesday.

Church Property Destroyed

A group of teen-age ruffians have been causing considerable disturbance around the Rose-Lowery Hall, and the Frankford United Church, during week day evening meetings of the C.G.I.T. and Sunday School groups. Not content with hammering on doors and windows, disrupting the meetings, these boys have broken the catch on at least one door of the hall, and have done other damage. Many of the boys taking part in these disgraceful acts are known to the groups of the church, and unless this sort of thing does not cease, it will be necessary to lay a complaint to the town constable. Boys will be boys, it is true, but things are getting out of hand when they start destroying church property. It is sincerely hoped that parents of the village will check with their boys, and ensure that they are not among those responsible for these disturbances.

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

KINGSTON TONIGHT!

Tonight the senior Hawks hit the trail for Kingston where they clash with the new edition of the Kingston city club, the SAC's, they're dubbed, in the first meeting of the clubs this season. The tilt is scheduled for the new Memorial Community Centre, scene of that spine-tingling playoff clash last year between the then Redmen and the temperatly defunct Nylons.

The Hawks have tasted victory blood in both their starts this season, and they're out to make it three at the expense of Stan. Scrutton's new squad. And it should be a fairish battle since the Scruttoneers held the powerful Peterborough Eagles to a 7-5 count in the Eagles' serie in Peterborough Wednesday night. Trailing on the blank end of a three-nothing score midway through the first period the Kingston crew roared back to outscore the Eagles 5-4 over the balance of the route and that should infer something or other. Tonight will tell the tale.

The Hawks came out of the heavy-banging contest with the Golden Gaels more or less scathless and will be at full strength for tonight's game. Que Michaud Reddon, erudite scribe of the Whig Standard, Kingston Post Office, comes up with a rather remarkable columnar statement. The estimable Michaud states, quote "As of now the Hawks are threatening to become the greatest team Belleville has produced since 1878", end of quotation. Come, come, Mike m'lad, speech of this complexion. Surely that sleghantine memory of yours does not take you back that far. Personally we were not in the vicinity of the Hastra in those hectic days. We were serving our spupremacies as a water boy with the 17th Lancers cricket squad in the Crimean League.

JUNIOR HAWKS READY!

"Zeke" Doran's junior "B" Hawks are champing on the bits awaiting that all-important opening clash with the Peterborough Tripe-Links in Memorial Arena Monday night. "Zeke" has worked out the combination that will be best both offensive and defensive and Monday night's debut will give the fans their first glimpse of what this department believes will be the best junior "B" squad to represent this city in some years.

The Peterborough team pryx the lid off the junior "B" group' schedule in Kingston tomorrow evening when they meet Maxie Jackson's Kingston Victorias. Maxie has a working agreement with the Boston Bruins and has some promising material sent him by the Bruins master-minds. By the same token so has the Peterborough squad and both teams will be out to see which bearcubs are the best.

Taere should be some high hockey flax in Peterborough tonight in senior "B" hockey circles. The Petes and the Eagles clash for the first time this season and the Oval Sensations will likely pack the Civic Arena for the tilt. There is little love lost between these squads, we are told, and all friendship ceases when the teams take to the icelines. Sparks have the fangs on the Petes to date having two wins to their credit with the Petes splitting a pair of decisions. Steve Groshek, Petes import, we hear, has decided the Kirkland Lake ice is of better quality for puck-chasing than that on the Liffock village and has hied himself up thataway. Andy Milne, too, is lost to the squad. In any event, if the same rivalry exists between the teams as that of a year ago, the fur should fly and the fans of both see some neat pucking.

SHOULD HAVE "MOE" OF THIS!

When Maurice (Moe) Walshe, National Hockey Learue official quits the arenaer and whistle Job, he can readily fall back on one that calls for cap and gown. The popular "Moe" was here last night in an instructional role to a well-attended class of district miner and other hockey referees, coaches and managers, and after the session was over it was the consensus that Walshe has all the qualifications of a college professor.

He tore the rules from the lips of his fingers, spread them wide open, explained and interpreted all of the easy ones and unravelled some of the tenglies that have been bothering officials from OHA down for some time. And "Moe" has a fine knack of turning into common understandable English those masterpieces of regulation confusion that hockey Master-minds insist on putting in the books every year.

It was a good session, attended by 20 from all parts of the district from Lindsay, and Havelock, the north country and Kingston. Bert Hick, Lindsay and Sam Curry, Tweed, Ontario Minor Hockey Association executive members were in charge of the session and explained fully the duties of coaches and managers.

Walshe grabbed the spotlight with his free easy manner of rules interpretation. He answered a barrage of questions and how that guy missed becoming a pedagogue is beyond our reason. He also told some experiences that already have occurred in his brief tenure as an NHL linesman.

One we liked was that about George Gravelle, NHL referee and a French Canadian. It seems Gravelle was in action during a game when a player caught the puck, clutched it high in the air and seemed loth to part with it. Gravelle skated to the erring one with the remark, "Dat world series, she is all over. Dese pop flies are out."

Those attending left with a new insight into rules interpretation thanks to Messrs. Hick, Curry and Walshe. The OMHA is to be commended on its efforts to bring the best officiating possible to its youthful proteges, feeling no doubt that teaching the youngsters the right things to do at the start, will be a valuable asset for the future.

BEST OF LUCK!

Belleville Collegiate Institute Juniors and Albert College seniors football squads go title-hunting tomorrow in the jungles of western Ontario. The BCI junior "A" squad tackles the powerful Port Colborne youngsters for the COSSA championship while Pete Resch's senior "B" collegians trek to Dunnville in search of the titular bauble in that division. It is the first time in years that Belleville school teams, or any team for that matter has reached the finals in football playdowns and the best wishes of all sports fans go with the gridiron youngsters in their quest for the various championships. Both teams are said to be at full strength, and somebody up in the western part of the province will know they have been in a grid tilt before the final whistles blow the end of hostilities.

Red Wings Hand Old Buddies From Chicago a 3-1 Trimming, Increase Lead to Four Points

(By The Canadian Press)

It may take time, but Detroit's high-flying Red Wings are out to reach their farm team, Chicago's hapless Black Hawks, the hard way.

The Wings last night drove home lesson No. 13 by walloping the Hawks 3-1 in the National League's only encounter. It was the 12th consecutive victory Detroit has scored over Chicago in the last two years.

Those losses bear bitter medicine for the Hawks, almost all of whom rode the gravy train with top-ranking Detroit clubs of other years before being shunted off to exile in Chicago in a one-sided series of player deals.

Fallens Wing Load

The victory fattened Detroit's lead over second-place Toronto Maple Leafs to four points and kept Hawks in the league cellar.

For 40 minutes the desperate Hawks held Red Wings to a 1-1 deadlock. Then Detroit's top goal-getters, Ted Lindsay and Gordie Howe, teamed through for two decisive counters in the third period. Marcel Pronovost scored the first marker in the second stanza, while Chicago's lone tally was by Jack Evans also in that frame.

For most of the game Chicago kept Detroit hopping. Pronovost's initial goal was freakish. He fired a high shot that hit a Chicago player's stick. Chicago goalie Harry Lumley judged the shot was his for the taking — and ducked. But the pestiferous puck banged like a crossbar and dropped inside the net.

Three minutes later the Chicago attack claimed reward when three forwards caught the Detroit defense napping. On a three-on-one break, George Gee blistered a perfect passout to Peters who killed it for the close-range tally.

The third period was scarcely under way befo. e Lindsay took a Howe pass for the tie-breaker. Some 14 minutes later Howe again combined with Sid Abel to sink the clincher.

Red Wings now rest until Sunday night when they take on New York Rangers. Leafs have a chance to creep up with two weekend games, Saturday at home against Boston and Sunday at Chicago. Third-place Montreal Canadiens, three points behind Leafs, also have two weekenders, meeting Rangers at home Saturday and the Bruins at Boston Sunday.

LEAR IS REHIRED AS CALGARY COACH

Lou Lear, complete with white Stetson and all the trimmings, will be parading once again as coach in front of the Stampeder bench in Calagary comes next football season. The announcement, made by Cec Chesbro, who succeeds Tom Brooks as president, silenced the rumor that a new coach would be sought for next season in view of Lear's dismal failure to lift the team out of the cellar the past two seasons.

Judge Character Teams, Players At Grid Game

Swarthmore, Pa., Nov. 16—(AP)—Two of the officials at the Swarthmore-Haverford traditional Quaker grid game tomorrow won't be there to shout the scoring.

They're not there to judge strictly according to the rules of the game. They will judge character—of the teams and of the individual players.

It's a new experiment for college football, tried successfully on the sandlot.

The "character officials" will sit in the press box with "character score cards", they will observe which players show the most respect for authority, which players and teams have the will to conquer, which side excels in bench conduct, fan conduct, mental poise, alertness, perfection, physical fitness and appearance.

After the game, the "character officials" will consult with game officials and the coaches of both teams concerning their reactions to those qualities, as shown on the field.

On the basis of points awarded for each category, the top individual character display and the team showing the better traits will be chosen.

OMHA Forum For Referees Well-Attended

Upwards of thirty minor-hockey and other referees, coaches and managers from the district heard some highly educational talks at the Ontario Minor Hockey Association Referees' Forum held in Memorial Arena last night. Hockey men from Belleville, Tweed, Trenton, No. 6 Repair Depot, Stirling, Havelock, Lindsay, Peterborough, Wellington, Marmora and Deloro were on hand.

The forum was under the joint chairmanship of Bert Hick, Lindsay, and Sam Curry, Tweed, members of the OMHA executive with Maurice Walshe, Ajax, Ont., recently - appointed member of the National Hockey League referees staff, assisting.

Interest in Rules

While much interest centred on the interpretations of the duties of managers and coaches as well as referees given by Messrs. Hick and Curry, the focal point of interest was the rules interpretations given by Mr. Walshe.

Patiently, he stressed the importance of clean dress for referees. He urged referees present to be firm, but polite, and the boss man all the time—keep on the job and do not sit any time assume a belligerent attitude."

Walshe answered a panel of some six questions from a printed document and the session ended at midnight with quizzes being tossed at him from all angles. He commandeered the assistance of a blackboard and chalk in bringing out answers to questions on play. His expert knowledge of the rules of minor, "amateur" and professional hockey was tested by the various questions fired at him and he came through with flying colors.

"Rough play" he said should be stopped and practically all branches of hockey are endeavoring to eliminate it. This play, he said, has been responsible for the folding of many teams in the United States and the matter has become quite serious in Canada. Hooking and boarding are the two main offenses, and officials are instructed to be on the lookout for and stop these uncalled for, vexatious offenders with penalties on each and every occasion.

While they were bouncing around in a very small boat, a huge shark appeared nearby... Torres, trying frantically to hoist the anchor, start the motor and get the heck out of danger, looked around there was Martin standing up in the stern trying to kick the shark . you might get saving in a lot of things by having Pepper around Mog—but never a rut.

Divided opinions on the coming Kid Gavilan-Johnny Bratton fight in Chicago are offered by a couple of guys who have fought them . Charley Fusari, who lost to Bratton, picks Johnny on the grounds that he would have beaten Gavilan the first time they met if he hadn't been hurt. Billy Graham, beaten by the Kid, thinks Gavilan is "hot" now and will win a close one.

Hurricanes Whip Generals 9-3 Under New Boss

Waterloo, Nov. 16 — (CP) — Coach Norman (Bun) Cooke, new mentor of the Waterloo Hurricanes, made a good start last night in his efforts to bring the team up from near the bottom of the pile.

The Hurricanes moved up one place—to number seven spot—by trouncing Oshawa Generals 9-3.

Tonight the Waterloo team will make a bold attempt to continue its scoring when it meets the second-place Guelph Biltmores at Guelph. Tonight too Barrie Flyers, defeated by Guelph Tuesday, will try to make up their losses in a game with Kitchener at Barrie.

Mad Cheaters

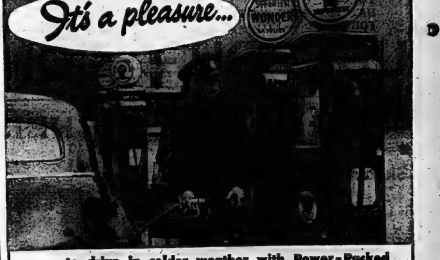
Cooke took over the Hurricanes early this week from Bob Kinnear at the request of the Waterloo arena commission.

Last year the Waterloo boys wound up in last place.

The new coach made a few changes in the line-up that paid off last night. He shifted Roger Maisonneuve to a line with Jim Connelly and Ken MacNeill.



The result: Maisonneuve netted one goal and had two assists while MacNeill added on four Waterloo goals. The Hurricanes blew the goal into the Oshawa net four times before the Motor City men got rolling.

Early in the second period, Herve Dejordy and Bob Attersley scored two for Oshawa and Bob Holden placed the final tally.

Yanks' Gil McDougald, Giants' Mays Share Rookie-of-the-Year Honors

By JACK HAND

New York, Nov. 16 (AP) — Handy Gil McDougald of the world champion New York Yankees and Willie Mays of New York Giants share rookie-of-the-year honors for 1951.

Selection of McDougald and Mays was made by the same 24-man committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America (three from each league city) that picked the most valuable players.

Minoso Close

McDougald barely edged out Orestes (Minnie) Minoso of Chicago White Sox by a surprising 13-11 vote. Surprising, that is, for Minoso out-ranked Minoso by a wide margin in the recent most valuable player balloting. Mays was no easy winner.

Voting for most valuable player in the American League — won by Yankee Yogi Berra with 194 points—the writers named Minoso fourth with 126 points and McDougald ninth with 63 points.

On season averages, the Negro outfielder McDougald, 23, hit .306 and led the league with 14 triples and 21 stolen bases. The Yankee freshman hit more homers 14 to 10.

Apparently the fact that McDougald was the only .300 hitter on the pennant-winning Yanks and a steady performer all season was more convincing to the writers than Minoso's average.

The National League vote was a landslide for Mays with 18 of the 24 ballots. Chet Nichols, Boston Braves lefthanded pitcher, had four and Clem Labine, Brooklyn Dodgers righthander, had two.

Mays started the season at Minneapolis in the American Association where he was hitting .477 when recalled by the Giants in May. Ousting Bobby Thomson from his centrefield job, Mays played fine ball, showed a strong arm and great speed and finished with a .374 average.

Hershey Bears Trounce Flyers; Mohawks Nip Caps

Hershey Bears strengthened their grip on first place of the eastern division of the American Hockey League, trouncing St. Louis Flyers 9-1 last night.

The Bears are atop the eastern section with 18 points, but still trail Pittsburgh Hornets, the leaders of both divisions by 10 points. The Hornets were idle last night.

Arnie Kullman garnered a pair of goals and Dave Creighton, Norm Concoran, Andy Branigan and Sam Bottio helped submerge the Flyers. Sid Finnegan was the lone St. Louis marksman.

At Indianapolis, Cincinnati Mohawks scored in every period to beat the Capitals 5-2.

The Capitals finished the game under protest because Wally Stanowski, Cincinnati defenceman received only a minor penalty for slashing Larry Zeidel in the second period.

Zeidel suffered a cut on his lip that required four stitches to close, and Indianapolis argued that the penalty should have been a major. Zeidel got back in the game in the third period, in time to draw a slashing penalty himself.

Major 'A' Bowling League

Moore's Chislers and C.N.R. were the only seven point winners in the Major "A" league at the Bowl-O-Drome last night, defeating City Cleaners and Callaghan Ice respectively.

Lawn Bowlers won over Kinsmen 5 to 2 while Belleville Golf edged Schwab's 4 to 2.

Lawn Bowlers held first place in the standing with 17 points while Moore's Chislers moved into second spot with 15 points. Schwab's have 14, Belleville Golf 11, C.N.R. 9, City Cleaners 7, Kinsmen 6 and Callaghan Ice 5.

George Bellis set the pace with 802 while other good scores were turned in by Frank Martin 770 (342), "Cookie" Holway 750 (300), Al Hitchon 747, Jim McKenzie 744, Tom Caton 742, Joe Legault 725, Ron Saylor 691 (300), Jim Corlies 678, Jim White 676, Newt Wilbur 666, Bill Fraser 662, Wally Dingman 662 and Cec. Hardwick 652.

Scores:

Lawn Bowlers 3472, Kinsmen 3229; Moore's Chislers 3347, City Cleaners 3046; C.N.R. 3253, Callaghan Ice 3195; Schwab's 3216, Belleville Golf 3182.

Men's Cac Hardwick 744, Gar. Anderson 741, Walter Moore 726, Jack Bennett 673, Bill Carson 673, Frank Post 657, Art Delnard 652.

Glen Dobbs, Defensive Tactics Sent Sasky Riders to Finals

Regina, Nov. 16 (CP)—Saskatchewan Roughriders played second-fiddle to Edmonton Eskimos in ground gains and runners-up to Winnipeg Blue Bombers in passing this season in the Western Rugby Football Union but still won the championship.

Biggest Rider assets—the ones which proved the difference in the long run—were the superb field generalship of quarterback Glenn Dobbs and their defensive play, best in the four-team circuit.

Proof that Dobbs was head and shoulders above the rest of the Union—not just by virtue of his 6 foot 4 inches in height—was his selection as the most valuable player to his team. He came through like a true champion when it counted most.

Dobbs and the Rider defense offset the fact that Saskatchewan led in only two of the major statistical departments—the all-important team standings and in punting.

They also led in fumbles, making 37 and recovering 18 during the regular season. They added 11 more fumbles in three playoff games, recovering five.

Dobbs, playing off both the T and the single wing, frequently crossed up the opposition with his ingenuity. This was specially true of his punting. He used the quick-kick often, his boots often sailing 60 to 80 yards.

The former Los Angeles Don accounted for most of the Riders' 5,786 yards punting during the regular season; Winnipeg was second with 5,101. The Saskatchewan team average punt was 41.9 yards compared with Winnipeg's 39.9.

Of the 24 single points scored by the four teams during the season, Dobbs kicked for 20 of them, eight more than Bob Peatrost rival, Indian Jack Jacobs of the Bombers.

The lanky quarterback boosted his punting average to 47.9 yards in the three-game final against Edmonton.

The Riders never allowed an opponent to cross their goal line in the first two games, when only one point was scored against them. They went on to compile the lowest points-against total—an average of 13.8 in 14 games.

This was the chief reason why they were awarded first pace on a superior points-for-and-against average after ending the schedule in a three-way tie for first with Edmonton and Winnipeg. Riders were only third in scoring points themselves. The bye into the final that went with first place allowed them to recuperate from a late-season injury spate.

Another testimonial to the Riders' strong defense is the fact that the Eskimos, by far the best ground gainers, crossed the Saskatchewan goal line in only one-quarter of the last two games of the final—and that was the very last quarter when the Edmonton onrush was too late.

Regina made less than half of Edmonton's net yardage along the ground—1,456 to 3,092—but it was second best. They added 260 yards in the playoffs.

In the air, Dobbs threw almost all of the Riders' 201 passes. Completions totalled 133 for a 52.2 percentage. Again this was good for second, Winnipeg being tops with 221 completions of 415 pass attempts for a percentage of 53.2. Saskatchewan had 15 passes intercepted, second lowest in the league.

Bell Construction Crews Fight Right Back!

Last week's sleet storm caused heavy damage to telephone lines and poles. Ice formed on the wires, and whole stretches of telephone line came crashing down.

Even before the storm was over, maintenance crews—many of them from other parts of the province—were out making temporary repairs, bridging breaks to maintain vital communications. At exchange points, testers were checking with repair crews; stock men rushed parts and materials to trouble zones; operators were at their switchboards putting calls through with the least possible delay.

Here in Belleville and in neighboring communities the storm put more than 2700 telephones out of order. Within a week, all but 300 were back in operation. These were in the hard hit rural areas where construction crews are still busy repairing lines so that service may be restored as soon as possible.

THE FINE SPIRIT OF CO-OPERATION WHICH OUR CUSTOMERS HAVE SHOWN DURING THE EMERGENCY IS GREATLY APPRECIATED.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Saturday, November 17

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Aim to have an unbiased look at things, there are many problems in common to us all. And you know you can think yourself into feeling hurt, wronged, or into troubles. Clear this away now.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Recognize good from bad, separate right from wrong quickly and you can turn in true achievement. Stress the important; avoid wasting time on unessentials, or trifles.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Fine planetary aspects for better-than-ordinary matters, business and involving the people. Obstacles can be minimized with sound judgment, wise deductions, striving.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Fairly encouraging aspects argue you can make appreciable headway through consistent good effort. Scale your hindrances with diplomatic manners, kindly living and steady going.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—In public relations general protective undertakings, building; expect gains from proper action and thinking. Avoid personal differences; settle issues with reasoning, it saves energy, nerves.

August 23 to September 22—(Virgo)—There is a vulnerable tip here and there. Make your policies wisely; be co-operative, flexible to useful changes. Have logic, think in terms of over-all results.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Some unexpected doings or situations likely. These may prove extra good for your lines of endeavor yet dull for the indifferent or ordinary proclivities. Basic differences must be understood.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—We are all prone to errors, misjudgment but you determined, well-balanced Scorpio folks can readily discern failing, even your own, and today calls for just such discernment. You'll gain.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Not so significant a period for money-making, getting speedy returns from investments or deals, but this may be all to the good, save needless errors, over-spending. Mind facts.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—If careful to avoid drastic changes where not necessary, and not to over-hasten decisions in important matters, you can have a constructive, if not showy, day. Moderation big help.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)— Best procedure for day's activities will be to check details then lay out schedule, thoughtfully taking important matters first. Steady effort will return steady benefits.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Neither very generous nor too restricting in tendency. Examine duties early, then proceed carefully as you would; you can have better results perhaps than anticipated. Keep trying.

YOU BORN TODAY: Strong character, unusual capability and talent. Be mindful of your gifts from God, also of your failings that thwart fine possibilities for success when we don't correct them. Curb a tendency to domineer at times, to be too demanding of yourself and others. When turbulent within yourself, say a prayer, listen to some good music a few minutes, walk and talk with children. And do use daily your many good qualities; develop your versatility.

Birthdate: Jas. A [illegible] 90th U.S. pres.; Ferdinand de Lesseps, Fr. diplomat, maker of the Suez Canal.

Two Pioneers In Atomic Research Given Nobel Prize

Stockholm, Nov. 16 (AP) — Two pioneers in British atomic research today were awarded jointly the 1951 Nobel Prize for Physics.

They are Sir John Cockcroft, the British government's top atomic scientist, and professor E. T. S. Walton of Dublin's Trinity College. They shared the first to split atomic nuclei with artificially boosted high tensions—a 1932 experiment which helped pave the way for the atomic age.

Cockcroft, 54, went to Canada in 1944 as director of the Dominion's atomic energy project. Much of the work he did there still is cloaked in secrecy. But one colleague has described him as a "rock of scientific and human strength" during that period.

He and the other prize winners will receive their money in special ceremonies in Stockholm Dec. 10. King Gustaf will present the awards.

Cockcroft and Walton were first associated in experimental work in the late 1920's in the famed Cambridge University laboratory for radio-activity and atomic research headed by Lord Rutherford, the first man to transform an element by radio-active atomic bombardment.

Italian Floods Take Thirty Three Fleeing in Panic

Milan, Italy, Nov. 16 (Reuters) —Roaring floodwaters of the river Po, threatening Italy with one of its greatest disasters, today swallowed up 33 men, women and children who died in panic from the onrush of water.

Smashing through a riverside dike, a torrent of water swept away a truck carrying refugees from the flood-menaced area of Frassinella, south of Venice.

Only seven were saved. The other 33, about half of them children, were sucked under and drowned.

It was the biggest single tragedy in the series that has already killed about 200 persons in the last month in flood-stricken north and south Italy.

The rain-swollen Po now has flooded more than 132,000 acres along half its 375 miles from Cremona to the Adriatic.

Fresh storms have killed 80 in the last week alone.

Swirling brown waters rolling down the Po late last night smashed through the dikes north of Ferrara, flooding 100,000 acres within minutes.

Tens of thousands of troops, firemen and volunteers had labored feverishly for days to prevent the disaster, strengthening the dikes with sandbags and stones.

Thousands had been evacuated to safety a few hours before tragedy struck.

Govt. Withdraws Bond Support Say Reports

New York, Nov. 16 (AP) — Reports circulated in Wall Street today that the Bank of Canada has withdrawn its support from internal Canadian government bonds. Official Canadian government confirmation was lacking.

Canada's internal three per cents of 1966, the longest term issue of the Dominion's internal bonds, was quoted in Wall Street at 95 1-8 bid and 96 asked, Canadian funds. They previously were about 97.

In Wall Street there was no reason assigned for the reported withdrawal of government support of that issue or any other issue.

External Canadian government dollar bonds, payable in United States funds, were not affected.

Wall Street quarters noted that the Bank of England earlier this week had withdrawn its support of British long term treasury bills with a consequent drop of three points or so in those issues.

No Formal Comment

Ottawa (CP) —An official of the Bank of Canada said today there would be no formal comment on a New York story stating that the bank had withdrawn its support from internal Canadian government bonds."

He said however, that the bank had not been supporting these bonds. Dealers were a matter of supply and demand.

The bank was "interested" in the bond market, but for a long time had made no "fixed" bids.

WEATHER RECORDS

Toronto, Nov. 16 (CP) — The weather man reported today that, within a week, record high and low temperatures were set in Toronto.

Yesterday's high was 61 degrees, the warmest Nov. 14 in 110 years. A week ago, the temperature fell to 16, the coldest Nov. 6 on record.

Churchill Defers Restoration Of University Representation Ended by Labor Government

London, Nov. 16 — (AP) — Winston Spencer Churchill seems to be fighting a losing battle with the Court of Saint James's over the spelling of his name.

Court circulars issued by Buckingham Palace refer to the prime minister as "The Rt. Honorable Winston Spencer-Churchill."

A palace spokesman explained: "The chap's family name is Spencer-Churchill. That's how it's spelt on his birth certificate."

The British leader's father was the third son of the seventh Duke of Marlborough. Reference books list the family surname as Spencer-Churchill with the hyphen.

The prime minister always signs his surname as Churchill, without the Spencer. The explanation stems back to his schooldays at Harrow, friends say.

He was enrolled as Winston Spencer-Churchill but he used to get impatient because his name was always called out under the "C" in the school list. By dropping the hyphen, Winston promoted himself to the "Cs".

Britain Will Control Sudan Until 1952

London, Nov. 16—(AP)—Britain announced today she would guarantee the defence and security of the Sudan until it becomes self-governing, procably by the end of 1952.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons the rich million-square-mile Sudan lying above Egypt on the Nile is "is now moving rapidly in the direction of self-government."

He added that a new constitution may be in operation by the end of 1952.

"Having attained self government," said Eden, "it will be for the Sudanese people to choose their own future status and relationship with the United Kingdom and with Egypt."

Egypt has torn up its treaties with Britain which provided for Anglo-Egyptian administration of the Sudan. Egypt is pressing for Sudan's unification under Farouk and already changed Farouk's title to "ruler of Egypt and the Sudan."

The Outsiders

By Jane Abbott

If Elinor grew spiritually Chris never had known. He knew he didn't, though not until later. But St. Stephen's prospered. Talk began of building a new church. His sermons were drawing larger and larger congregations.

Recalling it, Chris tried, as he had countless times before, to figure out just when his doubts of himself had begun to take shape.

It was Hannah McGavern who had opened his eyes to himself. He had found her one day, reading from some sheets of a half-written sermon she had picked up from the desk in his study. She'd gone in to clean and he'd gone in and found her standing with the sheets in her hand.

She'd put them down quickly. "I was just taking a look at it. Hey'vend—I didn't do no more."

"Come to church next Sunday and you'll hear me preach it."

She had shaken her head. "St. Stephen's isn't for the likes of me."

"That isn't the way to look at it Hannah." He'd made some such protest, but all she'd done was hear bread and he hadn't urged her further.

Then he'd told Elinor about it.

"But Chris, don't you see she's right? We're chosen for all—most everyone here in Willow Ridge! She has better judgment than you do! Does how you feel comfortable she'd feel!" Later he often had wished he had taken Hannah McGavern by her hand some Sunday and led her down the aisle past many filled pews to those women for whom she classed. But that was not until after he had resigned.

Elinor had been indignant when he told her—angry. She said He was throwing away a brilliant future, she had said. Then she was cruel and then she made her ultimatum. If he persisted she would not marry him.

Chris remembered he had felt relief over it rather than any heartbreak. He doubted it had cost Elinor more than a blow to her ambitions. The last time he visited his uncle he had been told she had married a refugee from Poland, a poet.

At once, upon resigning, he had enlisted in the army. He had not seen it a noble way to serve mankind, but only an immediate way. Though, for the two years he was in, all he had done was to check supplies at a base in Florida.

He gave a slight impatient shake of his shoulders. Why was he bringing it all back into his mind? Since he had been in New Interval pi slipped into a dim background.

He found his pipe, filled it and lighted it and went out to the broad stone step at the door. He often sat there on warm spring nights, sometimes far into the night. He liked the feeling of immensity that the night always brought to him — dimensions blurred, horizons, sky all one; himself one, with a limitless oneness.

But tonight he had no inclination to lose himself so. In the back of his mind was something he had been saving for a moment of quiet such as this. His thoughts went to Eliza Forrestal.

He sat forward, his elbows on his knees, his hands cupping the bowl of his pipe, a frown pulling his brows together.

"Where have I met her before?" For it had come to him tonight there at the table, a conviction stronger even than the one that had flashed in on him that afternoon up on Spruce Hill. The lift of her head, her hair, even the green of her dress — something in her manner, not anymore so much as an uncertainty of her ground.

Until tonight he had not seen her since the morning he buried Major. Passing the mill yard he had noticed her car parked there and once, from Pete's glare he had seen her driving past, but that was all.

He had hesitated to force himself upon her for she had made it quite plain, the two times since not, that she was building up a rather positive dislike of him.

It would have been very easy that day he'd been in the store, to step out to the porch and hail her as she hurried her car into the road—but he hadn't. He had accepted his dislikableness.

But tonight she had been a very different person. She had taken his hand, for one thing. He had been expected some aloofness in her tomorrow, because the others, excusably so, considering the difference between her background and Elinor's, had appeared to want to be friends with all of them.

And then suddenly the conviction had hit him again— that they'd met in Florida. Some special kind of circumstance.

But when and where? It almost had come to him a few moments they had stood in the window together, he and Elinor and the lightning flashing outside.

Suddenly he sprang to his feet cried out in low astonishment. "Why, I've got it! Altmont! The girl at the pension there—there with that chap who played the piano—he walked, with me—there was a storm—she had a couple of bags—had to carry them—to the bus stop—I asked her if I could help her—I don't need any help! Looked scared —but she had held her head high, shut me up on the spot, just as Eliza did . . ."

He pushed his hand hard through his hair, it wasn't going to be easy to believe that that girl and Eliza Forrestal's granddaughter were one and the same! He'd better go to bed, wait until morning to figure it out.

George Culbert spoke of the accident as soon as he and Eliza were in the car. "You're not to worry your head about it, my dear girl."

The soothing note he put in his voice stirred Eliza to a quick retort. "Why shouldn't I feel concerned? I own this mill."

She was very troubled. She could not shake off the feeling that its happening to Dave Wilson brought it somehow closer to her. She was disturbed, too, by the antagonism she had heard in Doctor Stewart's voice and in Chris Cameron's, when they were talking about the accident. It had suggested an active distrust of the manager.

She wished, while they stood in the window, she had asked Chris Cameron what he meant when he spoke of the machine possibly breaking down. "The thunder would have covered their voices. She had had the impulse to do so, and it had not passed at the moment in that lean, a strange thing to do, but then she had remembered the way in which she had refused his offer to help that afternoon up on Spruce Hill and she could not bring herself to speak.

George Culbert met her retort with the same soothing tone in his voice. "You haven't owned it long enough to know the headaches that come with it! If it isn't 'one' thing, it's another."

"But if there was something wrong with the heater . . ."

"As far as that goes, there's more than likely something close to wrong in every machine in the mill. I've told you they're anticipated ready to fall apart."

"Then...couldn't we buy new ones?"

George Culbert gave a short laugh. "Spoken like the innocent you are! Know where that'd put you, with no profit to speak of? In the breadline!"

"But if the men are going to get hurt—didn't my grandfather know that the machines were failing to please?"

The manager hesitated a moment, before he answered, "It's hard to say what he knew and what he didn't. Fact is, I think he did, when he realized he was near the end of his rope. In money as well as living."

"But he brought me here!"

"Sure he did. And I'll bet you his to one his idea was for you to sell out, when you got here. He didn't like to be the one to have to go back to you. Not him."

He made it sound reasonable but Eliza drew back a little into her corner, unwilling to accept it.

"What do you do when there's an accident?"

"Investigate it— find out how much the carelessness of the fellow hurt was to blame for it— pay a doctor—and, that's funny, Streeter's evidently trying to horn in on this! Hand over a few weeks' wages . . ."

"That's what my grandfather did!"

"Exactly."

They had come to the climb up Spruce Hill. George Culbert shifted gears, then put his hand on Eliza's lightly, reassuringly. "You'll learn it all, presently, Eliza, I beg your pardon— that slipped out of itself. But I'd be delighted if you'd drop the mister and call me George."

If you meet a lobster wearing an aluminum tag, don't waste sympathy. It wasn't hauled up for parking opposite a hydrant. The tag was put there by the National Fisheries Board which is sleuthing out marine life stories. A whelper, so decorated, was re-caught after four years and a lobster after ten. The tags were still in excellent condition.

Hotel Proprietor Destined to Meet Nature Hard Way

Barrie, Ont., Nov. 16 (CP) — Nicholas Zaychowski, a Brantford hotel operator, seems destined to meet nature the hard way. In September he nearly capsized his boat hauling in the biggest black bass on record for Canada.

Yesterday he fought for 30 minutes with a 240-pound deer maddened by bullet wounds.

Zaychowski wounded the animal near Medzwaska, the scene of his fishing triumph. He followed a trail of blood for more than a mile and fired his last two shots at the deer, missing it.

"When I came within 10 feet, it turned on me and charged," he said. "I dropped my rifle and grabbed the antlers."

After a struggle in the waist-deep snow, Zaychowski managed to hold the deer against a tree until two Michigan hunters, attracted by his cries, finished off the deer with a jackknife.

Zaychowski's record bass, nine pounds, two ounces, was the second fish he ever caught.

Mrs. Edna Brant Fatally Injured In Deseronto

Edward Kimball, Picton, Held But No Charge Laid

Struck by a westbound passenger truck as she was crossing the street in front of the Arlington Hotel in Deseronto, Mrs. Edna Brant, 52, of Deseronto, was almost instantly killed early Friday morning.

The body was carried 40 feet by the red truck, the driver of which stopped and looked at the woman and then sped away leaving the woman lying on the side of the street. Provincial Police from Belleville apprehended the alleged driver of the death vehicle some hours later. He is Edward Kimball, age 30, R.R. 2, Picton, charged with Driving Off Courtney, of the same address, is being held by police as a material witness. Charges are pending against Kimball.

Details as to how the accident occurred are meagre, but it is understood that the woman was struck by the truck as she crossed the street in front of the Arlington Hotel. Dr. Gordon Bell, Dr. D. C. McVicker, the only local doctor in Deseronto, Mrs. McVickers, who is a trained nurse gave first aid. Dr. McVicker reported death to Coroner Dr. R. W. Willoughby, Indian doctor, also attended the scene.

Provincial Constable E. L. C. Smith and Samuel Investigated the accident, assisted by Constable A. Watson.

Prime Minister Claims Double Triumph in Visit

Washington, Nov. 17—(AP)—Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh, preparing to return to Iran, today claimed a double triumph for his six-week mission to the United States.

Speaking at his ailing 72-year-old chief, Vice-Premier Hossein Fatemi told a reporter that the "first success" was blocking direct United Nations intervention in the oil dispute with Britain. The second, he said, was "convincing the American people" of the justice of Iran's nationalization of the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

George McGhee, assistant secretary of state, said on a television program last night there appeared to be "little hope" at this time of bridging the gap between Britain and Iran in the oil dispute.

Mossadegh was expected to make a final plea today for a substantial American loan to tide his near-bankrupt country over the crisis.

Mossadegh received a promise from President Truman yesterday that "careful consideration" will be given his request. Officials considered it unlikely, however, that any substantial aid would be extended would approach the $130,000,000 total Mossadegh has been reported seeking.

Lie Supports Egypt's Proposal On Sudan Status

Paris, Nov. 17 (AP) — The United Nations secretary-general, Trygve Lie, today threw his support behind Egypt's proposal for a plebescite to determine the future status of the Sudan.

In a press statement Lie said: "It is a good, realistic proposal. I hope it will be given prompt and serious consideration."

Egypt's premier minister, Mohammed Salah El Din, said in the General Assembly yesterday that his country is willing to withdraw all Egyptian troops and officials from the Sudan if Britain will do likewise.

Under Salah El Din's proposal, the Sudan would be placed under U.N. until a plebescite could determine the desires of the population.

The British foreign office in London said the Egyptian proposal would be studied.

CHARTER GRANTED

Toronto, Nov. 17 — (CP) — A charter for a $1,000,000 lakeshore hospital has been granted by the Ontario government, it was announced in the legislature here by Mrs. Nobl, vice-president of the Lakeshore Hospital Association. The hospital association, in the suburb of the city, will provide 100 beds.

U.N. Committee Shifts Debate On Russian Plan

Paris, Nov. 17 (AP)—The United Nations' Political Committee today voted to begin immediate discussion of a French-British-American disarmament plan. It shifted debate on a Russian peace plan to the end of the Paris session.

The vote was 43 to 5 (the Soviet bloc against) with five abstentions.

Committee debate on the three-power plan will begin Monday with Sidni Spencer Alexander, Canadian of the United States leading the fight for adoption of the proposals.

The 60-member committee also rejected, by a vote of 38 to 14 with 10 abstentions, a Soviet plea that a Russian peace plan presented in the general assembly yesterday be discussed immediately after disposing of the U.S. proposal.

Acheson had asked in his speech at the opening of the committee meeting today that the Western proposals be discussed first, and that the Russian plan be postponed until late in the session because it "duplicates other items" already on the committee's work sheet.

Russia's Jakob Malik agreed that the western proposal should be considered first, but insisted that the plans submitted at the general assembly by Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky of Russia be discussed immediately afterward.

Malik said the disarmament proposal "will brook no delay."

Both the western and Russian proposals were presented during the U.N. general assembly's session here. The western Big Three called for a "practicable" system of census of all weapons, including atom bombs, followed by "foolproof" controls and progressive disarmament.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Nov. 17 (CP) — Sunshine has been the general rule through the northeastern United States and southern Ontario and snow in southern Ontario is centred over North Bay this morning. With its presence a northerly flow of moderately cold air prevails over Ontario and Quebec where skies are cloudy and snowflurries are frequent.

The coldest weather will continue over Ontario on Sunday and the snowflurry activity will diminish in most sections.

ABOUT 150,000 FLEEING HOMES AS FLOODS RISE

Rampage Has Cost At Least 94 Lives

Rovigo, Italy, Nov. 17 (CP)—Some 150,000 persons were reported fleeing their homes today in the Po delta as Italy's worst floods in 50 years continued a rampage that already has cost at least 94 lives.

By train, truck and boat, villagers and city dwellers hurried to the safety of the northern countryside.

They fled from this provincial capital of 40,000 shortly after midnight as torrents of water began surging over the streets. Thousands of others were pulling out of about 40 villages either engulfed or in immediate danger.

Police in the nearby hamlet of Villa Marzana died and killed three persons caught looting the deserted homes of flood victims. It was the first report of looting.

Premier Alcide de Gasperi took part in the final decision asking Rovigo residents to evacuate the city.

The premier spent all yesterday watching volunteers provide relief boats and skiffs for thousands of refugees pouring in from the stricken area.

Workers With Officials

He also conferred with local officials to get some idea of the enormous reconstruction job that will be needed to repair the flood damage.

Since Nov. 8, when high winds and torrential winds struck northern Italy, millions of dollars in damage have been brought by storms and floods.

The death toll stood at 94 last night, but officials feared many more may have been lost in isolated hamlets.

Up to last night officials had been able to avoid the flooding of Rovigo by bombing the banks of Bianco Canal to divert the advancing waters. Italian air force planes stood by all day with improvised bomb racks, but heavy fog prevented flights.

Late last night officials decided it was too late to try to stem the torrent.

Army and civilian units, including a detachment from the British and American army occupation troops in Trieste, have been in the fight for two days.

Germans Demanding Stern Action On Growing Nazism in W. Germany

Frankfurt, Nov. 17 (AP) — Many Germans are demanding stern action to check a rising neo-Nazism led by nazism in west Germany.

"Let the high (German) officials not mistake, the people are watching tensely to see whether their new democracy is going to be undermined again, as it was before our history," warned the influential Frankfurter Rundschau in a recent editorial.

The federal government already has applied in court to outlaw the biggest mass movement inside Germany since the socialist Reich Party—which won seventeen seats in two recent state elections.

Meanwhile, signs of nazism's revival are multiplying.

There are indications that neo-nazi organizations, flushed with a growing success at home, may be trying to establish links with sympathetic groups in other European countries.

Leaders of the S.R.P. met recently in Augsburg with fascist followers from Britain and Italy. The S.R.P. chief admitted that "nationalistic groups" from Norway, Holland and France also have asked his party for closer cooperation.

So bold are former nazis becoming that even Hitler's noisiest lieutenants are thinking of forming their own organization. The Socialist Reich Party Guard," was declared a criminal organization by the International War Crimes' Tribunal five years ago.

But it is holding mass meetings demanding the release of war criminals, and during a recent mass convention of former SS men.

Another newspaper the Brunswick Mittag recently carried a bitter editorial attack. Otto Ernest Remer, leader of the S.R.P. who was dismissed by Hitler for his leading role in suppressing the 1944 revolt against him.

Remer recently described the rebels as traitors and defended their summary execution by Hitler.

The Zeltung expressed horror that Remer should thus "appeal to the worst in the people in our nation." Remer now faces a four-month jail term for defaming government leaders in a campaign speech.

Frost Says Liberals Gave Hospitals 'Not One Cent' When in Power, 1934-1943

By The Canadian Press)

Premier Frost says his administration made it possible for the federal government to launch plans for the St. Lawrence seaway.

The federal government yesterday gave notice it will move for creation of a $300,000,000 St. Lawrence seaway authority and Mr. Frost said last night in a Nov. 22 provincial election campaign speech in Ottawa:

"It wouldn't be possible unless the Ontario government had said it was prepared to put its money on the line."

Ontario will divide with New York State the $400,000,000 cost of the power end of the river's development.

E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario C. C. F. leader, campaigned yesterday and last night in Toronto, while Liberal leader Walter Thomson made a swing through eastern Ontario ridings along the St. Lawrence River which in most previous elections have returned Conservatives.

In Pembroke Today

Today the premier speaks in Renfrew and Pembroke, Mr. Jolliffe remains in Toronto and Mr. Thomson has addresses scheduled for Campbellford, Lindsay and Peterborough.

Mr. Frost coupled with his seaway remarks an assertion that his government's policy has been to co-operate with all other governments in Canada, regardless of policy.

Labor legislation introduced by the Conservatives after coming to power in 1943 had been the first to make collective bargaining a workable principle in the province, she government also had removed political patronages from the Ontario civil service.

In a speech in the Ottawa suburb of Eastview, the premier blamed inaction during the nine years the Liberals held office in Ontario prior to 1943 for the province's current shortages of hospital accomodation and medical personnel. From 1934 to 1943 the Liberals had given "not one single, solitary cent" to increase the number of hospital beds or help build and maintain medical facilities.

Has Liquor Policy

Mr. Thomson, speaking in Napanee in support of J. Donald Baxter, seeking re-election in Prince Edward-Lennox, said his policy on the liquor question probably will be made known Monday but was prepared to support an investigation, federal or provincial into the liquor situation in Ontario and would take advice from anyone on the problem.

In Kingston, he said the forests of Ontario will help pay for the Liberals' proposed provincial hospital care plan. He said his party, if elected, intends to collect stumpage dues from the woods industry and will, at the same time, see that there is a roots of the problem."

Surprise Attack On 9-Mile Front Made by Allies

Seoul, Korea, Nov. 17 (AP)—An allied division supported by tanks and planes today smashed ahead nearly two miles in a surprise attack along a nine-mile front in Central Korea.

"We caught the enemy by complete surprise," an allied officer said. "They had no idea we were coming."

The U.N. command division jumped off shortly before dawn in a limited-objective attack southeast of Kumsong, former red supply base 30 miles north of parallel 38.

Allied infantrymen had knocked the reds off 11 hills by early afternoon.

One U.N. battalion crossed the Pukhan River in assault boats in pre-dawn darkness and felt the unsuspecting Chinese in a soft underbelly.

The allied spokesman said U.N. forces advanced so swiftly the Chinese had no chance to counterattack. At only one point did the reds stand and fight. In this sector the allies moved in with bayonets and grenades.

Allied artillery poured dozens of shells into the communist lines, while big Patton tanks rumbled into battle positions behind the infantrymen. Warplanes supporting the advance hit the enemy 18 times.

fair distribution between logs and pulp.

He again pledged his party to obtaining higher pay for school teachers and to ensuring that the "have not" area of Ontario have a chance to enter the medical profession if they so desire.

Mr. Thomson spoke in Kingston in support of George Shurtliff, Liberal candidate in Kingston. Earlier he addressed a meeting in Enterprise in support of Harold R. Thomas, Liberal candidate for Frontenac-Addington.

In Hotel Rooms

Mr. Jolliffe said in Toronto that the record low houses have been "dreamed up in hotel rooms to catch votes" and the Liberal party is a "tremendous bubble blown up by unlimited money and extravagant newspaper ballyhoo."

Earlier, in a 15-minute broadcast over an Ontario network, he repeated his party's promise, if elected, to set up a non-partisan board of review to curb racketeering and deal with law enforcement problems. He said the Frost administration is "clearly not capable of coping with such matters and that none of its legislations has ever gone near the

WAR VETERANS TO GET HIGHER PENSIONS IN JAN.

Increase Will Amount To About 33⅓ P. C.

Ottawa, Nov. 17 (CP)—Canada's 161,000 disabled war veterans will receive an increase of about 33 1-3 percent in their pensions, starting January next.

Veterans Minister Lapointe told the Commons yesterday that increases also will be paid to the dependents of veterans and their widows. The cheques mailed at the end of January will carry the new rates.

Roughly 300,000 cheques are mailed each month. They cover 161,000 veterans, 30,000 widows, 125,000 children and 12,000 dependent parents.

The reds promised to study the proposal overnight and "consult them" further when the subcommittees meet again in Panmunjom.

Maj.-Gen. Henry I. Hodes, chief U.N. sub-committee delegate, told the communist negotiators Saturday that the Allies will accept the red proposal to fix a tentative cease-fire line along the present battle front. But he made it clear the line will become permanent only if all other Korean truce terms are agreed upon within 30 days after the proposal is accepted by the three-member armistice delegations.

Must Fix New Line

If no armistice is signed before the deadline, then a new cease-fire line will have to be fixed, Hodes said.

Lt.-Col. Howard S. Levie, official U. N. command spokesman, said: "We immediately announced reply came "much faster than we would have expected."

After Lee reiterated the reds would agree to the proposal, Hodes suggested that staff officers of both sides meet Sunday to start working out the line of battle contact which would become the tentative cease-fire line.

Lee did not respond to the suggestion but replied: "I have received your proposal in writing and will study your proposal. Since we have yet to make a full study of your proposal I cannot answer. But I will give you my answer on your proposal tomorrow."

Want Assurance

The plan demands clear-cut assurance from the reds that assurance from the reds that their line would be in no sense to the shooting before a full armistice is signed.

Until it is no question of a de facto cease-fire," Levie said. "It will assume a new ground, sea and air action to the extent condemned by Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway and his ground, sea and air commanders."

There is an official position at this advanced U.N. command base would suggest that agreement on the buffer zone would mean an immediate halt in the ground fighting.

Meanwhile there was speculation that action would be resumed to patrol activity.

Any one of the remaining items on the agenda could block a final armistice agreement.

Thorny Problems

Still to be settled are such thorny problems as the exchange of war prisoners, arrangements to assure that the armistice is not violated and recommendations to the respective governments.

The communists were expected to balk at international inspection behind their lines. And as a result of this week's charges that the communists have massacred thousands of U.N. war prisoners, agreement on the exchange of prisoners probably will not be quickly worked out.

Among the recommendations to be handed is one covering the withdrawal of all troops from Korea, another potential stumbling block.

If the communist sub-committee agrees to the proposal the full armistice and prisoner delegations will be called into session to adopt it formally.

Senior Commonwealth Officers Deny Canadian Troops Chained Australian

West Sector, Korea, Nov. 17 (CP)— Reports that Canadian troops maltreated an Australian soldier in a military jail were branded untrue today by senior officers of the Commonwealth division. There may be a court of inquiry to clear the air once and for all the secondhand report of military maltreatment, but meantime the story is discounted as "highly colored grossly," "a fantastic lie"—and a possible attempt to create trouble.

Lt.-Col. William Vickers, British assistant adjutant, said the preliminary investigation shows there was gross exaggeration in the allegation that an Australian soldier was chained to a wall in a Canadian jail at Seoul.

Brig. J. M. Rockingham, who heads the Canadian brigade, declared any prisoner in a Canadian camp ever has been chained to a wall.

He called the accusation "a communist effort to sabotage Commonwealth relations."

Lt.-Col. Frank Hassett of Sydney, Australia, commander of the 2nd Battalion, Royal Australian Regiment, said: "I am not sure where the reports are inaccurate."

Vickers' report on his investigation is understood to call the charge "a fantastic lie."

The story of chaining came from an Australian soldier at a meeting of the Korea Veterans' Association in Melbourne. He was reported as saying the chaining happened when he was sentenced to 28 days' detention for sleeping on duty. The story-teller later told Australian army officials he had heard the story second hand.

Lt.-Gen. William Bridgeford, Commonwealth administrative commander who visited the Rockingham Thursday, said he might order a formal court of inquiry.

U.N. Command Ponders Accepting Reds' Peace Plan

Signing of Armistice Part of Proposal

BY ROBERT B. TUCKMAN

Munsan, Korea, Nov. 17. (AP) —The United Nations command, in a dramatic move to end the Korean fighting, decided today to accept the communist buffer-zone proposal—if an armistice is signed within 30 days. The communists indicated they might agree.

North Korean Maj.-Gen. Lee Sang Cho told U.N. negotiators the U.N. plan "seems in the main to be in accordance with our principles."

The reds promised to study the proposal overnight and "consult them" further when the subcommittees meet again in Panmunjom.

Maj.-Gen. Henry I. Hodes, chief U.N. sub-committee delegate, told the communist negotiators Saturday that the Allies will accept the red proposal to fix a tentative cease-fire line along the present battle front. Still to be settled are such thorny problems as the exchange of war prisoners, arrangements to assure that the armistice is not violated and recommendations to the respective governments.

The communists were expected to balk at international inspection behind their lines. And as a result of this week's charges that the communists have massacred thousands of U.N. war prisoners, agreement on the exchange of prisoners probably will not be quickly worked out.

Among the recommendations to be handed is one covering the withdrawal of all troops from Korea, another potential stumbling block.

If the communist sub-committee agrees to the proposal the full armistice and prisoner delegations will be called into session to adopt it formally.

Pals Made Planes 'Hold Hands' With a Third

Tokyo, Nov. 17 (Reuters)—Capt. John I. Paladino, Allied jet pilot from Little Rock, Ark., is alive today because two of his pals made their planes "hold hands" with a third.

Far East Air Force officials today told the incredible story of how Lt. Wood S. McArthur of Little Rock and Capt. Jack Miller of Dayton, O., slid their wing tips under those of Paladino's plane when he blacked out from lack of oxygen.

They guided the jet fighter to a lower altitude, where Paladino regained consciousness and landed safely.

The three planes were returning from a Korea MIG Miller and McArthur and Paladino dove and climbing and diving wildly and maneuvered for position.

"We yelled at him over the radio to pull back on the stick and level out," said Capt. Miller. But then they saw Paladino slump over the controls.

The pilots closed in on either side of him, got their wing tips under his and guided him down over Allied lines.

City Hall Clock Again Tolling Off the Hours

City residents within "hearing" distance of downtown perked up their ears Thursday afternoon when they heard "Big Ben" in the city hall clock tower tolling out the hours at half hours.

Ordinarily there is nothing unusual about a city clock striking the hours, but it has been quite different in Belleville.

Months ago the striking mechanism of the 75-year-old clock went out of commission and since that time "Big Ben" has been mute with the exception of infrequent police calls that are sounded on the bell.

But the clock caretaker, George Crocker, has repaired the mechanism and once again city residents will be able to "hear" the hours as well as see it on the clock face.

Leonard Connor Tells Club About Manufacture of Plastics

Leonard Conner, retail sales manager of the Bakelite Company addressed the monthly meeting of the Sales and Advertising Club in the Quinte Hotel last night. He spoke on "Plastics" and promoted several aspects of plastic.

Mr. Connor is a graduate of Texas College, mines and metallurgy, 1933. He joined the development department of the Bakelite Company but during the war served with the atomic energy committee. He returned to the Bakelite Company in 1947, recently being promoted to his present position.

"Today in the United States," the speaker stated, "there is produced 3,000,000,000 pounds of plastic raw material. Ten years ago," he added, "there was one million pounds of plastic fabricated, whereas there are 2 billion square yards produced each month."

Explains Uses

He illustrated several samples of plastic raw material and explained the uses. Flooring, phonograph records, toothbrush cap, a harmonica, a co-axial cable were among the items shown. The latter was an actual part of a project during the last war. The speaker stated that it is the best possible electrical insulation material known. It plays a large part in radar sets.

"Plastics, if properly applied," he continued, "will not rot and no other product such as metal or glass can do. It can also be used in conjunction with these products to produce such things as safety glass." The plastic material used in this combination is called vinye butyral.

Immediately Mr. Connor, plastic was discovered 40 years ago by a Dutch immigrant named Dr. H. Baekland, by combining carbolic phenol and formaldehyde. He utilized heat and material to make it fuseable and insoluble.

Many Varieties

A number of the plastics used today include lucite, cellulose, melamine, vinyl resin, polythylene, polystyrene, and others.

Summarizing the advantages of the product, the speaker stated that it was advantageous because it is tasteless, odorless, lightness in weight, unlimited color range, and its ability to change properties to suit the application. A major advantage, he added, was the unlimited source of raw materials, air, coal, and natural gas all being in abundance.

Other everyday items illustrated included an apron, shower curtain, curtain brush, various household items and phenolic laminations.

Research Needed

Mr. Connor summed up the address by stating that in the future, plastic has the greatest potential volume for materials in the history of industry. All it needs is proper research, development, and production. "The age of plastics is not in the future", he concluded, "but is here now. It only lies within the limits of man's ingenuity."

The speaker was introduced by Edward Littlejohn and thanked by Paul Mercier, who also presented him with a gift.

Club members and guests seated at the head table included William Holloway, Richard Cowan, Dr. Gerald Morton, Ed Littlejohn, Fred Mundell, Wes Barnes, John Buchan, Stan Goodwin, Jamie Musgrove, Jack Wilson, and Allen Coulter. They were introduced by club president Charles Lazier and welcomed by Jack Wilson on behalf of the club to the sales and advertising first meeting in 1951.

Communications were handled concerning the Canadian International Trade Fair held in Toronto in June, the inter-city meeting in London, and other matters.

Cowan Resigning

The resignation of Dick Cowan, bulletin editor and club director was received by Mr. Lazoby, who wished Mr. Cowan every success in his new job.

Following the meeting, those present were invited to the Bakelite Recreation Club on Station No. 2, where they were conducted on a tour of the manufacturing. The departments were explained, including the 'cooking' room, laboratory and the compounding of phenol and formaldehyde. He utilized heat and material to make it fuseable and insoluble.

Would-be safe crackers who forced their way into the office at the Swift Canadian Company plant on Station Street Friday night went to a lot of work and got exactly nothing for their efforts.

Police stated an "amateurish" attempt was made to crack the safe with nitro, but what the safe crackers apparently did not know was that the safe was already unlocked and was empty. The small sized safe was not damage the safe, it was reported.

Police Inspector J. Clair Hayes stated safety had been given to the office by the night operators using a heavy type to cover their way through the office door.

Former Helen Douglas of Belleville Wife of Noted Cancer Researcher

John R. Beston, of Oshawa, who has been credited with doing much of the scientific research work behind what may be a major contribution in the fight against cancer, is a son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Douglas, of Belleville. Mrs. Beston, nee Helen Douglas, was well known in Belleville during her residence here.

The discovery that glutamatic acid might have considerable importance in fighting cancer was announced a short time ago by the National Cancer Institute. It was learned that the glutamatic acid content is higher in the blood of those suffering from cancer than in the blood of healthy persons.

Credit for the discovery was given to Mr. Beston by Dr. E. W. McEnroy, director of public health nutrition at the University of Toronto. Professor McEnroy said that Mr. Beston, who is his assistant, was "the man who did all the work."

Both Professor McEnroy and Mr. Beston have pointed out that it may be many months before their researches are completed. Mr. Beston said: "What we have found out is just one more fact about what goes on in the system of a person who has cancer. It moves cancer research a little closer toward solving the real problem — what causes cancer."

Outsider Wins Last Flat Race Of the Season

Manchester, England, Nov. 17 (Reuters)—Good Taste, a seven-year-old Irish-bred outsider, today won the Manchester November Handicap—last big race of the English flat racing season—from Solar, a four-year-old shot. French Design, a four-year-old, was third.

Good Taste, oldest horse in the race, won by a neck from Solar with the latter third between second and third. French Design was placed third after a photo-finish with Clare Hill. There were 21 runners.

The winner gains $5,000 first prize after a magnificent struggle for first place between the two leaders who had the race entirely to themselves over the last furlong.

Over the last lap of the race, run in fast mud, Solar was led by Prince Aly Khan, son of the Aga Khan, looked a sure winner but Good Taste ridden by Edmund Gaselee made a terrific last-second spurt. The favorite, Lord Derby's Western Window, made a slow start and was never in the running.

With today the last day of the flat racing season, trainers are taking to their handbooks on the jumps. The steeple chasing and hurdling season opens at Birmingham Monday.

Bullfighting—Cruel Sport

(Article 44)

Santander, Spain — (Special to the Ontario Intelligencer) — If you were to ask a Spaniard what event he enjoyed seeing most, he would in all probability answer — bullfights. This sport has become almost a tradition in Spain and no city is without its "Plaza de Toros." It is not that the spectators like to witness the shedding of blood, for the most important thing for them is the colorful costumes, and the dexterity with which the torero and his assistants perform.

To become an expert torero or toreador takes years of training, but the reward is great, for when they obtain a name among the public, they receive large salaries. Out of this, however, they must pay their assistants, and keep themselves in the expensive clothing which their trade requires. In addition there is the penalty that comes with their ability, for the names of the leading toreadors are as famous in Spain, as professional hockey players are in Canada.

Bulls Carefully Selected

If the toreadores are carefully selected, so are the bulls. They are raised on farms especially for this purpose, and bring a good price when sold. The best bulls weigh about 1,000 pounds and usually come from farms in Andalusia in southern Spain. After they have been killed they are sold as first-class beef. I was surprised somewhat in learning this, for after the beasting they take in the ring, I should imagine the meat would be rather tough. Evidently not however.

The price of admission to a bullfight is rather high. Here at Santander it has changed only to $1.25 and the most expensive was $15. The price depends greatly whether you are in the sun or in the shade, with the latter being much more expensive. However, the day I went it was cloudy, so it did not matter much.

The performance, or should I say, slaughter, begins about five in the afternoon and lasts for about two hours. There are usually six bulls, and one torero may fight all six, or three or perhaps only two. The fight with each bull consists of four stages. Before this however, there is the march past when all the toreros and their assistants led by three men on horseback march into the ring and parade it once, first of all marching past the president's box. When they have all retired to their corners the action begins.

Victim Appears

When it is about time for the first bull to appear everyone turns to look at the entrance. I confess I could see nothing, but the lady next to me shrieked, and said "El toro" and sure enough in about a minute the bull appeared. He looked around the ring with a rather bewildered expression, until he saw the red and yellow capes of the torero's assistants whose purpose it is to excite him.

The bull charges one, then the other, but they do not take too many chances and run for their little boxes whenever the bull gets close. When the bull has been sufficiently excited, enter the "picador."

The picador, well padded, is mounted on a horse, also well padded, and rides the bull towards him. He is armed with a lance with a rather blunt point, and when the bull charges, sticks the lance into his back. Naturally the larger the bull charges, the larger wound he receives. He takes his spite out on the horse, who sometimes dies because of his padding. Formerly neither picador nor horse were protected in any way, so you can imagine what often happened when the bull charged.

Sometimes the horse is knocked down, and this is a signal for the assistants to rush in once more with their capes to try to draw the bull off until the horse can get up again. When everything is in order, the picador attacks again with the lance and then retires from the ring. By this time blood is evident over part of the bull's back.

Third Stage

The third stage begins when the "banderilleros" go, one at a time to the centre of the ring, armed only with two small sticks which are barbed with ribbon. These sticks have a small steel point with a barb, and are called "banderillas." It is the duty of the banderillero to stick these in the bull's neck, one at a time.

Because of the barb they cannot fall out if properly entered. It is quite a trick to put these in when the bull charges and get out of the way as soon afterwards as possible. Of course this only serves to infuriate the bull even more, and prepare the way for the star of the show, the torero.

The torero, dressed in all his finery, enters with a red cape and a long sword, and proceeds to exhibit his ability to the crowd. He does everything he can to make the bull mad, and when the bull charges, moves about with an agility that is sometimes remarkable. The bull's horns just seem to miss him by an eyelash, and this is how he wants them, wants.

Cries of "muy bien" fill the air, and if the torero is particularly good, people wave their handkerchiefs, which means that they want the president to reward the torero with an ear of the bull, or even both ears, or if he has really been exceptionally good, with the tail or feet. A severed trophy room must look rather funny, with ears, feet and tails all over the place.

Death Ordered

After the torero has displayed his wares, the death of the bull is ordered, and this is where the bloody part starts. The bull is already streaming blood from now the toreo draws his long sword and with a graceful lunge forward plunges it into the bull. It may or may not be a good stab. If not, the torero calls for as many swords as are necessary until he puts one deeply into the bull. Then the torero is finished, and all his assistants come out once more waving their capes. The bull makes a few more futile charges, then drops in the ring, where he slowly dies, often in a pool of blood. To hurry his death, a "punillero" armed with a small dagger, plunges it into the bull's head, which kills him immediately. The bull is dragged off by three horses to the slaughter-house where the public may see him afterwards. At the same time, the sand in the ring is being raked over in preparation for the next bull.

Unpleasant Spectacle

I came away from my first bullfight feeling disgusted with the whole thing, and venture to say it will probably be the only bullfight, or should I say bull slaughter, I shall ever see. While I grant that it is a sport to avoid the charges of the bull, and that the costumes are very colorful, I see no point in the bestiality with as much shedding of blood as they do. The bull hasn't a chance in the world, and the whole thing reminded me of the stories I read in school of the Christian martyrs being thrown to the lions. When I asked the person next to me whether all this blood-letting was necessary, he replied, "yes, we're bestial."

A pretty sight it may be, but neither I nor my acquaintances at the university were able to see it that way. I draw some consolation from the fact that at least the horses are protected now, as well as their riders, where formerly they were not. I was quite surprised when my landlord agreed with me and said he would never go near a bullfight again. Also he is an exception. The majority of the Spaniards still go, looking forward to their next bullfight with as much eagerness as I do my next hockey game.

Johannesburg (CP) — Because smokers overseas dislike the flavor of South African cigarettes, a big drive is under way to produce a leaf which can be exported. Thousands of tobacco farmers are being taught how to grow the new leaf.

The Israeli Press

(Article 9)

Jerusalem — (Special to the Ontario Intelligencer) — For such a small country Israel has a large number of newspapers. The general organization of the difficult newspaper is somewhat different from that in Canada. I found it quite interesting to review the past and present setup and function of the former Palestine press and the present-day Israeli press.

In the beginning the press was the voice of the "Yishuv" or Jewish community in Palestine during the period which began with the Balfour Declaration of 1917 and ended with the Declaration of the State of Israel in 1948. During this period it was the job of the press of the country to support the events as they happened and interpret the decisions and actions of the British Mandatory Government. It also expressed Jewish reaction to all of the Mandatory's decisions.

Few Profitable Papers

The Israeli press is unique in many ways than one. For one thing, Israel has no press magnates and has no chain ownership. Also the political parties are powerful. From this point of view the Israeli newspapers are exceptionally free because they are not influenced by big advertisers or big business. Most of the newspapers in Israel are also free from government control, apart from the control of news which might affect the security of the new state.

Party Newspapers

One peculiar aspect of most Israeli newspapers is the fact that they are political party newspapers. These papers openly declare which party's views they represent and they serve the interests of these parties. Despite this fact, they remain uncorrupted. This was expressed very well by Gershon Ayron, editor of the Jerusalem Post, when he said, "A party paper cannot be bought without the party being bought."

This country of Israel, which at the present time is going through the process of "Kibbutz galluth," (gathering of Jewish exiles from all parts of the world) is certainly not entirely Hebrew-speaking or Hebrew-reading. The incoming exiles bring with them the language of the country from which they come, and therefore new newspapers have been established to cater to them in their native tongue.

The newcomer must be helped in understanding the new country to which he has come to live, and for a time at least, the newspaper in his language must serve to bridge the gap between the past and present. The Israeli press also caters to him in his own language by presenting daily broadcasts as well as French, English, Hungarian, Rumanian, Yiddish and Yemenite.

English Speaking Paper

My Canadian friends and I were very happy to find a daily English newspaper here in Israel. It is The Jerusalem Post. This paper is independent of party control, supports the government as the bearer of the people's sovereignty and generally marches in step with it. This newspaper has helped me a great deal in my endeavor to understand this country and its people.

The editors and reporters of the Israeli press are doing an excellent job of keeping the people of Israel well informed about outstanding happenings in Israel and other parts of the world. Thus far they have succeeded in keeping the Israeli press free and they are dedicated to continuance of this policy in the future.

The men and women of the Israeli press are certainly doing their share in promoting a free and democratic Israel.

Learn Mission Work in B.C. 'Boot Camp'

Salmon Arm, B. C., Nov. 17 (CP) — A "boot camp" for toughening missionaries for work in the jungles has been set up here by the Sun Tribes Mission.

Thirty-two members of the mission — 24 Canadians and eight Americans — are preparing for work in Thailand jungles.

Under camp councillor Roy Larsen they are learning everything from carpentry to cooking. The 13 women in the party are learning to saw planks and pound a nail.

The group, non-denominational and representing 15 churches, takes its religious training from Stanley Wallace, an Australian factory worker from Los Angeles.

The camp is on 117 acres of heavily forested land.

Founded by Paul Fleming, former missionary in Malaya, headquarters of the mission are in Chico, Calif., Mr. Fleming and 25 members of the mission were killed in an airplane accident last year.

PROFESSOR DeLURY

Canada loses one of its most distinguished scholars by the death at Alfred Tennyson DeLury, which occurred last Monday at Ross Memorial Hospital in Lindsay.

Professor DeLury, who had been living quietly at his birthplace, Manilla, since his retirement some two decades ago, was professor emeritus of mathematics of the University of Toronto. He was formerly dean of the faculty of arts, University of Toronto. He was a member or honorary member of a dozen mathematical and scientific societies and was internationally known.

Professor DeLury will be chiefly remembered as the author of mathematical text books which have been used, and still are used, not only throughout Canada but in various parts of the United States and elsewhere.

Many thousands of ex-students of the University of Toronto will remember Professor DeLury as a kindly, white-haired old man who knew all about the quadratic equation and the binomial theorem and who could work out complex problems painlessly.

In the ode which begins with the words "Exegi monumentum aere perennius," "I have reared a monument more enduring than brass"), the Latin poet Horace predicted that what he wrote would be studied and pondered over after he was dead, by schoolboys "in lands far away."

Since he was a self-effacing man, Professor DeLury did not preface his mathematical text books with any such remark, but he could have done so.

ON WORKING FOR NOTHING

In a speech which he made in Toronto last Monday night, J. Gerald Godsoe, president of the Toronto Board of Trade, said that there were 46,000 persons of the Canadian federal government payroll in 1939, the year the last war started.

By 1948, a year after the war ended, Mr. Godsoe continued, this figure had risen to 118,000. In March, 1951, apparently the latest date for which the figure was available, Mr. Godsoe stated, the number was 156,000.

Godsoe explained that the average Canadian worker has to work 58 days a year to earn enough to pay the taxes he is required to pay in a year. If there are 243 working days in a year, he said, a worker must devote almost one day in four to hard labor producing money for the government to spend.

Other remarks made by Mr. Godsoe indicated that he did not like the way things are going. It is our considered opinion that most of the workers and wage-earners of Canada do not like it any more than he does. These workers and wage-earners look to prominent men who occupy positions of influence, such as Mr. Godsoe, to provide leadership in making an end to some of this nonsense.

FIVE-DAY WEEK SPREADS

Whether everyone likes it or not, the five-day week, already general in industrial establishments, seems likely to be adopted by all or nearly all mercantile and business firms in this country.

Latest to fall in line is banking, one of the most conservative of all types of business. Hon. Douglas Abbott, minister of finance, announced in Ottawa on Tuesday last that the Bills of Exchange Act, which is apparently the act under which the banks operate, is going to be amended soon so as to allow the banks to close all day on Saturdays as well as Sundays.

The change, it appeared from Mr. Abbott's remarks, is being made at the behest of the banks themselves. The banking companies said that they were having difficulty in finding and keeping competent help when so many of their competitors in the labor market were working five days a week only.

LESS ADVICE, MORE MONEY

A certain Dr. Karl Bernhardt, described by the Globe and Mail as "a professor of psychology at the University of Toronto" is quoted, also by the Globe and Mail, as advising the school teachers of this province to "abolish all school discipline."

The professor is not satisfied with the abolition of corporal punishment for unruly youngsters in the schools. That, he points out, has already been "largely" achieved. He wants to see an end to "all other tricks of maintaining order, the gold star, the school prize, detention." These methods, Professor Bernhardt opines, "provides false motives for study."

What the school teachers of Ontario should be given, we believe, is less nonsensical advice and more money. There is something wrong when the teacher, whose job is second in importance to that of the parents, is paid considerably less than tradesmen and others who handle a much less precious commodity.

In all its rivers, Brazil possesses 27,318 miles of navigable waterways.

FOOTBALL PLAYER'S MOTHER

She watches for him at the door
Hoping that she will see
Her hero coming home once more
Without an injury.
No peace of mind has she the day
His team another team will play.
Until the football season's close
In constant fear she'll be
That he will suffer cruel blows
From rougher boys than he.
And stronger tackles will attack
Her brave, but gentle, quarterback.
But should he boast of tackles hard
He made to help his team.
And tell her how he blocked a guard,
On him she'll proudly beam
And be his father she will say:
"Our quarterback did well today."

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

25 YEARS AGO
November 17th., 1926.

Following are the officials of the Belleville unemployment relief committee in relief at this time the sum of $10,000: Mayor Geo. Reid, chairman of central committee; G. A. C. Wills, chairman of the finance committee; E. V. Isley, chairman of the supplies committee; Major Lorne F. Green, chairman of the employment committee; Harry B. Stock, treasurer; Fred G. Chamberlain, secretary.

So far the sum of $1,061.94 cents has been subscribed to the city's unemployment relief fund. In this amount are included four subscriptions as large as subscription, is $250 from the city fire department.

Twenty-one wanderers occupied the city's cells recently and the police station last night and the night before there were fourteen.

30 YEARS AGO
November 17th., 1921.

The members of the Women's Conservative Club recently elected the following officers: President, Mrs. J. A. McFee; Vice President, Mrs. J. W. Kinney; Secretary, Mrs. W. H. Nugent; Treasurer, Mrs. Arthur McFarlane; Ward Chalmers: Ward 1, Mrs. Coughlan and Mrs. Fagan; Samson Ward, Mrs. Bishop, Mrs. P. Miller and Mrs. A. Williams; Ketchewan Ward, Mrs. A. Kerr, Mrs. Mark and Mrs. Hall; Victoria Ward, Mrs. J. Barlow, Mrs. Ed. Ferris and Mrs. E. Fisher; Bleecker Ward, Mrs. P. Docter, Mrs. William Taylor and Mrs. H. McGinnis; Coleman Ward, Mrs. E. Holt, Mrs. A. Hinds, Mrs. A. Kennedy and Mrs. Asay Gulliver; Murney Ward, Miss Mary B. Palliser, Mrs. E. Dreyer, Mrs. Ira Backus, Mrs. R. Ketcheson, Mrs. Harry Thompson and Mrs. J. Hurst.

40 YEARS AGO
November 17th., 1911.

Mr. W. Jeffers Diamond of this city has been elected secretary of Mr. W. B. Grotto has returned home after a trip to Western Canada.

Mr. John Defoe, editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, is spending a few days with Mr. John A. Holgate in Sydney.

Mr. A. A. McDonald, barrister, of Marmora, was in town today.

Mr. George Weaver of Maynooth was in town today.

Mr. Harry E. Bothridge of Brandon, Manitoba, an old Belleville boy, is renewing acquaintances in town.

50 YEARS AGO
November 17th., 1901.

Judge Fralick and Mr. James Knox have returned home from a hunting expedition in the north country. They brought home with them deer, many partridges and salmon trout.

At the meeting of the city council the question of the proposed purchase by the electric street railway by the city came in for much discussion. Most people, we think, will agree with the views expressed by Ald. Bogart, Ald. McFee and Ald. Panter, who claimed at the meeting that a full statement of the receipts and expenditures of the company should be handed to the executive committee before the council decided to buy the road. The idea of the city acting as a corporation enterprise finds favor with no one. The matter was referred back for further consideration.

The following interesting item is from our file copy of the Belleville Intelligencer: "In the Oddfellows Hall tomorrow afternoon Edison's great invention, the phonograph, will be on exhibit and concert will be given from a large selection of records. It will be one of the interesting events of the season. The admission charge is for adults 20 cents and for city school pupils 10 cents.

Letter to the Editor

Grateful for Quick Storm Damage Repairs

Ontario Intelligencer.
May I through the medium of your paper express my appreciation to the employees of the public Utilities, Bell Telephone, and public works department for the splendid job they did collectively during last week's sleet storm. After seeing the damage that was done I expected it would be two or three days before services were restored but by nightfall of the first day practically all the city were back to normal.

As a farmer, I have no idea of the technical problems involved but I do realize that it was a tough job done under very severe conditions and I know that I speak for the citizens as a whole when I say, "Thank you fellows, you did a grand job."

G. W. Jackson.

Soviet Version Of 'Average' American

(An Editorial In The Milwaukee Journal)

Have you stopped recently to take a long look at yourself? You live, you know, in a shack. You get no medical care, and no soap to wash with. You sleep with two families in one tent room (what with your starving kids cluttering the place) to-pulled from the floor, you could get a bed, which is doubtful.

Then are you? You're Ivan Amerikanovitch, official Soviet propaganda version of the average American. Ivan Cotlin, who has been following your career in current Soviet propaganda literature. He finds that you're a pretty messy creature, as far as the Russian reader and that's how he is concerned. Here's some "official" Russian data about you:

You work under the tommy guns of your boss' private police or those of "the gangster agents of Wall Street." You have been cut to the bone, and you can't afford to buy food. As a result you stand in "bread lines" to get your daily ration of thin soup, bread and tea. You live in your wife's tuberculosis, in your free the long hours she puts in at the sweatshop. There is no hospital for her to go to, and no secret.

Your children are being taught in school to hate you and love the "gangsters" who are responsible for them, because right after school they have to go to the sweatshop, too, or out into the fields, to work for the big landowners. Even in the Boy Scouts, sisters have is given over to the training of future Wall Street blackmail, espionage, race hatred and how to gouge out eyes.

The F.B.I. watches your every move, and pockets the beats you. Between times the F.B.I. is busy framing you. Or, if necessary, other crop destroying insects. to be dumped on farm lands of other countries. There the F.B.I. agents learn their cruelest tricks of torture, which are then applied to keep American police control intact.

But you have fun, too. You can go to your lodge, or religious organization and get drunk or drink up your daily lynching. It's the only recreation you have. Or you can swagger down the street and push colored people off sidewalks, or beat up a few Chinese or Slavs.

You could be worse off. You might be one of the millions in the slave labor concentration camps or one of the 20,000,000 slaves who operate American farms. Perhaps, instead of sitting in an old box at home this evening, be might be in the cement, and have given live steam baths or underground coal tortures by your bosses, who conduct a continuing reign of terror to keep you and your friends in line.

What's the pitch? The Soviet leaders have two aims — first to make you hate them, hate you, second, to make them believe that you are as full of as they.

"These," says Coffin, "are some of the myths that are dinned into Russian ears in a constant flow. To the United States intelligence agents this fanciful picture of Ivan Amerikanets is a mirror of Soviet life. None of it sounds, at all improbable. Only one thing is new for them could be the ignorance of the modern Russian to be any better than their own?"

GINGER BEER CONTEST

Glasgow, Scotland (CP)—University students here decided to hold a beer-drinking contest to raise funds for a students' farewell dinner, but when officials heard of it the menu was changed to ginger beer. A brewery had intended presenting 600 bottles of

New Gold Mines Causing Boom In South Africa

Johannesburg — (CP) — Number 13 has put gold mining associations in South Africa now.

The steel headgear of the new gold mines, rising over the drab dusty veldt of the Orange Free State, are landmarks for the development of four boom towns whi h one day will bring the total of South African cities to 13, opening a new chapter in the union's already history of mineral development.

Unlike Johannesburg and Kimberley, the new cities are not being born in tents and mud shacks. They will not rush to a sprawling maturity beset with housing and transport problems. The free state planners learned their lessons from the tangle that developed in Johannesburg, for instance, and they have called in the geniuses of science to make sure the same things will not happen again in the new goldfields.

First of the new goldfield towns was Odendaalsrus, where 40 miles of solid gold strike was made six years ago. Thousands of houses have been built in Odendaalsrus and its neighbor towns of Welkom, Virginia and Hennenman. All planned to cover developments for another 25 years, they have been built on muskrat-free, rat-free, hot dry flats where formerly a few hardy Boers scratched out their groundnuts and raised cattle.

Modern Buildings

driven through the farmlands, al-

Roads and a railway have been fields and pastures. Well-to-do pioneers have been provided with fine residences, churches and schools, recreation clubs and business. Satellite townships for native workers have been planned and built with the same foresight.

Originally a tiny hamlet, Odendaalsrus has been rebuilt in a wave of modern homes and buildings. Its business and shopping buildings are springing up, shops with big city fronts are appearing and two up-to-date hotels are in the offing. Planned suburbs are coming into existence.

Twelve miles south of Odendaalsrus planners started from scratch to build the new town of Welkom on the bare veld. They planned an imposing civic centre, parks and a green belt, controlled traffic highways, boulevards and parkways, markets, churches, schools and sports fields. Remarkable progress has been made in development of Welkom's four suburbs.

Toronto to Try New Itemization Of Pupil Skill

Toronto (CP) — A revolution is due here this month. No more will school report cards itemize student effort and ability.

Starting soon, report cards will gauge pupils' work progress by the use of three letters — A for outstanding, S for satisfactory, and U for unsatisfactory. They will be used in all Toronto public schools up to Grade 8.

At the same time it will show by the same letters how a student is developing his personality, attitudes and sense of responsibility.

And, like the old style, report cards will retain the space for parents' comments.

Revolutionary System

The letters mean exactly what they say. Pupils who get only 65 per cent may be marked U because he can do much better.

Pupils who get 80 per cent may be graded O because he's working "up to capacity."

Toronto educators believe the new system will do a better job of reporting progress for both students and parents. Each card will have attached a note of explanation of how this goes — your child is not compared with other children, but with his own ability, progress in relation to his own ability."

One board of education official gave his reasons why cards without marks are an improvement:

1. Marks are meaningless.

2. Marks lead to constant comparisons apt to discourage pupils below average and give a sense of complacency to those above class average.

3. The new systems treats each pupil as an individual, instead of comparing him with everyone else.

Teachers will continue to mark examination papers as they do now but the results in their class files.

The new report cards were developed by a committee of principals and teachers and received the sanction of the city's top educators.

They regard the O-S-U type of marking as one of the biggest steps in an educational movement that has been going on in Toronto for several years.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

COMMUNISM PLANS SUICIDE

Before the communist revolution in Russia, Karl Marx proclaimed a holy icon. In fact the Russians had a book about sacred relic. We may disagree with all this as valid religious procedure, but the fact remains that every Russian, from the Winter Palace to the Bleaker Hut on the Steppe, had no icon and cherished it.

All that is swept away today. The new breed of Bolsheviks who occupy the Kremlin, following the teachings of the atheistic Karl Marx have thrown the icon into the discard. But they have done much more than this. With the object has gone the reverence of vast multitudes of people for sacred things, and types included upon unholy.

COCONUTS VS. MONKEYS

Auckland, N.Z. (CP) — Auckland zoo officials have learned that female pigtail monkeys are hard to obtain. Singapore traders state that high prices are paid by natives who use the animals to pluck coconuts. The market for Colombo's has risen and with it the demand for monkeys.

CANINE BAIL

London (CP) — Sutcil, a boxer dog, is always getting lost and taken to the police station, his owner says: "I am thinking of making a contract with the police, as each time it costs me money to bail him out."

BELATED LESSON

Clinton Hill, Surrey, England (CP) — When she was 87 Elizabeth Allen learned for the first time to cook by gas instead of on an oil stove. Now 90, Miss Allen does her own housework and has even run after a bus. The local vicar describes her as a "wonderful old lady."

FIND SAXON GRAVES

Dover, England (CP) — Archaeologists here are engaged in a race against time. On a hillside where houses are to be built Saxon graves 1,400 years old are being unearthed daily.

YOUNGSTERS GROW TALL IN MICHIGAN?

A Michigan optometrist occupies my chair today—a courteous friendly optometrist. And I am happy to say that there are a good many optometrists of his character among my correspondents—because he has something interesting to say:

Dear Doctor:

Your notion that boys and girls in the southwest grow taller and heavier than those raised in other parts of the country is all wrong. Government statistics show that the tallest and huskiest soldiers came not from California or Texas but from Michigan!

Many years ago the impression prevailed that the Golden State had the best and huskiest football teams, until Michigan dispelled that idea!

William K. Vanderbilt, who as a world traveller ought to know what he's talking about, wrote in a recent magazine article:

Draw a circle with a radius of 400 miles around Chicago and within that circle there is the finest and best agricultural and industrial climatic area in the world, everything considered.

So was I, Mrs. H. G.)

Answer—I'm sorry I do not know which children live "best," usually are tall enough to give diatherny treatment. The over tall ones are usually bandlelegged, but could find no doctor who uses it. Then my daughter developed a bald spot on her head and the skin specialist said it was caused by bad health. However, after the treatment he prescribed the hair is growing again and she still has her tonsils. (Mrs. R. S

Your Hospital

Hospitals Require Large Staffs, Expensive Equipment to Maintain Proper Services

(Second of Series)

Your community hospital — that house of mercy which never closes its doors or ceases its constant mission of caring for the sick — is faced with many contingencies and problems unknown, very often, to the world outside. The people who run these institutions usually do not have the time or desire to do much about publicizing what goes on within the hospital's walls. They feel their business is to take care of the sick in the best possible manner without saying too much about it.

The hospital administrator, however, has more on his mind than a few doctors, a few nurses, a few supplies and a handful of patients! The extent of a hospital's problems and expense is governed, of course, by the size of the hospital and the complexity of its operations. But, whether large or small, every hospital is providing a health service which can become very complicated.

Large Personnel

Take for example the number of different kinds of personnel required in the hospital. When you enter the hospital as a visitor the first contact you usually make is with the receptionist or information clerk. She gives you your friend's room number and directs you to the correct corridor or elevator. As you leave the elevator you will walk down polished corridors which, because of the presence of maintenance workers and housekeepers on the hospital staff.

Your friend, the patient, who is by this time able to receive visitors, will be found in a clean, adequately furnished room in a bed with fresh clean linen and will likely tell you of the special services and meals which have been given according to the orders of the attending doctor. Here you have the results of the work of many people. Housekeepers, laundry workers, dietitians, chefs, nurses, ward aids and medical interns—each one of them playing a part in the patient's recovery. The food the patient has eaten has been purchased by the hospital on the open market at today's high prices, and the furniture and other equipment in the room — even if not recently purchased at current market prices, must be valued at today's replacement costs.

Expensive Equipment

If the patient has had surgical treatment the operating room has been used and as many as five or six professional people—doctors, anaesthetists, medical interns, nurses—stood around an operating table which may have cost $2,000 and worked under the even light of a specially designed operating-room light which could have cost up to $1,200.

Prior to using the operating room it was made sterile by a staff of professional and non-professional people so that your friend's safety from infection was guaranteed. The electrical equipment is all explosion proof against the hazard caused by combustible anaesthetics — the floor is specially designed to reduce the hazard of static electricity which might cause an explosion. All these and many other precautions are costly. The preparation, alone, of the operating room may employ many hours of work and much costly material.

Before, during and after the operation, the patient has likely been administered drugs and medications from the hospital pharmacy. These often include narcotics which could be harmful if not properly prepared and thus the hospital must have a number of qualified pharmacists on its staff to fill doctors' prescriptions. Before the operation X-rays were likely taken by the hospital's X-ray technicians and interpreted by qualified radiologists. After the operation, tissue removed from the patient is sent to the laboratory where, once again, highly qualified pathologists examine it and report their findings to the surgeon.

Keep Case Records

Hospitals cannot carry on without keeping their detailed record of every patient treated and for this they maintain a medical records library with qualified medical records librarians in charge. The information on these records not only serves as a guide for the future treatment of the patient but plays a great part in the progress of medical science in its battle against illness and disease.

If it should happen that you come to assist the patient leave the hospital on discharge you will go to the cashier's office to arrange for settlement of the account. Now you come in contact with office workers — cashiers, stenographers, bookkeepers — all of whom are necessary in the operation of the hospital. Another section of the hospital, which the patient visited on the way in, is the admitting department where again we find clerical personnel who assure that all the required data on the patient is correctly listed for the hospital records.

And so on and on we find category after category of hospital employees all playing a part toward the care of the patient. Today they are working eight hours the same as their friends in industry. In many cases they are on a five or five and a half day week which means that the hospital has had to increase its staff to assure twenty-four hour patient service. Everything that is used within the hospital must be paid for—hospitals cannot expect to receive either employee service or food supplies and equipment at prices any lower than would be paid by another type of organization. Thinking over the many things which enter your friend's stay in hospital in light of today's employment and market conditions you will soon see that hospitals are doing a pretty fair job in keeping down the cost of their indispensable health service which, after all, means to many people, extra years of priceless life.

WEDDINGS

STAPLEY—VANALSTINE

Christ Church, Belleville, was the scene of a pretty October 6th wedding when Miss June Venalstyne, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Venalstyne, became the bride of Bertram Daniel Stapley, also of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stapley. The Reverend Canon J. B. Cresswell, Rector, officiated before a background of multi-colored flowers.

Mrs. Grace Calvert, church organist, rendered the traditional wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. William Fleming, of Toronto, was charming in her bridal gown of white Duchess satin, fashioned with fitted bodice buttoned to the waist and featuring a Peter Pan collar trimmed with seed pearls and rhinestones, and long, tight-fitting sleeves ending in points over the wrists. Her finger-length veil of nylon net was held in place by a halo crushed with seed pearls, and she carried a shower bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Helen Fleming, of Toronto, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honour. She wore a floor length gown of pink net over satin with long sleeves and a fitted jacket shirred at the waist. She wore a matching pink headdress and carried a nosegay of pink and white 'mums.

Mr. Ernest Stapley, of Belleville, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, while Mr. Ken Bailey and Mr. Lionel Reid, were ushers.

After the wedding dinner, which was held in Latitbee's Tea Room, Bellevue, the newly wedded couple blue with matching accessories and corsage of pink 'mums picked by the bridegroom's mother, who were entitled also to powder blue, with matching accessories and corsage of pink 'mums, received the guests.

The bride's table was centred by a three-tier wedding cake, pink and white 'mums, carnations and candles, and the other guest tables were also in pink and white motif.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls and Buffalo, N.Y., the bride chose a chocolate-brown ensemble with matching accessories and corsage of American Beauty roses. Mr. and Mrs. Stapley are residing at 41 Johnston Street, Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toronto, Trenton and Stirling.

Mrs. Heslip read the Scripture lesson from Acts 16:1-10, the theme being "Let us walk humbly together and work."

Plans were discussed for the annual meeting to be held in Kingston on January 14, of next year. Mrs. Smart urged the secretaries to send notice of encouragement to the auxiliaries. "Mention the failures, but give encouragement to the victors" was her behest. It was also decided to ask Miss Ruby Walker to be the guest speaker for the annual meeting, as new life gives new inspiration.

Tabernacle United Church Holds Charming Oriental Bazaar, Tea

To step in one moment from the bleakness of an atmosphere sodden with half rain and half snow into an authentic-looking Oriental loveliness and warmth, yesterday afternoon, required neither the imaginary carpet nor Aladdin's lamp, but simply the opening of a door to the Tabernacle hall and friends found on entering Tabernacle United Church where the Oriental bazaar and tea awaited them.

Oriental Garden

But first, the walk through an eastern garden, beside a blossom-laden cherry tree, under whose fragrant branches a dark-haired maiden with sloping eyes, seated upon a garden bench, was looking toward the far-off snow-capped mountains with eager expectancy; past a rustic, curving bridge spanning a quiet river, and then down into a fairyland of red-trunked palms, (around one of which an elegantly-bedecked Chinese lady dragon, emblematic of eastern cults, had wound his sinuous length, and with mouth stood in the breach. Following the reading of a telegram from the former pastor, the Rev. F. B. Haverson, and Mrs. Harback, in which they conveyed their best wishes and richest blessings to the congregation, on this, their bazaar day, Mr. Willis added his cordially wishes for the success of the bazaar, and after a short, dedicatory prayer, declared the bazaar open.

The centre booths with their flowering shrubs and vases of red Chinese lanterns and cherry blossoms consisted of the novelties; children's wear, towels and pillow cases and the aprons, each with its own assortment of articles.

Many Aprons

On the apron booth there were aprons of all kinds, about 100 or more, in factory cotton, prints, chintz, organdy and mixtures of the two. There were clothes-pin aprons in white cotton bordered with pink feather-stitch; dainty organdy tea aprons; barbecue aprons depicting the housewife preparing vegetables for dinner, done in colors; brief and cheeky gingham and flowered blue ginghams, white organdy with yellow rick-rack braid around skirt hem, and on the pocket; fancy small cloth apron with yellow crocheted pocket, crocheted ties, and crochet edge, all in yellow; white aprons with frills, and many others; each one will made with nicely finished seams. Convening this was Mrs. E. May assisted by Mrs. C. E. Hoag, Mrs. M. Burgess and Mrs. G. Patrick.

The towels were exceptionally nice. The terry towels were in nearly every shade of the rainbow with crocheted lace edges, either in matching or contrasting shades, while others yet again were plain, or had appliqued red washable roses. There were fancy wash-cloths; dish towels; dainty guest towels; cross-stitched embroidered pillow slips, some with knitted lace edges and made from the finest cotton; others had crocheted edges, some had "bits" and "bars", in yellow embroidery; some were bordered in blue or green with hemstitched edges. A lovely mauve or plum-colored knitted bed spread was another item fine specimens of the needlecraft art. In charge of these was Mrs. H. Isard, assisted by Mrs. W. Harrison, Mrs. E. Winters, Mrs. T. N. Roby, Mrs. W. Langridge.

Attractive Novelties

The novelty booth was attractive with its lovely crocheted doilies, satin and crochet cushions, the "unbelievable" bags, as well as sembled that they seemed almost real; sweet smelling sachet cushions for the laundry box; pretty bot mats, fancy wash-cloths, and taking the attention. Of many, were three lovely ballerina dolls one in yellow, one in pink and one in blue, all poised and ready to glide and tip-toe just where they were. Some ash trays made from discarded records, heavy to lift, and durable as metal could make them. Convening this was Mrs. M. Smith and her committee of Mrs. R. Poste; Mrs. E. Dyer, Mrs. H. Mackie, Mrs. C. May, while Miss Dorothy Moorman, Miss L. Moorman and Miss Thelma Schlievert, were also assisted by Mrs. E. Stanton, Mrs. E. Schlievert, Mrs. A. E. Fisher, Mrs. C. Healey and Mrs. William Farina.

Oriental Motif

The remaining booths were stationed around the outside of the quadrangle which the central booths formed. The decorations used in keeping with the Oriental motif were the lanterns of red and yellow, and green, with Japanese lanterns and Chinese scripts. As in all other booths, the home cooking booth was three deep with anxious purchasers for the delectable confections of tiny cookies, buns, chocolate almond cakes, lemon cake loaves, lemon, apple, raisin pies; jellies, pickles, salads, canned peaches, Chinese chews, golden-topped drop cakes, bran muffins stuffed with dates, and raisin squares, and angel cakes, all so tempting and so good, and no sooner donated than they were purchased. Convening these was Mrs. F. Davidson, Mrs. A. Cornish, Mrs. A. Nayler, Mrs. A. Townsend, Mrs. R. Shannon and Mrs. G. Brickman. Mrs. F. Douglas and Mrs. A. Wood.

Adjoining was the woodwork booth under the sponsorship of the men's club, and convened by Mr. A. Nayler, assisted by Messrs. E. Schlievert, W. Judge, G. Brickman, R. Irwin, J. Firth and R. S. Johnson. This was an outstanding booth both for the numerous items of woodcraft, as well as for the fine workmanship displayed. Besides the doll high-chairs in blue and pink; there was a bright red, workable wheelbarrow; star and crescent wall-brackets; butterfly wall-brackets, dolls' beds, dainty cigarette holders, bell boy smokers in bright red jackets with blue striped trousers, there was a fine magazine rack designed like the old-time stage coach, excellently well done.

The candy booth under the convenership of Patsy Wemblett, Winnie McCready and Viola Nelson and GAILS girls was very pretty with its canopy of red, and low, blue and green lacings and its valance of deep yellow and red fringes. Here one might buy creams, chocolates, divinity fudge and other varieties nicely packaged in round and square containers, and all reasonably priced to meet the dwindling pocket books.

Christmas Trappings

Even the Mission Band was represented and convened by Misses Jerry Jerome and Dorian Robinson, who had for sale, little story books; and all manner of Christmas seals, ribbons and cards as well as tissue wrappings.

The tea booth with its array of multi-colored lanterns and Japanese umbrellas was well stocked with whatever the efficient housewife might need to carry on her occupation of nutrition and meal preparation. Here one found the ever handy dishmop, can-openers, funnels, brushes, hot-pads, and pot-holders, turkey salt and peppers, hens and roosters; scoops; memoranda pads; cups and saucers; pie containers for lunch boxes, and every article or wall plaques to bring a spot of cheer into the busy workshop of the kitchen. This was under the management of Vennie Mulvey, Mary Ashley, Irene Gorsline, Myrtle Lockyer, Ila Bowcy and Hilda Brodie.

Four-Poster Dream Bed

In the doll emporium was all manner of doll equipment, dresses, pyjamas, little sets of dishes, bonnet, panties, tweed grey coat with brass buttons; coat and hood in blue corduroy velvet, tartan dress, the cutest little mitts and muff in white fur, and then the dolls themselves; little ones; big ones; all lovely, and in the centre of the booth, the loveliest four-poster bed with canopy top, all in pink in rich rose-colored satin; a dream of a bed, making one wish for the days that are no more; some pretty felt knitting bags with colored fell flowers. Convening these were, Mrs. A. Firth assisted by Mrs. E. Shaw and Mrs. Phil Huddleston.

There were two rooms in charge of the Comrade Club; one with the bed table daintily appointed with a white lace, hand-made cloth, centred with a crystal bowl of lovely deep pink and white daisy-like 'mums and asparagus fern, flanked on either side by crystal candelabra with tall, ivory tapers, and at either end, the silver urns. The other tea-room was most hospitable with a fire-place on which triple sets of ivory candles burned in silver candelabra amid a setting of ferns. The little guest tables were centred with cream and sugar silver servers.

Those Who Served

Convening the tea rooms were, Mrs. W. D. Embury, and Mrs. L. Wannamaker, while those who poured included, Mesdames G. Lent, M. Duff, R. B. Gross, Boyd, A. H. Fisher, A. D. Archibald, J. S. Those who arranged the plates of sandwiches and cake, were, Mrs. E. Barker, Miss J. Mossman, Mrs. S. M. McBride, Mrs. C. Finkle, Mrs. A. Smith, and Mrs. R. Varcoe. The treasurers for the afternoon were, Mrs. M. Cummings and Mrs. E. Greenleaf.

An artistically arranged bazaar and dainty tea, splendidly convened and successfully culminated. Much credit is due to the convenors of the decorating project, Mr. and Mrs. L. Andrews, and Mrs. Archibald of the Good Companions Club for the overall effect of the Oriental theme.

Women's Activities

TABERNACLE UNITED W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting of the Tabernacle United Church Women's Auxiliary of the W.M.S., was held in the church parlor on Tuesday afternoon, with Mrs. A. D. Archibald presiding.

The meeting opened with Mrs. Wm. Baird in charge of the devotional period. The Scripture lesson, Matthew 13: 13-18 was read by Mrs. Thomas Briggs.

Mrs. Baird took as her theme, "The Parable of the Sower", and said in part, "We have just sung part of a prayer hymn, which Frances Havergal has written refers to the nearness to, and the companionship of God and finally links Him to others and in the singing of the last verses the offering of Him of prayer."

Mrs. William Harrison and Mrs. F. Paul were in charge of the Call Period. The business period of the medical work in the 17 hospitals, one sanitorium hospital, and one hospital unit, which proved the W.M.S. hospitals are missionaries of the church.

Mrs. Paul read the reports as sent by Miss Kathleen Mullen from St. Paul's hospital.

The presentation of a Life membership certificate to Mrs. Fred Isard, from Mrs. Hazel Frosts, of Picton, Ontario, was the highlight of the afternoon.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

The ladies of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church met on Tuesday afternoon. Several items of business were discussed and a report of visits to sick and shutins made.

Mrs. McCullough read from Revelations, and the missionary for prayer this month is Miss Margaret Ramsay, of British Guiana.

Mrs. D. Fleming took the devotional reading and her subject was "Christian Literature". Grants are given to the W.M.S., and also a large portion of her offering received at the World's Day of Prayer, is used for that purpose. Dr. Frank Laubach has worked out a system whereby people can learn. His slogan is "Each one, teach one". A literate non-Christian can be dangerous and God's challenge is to awake.

Books and Bible in many languages have to be compiled. The United States is working with Canada in sending Christian literature to Korea.

The Kingston Presbyterial also had an executive meeting and joined the W.M.S. for afternoon tea and the afternoon ing quite a happy party.

The W.H.P., Mrs. William Harrison, with W.O.S., Mr. Arthur Archard, as toastmaster, presided and Mrs. Bert table. After partaking of a bountiful pot-luck repast, an enjoyable program was presented by the meeting and past officers.

Miss Beverley Buck sang three delightful numbers, accompanied by Mrs. Miller.

Twenty-six officers and members of Mizpah Shrine, Kingston, were guests on this special occasion.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

ADVICE TO THE LOVE sadrs

Your can get this romance or hit it fade out

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a 23-year-old service man and very much in love with a girl two years older than myself. I have known her several years, but it was not until last December that we started going together. She is married, but has been separated from her husband about three years.

I was drafted into the Army last January, but have been back home a number of times, and up until last time I was home, this girl and I got along fine. That time, though, we had a little argument, about her getting a divorce so we could be married, and after I came back to camp, I got a letter from her saying that she doesn't want to go steady any more. By the way she wrote, though, I didn't feel sure she meant it.

Even though I love her very much, I don't know whether or not to try and make up with her, because I don't like the life she lives. The only thing we really disagree on, though, is drinking.

Can you help me make up my mind?

I. L. J.

Dear I.L.J.:

When you say that you and this girl disagree about drinking, and that you don't like the kind of life she lives, I assume she is the one who does the drinking. This being the case, I think there's reason enough right there for you to make up your mind to let whatever break there is between you become permanent.

This young woman is older and more experienced than you are, and she has chosen a way of life that you disapprove. I doubt if your influence is strong enough to make her wish to change it. I don't you see that if you try to continue your relationship, it will be nothing but one argument after another?

Moreover, you are a very foolish young man to court another man's wife, no matter whether she is separated from him or not. Plenty of trouble can start that way.

I can't see anything at all encouraging about this romance, and I am quite sure that if you don't call it off now, it will be only a matter of time before it fades out. So take your choice.

Don't be self-conscious about your age difference

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm three years older than the boy I am going steady with. We get along together very nicely, but when my friends ask me how old he is, I feel ashamed to tell them.

Do you think age makes any difference?

J. E. A.

Dear J.E.A.:

Age makes very little difference if young people are congenial and companionable, particularly when you are young and it is only a matter of three years. Since you and this boy enjoy each other's company, there's no reason in the world why you shouldn't go around together. As you grow older, Time will tell whether or not you're truly well matched. If you are, you'll keep right on wanting to be together and you'll forget all about the three years difference between you. If you aren't, you'll gradually drift apart and things will take care of themselves.

So don't be self-conscious about three years, and when your friends ask, give the right answer casually and let it go at that. There's nothing in the world to be ashamed of.

Plants may be, kept fresh by the stems lengthwise into three or four pieces. Do not, however, separate the stems from the flowerets.

Cook broccoli uncovered in salted water, until just barely tender, about 12 to 15 minutes. Drain.

Boil the chestnut shells on one side with a paring knife. Place the chestnuts in a hot oven, 500 degrees, 15 to 30 minutes to loosen shells. Remove the shells. Boil the chestnuts in slightly salted water until tender, about 30 minutes. Drain. Break the chestnuts into pieces.

Place the broccoli in a baking pan or casserole. Sprinkle the chestnuts and ham over the broccoli.

Preheat the oven at 350 degrees.

Beat the 2 eggs slightly. Gradually pour the hot milk over the eggs, mixing well. Add the onion, 1 teaspoon salt and 1-8 teaspoon pepper. Pour the liquids into the baking pan. Sprinkle lightly with paprika. Place the baking pan in a larger pan containing hot water. Bake until a silver knife inserted in centre of pan comes out clean, about 30 to 40 minutes.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS REDGMAN

Let's talk about your name on your Christmas cards!

1. If you want your Christmas cards to be informal . . . and naturally most Christmas cards are informal . . . your name on them must be your intimate name. That makes sense, doesn't it?

Usually, and naturally, the name on a Christmas card is written or, imprinted at the end of a message. Now the name, whether written or imprinted, at the end of a message, like the name at the end of a letter, is a signature. And a signature is an informal name, no title before it. No "Mr. and Mrs." — no "Mrs." — no "Miss" — no "Mr.".

These are correct:
Merry Christmas and Happy New Year

Mary and John Hill
With all good wishes for Christmas
Margaret and Dudley Jones
The Sesson's Greetings to you
Peter Hall
These are incorrect:
With best wishes for a Happy Christmas
Mr. and Mrs. John Hill
Merry Christmas and Happy New Year

Miss Margaret Delafield
2. Christmas cards sent by a husband and wife are generally signed by the wife. . . and courteously she writes her name last:

John and Mary Hill
If the husband signs some of the cards. . . perhaps to some of his relatives and business or professional friends, he courteously signs his name last:

Mary and John Hill
3. When the names of husband and wife are imprinted at the end of the message, the wife's name should come first. A correct and courteous form is:

Christmas greetings
Mary and John Hill
4. When children's names are included in the signature, the father's name should come first. Example: John and Mary and Tommy.

The names of several children may be included in this delightfully informal way: The Hills—John and Mary, and Tommy, Polly and Joan.

John and Mary Hill

and Tommy, Polly and Joan
(Never should cards be signed or imprinted "Mr. and Mrs. John Hill and family.")

5. And now concerning formal Christmas Cards: Cards correctly carrying your formal name. If you wish your Christmas cards, or at least some of them, to be formal, you can correctly achieve this formality in two ways:

a: Word your message formally: that is, in the third person. And this formal form may be engraved, imprinted, or handwritten:

Dr. and Mrs. Paul Clark . . . wish you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year

or b: Select cards that have a formal appearance—conservative in design, quality, appropriate size—and with no message of any kind printed on the inside pages. Then you may correctly have your formal name engraved, imprinted or written on the inside page:

Mr. and Mrs. David Page

(The important point here is: that as the name is not at the end of a message, it does not "sign" the message, therefore is not a signature, and therefore need not be the informal name. As a matter of fact, these Christmas cards have somewhat the formality of a visiting card . . . indeed very often the visiting card plate is used for the engraving of the name on the Christmas cards.)

Women's Institute

UNIONDALE W.I.

The November meeting of Uniondale Women's Institute was held at 5th Concession schoolhouse with 23 present.

Plans were made for refreshments for the speaker service at Wallbridge. This was given by Miss McBride "It's Only Human Nature". It was decided that $10 be given to the Blind campaign fund and $10 be sent to Masonvon, (in Greece), to help buy a tractor for these war stricken people.

A fire on the 5th Concession of Sidney, left Lawrence Dafoe without clothing, so the Uniondale Women's Institute gave $15 to help replace his wardrobe.

Films were shown for a recreation period, discussion was followed by Mrs. Morley Sine. These films were by the W.I. to do, linguish first, second and third class rodeoing, being marked, fancy, choice and stabdard, always look for these especially on canned goods.

Maxine Houlden favored with a piano solo and three young girls, Connie Elliott, Marilyn Phillips and Marlene Houlden sang, accompanied by Maxine Houlden.

Mrs. Ralph Andrews played an accordion solo. Community singing Phillips a piano solo, which were enjoyed.

Refreshments were served.

The next meeting is to be held at Mrs. Morley Sine's on 7th Concession of Sidney. There will be an exchange of Christmas gifts.

GAINS BY COLD WAR

Toronto, Nov. 16 — (CP)—The famous Gen. "Boc" Polish commander who in 1945 held Warsaw against the Germans for 63 days, says Russia has more to gain by a cold war than a hot one right now. Gen. Tadeusz Bor – Komorowski is here on a visit under auspices of the Canadian Polish Congress.

BEAUTY

Low-down on high heels

Medical men have been crying about high heels for years and years, yet there is a definite place for them in the feminine wardrobe. Fancy slipping into that new formal with your feet ensconced in heel-backed oxfords! Makes you have goose flesh! It is impossible. If it killed us we couldn't do it.

One school of thought holds that wearing stilt heels, even for special occasions, is enough to ruin the feet; another insists that a flat-footed generation may develop as a result of wearing loafers and the like. High heels and flat shoes are both wrong. If high heels are worn only for short periods they are not likely to do any great amount of damage. Worn all the time, especially while tramping the domestic treadmill, they will throw the body out of balance, have a deplorable effect upon the lines of the figure, cause strain of the leg muscles. They produce fatigue because of these reasons and fatigue creates headaches.

If you are in the habit of doing your shopping with your feet encased in old party shoes, you had better get out the reliable oxfords.

High heels are often the cause of accidents. A slender reason why they should not be worn on the street, when one must climb in and out of buses, step up and down on pavements. They are distinctly dressy shoes, are out of place with the tailored suit and casual attire.

Smart and youthful new styles in low shoes have succeeded in doing what solemn lectures and hygienic sermons have failed to accomplish. The old-time "sensible shoes" were pretty grotesque attiral. The fact that they were called that made them ridiculous to some women. But, in their new forms, they have induced many gals to come down to earth.

They should be well made, designed to conform to the contour of the foot, and should have flexible leather soles to provide freedom of movement. They should be long enough to give wiggling room to the toes. Make wide enough not to press the large and little toe in toward their neighbors.

Because of the popularity of loafers, which provide no support, the feet of the teen-age daughter wear socks size eleven and one half.

Varsity Co-eds From U.S. Offer 'Improvements'

Toronto (CP) — Four American undergraduates at the University of Toronto put tongues in cheek and told the editor of The Varsity undergraduate daily, they want the university annexed at once to the United States.

Their letter to the editor said that as the "University of Northern New York," the U. of T. could have:

1. A unbeliev able football team and courses which are not unreasonably difficult for it, such as knitting or needlework, so that the players could do their homework while warming the bench.

2. Professors like the ones in the American movies, i.e., unmarried, unfaithful and under 30.

3. As part of the United States, a bigger voice in the United Nations and perhaps even a university representative on the cultural committee.

4. All undesirable males on the campus drafted for active service in Korea.

5. Slacks worn to classes in the winter and shorts in the summer.

6. A vote on the personalities and teaching ability of professors. "In short," said the girls, "we yearn to be a drop in the fountain and a source of North American culture."

The letter was signed by Nancy Donnell, Elizabeth Endicott, Margaret Nodder and Olga Skay.

FEWER TOURISTS

Oslo (CP) — Preliminary estimates made by the central bureau of statistics reveal that for the first eight months of 1951 persons visiting Norway from other countries totalled 304,387 compared with 413,989 in the corresponding period last year.

Hydro's J. Clark Keith Generating Station Starts operating at Windsor

The opening of the J. Clark Keith Generating Station on November 16th is another step in your Hydro's expansion program to add over 2,500,000 horsepower by 1955.

The first unit of this new station will supply 66,000 kilowatts (88,500 horsepower) with an ultimate 4-unit capacity of 264,000 kilowatts (354,000 horsepower.) The J. Clark Keith Generating Station will provide reserve power to meet the heavy demand occurring when industry, the home and the farm simultaneously put electricity to its greatest use, and help to assure a continuity of supply to the Windsor area.

On this occasion, the Commission extends thanks to the Engineers, to Labour and Suppliers who made possible the completion of the J. Clark Keith Generating Station on schedule.

RAWDON

Mrs. Garn Dobbs Addresses Bethel-Rawdon Bazaar and Tea

Rawdon.—On Tuesday afternoon large delegations of ladies from Hoards, Carmel, Mount Pleasant, Salem, Springbrook, St. Paul's, Stirling, St. Thomas, Wellman's and Batawa gathered at Bethel United Church.

The church altar was decorated with baskets of variegated chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Edgar McKeown and Mrs. James Warren welcomed the guests at the door.

Mrs. Harold Elliott was treasurer and Mrs. Francis Reid, secretary, received the finances and the president, Mrs. Thomas Laycock, opened the meeting, and welcomed the guests.

Brief Program

Following the devotional with Mrs. Will Heath presiding at the piano, a brief program was presented. Mrs. Harold West, St. Paul's, Stirling, sang, "The End of a Perfect Day"; Mrs. Everett Sine, Salem, read a selection on "The Liberal Use of Sand", which pointed out many places where sand is necessary.

Mrs. Ken Thompson, Mrs. Carman Sine, Mrs. Gordon Webb, Mrs. Frank Carlow, Mrs. A. H. Beare, of Springbrook, sang "Just Ask the Ladies' Aid", with Mrs. John McKeown as accompanist.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Mount Pleasant, recited "A Missionary Plea". Mrs. Arthur Duncan, of Batawa, sang "We Never Miss the Sunshine", Mrs. Lindsay Tanner, St. Thomas, read a selection "The Abiding Presence" in commemoration of the recent Remembrance service.

"Opportunities"

Mrs. Garn Dobbs, president of Belleville Presbytery W.A., gave the address on the theme "Opportunities". She said, "it is an opportunity for each individual to attend a meeting of the W.A., the W.M.S., the Y.P.U., or any other church organization.

"Today as never before the work of the church is most important. She spoke of the lands across the ocean and then said, "Canada is a land where people know God. They rally to help neighbors in need and to help those who have met with disaster." She gave examples such as "The Red River Flood".

"The world offers a tremendous challenge to our faith. We need more women like Dr. Charlotte Whitton and women should be concerned about their franchise and use it, for it is a mighty weapon for right."

Mrs. Dobbs quoted a poem "If we are Christians—why don't we talk about it?"

"Keeping our homes a happy wholesome place is only part of our job as women. There are the delinquent children; the welcome to the new Canadian, and a chance to broaden our horizons.

"While the W.A. is primarily an organization to help the home church, still it should be prepared to help other people for it is a bigger thrill to help somebody else who needs it."

In closing her address, Mrs. Dobbs referred to Christ who never confined his ministeries while on earth to any four walls but rather he did what he could along the highways and byways.

Christmas Bazaar

Following the close of the meeting, the ladies were invited to the church hall where the bazaar was held with decorations and streamers in Christmas colors of red and green.

There were booths of homemade candy, chocolates, fudge and creams, under the direction of Mrs. Ray Shortt and Mrs Will Heath.

A Parcel Post table, in charge of Mrs. Edgar McKeown and Mrs. James Warren. Here were parcels postmarked from many cities and towns.

The Flower booth—potted foliages, cacti, and plants of all descriptions were in charge of Mrs. Harold Elliott.

Mrs. Earl McMullen and her assistants had a splendid display of apples, eggs, citrous, turnips, cabbage and other farm produce.

The Home-baking was a picture of loveliness with cream puffs, angel and chocolate cakes, all kinds of small macaroons and drop cakes, berry and taffy tarts, homemade buns and bread. Those in charge were, Mrs. Walter Warren, Mrs. Leslie Thompson, Mrs. John Mulheron and other assistants.

Host of Aprons

Last but not least, was the fancy work booth. Aprons of all sizes, colors and shapes, crocheted doilies, embroideries, starched baskets, embroidered pillow slips and buffet cloths tea towels, plain and fancy; pot holders, wash cloths, travelling aids of plastic, wood novelties and jars of white buttons which sold readily. Mrs. F. Reid, Mrs. Harry Heath, Mrs. S. Hoover, Mrs. S. Brady, Mrs. A. Morrison, Mrs. Ray Sine and many others were busy serving the customers.

At the close of the bazaar the guests numbering around 150 resumed their seats and were served an appetizing luncheon by the Bethel ladies, which consisted of fruit bread, and jellies, pickles, a large variety of small cookies and tarts of every description which everyone thoroughly enjoyed.

Mrs. J. Rannie, Hoards, voiced appreciation for the enjoyable afternoon, both for the program and refreshments.

RE-AFFIRMS OPPOSITION

Montreal, Nov. 18—(CP)—The Canadian Council of Churches yesterday re-affirmed its opposition to gambling in Canada and condemned gambling practices as a means of securing funds for charitable purposes.

FRANKFORD

Frankford. — The Frankford branch of the Canadian Legion held their bi-monthly meeting in the Legion Hall, Monday night, with a good turnout.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wrightman, of Trenton, called on Mrs. Harry Lohnes, on Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Laishes, of Mountain View, called on Mr. and Mrs. Thorburt Smith, on Thursday.

The Frankford branch of the Canadian Legion report that their poppy day was quite successful this year. For the boys and girls who sold poppies last Saturday, arrangements have been made for them to get treats at the Milk Bar in town.

Poppy Day

Many people have inquired about the poppy day, and just what the proceeds go for. The various branches of the Legion purchase the poppies from Veteran Industries, i.e., an organization operated entirely by handicapped veterans. The Legion sells them on their poppy days, and the proceeds go into Legion Welfare Fund. This fund pays for sending cigarets and other comforts to hospitalized veterans of their district, also providing flowers in time of funerals. It pays for telephone communications, and correspondence in connection with the welfare of veterans and their families. In Frankford, several families have been assisted by the local branch in time of need. Transportation was provided to take an ill member to the hospital. These are only a few of the many acts for the welfare of veterans in the district, which your purchase of poppies each year makes possible.

Bowlers in the Frankford Bowling League are urged to be in the alleys promptly at 7:00. The teams following the Frankford League are complaining bitterly, and quite justifiably so, that they are not finishing their bowling until midnight or after because of the late hour in which the Frankford League is finishing. If more consideration is not given in that respect, it is quite possible that Frankford League may have difficulty in retaining their time for bowling another year.

The weekly Tuesday night euchre and cribbage parties have started for this season in the Legion Hall. Playing begins at 8:30, with refreshments served at the conclusion. Proceeds go toward the new kitchen on the Legion Hall.

The second meeting of the Young Adult Group of the Frankford United Church will be held in the Rose-Lowery Hall on Wednesday evening, Nov. 23. Any young adult, and especially young married couples in the district is invited to attend these meetings.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Bill Rose, (nee McMullen), on the birth of a son, this week in Belleville.

Leonard Reid has returned to Frankford with a fine bag of deer for his gang.

STAGE DIPLOMAS

The University of London, England, awards a diploma in dramatic art as well as certificates in diction and drama.

SUBMITS RESIGNATION

London, Ont., Nov. 16. (CP)—M. V. Sullivan, chairman of the city court of Revision, today submitted his resignation effective the end of the year.

Mr. Sullivan on the court for the last three years, said his resignation was due to the demands of his legal practice.

FACTORY WORKER RESCUED

Niagara Falls, Nov. 16 (CP) — Members of the Queenston Fire Department last night rescued Fred Herchmer, 25-year-old factory worker, from the lower Niagara River. Herchmer was drifting down river after the motor in his boat failed. The alarm was given by customs officers on the Queenston bridge.

Rockingham Tells of Exploits Of Canadian Troops Fighting Against Communists in Korea

By BILL BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the Canadians in Korea, Nov. 17—(CP)—The Chinese built a winter-line.

Part of it was north and west of the Imjin River, and the Canadians took it.

The Chinese have been trying to get it back ever since.

That, in brief, is what has been happening during the last three months in that part of the Korean front manned by the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade group. The brigade is in the west central sector, northwest of Uijongbu and Tokchong.

At minimum cost, and at first with formations of the Eighth United States Army in Korea, it won its objectives when the "limited offensive" campaign was launched last Sept. 26. All were taken the first day. By noon of the 28th it had completed its exploitation of them and was firm on its final positions.

The brigade had advanced a total of 12,000 map yards since the beginning of September, or 36,000 yards as the foot-slogger goes—up hill and across country.

Relieved Americans

Outlining the fighting, Brig. John M. Rockingham of Vancouver, brigade commander, said his troops relieved the 5th U.S. Calvary Regiment west of the Imjin early in September and then on Sept. 11 began to work toward the enemy's main positions.

"We had two good fights on the way, against Chinese in strength on two hilltops. They were attacked by the 2nd Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment with terrific tank support from "C" squadron of the Lord Strathcona's Horse. It was the best infantry-tank support I've ever seen. The tanks were firing so close ahead of the advancing infantry that they were almost clipping the hair from their heads.

"Then, on the 27th, the day before 'Operation Commando,' the big attack went in, the 2nd Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry attacked Chinese on a bump 600 yards north and captured it.

Hill Sneaking

"At the same time the 2nd Battalion Royal Canadian Regiment had moved a hill to the west—we just kept on sneaking all we could from the Chinese.

"The next day Operation Commando went in and we had all our objectives by nightfall. By noon the next day we had established through to our present positions.

"Our most spectacular action since then was a raid using one company from each of the three battalions, together with the tanks.

"We sailed across country to reach a 600-foot ridge and had to go down to the bottom of the valley before we could storm up it. The boys are getting good at these 'Banzai' charges now—they are confident of the close tank support and the tanks have complete confidence in their ability to put a round where it's wanted.

"It was a near-backed ridge, and we got most of it. We pulled out in daylight behind a smoke-screen and artillery concentrations, having achieved our objectives, which were to take prisoners, see what we could about them that night and then to get away safely.

"The Patricia company was commanded by Maj. Geoff Williams and from the 1st battalion. It was their first action in Korea and absolutely first class.

"You should have seen them the next morning, polishing their bayonets and cleaning their rifles and saying 'those ——— Chinese aren't so hot.' It was the best possible way of blooding them."

Indicative of the fighting during the period, enemy casualties reported by the Patricia alone between Oct. 4 and 9 were 72 killed, seven wounded and 14 prisoners.

Since the beginning of November the enemy has been launching determined attacks along the entire sector, concentrating in strengths of up to a battalion and more to attack U.N. platoon positions.

Invariably in the Canadian sector he has been beaten off, leaving their forces on the 30-degree in the platoon area—the fighting is at such close quarters—or strung out on the wire, and scores of others in the approaches, killed by U.N. artillery and mortar fire.

Police Order Autopsy on Man Found Dead

St. Catharines, Nov. 17 (CP)—Police today ordered an autopsy to determine whether Arthur Harris, 84-year-old bachelor farmer, was slain.

Harris, who had lived alone as a semi-recluse for 30 years but was well liked by the few neighbors who knew him, was found dead in a pool of blood at the foot of his cellar stairs late yesterday. His blood-smeared body was clad only in underwear.

Last night it was said he might possibly have suffered fatal injuries in a fall, but a bullet-riddled armchair in the kitchen suggested to police he might have been shot. If he was slain, it might have been by person seeking the money Harris received for seven acres of his land a few months ago.

Harris' bed on the second floor was rumpled, as if he had been sleeping when the noise of someone breaking in aroused him. An overturned chair in the kitchen suggested a struggle, a trail of blood led from the kitchen to the cellar door and down the basement stairway.

Sgt. Police chief Norman Fach of Grantham township:

"We believe he was murdered but until we are absolutely sure we can make no further statement."

Harris had no close relatives. His body was identified by Evan Durham of St. Catharines, husband of a niece.

Ontario Population Increases 20 Per Cent in 10 Years, Statistics Bureau Discloses

Ottawa, Nov. 17. (CP)—Ontario's population has jumped more than 20 per cent in the last 10 years, the Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday.

In the latest of a series of preliminary releases on provincial populations, the Bureau said Ontario's present population is 4,562,354, compared with 3,787,655—a gain of 774,699 since the previous census was taken in 1941.

Numerically the increase was more than double the gain of 355,972 in the decade from 1931 to 1941 and more than 1 1-2 times the Lawrence Gateway increase of 498,021 between 1921 and 1931. Proportionately, the increase since 1941 is exceeded in recorded census totals only by the rise of 46.6 per cent from 1851 to 1861 when the population climbed 444,087 from 952,004 to 1,396,091.

The preliminary totals show population gains in all but five of Ontario's 54 counties and districts. Reflecting the marked industrialization and urban growth, the largest numerical increases were in York, with an increase of 215,000, Wentworth, with 58,000, Essex, 42,000, Carleton, 40,000, Middlesex, 34,000, Welland, 29,000, Sudbury, 28,000, Waterloo, 27,000, Lincoln and Peel, 24,000 each, and Ontario, 21,000.

Princess, Duke Arrive Home From Canada

Liverpool, England, Nov. 17 (AP)—A 21-gun salute and cheers from thousands of Britons today greeted Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh back home from a six-week visit to Canada and the United States.

They arrived here from the liner Empress of Scotland, the Princess and her husband were ushered into a waiting car and drove through the crowded streets of this port city to the town hall.

Crowds had gathered early at Prince's Landing stage in bright sunshine to see the royal couple step ashore for a 80-minute visit to Liverpool before boarding a train for London.

The liner tied up at the landing stage at dawn after riding at anchor during the night off New Brighton, at the mouth of the river Mersey.

Shortly before 9 a.m., as the ship's passengers were disembarking, work began on the unloading of 174 parcels—gifts to the royal couple and their children from all parts of Canada.

The gifts ranged from fishing tackle to boxes of fruit and a coffee set.

Dock workers broke off their work for a few minutes when a party of RCMP, which crossed the Atlantic with the royal party appeared on the dockside.

As the Mounties descended the gangway the ship's crew and the waiting crowd welcomed them with a popular song from the operetta "Rose Marie."

The police squad smiled and saluted.

Ridgway Verifies Accusation Allied Prisoners Slaughtered By Reds in Korean War

Tokyo, Nov. 17 (AP) — Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway today verified the communist atrocity killings of United Nations' soldier captives in Korea and declared "the shocking impact of the brutality which has been revealed should have been no surprise to the American people."

But the supreme allied commander, in his first comment on the story that shocked the world Wednesday, expressed regret over the way it was disclosed.

Ridgway said all known deaths already had been reported in next-of-kin and that the report had caused needless anguish among relatives of those soldiers still listed as missing.

On Wednesday Lt. Col. James M. Hanley, head of the war crimes section of the U.S. Eighth Army, disclosed in Korea that nearly 2,000 allied soldiers —5,500 of them Americans—have been slaughtered by the communists since the start of the war.

Hanley was brought to Tokyo today by Col. George Patrick Welch, Ridgway's public information officer, presumably to answer any questions while the Ridgway statement was being prepared.

Shortly before Ridgway spoke out, Peiping radio entered a blanket denial of Hanley's report. It maintained that U.N. prisoners of war were treated well "despite difficult conditions."

Red Radio Counters

Then the Chinese communist radio countered with its own charges that "thousands and tens of thousands" of Chinese and North Korean red soldiers "who fell into the hands of the U.N. forces have been massacred."

This ran counter to the reports of U.N. treatment of prisoners. Hanley in his report said all red prisoners were well cared for.

Ridgway's statement emphasized that there had been no intention of withholding the atrocity figures.

"It had been concluded some months ago, that an appropriate time when the accumulated evidence warranted and when due co-ordination had been effected with the proper authorities in Washington, this evidence should be made public," Ridgway said. Unusual Regret

"That this co-ordination was not properly effected at the time of this release is of the utmost regret to this headquarters."

Ridgway said release of Hanley's information had "no connection whatever with the current armistice negotiations" at Panmunjom.

The commander-in-chief said as far back as October 1950, a film showing recovered bodies of 36 allied soldiers was shown to a group of 200 United States mayors.

He said the pictures, released with Washington's approval, showed bodies shot in the head with hands tied behind their backs.

SOLD HORSEMEAT, FINED

Ottawa, Nov. 16 — (CP) — Laterrice Rosenthal, suburban Eastview butcher, was fined $50 and costs in police court today for selling horsemeat not properly identified as such. The fine was imposed under the Pure Food and Drug Act.

Another butcher, Rheal Crete, pleaded not guilty to a similar charge and his case was adjourned for a week.

Who are You Voting For Thurs., Nov. 22nd?

- In any election, Municipal, Provincial or Federal, there are many people, who put policies and personalities before party.
- And that is a good thing.
- The independent voter looks with a critical eye, at the record of the government which has been in power.
- He examines carefully the platform promises of the candidates in each riding and their leader. He sets aside the 'Hot Air,' the talk that will be forgotten when the election is over.
- That is why the independent vote in East Hastings is so important.
- That is why the independent vote on November 22nd, is supporting the representative of Premier Frost's Progressive Conservative Government.
- And that is why so many of the independently-minded citizens are saying to themselves: Let's go forward with Frost. He has proven his policies and he is making no promises which he cannot live up to.

Young Pete Conacher to Maintain Name of Famous Family in Sport

By AL COLLETTE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 17 (CP)—The last of the three famed Conacher brothers—35-year-old Roy—has retired from active competition and left it squarely up to young Pete Conacher to keep one of hockey's greatest names in the National Hockey League line-up.

Roy announced his retirement from Chicago's slumping Black Hawks yesterday. He blamed nervous strain. Considered among the best left-hand shots in the game, Roy spent 10 years in the N.H.L.—his last five with Chicago.

To take his place at left wing, the Black Hawks announced that they are bringing up 19-year-old Pete, son of Charley (Chuck) Conacher, second of the three famous brothers and a star with Toronto 15 years ago.

It will be up to Peter to continue the 33-year hockey prominence of the Conachers.

Played With Gall

Like his father and uncle, young Pete is rated a top shoemaker and a fast skater. He has been playing junior hockey with Chicago junior farm and he probably will make his N.H.L. debut tomorrow night against Toronto on Chicago ice.

Not since Lynn and Muzz Patrick started successful careers with the Rangers in the late 1930s under the watchful eye of their famous father, Lester Patrick, has a son of a famous player clicked in the big-time.

Howie Morenz, two-sided son of the immortal Canadien, kicked around the minors a couple of years back but failed to make the N.H.L.

However, the Black Hawks' management seems confident that young Conacher can make the grade. Bill Tobin, President of the last-place Chicago Club, said the signing of the rookie "is the start of a youth movement."

Like the Patricks, the Boucher and later the Bentley, the Conacher name has existed in the N.H.L. since the famous "Big Train", Lionel Conacher, broke in with the old Pittsburgh entry in 1925-26.

Pete's father, Chuck, who will celebrate his 41st birthday Dec. 20, boasted one of the hardest shots in hockey.

Almost a decade separated him from brother Lionel, who was voted Canada's outstanding athlete of the last half-century.

Sarnia Places Five Players With All Stars

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 17 (CP)—Sarnia Imperials, who posted this season that a senior football title could be won with an all-Canadian cast, lined up today with a 5-player-cent representation on the annual Canadian Press all-star Ontario Rugby Football Union team. The voting confirmed what the experts thought of the year all year.

Selected for CP by football writers, coaches and sports masters in the O.R.F.U. cities of Hamilton, Windsor, Sarnia and Toronto, it carries 14 members instead of 12 due to a three-player camera finish for one of the back positions. And, as most observers expected, it has not a Windsor player on the roster.

It was the first time in the 19 years that CP has been counting the ballot—weighed to give equal voting strength to each of the O.R.F.U. cities—that sports masters have had a vote.

The selectors voted in Mel Hawkrigg of McMaster and Jo-hnny Checketsci of the lumps for two halfback positions by wide margins. But Ralph Pulley of Beaches and Imperials' Al Farris and Corky Duchene ended in a dead heat for the other half slot.

The team:

Flying wing: John Florence, Imperials.

Half: Mel. Hawkrigg, McMaster.

Half: Johnny Checretecki, Imperials.

Half: Ralph Pulley, Beaches; Al Farris and Corky Duchene, Imperials.

Quarter: George Curtis, Imperials.

Snap: Bruce Mattingly, Imperials.

Inside: Jim Thomas, Beaches.

Inside: Matti Ferrentino, Beaches.

Middle: Walt Bashak, McMaster.

Middle: Lloyd (Dutch) Dewey, Imperials.

Outside: Andy Gilmour, Beaches.

Outside: Keith Fisher, Imperials.

Guelph Thumps Waterloo 12-1 In Jr. Circuit

(By The Canadian Press)

Norm Cook was just getting the feel of running a winning hockey club when . . . it lost.

The new coach of Waterloo Hurricanes of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league took over coaching duties Thursday night. Waterloo won. Last night, however, they lost to Guelph Biltmores, by a big 13-1 count.

The loss put Hurricanes back in seventh-place . . . in the 10-team junior circuit.

Harrie Fryer's flew past Waterloo, jumping into a tie for sixth place with St. Catharines, by defeating fourth-place Kitchener Greenshirts 5-2 in Barrie.

All six O.H.A. senior A league teams were idle last night. Hamilton Tigers maintained their hold on first by trouncing Owen Sound Mercurys 7-4. Stratford vaulted the basement with a 3-3 triumph over Sarnia Sailors and Stratford blanked Kitchener — Waterloo Dutchmen 3-0.

All six junior teams will play tonight with four junior games on tap. Senior games are Stratford at Sarnia, Hamilton at Owen Sound and Brantford at Kitchener.

Guelph will visit St. Catharines, Windsor meets Hurricanes in the Waterloo, Toronto St. Michael's play at Galt and Oshawa Generals will be host to the leading Marlboros in junior ills tonight.

A Sunday doubleheader at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens will see the last-place Windsor Spitfires met Marlboros and Oshawa play St. Michael's

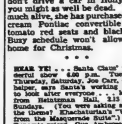
Bobby Green Seriously Hurt During Practice



Seriously injured when struck in the face by a flying puck during Guelph's practice last night, Bobby Green, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Green, is in hospital with a badly fractured jaw.

Bobby was taking part in the usual practice of the junior Hawks when the accident happened. He suffered the loss of three teeth and others were damaged besides a compound fracture of the jawbone. Ten stitches were necessary to close the wound in the gums.

Reports today stated his condition was good and he will be in hospital at least four days. Don Barclay will take over the goal-tending duties when the Toronto Marlboros meet Peterborough Trimble Links here Monday night.

Bryan C. Victor Over Hill Prince

Baltimore, Nov. 17— (AP) — While the prima donna of the Christopher Chenery horse racing troupe, Hill Prince, stood around eating up the oats, Bryan G has been paying for them.

They're both four-year-olds but the glamor has always been attached to Hill Prince, last year's champion of the thoroughbreds. Hill Prince didn't race this year until September. Since then he's won one cheap race and one stakes in six starts and is being touted as handicap champ of the year.

Sablemate Bryan G has been working steadily and practically unnoticed. He went out 32 times and brought in $77,325 compared with Hill Prince's $35,000.

Hill Prince was injured two weeks ago and Bryan G was sent out yesterday for the Pimlico Special, one of the country's classiest contests. He won it and $19,000 for his ninth first of the year and his third stakes.

He led all the way, and at the end of the mile and three sixteenths was five lengths ahead of the favored jockey Eddie Arcaro on Rokeby Stables' County Delight. Bedford Stables' Call Over was third, a long 13 length back, and Mrs. E. Du Pont Weir's Royal Governor was fourth and last.

The crowd didn't have a chance to make much money. No matter which horse won. Betting to win only was permitted and Bryan G returned $5.80.

Yankees Ousted In Australian Tennis Tourney

Sydney, Australia, Nov. 17 — Australian Ken McGregor and Swedish champion Lennart Bergelin eliminated Americans Ham Richardson and Vic Seixas from the New South Wales Men's Tennis Tournament today.

McGregor turned back the pride of Richardson, 4-6, 2-6, 6-1, 6-1 in a third round match. Bergelin brushed off Seixas, non-playing captain of the United States Davis cup team, 6-4, 6-3, 6-1, in a second round match. Americans Dick Savitt and Vic Seixas, however, came through with victories. Savitt beat Bob McCarthy, "unseeded Australian, 6-2, 7-5, 1-6, 6-3 in a second round match. Seixas won a third round battle from Lewis Hoad, Australian junior champion, 6-3, 6-1, 9-7.

The crowd didn't have a chance to make much money. No matter which horse won. Betting to win only was permitted and Bryan G returned $5.80.

INSTITUTED BY LIBERAL CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE FOR ONTARIO.

SICKNESS KNOWS NO BARRIERS, accident and disease strike without discrimination.

And, for many, they spell tragedy far above the ravages of illness itself. For many they spell stark financial ruin, the savings of a lifetime wiped out, the provision for old age gone in a few short weeks.

The reason for this is very evident. At every hospital door there is a barrier — an invisible dollar sign — that keeps these desperately needed services out of reach of many who do need them.

The rich are well able to pay for their hospital care, the poor are cared for by the state. But the middle class families, the backbone of our population, are expected to pay their own way. And the sad truth today, when the cost of hospital care bears no relation to the ability to pay, is the fact that many of these simply cannot afford the hospital care they need.

Because this is drastically wrong by all human standards, because there is so crying a need for adequate measures to protect our people in sickness as well as in health, the Liberal government, when elected on November 22nd, solemnly pledges the immediate institution of a province-wide hospital plan to make certain hospital care is available to the people of Ontario at rates they can afford.

This is no idle promise. Nor is it a "fraudulent" scheme. It is a definite actuarial plan, based upon sound business practices and upon the experience of other provinces where such plans have proved successful.

It will be a contributory plan, the costs shared by the province, without increased taxation, and by your annual premium.

The provincial share will be financed by levying increased dues upon private companies who have been making profits from certain of Ontario's Crown resources without adequate payment. The contribution of the individual will be well within the means of all to pay.

Because we believe that the greatest prosperity this province can have lies in the contentment of its people, it is our intention to bring to the people of Ontario a government worthy of their trust, a government interested in them and in their well-being at all times, in sickness and in health.

These are the facts. The decision is yours to make on November 22nd.

Senior Hawks Snatch 8-7 Victory From Kingston For Third Straight Win

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

WHEW, TWAS CLOSE!

Whether "Red" Doran is capable of giving his senior Hawks the "spoils" while they're in full flight is a matter for conjecture, but in all honesty and perverse that happened in Kingston last night. The Hawks appeared headed for their first setback of the season trailing 7-5 with a little over four minutes to go with a desperate Kingston SAC's team which had them stymied but plenty during the major part of the second period, doing an equally unsatisfactory job up to this point in the third.

Something of an intangible nature injected itself into the hockey stream of the fluttering Hawks. They had banged their heads, bodies and sticks against what was an effective hard-checking Kingston team after yielding six goals in the second to trail by two goals when out of the blue they struck.

The clouds registered 15.41 and during that time the hometown had effectively stifled the Hawks' threats, thanks especially to goalie Don Dougall, when the Hawk plays started to click like a brand new cash register. "Red" Doran drove in close to the Kingston net and flipped the rubber to Vern Geyer. He made no mistake and not only potted the puck but set the stage for a lightning - like offensive that swung the scales of defeat into victory. On the next play Keith MacDonald weaved in and drove the rubber to Geyer who tipped it in from a few feet out. Doran and Geyer grabbed a pass from Doran and Maher and called in to score the winner on a beautiful effort. They don't come any closer than that.

Kingston has a team that will be heard from but plenty during the schedule. They're not the Nylons of old by any stretch of the imagination, but they're a haro-checking fast-skating crew that will make plenty of trouble for the rest of the pack. They had the Hawks stymied almost cold in the second period when they fired home five goals in eleven minutes while our huskies battled futilely in an effort to stem the attack. The Hawk defence was caught napping during this splurge while the front lines were too slow in the attack to overtake the speedy Kingston opportunists on their breakaways.

At that the Hawks did not play the same style of hockey that characterized their first two efforts. Their passing was off at times and the ganging charging detracted from the fine attention team play in evidence especially in that second period splurge. The game was not exactly the National Hockey League type and it was far from being good senior "B" calibre.

Big Vern Geyer was hubbed closely throughout the game but it did not stop him from reaching up another four goals in bring his season's total to 13 in three tilts. Gerry Desjardins, Keith MacDonald and Peter Jones were in several times with the first two clicking once each and Jones being robbed more than once. The "visitor" was missing an honest effort from Coach Doran used George Graham out there. Both Graham and Jud Semark emerged with goodish schooling. Tommy Schneider stood out on the defence and "Sal Manrose, Ryar, she kicked 'em out in good style. You're!

JUNIOR HAWKS

The junior Hawks are ready for their debut here on Monday night when they meet the Peterborough Triple Links. The Links got their 1951-2 baptism of fire in Kingston tonight when they tangle with Max Jackson's Victorias in the new Memorial Centre.

Coach Doran will send his trio of speedsters of Hector Lalonde, Billy Strahan and George Jacklin out there as the first line of attacking troops with Bob Wilson, and Peter Green, husky defencemen behind the blueline. Ted Darling will centre another line with Simmons and Pat Gilmour while Houle will pivot his wings Duke Doran and "Sonny" Therrien. Hull, Munro and Mason will be in uniform for the debut.

There's a lot of speed and hockey ability in the junior squad and it will be interesting to see how Lefty Geyer stand up under fire on Monday night. Jacklin, Strahan, Doran, Therrien, in fact the majority of the squad are speed merchants, the fastest aggregation to wear a Belleville livery in some time. Manager Ken Ryan's team is a hasty reminder who fears nothing on skates and uses his body to good advantage. Harry Brown and Peter Green not forgetting Munroe do not let down the rearguard duties. Quite a team.

Rudy Cruz Wins Over Rivera

Hollywood, Nov. 17— (AP) — Rudy Cruz, formidable Los Angeles lightweight, scored a fourth round technical knockout over Manuel Rivera of Mexico City last night in a scheduled 10-rounder at Hollywood Legion Stadium. Cruz scaled 130, Rivera 134½.

Rivera was upable to toss a solid punch during the brief, one sided affair and went down under a barrage of head and body blows before referee Frankie Van stopped it with 2 minutes, 2 seconds gone in the fourth.

Cruz, always a stylish boxer but a notoriously weak puncher, bloodied Rivera's nose in the second and carried the fight all the way.

Late Third-Period Offensive Nets 3 Goals in 46 Seconds To Turn Defeat Into Victory

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

The senior Hawks won their third straight game in Memorial Centre, Kingston, last night, defeating the Kingston SAC, 8-7, but it was closer than your next breath.

In fact the Hawks were practically defeatenred with less than five minutes to go in the third period when they suddenly came to offensive life and flashed the light three times in 46 seconds to snatch victory out of what looked like certain defeat.

Trailing 7-5 behind a hard-checking Kingston crew that had delighted the 1098 spectators with a six goal scoring splurge in the second period, the Hawks, led by Vern Geyer, rammed home three goals in quick succession and held off the desperate SAC's for the remaining four minutes.

Yanked Goalie

Coach Stan Scrutton yanked goalie Don Dougall in the remaining 17 seconds and tossed out six forwards but the Hawk defence held off the attack and skated off the ice, surprising last-minute victors.

It was anything but senior B hockey, Kingston with a fast-skating hard-checking team that for a period and a half bore the earmarks of a breakaway to the home five goals without a Hawk return. Three and Aikens each of a pair with White getting his second goal of the game.

The thing perished even sometimes until the fifteen minute mark with both goalies standing out spectacularly Dougall who stopped pucks from all angles. It looked like a Kingston victory until the Hawks suddenly broke away with that three-goal game-winning spurge.

Geyer scored four goals to bring his total to 13 for three games, MacDonald got one and two assists with Barrett, Desjardins and Schneider accounting for the rest. Doran was credited with three helpers. The Hawks were minus the services of Day and Bastedo.

White, Aitken and Tinkess scored two each for the losers with Murray getting one and three assists. Veteran Joey Callin was also credited with three assists.

Referee Louis LeCompte handled out ten penalties, four to the Hawks, Dougall, Kingston goalie drew a minor in the third period for holding Warshaugn's stick. Jacklin also drew a sentence on the incident.

Belleville Hawks—Goal Lefort; defence, Schreider, Semark; centre Geyer; wings, Maher, MacDonald; subs, Jones, Desjardins, Barrett, Doran, Wardhaugh, Trumble, Graham.

Varsity, McGill Split Honors On All-Star Team

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 17 (CP)—University of Toronto Blues, who won the senior intercollegiate football championship on a prayer and a hope—and without a forward passer—split the honors with McGill University on the 1951 college all-star team announced tonight. Each contributed four players to the mythical squad.

Only one repeater from the 1950 all-star team—Wally Kowal of the Redmen—was named to the choice 13 elected annually for the Canadian Press by sports writers and coaches in the union's four cities. This year, for the first time since CP inaugurated the poll in 1932, sports caters were given a ballot.

Varsity was delighted to give equal voting strength to each of the four entries — Montreal Redmen, Toronto and London.

The third-place University of Western Ontario Mustangs and the winless Queen's University Gaels each placed two on the team. Both Ron Atkinson and Masterson's Blues who earned the plaudits by going through the 1951 campaign without defeat on the out-dated two-backs-and-one system.

Masterson, the unsung hero in Varsity's big season, is hitting a .500 clip with Queen's University his four years as coach. Last year his third-place Blues didn't place a man on the CP teams and the fact that he came up with a winning combination this time without a deadly passer, a team's main offensive weapon, speaks highly of his football know-how.

The 1951 all-star team:

Flying wing, Ron McKillop, Varsity; half, Steve Oneschuk, Varsity; half, Ross McKillvery, Queen's; half, Jerry Dowhaniuk, McGill; quarter, Geof Crain, McGill; snap, Reg Ort, Western; inside, Wally Kowal, McGill; inside, Marshall Hames, Varsity; middle, Bill Fuller, McGill; middle, Joe Harris, Varsity; outside, Doug Mosfield, Western; outside, Harry Lampman, Queen's.

Grey Cup for Amateur Teams Only; Sarnia Threatens 'Stop' Proceedings

Sarnia, Ont., Nov. 17—(CP)—The Canadian Rugby Union, always troubled with a headache over the matter of too-few tickets may have another problem before the Grey Cup is played next Saturday.

A group of Sarnia sportsmen, headed by Group Capt. Dave Harding, is threatening to obtain an injunction to stop this year's game because all the competing teams but Sarnia Imperials are not-and-not professional.

The group, basing its action on the C. R. U. constitution, claims the donor of the Grey Cup, the late Earl Grey, a former governor-general of Canada, presented it for competition for the best amateur football championship of Canada.

Should Win by Default

The Sarnia sportsmen, who include Bill White and Mike Mercurio, said last night, the Imperials, as the only amateur senior team in Canada and the champions of the Ontario Rugby Football Union, are the only team qualified to play in the Grey Cup final. They said the Imperials should be awarded the trophy by default.

In announcing their intentions, the group said it will seek legal advice whether to follow through with the plans for an injunction.

In Montreal, Myer Insky, C. R. U. president, said the Grey Cup game will be played Nov. 24 at Montreal and the winning club will be awarded the trophy, notwithstanding any protest."

He declined further comment on the Sarnia group's claim.

Frank Clair, manager of the all-Canadian Imperials, declined comment until the Sarnia club is officially approached. However, the club's coach, Hugh (Red) Douglas, said the group isn't connected with the team or its executive and that as far as he is concerned the Imperials want to play in the final whether it's for amateur or professional competition. The Imperials have no desire to win by default, he added.

Harding, former great halfback with the Queen's University team which won the Grey Cup in 1924, said: "Today no Canadian team can honorably take the field in Grey Cup competition. It is a sorry state of affairs."

His group said it decided on the action because members thought it was out of keeping with the objects and constitution of the C. R. U. that a senior amateur club should have to sit around and wait for a professional club to trounce it in a competition ostensibly for amateur teams.

They said an all-Canadian team shouldn't have to undergo the humiliation of overwhelming defeat at the hands of professionals.

Petes Edge Eagles By 5-4 Score

Peterborough Petes edged their city rivals, the Eagles, 5-4 in a hard close-fought senior B game last night. The win forms a three-way tie for first place in the standing with Petes, Eagles and Belleville Hawks each having six points.

The score was tied with a few minutes to go in the third period when Garvey, Petes forward ripped through for the winning counter.

Riders Favored Over Hamilton In Big Four Football Final

Ottawa, Nov. 17—(CP)—A fast, hard gridiron may be in prospect for today's Big Four football final between Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Ottawa Rough Riders.

Yesterday's wet snow stopped by night leaving little more than traces on the field. Temperatures overnight and the weather office predicted it would be freezing weather all day with a high of 37 degrees. Flurries with only a few snowflurries also were forecast.

A fast field is expected to favor the Riders who go into this second game of the two-game total-point final 19 points ahead of the Ti-Cats. Hamilton generally is regarded because of the heavier line and rugged plungers, tops on a muddy gridiron.

Expect Over 16,000

Providing the weather does not turn out blizzardy, attendance is expected to surpass the record of 14,000 for a football contest at Lansdowne Park. Kickoff time is 3 p.m. EST.

Rider coach Clem Crowe decided to wait until just before game time before naming the replacement for Al Aaquisl. Aaquisl suffered a shoulder injury Wednesday night in the second first game of the Big Four final 17-7 at Hamilton. It was the fourth straight win for Ottawa over the footballers from the annual rivalry. Ottawa's only loss to Hamilton of the official season was the first game.

As a replacement for Aaquisl, a lineman is expected to be added to the list. It may be Gerry Lefebvre, Jack Morrison or Ron Battagello, former Windsor Rocket end.

Backfielder Pete (I-Work-From-The-Sidelines) Karpuk may be moved from a defensive role to the offence.

Trains arrived in the capital by train late last night; about 400 supporters will shout encouragement to their Ti-Cats' team this afternoon.

Saskrs Name Game

Officials for the big game will be Seymour Wilson of Hamilton, referee; Harry Soulsbie of Ottawa, umpire; Andy Tommy of Ottawa, head linesman and Johnny Simpson of Hamilton, judge-of-play.

Saskatchewan Roughriders, western Canada champions, will have the "scoop" at the game—quarterback Glen Dobbs and halfback Ken Charlton.

The Lansdowne Park gridiron, which doubles as a baseball field in the summer, had the baseball infield portion covered in time yesterday by a nylon tarpaulin. This was lifted, however, during the night when temperatures dropped. The grounds superintendent hoped the night frosts would be ruined by the freezing of the sheet over top it. While good for rain or snow, for forming on it presented a problem, Supt. Eddie Friel said.

Leafs Looking For First Sat. Win at Home

(By The Canadian Press)

A delinquent rightwinger, a demi-semi-retired lefthinger and a goalkeeper who really get around, come to Toronto today. They plan a little hockey mayhem.

As members of Lynn Patrick's Boston Bruins, they have aspirations of handing the second-place Toronto Maple Leafs their fifth Saturday night loss of the National Hockey League.

Leafs haven't won a Saturday night game at home this season. The best they could do was a 3-3 tie with Detroit Red Wings last Saturday.

For the delinquent Bill Reinicki, it will be his first appearance in the gardens this year. A former Leaf, Reinicki abandoned the Bruins at the beginning of the season, yesterday golf to hockey.

For a player who, he says, he wasn't wanted by other N. H. L. teams, Adam Brown is doing remarkably well in a Bruin uniform. He's sixth in the scoring derby and top Boston man on the team.

Sugar Jim Henry, despite the Bruins' fourth-place status, has fanned on only 24 shots and supplied the beanbenders with a stronger defence against some of those high-scoring teams.

He has let in two goals fewer than Al Rollins of the Leafs and Detroit Red Wings' Terry Sawchuk. But they've both been in 10 games, to 13 for Henry.

Montreal Canadiens will attempt to secure their third-place standing when they meet New York Rangers in Montreal, the only other game scheduled tonight.

Bruins have played two fewer games than the Toronto team, and we only four points in arrears. That makes tonight's affair an important one for the Leafs.

The Boston club will have Johnny Peirson back in the line-up, to reunite a dangerous scoring line which includes Brown and veteran Milt Schmidt.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

It finally happened: the Canadian Rugby Union's $12,000 tarpaulin last year spread completely over Varsity Stadium's field in Toronto late yesterday.

It will remain on the field until the Nov. 24 Grey Cup final, for which it was purchased. Yesterday's wet was the first time the huge canvas has been used.

Some stadium officials said that if the weather after the weekend turns out clear and mild, the tarp should be taken up to let the field dry out.

Hamilton Panthers trounced Oshawa's Red Raiders 19-0 last night to win the Ontario Rugby Football Union intermediate championship.

The victory gave Panthers a 31-1 edge in the two-game, total points final. They whipped Raiders 12-1 last week.

Panthers now will travel to Montreal where they will meet either Montreal Regiment or Montreal Junior for the eastern Canada championship Nov. 24.

The east-west final will be played at Toronto's Varsity Stadium Dec. 1.

Frank Clair and John Kerns have been signed to three contracts as head and line coach, respectively, of the Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Football Union, it was announced yesterday by president Bob Moran. Terms of the contract were not disclosed.

At Galt C. Renwick's Belmore rink beat A. D. Hutchinson's Fergus four 10-7 and Galt's S. H. Smithers rink downed J. Heffernan's Guelph starlet 11-7 yesterday in semi-finals of the Little Trophy, main event of the Galt Curling Club's Early Bird bonspiel.

At New Orlean Charles C. Zatarain, president of the New Orleans mid-winter sports association, announced last night the University of Tennessee and the University of Maryland have accepted invitations to play in 18th annual Sugar Bowl Football game here Jan. 1. The game will pit the country's second and fifth ranking teams.

At Manchester, England, Al Hoosman, Los Angeles Negro who has been doing most of his fighting in Europe for the last two years, outpointed 37-year-old Tommy Farr of Wales last night in a 10-round bout. It was Farr's third loss in eight comeback fights following a 10-year layoff.

Gordon Richards, with 228 winners, will end Britain's flat-racing season today as the leading jockey for the 24th time since he began riding in 1920. His closest rival is Doug Smith with 117. Richards has ridden a world' record total of 4,003 winners.

New York Rangers of the National Hockey League yesterday farmed out rookie defenceman Ron Rose and centre Zellio Toppazzini to Cincinnati of the American Hockey League.

Ringhouse Paddy Demarco of Brooklyn bulled young Eddie Chaver of San Jose, Calif., and were him down with body blows last night to win a unanimous 10-round decision at New York's Madison Square Garden. Demarco weighed 138 1-2, Chaver 139 1-4.

U.S. Gridders Start Fund For Jim Thorpe

Columbus, O., Nov. 17 (AP) — Ohio State's 1916-17 football teams last night decided to lead a campaign for an old-time football player none of them had ever faced.

The ancient Buckeyes resolved to help Jim Thorpe, the old Carlisle and professional Indian star who was released yesterday from hospital in Philadelphia following an operation for a lip cancer.

George M. Trautman, president of the National Association of professional baseball leagues, led the way.

Jim Thorpe is broke," Trautman said at the annual meeting. "He's probably the greatest athlete this country ever produced. "It's like to suggest that every person who ever saw Jim play—and who put a kick out of watching him play—contribute $1 to a fund to get him back on his feet.

Soon Trautman was holding $30 in his hand. Later, at a press party on the eve of the Illinois-Ohio State game, Trautman announced $40 was tossed in by the scribes.

Now it's an official fund and Trautman will see that Thorpe, outstanding athlete of the first half century is finded the purses.

Thorpe, now 63, had moved from college football to the pro circuits by the time the 1916 Buckeyes were playing college football.

Harness Horsemen To Carry On Despite Losses

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 17 (CP) — A group of determined horsemen has lost $260,000 in two years of promoting trotting races in Toronto but plans to continue the fight to establish the sport in this hotbed of thoroughbred racing.

The prominent breeders and fanciers of standard breds in 1950 put $500,000 into building a half-mile racing plant within Thorncliffe Park, a thoroughbred track in suburban Leaside. They saw $200,000 go down the drain that year and $60,000 more flow after it this past season.

Their original plans were made in expectation that the racing government would permit night racing with pari-mutuels. So far it hasn't and their 38- and 39-day meetings at Thorncliffe Raceway have been staged in the afternoon.

The fight for night racing continues, though the promoters have been given little encouragement that it will be permitted in the near future. Despite this hardship, the losers, and the lack of returns on their original investment, they intend to operate again next year—by night if they can, in the afternoon if they must.

Give That Poppy a Chance

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Salmar Tabs)

One of the world's greatest lotteries is the business of finding a good hunting dog. Ask any dog man on her hall and. The average hunter, if he is lucky, may own one really good dog in a lifetime.

Of course, the ideal way to get a god dog is to buy one that is already trained. That's fine if you can afford it. Even then, you can bet that you won't get the dog of your dreams that way. Top-notch dogs simply are not for sale.

That leaves you but one choice —raise and train your own puppy. And that, believe me, is a series of severe and prolonged headaches.

For instance, consider Bud. Bud was about the tenth of a series of setter pups that did not pan out. Without question, he was the most vigorous and destructive puppy I ever saw and I have seen a lot of them.

Strain on Marital Relations

After some of his more serious inroads on my property possessions, I frequently faced the possibility of divorce. Somehow, more on in hands than anything else, I managed to keep him until his first hunting season. It was a distinct strain on marital relations now and then but, as I say, I managed to keep him.

When September rolled around I took him out to look for ringneck. The first thing he did was to kill two chickens in a barnyard. I pull off the fracas and led Bud far away on a leash.

Once released, he romped off through the cover and almost stepped on a ringneck hen. She bolted out from under him and scared the life out of him. For the next hour I trailed along at my heels while I actually kicked out three more pheasants. Bud wasn't interested.

This sort of thing went on through October. With Bud showing not the slightest interest in birds except, of course, chickens. I paid farmers for about a dozen of those.

At last "opening day" arrived. We had arranged to shoot near Moravia, in the Finger-Lake section of New York State and I took Bud along. Our host guided us to a swampy meadow and we debarked from the car.

Actions Annoyed Host

Bud was first through the fence and went away, down through the meadow. He flushed one ringneck, he flushed fifty. The place was alive with them. At least it would be till Bud finished chasing them out of the country.

It is understandable when I say that our host was upset. "If you don't keep that fool dog away from here," he informed me, "I'll shoot him, just as sure as I'm standing here." I could see that he meant it and I don't know that I blamed him.

Accordingly, our party split up then and there. One of the boys went with me and we led Bud away on a leash. He knew that he was in disgrace but I'm sure he didn't know why.

Once safely away from the rest of the party, I let him go again. He didn't know whether it was all right to romp ahead again so I patted him and sent him on ahead.

As we walked along, I noticed that he was showing much interest in a hedgerow and I spoke to my friend about it.

"That dog is making game on a ringneck," I told him, "just as sure as you're alive." When the pinned him down with a stylish point.

We never allowed three birds a day in New York State at that time and Bud located, pointed and retrieved the limit. The party of four before three that afternoon. Two of them he retrieved from almost dead lake.

From that day on, Bud was a dream-dog on ringneck. He had a tremendous amount of energy and a marvellous nose. I had no hand in teaching him, he learned. He taught himself. In all the years I hunted him, I lost only one crippled bird which beat him to a convenient woodchuck burrow.

As his reputation grew, I was offered money for Bud. Some of the offers were flattering, more, really, than I could afford to refuse. But refuse them I did. Somehow I simply couldn't bring myself to part with him. As I say, really top-notch hunting dogs are not for sale.

Granted that a lamentably small percentage of pups grow up into good hunting dogs, it does not pay to make up your mind too quickly about the qualities of a pup. Let him grow up and give him a chance. Sometimes he will surprise you.

Dog Gets the Idea

Never have I seen a dog so delighted. All at once a great light dawned. It was a wonderful sort of chicken that he could have without the licking that usually went with it. Also, if he waited for these long black things to go off, the chicken was easy to catch. Wonderful.

After letting him play with Bud for about five minutes, I took it away from him, patted him, and off we went to look for another. It wasn't five minutes until he had located another rooster in a fence corner and had

James to Play For Marlboros

Toronto, Nov. 16—(CP)—Jerry James has been cleared by the registration committee of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to play for Toronto Marlboros in the Junior A League of the Ontario Hockey Association. The 18-year-old winger was with Winnipeg Monarchs in the Memorial Cup final last year, however Marlboro officials are so enthusiastic over its performance of their unbeaten Dukes that they have told James to start with the Junior B Weston Dukes. He probably will be brought up later.

At the same time, it was announced that Windsor Spitfires, O.H.A. Junior A cellar-dwellers, have been strengthened with the addition of goalie Mary Brewer. Brewer was understudy to Barrie Flyin' Lorne Howes.

AUTO INSURANCE
$28.50 IN SASKATCHEWAN
$116.00 IN ONTARIO
SO SAY THE C.C.F. ASSOCIATIONS OF HASTINGS.
TRUE?
Well, ask anyone if his own line of business $28.50 will buy $116.00 worth and he'll say,
"It's a Phoney Somewhere",
SO IT IS IN THIS CASE.
WHY . . . Because
1.—Many residents of Saskatchewan carry two automobile policies as the government plan which they are FORCED TO CARRY does not give them proper protection.
2.—The Saskatchewan Government Basic Policy contains a "joker" in the form of $100.00 deductible clause on all coverage, the like of which is not permitted to be unloaded on the unsuspecting public in any other province.
3.—The Auto rates in Ontario are based on locality, claims and use of the car whereas everybody pays the same in Saskatchewan. A rural province like Saskatchewan cannot possibly have the accidents of a highly concentrated area like Ontario where has more people, more roads, more automobiles and many times the tourist traffic.
4.—The Saskatchewan Auto Policy is not the world's best policy nor is it the cheapest. Several Belleville Agents represent a Company which is underselling the Saskatchewan Government right in their own province.
5.—The Saskatchewan Government according to their own figures lost $196,000 last year on their automobile insurance. So even those who don't drive autos may be called upon to pay part of the premiums for those who do.
6.—The Legislative Research Committee of North Dakota, after studying the Saskatchewan Auto Scheme, advised against such a system and went on to say "Compulsory Automobile Insurance produces — does not prevent—automobile accidents. The entrance of the State into a compulsory insurance program does nothing to remedy the defect of compulsory Insurance but adds another negative influence — more politics and a MONOPOLY.
7.—The Saskatchewan Government charged a basic fee of $4.50 to $10.00 depending on the make of car plus a personal premium of $1.00 per driver which is a compulsory fee paid by each motorist when buying his license. This must be added to the "package policy" premium to arrive at the true cost.
8.—The premiums quoted in the C.C.F. advertisement of November 5th. as applicable to Ontario are more than twice what is charged by Belleville Agents. For instance a farmer in Hastings County using his car for pleasure and business use can buy public liability, property damage, collision, fire, hail, riot, theft, transportation, explosion, wind, falling aircraft and flood for as little as $30.00 per year. The Saskatchewan C.C.F. policy apparently costs $28.50 plus the basic charge and the special tax on each driver. There is really no comparison.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When you hear of a forcing bid, you think of it as a signal that forces partner to bid. But it does not mean that alone. Its full meaning is that it forces partner to keep the bidding open.

To keep the bidding open means to give partner another chance to bid. Thus, a forcing bid tells partner: "Tell me something about your hand. In any case, give me another chance to bid."

When would partner fail to get a chance to bid again. When there are three successive passes after his last bid. He gets a chance to bid again only when some other player says something besides pass.

If an opponent bids after he does, partner will get a chance to bid again. Or if you bid something, your partner will get a chance to bid again.

If an opponent bids something, your partner will get a chance to bid again even if you pass. So, if partner makes a forcing bid and the next opponent does not pass, you may pass.

So we arrive at this rule: A forcing bid does not force partner to bid if an opponent's bid intervenes. And since partner is then not forced to bid, any bid by him is known as a free bid.

Suppose south starts with an opening bid of one heart and west doubles for a takeout. This is a signal that forces east to bid if north does not intervene with a bid.

If north intervenes with a bid, the bidding is kept open for west. So east may pass unless he wants to make a free bid. East should not make a free bid unless he has a strong hand.

Suppose, east has this hand:

♣ 10 7 5 2

If north bids one spade after the takeout double by west, east should pass. Answer to a takeout double, a pass after there is an intervening bid shows a weak hand.

Some experts do not agree with this. Nor with themselves from year to year.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 17 — (AP) — What can the movie industry actually do to improve business?

Here are 10 golden rules:

1. Clean up the theatres. Many are dirty, decaying hulks which scare patrons away.

2. Improve the advertising policy. Bigger and better ads in the papers will draw more attention to the theat

3. Be more color. Since television now is stymied on the use of color, the movies should go all-out.

4. Make less pictures. Every picture should be made on the premise that it could be a hit, not that it will meet schedule.

5. Do more pre-production planning. Too many pictures still enter production without finished scripts;

6. Use more slapstick. In these days people have to laugh or they will blow their tops.

7. Stop penny-pinching. The cop money — makers of 1951 have nearly all been films on which expense has not been spared.

8. Move previews co-starring. The studios should do more swapping of stars instead of playing the same old teams;

9. Abolish re-issues except for genuine classics, and

10. Cultivate the adult market. Kids will always flock to the movies. The big problem is getting the oldsters back.

MAY RUN FOR PRESIDENT

Fall Mall, Tenn., Nov. 17 — (AP) — Sgt. Alvin C. York acclaimed for his First World War exploits, said yesterday he is considering running for president. The 64-year-old farmer, who won the Medal of Honor after capturing 132 Germans in the Argonne in 1918, said he has received a number of letters asking him to seek the Democratic presidential nomination.

FRANKFORD

Pinpoppers Hold Lead In Bowling League

Frankford—The Pinpoppers retained their lead in the Frankford Bowling League, but only by the narrowest one point margin this week. The Fireballs, who began to be able to squeak through more wins than any other team in the league, did it again Thursday night, taking seven from Bohemoh, first game by six pins. Pinpoppers took five from the Inkspots who have faded lately, after holding the league lead all through the first quarter. The hapless Rockets took it on the chin again, this time at the hands of the Crackpots, who, by virtue of their seven points climbed into a three way tie with Hotshots and Bohemoh for fourth place. The Skeeters downed the Hotshots for five points.

There were no 300 Club members qualified this week, but President Francis Murphy narrowly missed it with a 296.

DROP LOYALTY OATH

Berkeley, Calif., Nov. 17 — (AP) — The University of California yesterday reaffirmed, its decision to drop the school's controversial "loyalty oath." It backed its action of last month, dropping the requirement that all employees and faculty members must declare in writing they are not communists. The action was taken on the ground that all such employees now are required by state law to swear they are not members of any subversive group.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Sunday, November 18

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Some fine aspects today including those from your natal Mars. Especially up-top configurations for get-togethers, indulging useful diversions, religious services, and tolerance.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Tactfully discriminating at home as with outsiders, concern for home and loved ones' desires should be prominent. Albeit don't neglect your part in country's community's cause. Be cheerful.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Tu "do unto others as you would have others do unto you" should be applied in daily matters more by all of us, and we'd enjoy happier times. Church services, charity, friendliness are ditto.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Be not impatient if your way or ideas are not immediately recognized or understood, even if their value is tops. We all have waiting periods, so if you are in one now, smile it out.

July 24 to August 23—(Leo)—Wisdom, understanding, judicious planning important. Recognizing that others may always feeling up to par will help you to a better knowledge of man's frailties, to have more good will.

August 24 to September 23—(Virgo)—Do your chores, and get along amiably with those doing their other ways. Diversity is usually a blessing. Worry not, pray a lot; let good humor hold sway, even if it's not your day.

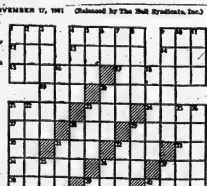
September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Practise, do the things you have no time for on other days. Enjoy leisure periods at pastimes that really satisfy your mind and initiative. But don't strain at anything.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Practice makes perfect, and if you have any free time this weekend, choose what you want to achieve in most, and put your fine determination to work. Be sensible in diet.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Keep your mind and heart on the finest and you won't be hampered by pettiness or hazards. Today is opportune for reviewing, rechecking, study, conferences.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn—A little wisdom mixed with geniality go a long way to make friends, and keep them. You of this Sign usually have good will and amiability—don't lose them no matter the trials.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—If work is to be order today carry on with high hopes plus steady application. If you have time for leisure, choose something to relax mind, nerves. Don't neglect church.



February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—There are always people and things that tend to disconcert, annoy. Just you be yourself, and don't be thrown off the right track. Start at church, and you will be off on right foot.

YOU BORN TODAY have tremendous reserve energy, and the will to carry on despite odds that sometimes make others quit. More power to your talents then if you direct them sagaciously. Keep honesty and principles always before you and when the going is roughest you will be achieving the most. But there's a difference between effort well expended, and overdoing, straining nerves, thus thwarting good purpose. Strike a happy medium daily, and save that big push for the especial times. Enjoy music, the outdoors; get sufficient sleep.

"LAUGH UP ONE'S SLEEVE"

The Outsiders

By Jane Abbott

Eliza was still thinking of the accident. She said, "I'll call you George, if you prefer it," and drew her hand away from his.

They were at the house. George Culbert got out, opened the door at her side. He stood in the door, leaning toward her smiling.

"Before we say good night, Eliza, I want to know something. You're smart all right and you know a lot more than I do, I'll grant, but not about running a paper mill! Hey, you. How, tell me this—are you going to trust me or aren't you? I can quit tomorrow, if you say the word.

"I have to trust you!" she said aloud, a little ruefully.

It was not a flattering answer but he was satisfied. "Well that's that and I'm glad you feel that way." His smile was like his hand touching hers and she looked at it strangely. It was kind to me, my dear. Don't you like awake tonight worrying what happened there at the mill today. You let me do the worrying for you. And don't go carrying baskets to the fellow's house. It puts ideas in their heads that shouldn't be there." His smile came closer, his hands moved toward her.

Eliza stiffened. He was going to kiss her. The loneliness was in his eyes, a very slight loosening around his lips.

At that moment the kitchen door opened and Hesperth appeared in the oblong of light. "You coming, Miss?" Hesperth's little loudly.

Muttering something under his breath, George Culbert stood back from the car and Eliza jumped out. She turned to look to Hesperth, hug her.

"Good night, thanks for driving me." She rushed the words.

"Pleasure all mine. See you tomorrow."

"Yes."

"And remember what we agreed to."

"I will. Good night."

"I've some cocoa hot," said Hesperth in the kitchen. "Sit here and drink it."

Awakening the next morning, Chris found it waiting for him. That girl in the pension, Eliza Forrestal, one and the same.

First he brought the old town back to his mind. It's cobbled square, its narrow, twisting, climbing streets, the magnificent view at every turn. On a six weeks' vacation, he was doing some hiking in that part of the Pyrenees when he came upon it, and attracted by its charm and isolation he had taken a room for a few days at a pension on the edge of the town.

He had seen the girl at dinner, that first night, sitting with the fellow at a table not far from his. He'd put them down as bride and groom, been, because the girl seemed very young, a brother and sister.

He'd found himself watching her through the meal. She wasn't French and he didn't think she was English. She wasn't pretty yet she was a great deal more than pretty. What had roused his interest was the frightened look he imagined he saw on her face now and then. She appeared to be oblivious to everyone but the fellow with her, to hang on to every word he said, and at the same time, seemed afraid of something.

The next morning he'd breakfasted late, then had gone out into the handkerchief-sized garden to smoke. Someone was playing a piano in the salon, playing remarkably well. The woman with the pension had come in through the gate, paused on the path along side of him. She'd nodded toward the window. "He comes here often. Now it is the little American. It will be a different one, next time." She had laughed.

Until then his interest in the girl had been objective, speculative, but when he'd seen her at mealtimes when she sat at the table near his.

Then had come that night at dinner—the fellow was talking and the girl was listening, sitting with her head bent, her fingers twisting her napkin. Every now and then she'd look at the fellow. The fellow was talking very low —he could see both a scowl and be guessed from the girl's face that it was the end of something. She must have felt him watching her for suddenly she had lifted her head and met his glance and he had seen the utterly lost look in her eyes. And some sort of appeal, he'd fancied.

He'd made a move to get up from the table, go to her. But at the same moment the fellow'd gotten up, was drawing the girl's chair from the table, then they'd gone out of the room.

Next morning from his bedroom window, he'd seen the man go off. The girl'd walked out into the garden with him. At the gate he'd put his arm around her to kiss her and she'd drawn away from it. He'd seen her then, and she had stood there, very still, for a long time, a small, lost figure.

4 BRITONS, 10 EGYPTIANS KILLED IN CLASHES

Winter Issue

Canadian soldiers will be well-equipped against the wintry blasts that lie ahead in Korea. Here a quartermaster sergeant begins the job of issuing the crated material to men of his company. They are, left to right, Pte. Dick Duffy, Grand Bay, N.B.; Quartermaster Sergt. Dave Tremble, Beachburg, Ont., and Pte. Graham Knott, Montreal—(CP from National Defence.)

MORE CANADIANS GO TO PREPARE EUROPE DEFENCE

Riflemen Leave Quebec To Join Eisenhower

Quebec, Nov. 18. (CP)—The 27th Brigade's Rifle Battalion sailed today for Europe to join more than 2,300 men of the Canadian formation now established in the British sector of Western Germany.

The 783 soldiers, wearing the green berets of the rifle unit, started to board the 13,000-ton Columbia of the Greek Lines this morning.

The whole ship, her rails crowded with troops, pulled away from Wolfe's Cove late last night as the Royal 22nd Regiment, formed up at the edge of the wharf, played "Auld Lang Syne".

The weather was cold and grey and only a few civilians were on hand at the dockside. Two or three young women wept when the ship slid out into the harbor below the monumental hills of Quebec.

Delaware Last

Last man to go up the gangplank was Lt.-Col. John M. Delaware of Toronto, who commands the Rifle Battalion. He will be in charge of the troops during the voyage to Britain.

The Canadians will be taken from Britain to Germany to join the 27th Brigade Camp near Hannover.

The Canadians' accommodation aboard the Columbia was inspected before the departure by Colonel A. Wells, of the Administration at army headquarters in Ottawa.

Beside the Rifle Battalion, a few men from the army's dental corps, provost corps and the Royal Field Battery section were aboard.

Complete Unit

The Rifle Battalion is made up of companies of the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, Toronto; the Victoria Rifles of Canada from Montreal; the Lennox Hastings Light Infantry, the Royal Winnipeg Rifles and the Regina Rifle Regiment.

The battalion trained at Valcartier camp on the outskirts of Quebec and the regimental troops were almost entirely from the Quebec area.

Padre Paul Patenaude of Valleyfield, Quebec, who sailed with the battalion, is also a veteran of them are French-speaking.

Today's sailing is the first of about 3,100 the number of men Canada is placing at the disposal of the Atlantic Treaty organization Defence Forces now commanded by General Eisenhower.

THIEVES GET $3,500

Ajax, Nov. 19 — (CP) — Thieves escaped early Sunday with $3,500 from an Ajax manufacturing. They used nitro-glycerine to blow the door from the store safe.

The explosion was felt through the town's business section, and wrecked much of the building's interior.

Birthday Premonition Helps Canadian Officer Prepare Hot Reception for Red Attackers

With the Canadians in Korea, Nov. 19—(CP)—The young Toronto lieutenant had been a premonition on his 23rd birthday—Friday Nov. 2.

He decided to share both with his section leaders, and called them into his command post on the isolated outpost position, 600 yards ahead of the main defence line.

Ed Mastronardi of the 2nd Battalion Royal Canadian Regiment had seen an attack there once before by the Chinese and had meticulously wired and booby-trapped the area thoroughly after beating them off.

"Boys," he told his three section leaders as he handed each a quart of carefully-hoarded beer, "I have a feeling they're going to come in tonight, and in strength."

He outlined his plan of battle and the men went back to their sections.

No sooner were they back than the enemy attacked.

First waves blew up on the mines. The Chinese used machetes to chop the barbed wire fence from its steel-peg moorings, then used dead and wounded comrades as stepping-stones over the mines.

Individual Chinese with Bangalore torpedoes strapped to their bodies wriggled through the wire, reached the inner perimeter and detonated the torpedoes, blowing a gap "wide enough to drive two city buses abreast through it," said Maj. Dick Medland of Toronto, the company commander.

Blew up With Torpedoes

Some of the wrigglers blew up with their torpedoes. Others were killed before they could detonate them. Altogether 14 bangalore men tried to get into the position.

Cpl. Jack Sargeant of Owen Sound, Ont., reported them coming in on his position in waves.

Mastronardi called down artillery and the first attack was broken off before the position was penetrated. "We threw hand grenades—it was a grenade war," said the lieutenant afterward.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Nov. 19 (CP)—Synopsis: Following the record-breaking cold last week, mild temperatures have been surging steadily over the weekend and averaged 8 to 15 degrees below their seasonal yalue this morning. The colder spell will continue tonight and the weather in southern Ontario Tuesday morning will be very cold for mid-November. No immediate relief from this cold spell is in sight. Although a few light snowflurries are likely in any region today the only appreciable fall of snow will be in the counties south of Lake Huron and Georgian Bay and in the Niagara Peninsula.

The second attack came in at 10:30. "They blew bugles and whistles and shot flares," said the young commander. "They blew gaps in the wire—but they never got through them. Our machine guns were laying down so good a defensive fire that the attack broke up and again they pulled back."

There was sporadic fighting then until three in the morning when they came in under a terrific volume of fire." In support the Chinese had two tanks, medium machine guns, light machine guns, mortars and heavy artillery. At close quarters they used phosphorous grenades.

Heavy Fire

"It was the heaviest fire I've ever experienced—and it was even the resulting shrapnel that I got most of my casualties," Mastronardi said. "By then we were out of grenades and almost out of ammunition. We had been fighting almost nine hours. And there was the enemy—on both sides and behind us.

I ordered the forward brenn-ik No. 1 was Pte. E. R. Bauer of Winnipeg—to pull back. By this time there was quite a pile of dead in front of its position, and also in front of Sargeant, who was using a sten gun."

There was a particularly troublesome machine gun on the ridge behind the outpost. So Mastronardi and Sargeant scaled

Princess Says Tour Placed in Heart 'A Love Which Will Never Grow Old'

London, Nov. 19—(CP)—Princess Elizabeth said today her Canadian tour has placed in her heart "a love which will never grow old."

Speaking at a "Welcome Home" reception at the ancient Guildhall, in the heart of London, the Princess said:

"I am sure that nowhere under the sun could one find a land more full of hope, of happiness and of true, loyal, generous-hearted people.

"I do not believe one can return from such journeys without a new sense of faith in the progress of mankind, for none of the doubts, disillusions nor difficulties that face us on this troubled continent are going to hold back the Canadians."

The Princess and the Duke of Edinburgh drove to the Guildhall in an open carriage. Despite leaden skies and intermittent rain, cheering crowds lined the route from Buckingham Palace down the Strand and Fleet Street to the Guildhall.

An address of welcome from the court of common council, read by Sir Gerald Nabarro, Conservative M.P., congratulated the royal couple on the success of the royal tour. In reply, Elizabeth said she and her husband had been received with a warmth and kindness which touched them deeply.

The Princess said that on the royal couple's visit to the United State "we passed what is surely one of the miracles of the world today, that vast, 4,000-mile frontier without a single gun pointed in fear on either side."

She declared Canada is a "land where enterprise can flourish and where industry will be rewarded by a land that deserves people of sterling quality."

She added:

"I hope that people from the United Kingdom will continue to go out as they have in the past to make their life beside the fine men and women who form the nation of Canada as it is today.

"I do not believe one can return from Canada without a new sense of faith in the progress of mankind."

Ontario General Election In Final Lap in Preparation For Voting on Thursday

(By The Golden Press)

The Ontario general election campaign is in its final lap in preparation for the voting Thursday.

Premier Frost, campaigning for re-election of his Progressive Conservative administration, speaks today in his hometown of Lindsay and on a CBC Ontario network, campaigns in Toronto Tuesday and returns to Lindsay Wednesday a day on which he has scheduled no speech.

Walter Thomson, Ontario Liberal leader, will wind up his campaign in his home riding of Ontario, in and around industrial Oshawa. He makes a province-wide broadcast tonight.

E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario C.C.F. leader, will last night set a Canadian political precedent by appearing on television with a campaign address over a Detroit station, speaks in Windsor today and makes a broadcast over a CBC Ontario network, Tuesday he campaigns in the Toronto district and Wednesday in Kitchener.

Premier Frost told a gathering in the Ottawa Valley town of Pembroke Saturday night that relocations are being carried out in an iron ore development in Renfrew county. It would be concerned mainly with marginal ores, similar to the mining being developed at Marmora north of Belleville, and made possible partly by the availability of Ottawa River hydro-electric power.

The premier also said his government is working to restore the great pine forests which once covered the upper Ottawa Valley.

He suggested that the Toronto Star prove its good faith toward the Charitable Gifts Act by distributing its share of the money among charities. He said it has this option under the 1949 act, which provides that charitable foundations which operate businesses must dispose of the stock in the capital stock in the business by 1955.

Campaigned Against Act

The newspaper had campaigned against the act during the Leeds provincial by-election in 1949 er's allowances.

Jolliffe on TV

Mr. Jolliffe's television appearance on the Detroit's station WWJ-TV, which has a radius of about 80 miles and claims 10,000 families as viewers in neighboring Windsor as well as others in southwestern Ontario and eastern Ontario. He conducted a 15-minute panel discussion of his party's 12-point program with four western Ontario C. C. F. candidates—Gordon Grant, Essex South; Reg. Watson and Arthur Last.

He promised that the C. C. F., if elected, will operate with the federal government for an early start of the St. Lawrence seaway and power project. He said it will grant a special municipal subsidy, involving a provincial hospital insurance plan, set up a provincial development board and establish a housing corporation.

He also pledged the party, if it wins power, to launching a scholarship plan for 5,000 students university students and to granting cost-of-living increases in old age and widow's pension pensions and in mothers' allowances.

Large Part of 1951 Crop In Alberta, Saskatchewan Uncut Because of Weather

Edmonton, Nov. 19—(CP)—More than $450,000,000 worth of wheat, oats and barley is estimated to be lying under snow in Alberta and Saskatchewan fields, awaiting until spring to be harvested.

Most or it eventually will be salvaged, but the delay until winter in the open is a question mark.

For a second straight year a late growing season and early winter have combined to upset marketing and transportation problems to frustrate the farmer's hopes for a bulging crop of high quality grain, safely harvested and sold before winter.

As it is, nearly three-quarters of the prairie wheat crop still is on the farmers' fields, unthreshed, or threshed and in makeshift storage.

Farmers Without Cash

And the farmers are without the cash they customarily receive in the fall when they deliver their grain to the elevators. Some with threshed grain are unable to get it hauled because most elevators are clogged.

Farm organizations are clamoring for financial assistance and by the federal government to see the farmers through the winter. Legislators men are worried, too, because the entire western economy is slowed when the farmer is not chasing power drops.

Alberta, particularly in southern area, have been hit hardest. Not only did early frost and snow end the expected wheat yield by 19,000,000 bushels— slicing farm income by as much as $35,000,000 —but the quality of the balance took a severe beating. As of two weeks ago, the average grade of Alberta wheat was down to grade IV.

Theft of Pet Deer Arouses Community

West Willington, Conn., Nov. 19 — (AP) — Bambi, a gum-chewing deer, has disappeared, leaving the victim very unplay, and the whole community is up in arms.

Bambi has been a member of the Earl Woodworth family for 17 months, ever since he was found in the woods a few hours after his birth.

He grew to be a 140-pound buck, dwelling in Woodworth's barn, played with the Woodworth dogs and three children, and roamed about the Woodworth in their car.

He followed gum like a nervous stenographer.

Yesterday, Bambi was gone —with a trail of blood leading from the barn to a road 200 feet away. The earth was roughed up as though Bambi had put up a fight.

Woodworth has offered a reward.

"I never thought anybody would be so low. They've broken my children's hearts."

THREE DIE IN SLEEP

New York, Nov. 19 — (AP) — Three babies died in their sleep last night of what police said was illness, suffocation and gas poisoning. A neighbor found them unconscious in the fourth-floor Harlem apartment of their mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Williams. Police said the mother was away from home.

THOUSANDS TAKEN FROM FLOODED HOMES BY BOATS

PO River Spreads Muddy Ruin Over Wide Area

Rovigo, Italy, Nov. 19—(AP)—The hour of Romeo and Juliet—Verona—and Mantua today fell under the menace of Italy's ramparging flood with the collapse of a quarter-mile section of the northern bank of Bianco Canal.

The break, which was doubled in size since yesterday, was only one more calamity in the desolated Po delta, where nearly 290,000 persons have been made homeless.

A fierce storm-driven rain, in some parts of the vast area added to sufferings of thousands of isolated hungry, threatened persons. It also added to the floods, which in the last 10 days have brought death to more than 100 north Italians.

Rovigo, the provincial capital, was a deserted city.

A fleet of small boats was rushed to Adria, where 20,000 of the 33,000 population were marooned after ignoring earlier warnings. During the weekend the waters covered the city and today they rose in many places to second-story level.

40 Miles From Verona

The canal break was 40 miles from, Verona, a city of 170,000, made famous by Shakespeare's play. An official said the collapse of the canal bank was "major" but which directly menaces even Verona and Mantua."

The flood waters spread muddy ruin over a delta triangle 38 miles deep and 18 miles wide at its farthest point.

Submerged in the triangle were Adria; Cavarzere, a city of 23,000 inhabitants; Loreo, with 11,000, and Donada 8,700, plus scores of villages, hamlets and farms.

After a full day of isolation those still in Adria, got some supplies by plane.

Damage so far is estimated in the millions of dollars.

How many of the homeless had been rescued and how many walled-desperately in upper stories and treetops for help was not known. An indication came from a provincial official in Rovigo that most of Adria's population had failed to heed the evacuation order late Sunday.

Coupled with the storms in which 19 died in Sicily last Italy and Sicily last month the flood was Italy's worse natural disaster since the earthquake of 1908.

A Rovigo official said all nonessential population has been evacuated from the town. Only about 6,000 persons remained and all workers needed to provide help for stricken villages.

Perilous Area

Throughout the flooded areas the problem of food and clothing was acute. Appeals were received hourly for food, thousands of blankets, and woollen garments were on the way by every available means of transportation.

Human Tissue Taken From Eskimos Who Died 33 Years Ago Used in Study

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 19—(AP)—Human tissue taken from Eskimos who died 33 years ago are being studied at the University of Iowa in a search to find out what caused the 1918 influenza epidemic.

The tissues come from the bodies of Eskimos who died in the great flu epidemic at the close of the First World War. They are buried in perpetually frozen Arctic ground near Teller Mission, Seward Peninsula, Alaska.

If the project succeeds, the scientists say, it may help prevent any such widespread epidemic of flu from ever occurring again.

Some 20,000,000 persons died in the 1918 epidemic which apparently was caused by a particularly virulent type of influenza virus.

Scientists at that time did not know how to isolate the virus. The University of Iowa group reasoned that modern laboratory methods might succeed where scientists in 1918 failed. One big drawback was that no "fresh" victims of that year have been found in the Arctic.

Last June three men made the trip to Alaska to get specimens from the frozen bodies of the Eskimos. They were Dr. Albert P. Mc-Kee, professor of bacteriology; Dr. Jack Layton, assistant professor of pathology and Johan Hultin, a Swedish student in bacteriology.

Otto Geist, a research associate in paleontology at the University of Alaska, went along as their guide.

The scientists still are studying the specimens they collected. They are using original methods of laboratory investigation which they are reluctant to discuss but say they hope to be able to make a report some time in the first quarter of 1952.

Gun Battle Takes Place Between British and Police

Evacuation of Families From Ismalia Speeded Up

Cairo, Nov. 19 (CP) — British authorities ordered a speed-up of evacuation of servicemen's families from the trouble spot of Ismailia today after a weekend of violence in which four Britons were killed and four wounded in clashes with Egyptian police.

The Egyptians were killed, 15 police and eight civilians wounded in the fighting, the Egyptian Minister of the Interior, Fuad Serag El Din Pasha, said here.

Today the city of Ismailia is without police protection. The Egyptian government directed officers back to barracks until a meeting later today with British authorities.

Early this morning a British patrol touring the deserted streets of the city found the bodies of two more Britons, RAF ground officers. Both apparently had been shot in the gun battle between British troops and Egyptian police yesterday.

Second Clash in Day

Earlier one British officer was killed and another seriously wounded in the fighting—the second clash in Ismailia in 24 hours.

British and Egyptian spokesmen issued conflicting reports on how the gunplay started. The Egyptians claimed that a British soldiers fired on an Egyptian police truck which fired back in self-defence. The British said the Egyptian police fired on a British military police jeep.

Pistol and rifle fire shattered the central residential area for 2½ hours sending civilians scurrying for cover.

The battle was the first open clash since Egypt tore up the Anglo-Egyptian Treaty and ordered British out of the strategic Suez Canal zone.

All Helmy Bey, Ismailia, said last night. I cannot maintain law and order as long as my men are attacked by British soldiers. He said he had sent police back to barracks pending talks with British authorities."

Ismailia Quiet Area

About 10 days ago Britain declared a state of emergency and began moving British families to the vicinity of Port Said, Some families left on the Suez Canal however.

The weekend fighting was the first in which Britons have died since Britain rejected Egypt's order that she take her troops out of the canal zone.

Heavy Snowfall Accompanies Freezing Weather

Chicago, Nov. 19 — (AP)—Icy air gave most of the United States a numbing chill during the weekend and some eastern states had heavy snowfalls to go along with the freezing weather.

Snow fell for 24 hours in some sections of Pennsylvania, dumping 18 inches at Kane, in northwestern Pennsylvania. Heavy snow also smacked parts of Ohio, West Virginia and Maryland with 15 inches reported near Cleveland.

Cold, numbing weather extended over a vast area, Florida, in the path of biting northwest winds, reported the coldest weather of the season today. The temperature at Miami was expected to go down to 38 to 40 degrees.

Temperatures hovered near the 32 mark yesterday in southern California.

New York, Nov. 19 (AP) — The Associated Press yesterday began delivery of its main news (trunk) service to morning newspapers by teletypesetter. It extended AP's teletypesetter operations around the clock.

Woman Hunter Fails to Have Usual Luck

For a number of years Mrs. Audrey Davies, wife of Gordon Davies, Dyer Street, has had the "laugh" on her dear-hunting husband.

Mrs. Davies who has accompanied her husband in his colonial quest for the pronged bucks for many years, is a crack shot and many a proud deer has fallen to her unerring aim, while friend Hubby was forced into the background through bad hunting luck.

But this year it was different. Through fifteen inches of snow, and in sub-zero weather the party consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Davies, David Bauder, Hartingdon, Ont., and Bill Prosser, Kingston, sought the "venison".

And in the Davies home, it is the head of the house who tosses out his chest when the subject of hunting is brought up. For he has not yet forgotten having lined as his trophies of the chase, while Mrs. Davies has to "sit back and take it." Not only did she fail to bring home a deer this year, but she states, "I never even had a glimpse of one."

Crippled Cat Now Eligible For Peg Leg

"Whiskers" a five-year-old cat, which took up railroading for a living, has been given a "monkey wrench," tossed it into the machinery of the CNR frog shops and came off second best.

Now "Whiskers" is an amputation patient at Dr. H. Burnet Animal Hospital, Dundas St. following an operation that makes her eligible for the artificial limb fraternity.

"Whiskers" whose feline forebearers boast no proud Persian or Angora blood, bobbies around on her three remaining legs as though nothing had happened. She figures that three legs and nine lives will see her through, even if she can't use them to still machinery.

She was rescued from an alley existence when but a small kitten by Ben Jones and Albert Street, who took her to his ward in the frog shop where she has been the pet of employees since. "Whiskers" paw was mangled by machinery a few days ago, and infection set in. Mr. Feather sent her to hospital where she is said to be an ideal patient.

"Whiskers" is said to be possessed of more or less remarkable feline brains especially when hungry. A few minutes before noon, she used to slip in to where the whistle operator worked, wait there till the whistle blew, then joined the "boys" at their lunch-basket session.

POLICE BLUNTER

Two break-ins were attempted in the city during the week-end with the night operators leaving in both instances before entry was effected.

Officers on patrol discovered where an attempt had been made to gain entrance to the Trudeau garage premises on Front Street by springing a door. The other property where an attempt at entry was made was the York Trading Company off Station Street.

Patrol officers also found the front door of the former old people's home unlocked. Footprints found inside revealed that children had been in the building. Fire hose had been taken from books and strewn along the floor, while plants left in the building were also found broken.

9th Anti Tank Regt. Deposits Argyll LI Colors in Church With Simple Colorful Ritual

In colorful impressive ceremony the Standard of the Argyll Light Infantry Regiment were deposited in St. Thomas Anglican Church on Sunday morning before a capacity congregation.

The ceremony was carried out according to ancient British military ritual, were the first of their kind to take place in this city since the colors of the 135th Battalion C. E. F. were deposited in the edifice during the First World War.

The colors of the regiment handed over to the 9th Anti Tank Regiment (SP) RCA (A&I) following reclassification will occupy a place in the church chancel with those of other military units.

A few minutes before eleven o'clock Captain R. W. MacPherson, regimental adjutant knocked on the door of the church with the hilt of a ceremonial sword. Behind him stood Lieut. Col. G. W. Harcourger, M. C. E. D., commanding officer of the regiment and Major Everett S. Fairman, second in command.

Armed Escort

Outside the church main doors stood an armed escort party, rifles at the present, under the command of Lieut. R. J. Bowen. The colors, those of the regiment and the King's Color were immediately in the rear. Lieut. R. C. Jago carried the King's Color with Lieut. A. F. Lindsay carrying those of the regiment. They were escorted by RSM Hammond.

As the doors opened, Captain MacPherson requested permission of the rector, Rev. Major Averill-deacon, Ven. Arthur Smith, regimental chaplain, to deposit the colors in the church. This was granted. Then Col. MacGregor addressing the rector said, "Sir, in behalf of the officers and men of the 9th Anti Tank Regiment (SP) Argyll L. I. (RCA) I have the honor to inform you that these are the colors of the regiment, and to request that they be deposited here in the keeping and as a token of their gratitude to Almighty God, by Whom alone victory is accomplished."

The rector replied "in the Faith of Jesus Christ we receive these colors for the glory of God and in memory of those who were faithful, many of them even unto death, in the sacred cause of King and Country."

Then to the slow march, Col. MacGregor and his staff entered the church, the colors following and in the rear the armed escort, bayonets gleaming on sloped rifles. Behind the colors marched Col. Roscoe Vanderwater, M.C. former A.D.C. commanding officer. Also present was former regimental sergeant major Tom Willerton.

Accepted by Archdeacon

The party proceeded to the foot of the chancel while the congregation stood in reverent silence. There Col. MacGregor received the King's Color from Lieut. Jago, handed it to Major McVeigh in turn presented it to Warden H. H. Ketcheson. The regimental colors were handed to Col. MacGregor who presented them to Major K. Bogart Guanoque, who in turn handed them to Warden Archie Lewis. The warden carried the colors to the foot of the altar, where they were accepted by Archdeacon Smith and laid on the altar.

Nearly 200 all ranks of the regiment paraded to the church and occupied the pews in the centre. The balcony was crowded with members of the congregation.

Reviewed History

Archdeacon Smith addressing the regiment and congregation reviewed the military history of this city, quoting from the book written by the late Mrs. Scott. The first militia unit was formed here in 1799. Troops from this city and district saw action in the Mackenzie rebellion of 1837. In 1866 the 15th Battalion (Argyils) was organized. Members saw service in the Riel Rebellion, 1858, the Northwest Rebellion, 1885 and the Boer War, with the 49th Rifles.

The 34th Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery, was organized in 1912 and was the first complete unit from the city to see service in the First World War. It underwent reorganization in 1921. The participation of military units from the City of Quinte in the world wars is too recent, for further comment, the Archdeacon said.

Archdeacon Smith paid impressive tribute to members of the I.O.D.E. chapter associated with the regiment for the splendid effort contributed to the welfare of the colors. These efforts, he said, were sincerely appreciated.

Prayer in Action

Depositing the colors, he said, was not merely a military ceremonial nor a drill. It was a prayer in action. In their positions in the chancel they will speak a message of faith of those who set them there. They will provide a memorial to those finest qualities that are ever resident in men's hearts; honor, loyalty, service and self-sacrifice.

They will be an inspiration for patriotic service, the Archdeacon said. People will see in the colors an implication to live up to the best of service and self sacrifice.

The world today is divided into two armed camps, he said, we pray God to help us keep it from the miseries of another world war. The strongest weapon we have is not tremendous armament, the atomic bomb, etc., but faith and the practise of the faith we profess and the manifestation of a genuine Christian character on the part of all who stand on our side. The best type of Canadian soldier is the first of all is a true soldier of Christ."

City Parade

Following the service the regiment paraded through the city streets headed by the regimental silly band. Following dismissal at the armouries the "troops" enjoyed a steak dinner provided by the regimental quarter-master and his staff.

During the afternoon, rehearsals for the annual inspection of the regiment by Brigadier Knight, today night, took place. The inspecting officer will be Brigadier Knight, commanding eastern area, Kingston.

Many former members of the Argyll Light Infantry have been sent at the depositing of the colors ceremonies and service while members of regiment (SP) RCA (A&I) attended were received from former high ranking officers Battery commanders were 34th, Belleville, Major Joe Black; 32nd, Belleville Major Williams, Turgeon; 49th Battery, Gananoque, Major E. H. Warwick and the 47th, Napanee, Major Medd.

Theatre Guild Prepares For Opening Night

Members of the Belleville Theatre Guild are increasing their activities during the week-end for the three one-act plays which will form their first public presentation this season.

At a meeting held at the city hall, Thomas Fields, business manager, distributed tickets and asked that returns be made within a week. He said that all receipts and expenditures had been considered, the price of tickets had been set at 50 cents each.

Mrs. Doyle opened the business part of the meeting by explaining that as many new members had joined during the last two months, they might not know the members of the executive committee who had been entrusted with the more detailed planning of organization. She, therefore, introduced them to the meeting:-

—Bert Simpson, vice president

Ed Day, secretary

Percy Mercer, treasurer

Mrs. Jardine, program convener

Mrs. Gault, membership convener

Mrs. Robert Tanner, publicity manager

After hearing reports from certain of the officers as well as from Mrs. May, chairman of the play reading group and Mrs. McVeigh, stage manager, members discussed the possibility of a coffee party after the show. It was agreed to hold one, with the details left in the hands of the executive. After considerable discussions, the meeting also decided to enter a one-act play in the Dominion Festival of the Eastern Ontario Drama League, the actual play to be settled later.

At the conclusion of the business, the meeting was turned over to the program convener, who dealt with "Pantomime" the art of conveying one's meaning by gesture rather than by word. After her introductory remarks, the remainder of the period was occupied by demonstration and practice into which Guild members entered enthusiastically, making a perfect ending to a very interesting evening.

Joseph Assef, 40, of Windsor, a central figure in the investigation of administration of justice in Windsor, was arrested on a charge by city police here yesterday and is being held on charge of illegal possession of liquor.

Police stated a search of Assef's home revealed 191 bottles of liquor believed to have been purchased in Quebec. A companion, Norman Ashley, 37, also of Windsor was also arrested.

The men are being held pending bail arrangement with cash bail of $1,000 having been set for the latter. Assef's bail was fixed at $1,000 and after parking their car had taken a room at a local hotel. They were arrested at mid-morning Sunday as they were about to leave the city.

Police Inspector J. Clair Hayes said the liquor all carried the official government stamp. Both men refused to talk following their arrest, he said.

police force after he heard evidence that Assef had made 2,000 illegal liquor sales in three months.

The attention of Belleville police was drawn to the Assef vehicle by a city taxi driver who was being operated. Police Sgt. Roy Milligan and P.C. Chas. Lockwood followed the car and stopped it at the four corners. A search of the vehicle revealed the liquor worth close to $1,000 hidden behind the seat of the coupe.

Investigation by police later revealed the two men had arrived in the city shortly after midnight Sunday and after parking their car had taken a room at a local hotel. They were arrested at mid-morning Sunday as they were about to leave the city.

Police Inspector J. Clair Hayes said the liquor all carried the official government stamp. Both men refused to talk following their arrest, he said.

Dunnville Defeats Albert College For COSSA Title

Albert College senior football squad went down to defeat by a 24-5 count before the powerful Dunnville C.I. team at Dunnville on Saturday in a game played for the COSSA Senior "B" championship.

The game was played on a dry hard ground and the small speedy Dunnville team was too good for the college squad. The McGrail brothers, a pair of speedy Dunnville backs, stole the spotlight with their fast running and all round play.

Albert scored their only point in the early minutes of the game when Sheperdson, quarterback staged a brilliant run in a Dunnville player when a loose ball rolled around behind the homesters goal-line. The Albert player lost by inches narrowly missing the touchdown.

The Dunnville squad was a well-drilled team, fast, clean and, according to Coach Pete Beach of Albert was a better squad on all-round play.

The game was cleanly played with a fine spirit of sportsmanship prevailing throughout. The officials were good with little or no penalties or rough play hampering them.

The Albert squad was royally treated following the game and they speak highly of the reception given them by the Dunnville team, officials and fans.

Defence Minister Claxton Visits At Whitehall

London, Nov. 19. (CP)—Defence Minister Brooke Claxton of Canada today visited five government ministers at Whitehall, including Prime Minister Churchill and Lord Ismay, secretary of State for Commonwealth Relations.

Tonight he planned to attend a special reception at the Grosvenor House Hotel given for Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh who have just returned from a tour of Canada.

Claxton arrived during the weekend and will go to Rotterdam tomorrow to meet contingents of the Canadian 27th Brigade group. He will also go to Bonn and Hannover, Germany, where advance forces of the brigade are stationed, before flying to Rome for meetings of the North Atlantic Treaty Council starting Saturday.

Claxton told a morning press conference that the 27th Brigade will use British-made centurian tanks because they are "available" and because the Canadians will be integrated with British forces.

Claxton reviewed the progress of Canadian defence arrangements for the benefit of British correspondents. He said that in the 12 months after Korea, Canadian armed forces had been increased by 75 per cent.

Referring to the high cost of defence forces, Claxton estimated it costs $2,300 a year to maintain a Canadian soldier compared with about $600 for a continental soldier.

He said he hopes ultimately for an annual aircrew output from Canada of more than 2,000 a year, about 1,900 of whom would be Canadian and the rest Europeans trained in Canada.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 19. (CP)—Stock market prices turned downward in early afternoon dealings today after a brief opening rally.

Agricultures, refining oils, textiles and manufacturing companies weakened. Construction and foods dipped sharply.

Senior Golds showed two penny losses to the fractional gain by McIntyre. Secondary issues traded

U.S. Building Toward New Interceptor Fleet

Washington, Nov. 19—(AP)—The United States Air Force is beginning to build toward a new interceptor fleet in which all fighter planes instead of only a few will have electronic eyes for hunting down enemy bombers in any kind of weather, day or night. Discussing the trend toward the "all-weather" fighter force, one official commented today that it didn't seem to make sense to have interceptor planes which can work only in daylight and in good visual conditions.

Back of his comment was the fact that the best conditions for a modern bomber force, equipped with radar bomb sight, is in the blanketing protection of darkness and clouds.

The move toward a complete all-weather force started some time ago, but now is being accelerated in the U. S. A. F.'s new aircraft procurement program. Quantities of all-weather fighters are on order to add to planes already delivered.

Revision of estimates during the last five years of Russia's strategic bombing capabilities have given urgency to an effort to provide the air defence command with a complete force of interceptors capable of operating at any time under any conditions. Russia has added large numbers of long range bombers, based on the American B-29 design, to her strategic force and has demonstrated she now has the atomic bomb.

Strategists assume that if Russian navigation and radar equipment has progressed at the pace of the Soviet bomber and jet fighter progress, red airmen would be able to make a surprise strike timed to bring the bombers in over the United States under cover of darkness and, if possible, in cloud cover.

The U. S. Air Force now has in operation three types of all-weather fighters, two of them jets —the Lockheed F-94C and Northrop F-89, and the piston-engined, twin Mustang North American, an older plane outclassed by the jets' speed.

Currently, test models of the North American F-86 Sabre are being tried as night fighters. Radar equipment has been fitted into the nose of the new series, designated as F-86D.

BIRTHDAY

the slope shoulder to shoulder, the officer using a burp gun he'd taken from a dying Chinese and Sargeant his gun, They hooked the gun out of action, killing one of its crew and then returned to the platoon.

Organized Wounded

Sergeant was detailed to take five men and knock the remainder of the enemy off the ridge behind, so that the platoon could fight its way back.

Pte. J. D. Sharp of Toronto, stretcher-bearer, organized the wounded in the middle of the formation. He checked the whole position for wounded first, then grouped them "and by sheer drive and nerve got them to help us fight our way out as well as take care of themselves."

While the platoon worked its way back Mastronardi, Pte. C. W. Cassidy of Lunenburg, N.S., and a soldier who later was wounded, fought a rearguard action, kneeling down to fire on the advancing Chinese, then pulling back a few yards before firing again—across 600 yards of countryside including the ridge Sargeant's gang cleared for them.

Last man out of the position was Pte. R. D. Kirkpatrick of Saint John, N.B., the officer's signaller.

To hold the enemy at bay Mastronardi called down a curtain of artillery fire which hovered as he moved, always falling within 75 yards of his little group.

As the gap opened in the wire for the men to go through, CSM. James Yates of Niagara-on-the Lake, Ont., stood with the compass.

In the middle of the battle, with all hell breaking loose, Yates checked the platoon through, checked with Mastronardi on casualties, then turned to Medland and said, "all present or accounted for, sir."

Forty-three Chinese bodies were subsequently found in the position. Uncounted more were in the artillery's beaten zone ahead. And air observer the next morning reported stretcher columns "miles long" evacuating the enemy's wounded.

Next morning Mastronardi and his 14 remaining fighters were out to take the position back. They did — without a shot being fired.

Elizabeth Greets 3-Year-Old Son At Station

London, Nov. 17 — (AP) — Smiling radiantly, Princess Elizabeth came back to London today after a six-week trip to Canada and the United States.

The Princess stepped quickly from the special railway coach which had brought her and the Duke of Edinburgh from Liverpool and rushed up to the Queen, who had been waiting on the platform at grimy Euston Station for 15 minutes.

"It's wonderful to be back," she murmered to her mother, whom she kissed on both cheeks.

Then she almost knelt on the red-carpeted station platform and hugged her son, three-year-old Prince Charles.

Thousands of people standing in a pelting rain around the station let out a roar of welcome at the first glimpse of the princess.

The duke greeted Queen Elizabeth and Princess Margaret. Then he turned to his son, ruffled his hair and said "how he seems to have grown."

After 15 minutes at the station the royal procession left for Buckingham Palace to see the King, who is recovering from a serious lung operation.

Prince Charles, a stocky, little ooey, looked wonderingly around the station after he greeted his mother and father. He noticed a Grenadier guardsman, drawn up at salute, and asked: "Where is his sword?" The duke pointed out the hilt projecting from a greatcoat.

Princess Elizabeth and the duke will be welcomed back to London officially at the Guildhall luncheon Monday.

LARGE PART

R. E. English, statistician of the Alberta Department of Agriculture, estimates at $383,000,000 the value of wheat, oats and barley still in the fields unharvested when the most recent snow just about finished the year's harvest work.

Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan has placed at $300,000,000 the value of wheat alone buried under snow in that province. Manitoba has been relatively fortunate with more than 85 per cent of its grain crop threshed and only $8,-000,000 worth of grain under snow.

Hays Crop

Here is the wheat picture statistically: The Dominion Bureau of Statistics last Thursday estimated the wheat crop in the three western provinces at a potential 331,-000,000 bushels. To this must be added 30,000,000 bushels of oldcrop wheat still on the farms when the new crop year began Aug. 1.

From Aug. 1 to Nov. 8 the last date for which figures are available from the board of grain commissioners, farm deliveries of wheat totalled 162,000,000 bushels. That leaves 169,000,000 bushels, or about 72.5 per cent of the crop, still on the farms.

A lot of it has been threshed and is being stored in farm granaries and bins, or piled on the ground, until there is room in the clogged elevators. The rest is in stook (arranged in neat conical piles in the fields,) in swath (cut and lying on the ground) or is still standing.

Whatever its status, none of it has brought the farmer any cash. But Trade Minister Howe has announced he expects to have ready shortly a plan to finance wheat which has not been harvested.

How much will the unharvested grain be worth when it is taken off in the spring? The Bureau of Statistics says: "The extent of loss attributable to extended exposure to winter conditions and to hazards attendant upon a spring harvest cannot be fully determined until the remainder of the crop is in the bin next spring."

The one bright spot in the picture is that while the quality and price per bushel may be low, there are lots of bushels. If the estimate of an eventual total yield of 531,-000,000 bushels is realized, it will still be the second largest wheat crop in history, exceeded only by the 1928 harvest.

ANOTHER POTATO KING

Still another farmer in Sudbury District, where the big spuds grow, has captured a world's championship for growing potatoes. This time, it is A. T. Hartwick, of Walford Station, Sudbury District, whose entry of Green Mountain potatoes was awarded the "final world championship" at the Royal Winter Fair.

Not only do the farmers of Sudbury District usually win the top prizes for growing the best potatoes, but they boast that they produce the most potatoes per acre.

A VERY BLACK CASE

The native authorities in Tanganyika, British East Africa, are having black market troubles — and how!

The Great Bride have long had a fixed rate of exchange of livestock for a bride.

When the young Gusila decided that it was time to get married, he, probably with the backing of his father, approached the father of some young lady, and a marriage was arranged. The marriage was arranged only after the prospective bridegroom had produced the proper number of cattle, sheep and goats. This number was established by tribal law.

Some time ago, the tribal authorities decided that, in view of general inflationary conditions, it would be necessary to permit the fathers of brides to make a slightly higher charge for their daughters, so a new schedule was set up.

Prosperity and inflation continued to grow among the Gusil, so there have turned up some very appalling cases recently of something like an organized black market in brides. More cattle, sheep and goats are chasing brides than used to be the case, to use the language of our inflationary arguments. The result is that ardent bridegrooms find themselves able to pay more than the approved prices, and are willing to do this.

Perfect, however, inflation, so it has become necessary for the generous bridegroom to go through the ceremony of paying only the legal price in public, while handing over a few extra cattle, sheep and goats behind the scenes. It appears that some enterprising Gusil traders are handling these unofficial extra payments for a small commission.

Evidently the Gusil react to price control just as Canadians do.

This is certainly a very black case of black marketing. —(The Printed Word.)

SELLING POOR PEACHES

Ontario's peach-growing district, the Niagara Peninsula, was blessed with a bumper crop this year. The crop was so large, in fact, that the growers shook much of the fruit from the trees so as to relieve the branches of the excessive weight.

Community newspapers in the area asked housewives to can what they could as many peaches as possible, so that the fruit would not be wasted and the growers would benefit from the financial returns.

In the light of the bumper crop of good quality fruit, it is unfortunate that growers once again so short-sighted as to leave themselves open to complaints of poor quality, undersized and wormy fruit, stamped with the No. 1 grade stamp.

It is some years since the first vigorous complaints were launched against poor quality peaches offered on the market, and it is reason for regret that the growers apparently cannot (or will not) do anything about it.

In the long run, the peach-growing industry in the Niagara Peninsula will suffer — especially when peaches can be imported from California that meet all the requirements of near-perfection. — (Sudbury Star.)

HE CAST HIS BREAD

The sparrows marked a man's fall. It happened in Augsburg, Germany, where an old man, who lived alone, fell seriously ill and had only strength enough to crawl to his bed and lie there without attention. Such was his plight for two or three days.

Augsburg Burgermeister, who is 84, had fed the sparrows in his yard for six years. He didn't go out much, and no one missed him — only the birds.

Then, one morning, more than a hundred of the bustling, little birds crowded before the window of his place in an agitated manner and peck at his back windows. Neighbors became alarmed, and summoned police. They found poor August and learned that he was too sick to call a doctor.

His birds, he told them, were hungry and wanted their daily bread crumbs. Would they please feed his little friends? Of course, Herr Duerschmidt, and gladly. But some of the neighbors were not so sure that hunger was the cause of this winged distress; for the clatter, mark you, had subsided the instant help had come to the door.

Who can say or plumb the depth of this gentle rapprochement between old man and the birds of the air? —(Hamilton Spectator.)

WOMAN'S LOT

Butter or salt she goes to borrow,
Pledging its full return tomorrow.
Meanwhile, two mothers sit and chat
As neighbors must, of this and that
And what for fevers and chills to do
And what has appened and what is new.
A woman's life! These sum it all:
Her man, her home and her children small;
His neighbors near who daily share

With patience the self-same round of care;
The self-same joys and the self-same sighs
And the self-same shops where the money goes.
A few there are who seek high careers,
For fame's brief favor they spend their years.
But, her man, her home, and her children small
And the nearby neighbors who stop to call;
And butter and salt or egg to borrow,
Are a woman's best sources of joy and sorrow.

BELLS IN THE HUMAN HEART

In a deep valley of a mountain range in Europe are hung some remarkable bells. No rope is attached to them, and no human hand ever rings them. They become so sensitive to certain chords responding tones only when a gale of sufficient strength propagates it, takes the storm, and the heavy storm, to start these bells ringing.

There are bells hung in the heart of every one of us which never start to ring until we find ourselves engulfed in trouble. Probably there are more people reading these words who have not uttered a prayer in twenty years. But some day the hurricane may sweep down upon them. They will be confronted atheists indeed if in that hour they do not cry out shrilly and piteously to God.

The bells here described are singular and unusual. Bells which gladden the hearts of those who dwell on the countryside throughout the world are bells which ring regularly, calling men and women to the sanctuary of worship. The atheist is a rarity. So is the agnostic. And, although not so many as we would thinks not at all about God is nevertheless in the minority in every population. The great mass of people are, in some degree at least, believers in something. For them the bell ring regularly—amid the ordinary events of life.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

What most of us yearn for is freedom from care. Oh, if we only had enough money to clear off our debts—only enough to pay our way comfortably in the way of life to which we have grown accustomed. In the annual spring party at the office or the factory would drop down dead. If only our children would use a little common sense. If only this, and if only that.

To say that nobody is free of care would be an exaggeration. We have all encountered some care-free people in our time. But almost without exception, if you check back, they were not quite right in the head. The normal person is generally burdened with care. And the interesting thing is, that if the normal person succeeds in freeing himself from one care, a new one promptly takes its place. As Elijah the Tymanite said to Job—though Job usually gets the credit—man is born to trouble as the sparks fly upward. The fact is, we are always looking for trouble, and generally are not happy unless we find it. By nature, we are all trouble-shooters.

You might suppose that if a person is lucky enough and determined enough and clever enough to conquer his cares one by one, they will grow smaller and smaller as times goes on. But even that doesn't happen. Having mastered all the big troubles, such as money, family and business, a man develops such a sense of mastery and even of mastery, that the petty, peevish troubles which he can't master loom up out of all proportion into major worries. Thus we see elderly gents crowned with success in every field of endeavor going go into fits over the way their eggs are fried, or because their shoes hurt or because, on the spur of the moment, they can't get that choice compartment in the observation club car for a trip across Canada. The chances are, one of our most important glands or function unions there is care and worry to keep stirring it up.

Dr. Cole of Duke University Charges Canada is Controlled By Bureaucratic 'Politboro'

(Guelph Mercury)

Is there an "inner circle" of "experts" at Ottawa whose ingenuity and skill is such that they are able to shape policies for the entire country and to impose those policies upon the Canadian people?

Dr. Taylor Cole, of Duke University, whose recently published study, The Canadian Bureaucracy, provides an authoritative and up-to-date analysis of government and public administration in this country, says there is. After nearly a year in Ottawa conducting the research and investigation on which his findings rest, Dr. Cole is even able to name names.

"The outstanding leader of this group," says Dr. Cole, is Deputy Minister of Finance, Dr. Fred Clark", he writes, "was at the centre of a small coterie of deputy ministers and of permanent and temporary 'civil servants' and officials, mostly economists, who constituted the inner spring of the governmental machinery in Canada and largely determined its economic policies from 1939 to 1945. Included in this group from time to time were Bryce, Eaton, Deutsch and Sharp, now the Department of Finance; Rasminsky, Skelton and Beattie, now of the Bank of Canada; Mackenzie, now of the Department of Trade and Commerce, and others such as Robertson, Hopkins and Pickersgill. . . . These men met together socially and kept in frequent official contact in Ottawa, where contacts are easy to maintain. Their relationships permeated of frank discussions and differences of opinion where departmental outlooks were ignored. . . . Most of the members of this group might be classed as Keynesians in their economic views. They were consequently not averse to planning and to the extension of governmental controls when considered necessary. The views which they developed and which were originally advocated by Towers, and the family allowances system, first suggested by professor Clark", he writes, "was at the centre of a small coterie of deputy ministers and of permanent and temporary 'civil servants' and officials, mostly economists, who constituted the inner spring of the governmental machinery in Canada and largely determined its economic policies from 1939 to 1945. Included in this group from time to time were Bryce, Eaton, Deutsch and Sharp, now the Department of Finance; Rasminsky, Skelton and Beattie, now of the Bank of Canada; Mackenzie, now of the Department of Trade and Commerce, and others such as Robertson, Hopkins and Pickersgill. . . . These men met together socially and kept in frequent official contact in Ottawa, where contacts are easy to maintain. Their relationships permeated of frank discussions and differences of opinion where departmental outlooks were ignored. . . . Most of the members of this group might be classed as Keynesians in their economic views. They were consequently not averse to planning and to the extension of governmental controls when considered necessary. The views which they developed and which were originally advocated by Towers, and the family allowances system, first suggested by Clark, illustrate vital public policies which emanated from this source."

All of which causes thoughtful folk to ponder whether, even though their intentions are the best in the world, it is wise to accept without question a system in which national policies are dominated, not by parliament but by Ottawa's efficient and, according to Dr. Cole, Keynesian "Politboro".

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

CHAOS ON TAPE

The column today is sort of transcribed by this more convenient time.

This is all going to be enormously complicated—Grace! Shrill that door into the kids' room, will you?—and I'm not sure what's how it's going to work out. Not that door, for heaven's sake! The front door.

I am dictating this column into a dictaphone machine known as the Time-Master, just making it as I go along. When I've finished I will type it directly word for word, from what is known as the Memobelt. This is not a ladies' undergarment, but a plastic tape on which my voice is being recorded its very moment.

The machine is a new model which—Dear! You'll have to get the kids out of here! I simply can't try this experiment with them cra wling all over me. Now into kids go out and play, do you hear? —It is a new model and if it's experiment works it will save me considerable time and money.

I should explain, perhaps, that I am—No, Jill! You can play with the machine, Daddy's dictation is finished. No, you take Jenny and go out and make your garden. That's a good girl. I am holding a small microphone in my hand. The Time-Master, itself, a hand some looking plastic-and-nickel affair, is resting on a coffee table beside me. I am sitting on a chair. I meant when I said the column was being transcribed. You do?

Well, now, all this came about because a representative of the Dictaphone Corporation came into the Time-Master on trial. "... just to see what it can do in handling a boon this can be for a writing man," he said. I was so delighted to be called a writing man that I almost bought the machine on the spot.

The dictaphone man said that —What do you mean is it on? Of course, it's on. Look, honey-lamb, I wish you'd get over that idea that I'm a complete bust when it comes to anything mechanical. This thing is fool-proof. At least it would be if you'd all please go away and leave me alone!—man said that it was as easy to use as a telephone and that it was so immune to record thoughts just as they occur.

All that is very true. I often think thoughts that seem to me brilliant, or pretty good, anyway, and then forget all about them. If I had a hand - little machine like this by my side so that I could just talk them into it—Darling, no! Not Tell him I'll phone him back when I've finished here! Tell him to try dress rehearsal—where I had a brilliant idea. Better fix that last sentence up. No, not you, dear, I'm talking to the machine. . . .

The dictaphone man said that a great many modern writers have abandoned their typewriters in favor of the dictaphone because they find their thoughts flow more smoothly and, of course, they can think a good deal more rapidly in dictating. This is pretty important if you are being paid at so-much-a-word, I should think.

Of course, it will take some getting used to. I'm not sure that I, who does one word at a time, but the man — Oh, No Look, dear, you have interrupted me again. Don't now, that's all there is to it! Why is it that every time I sit down in this machine to do something I'm in with that infernal thing? Ten minutes, that's all! Just give me ten little minutes in which to work where was I? Oh yes, the man said he was going to present one to Eric Stanley Gardner to mention just one, have learned to dictate and, for example, that I might just dictate by column and then mail Mr. Memobelt to the office and have them type it out, but—all right! Vacuum! Let all the kids in! Let the dog in! I don't care anymore. And listen, if the man from the Dictaphone Company calls tell him to come and take back this machine. I told you she had to go to the bathroom!

REMANDED FOR JUDGMENT

Toronto, Nov. 19—(CP)—LAC. J. D. Jenkins, 17, was remanded Tuesday for judgment Dec. 28 on a charge of adopting a 15-year-old girl.

The girl testified that she and the youth, who police say is already married, lived more as "man and wife" than brother and sister since the next night in a tourist home.

The Canadian Press reported erroneously Tuesday that LAC. Jenkins was convicted of abduction and sentenced to two years.

SUITOR SAVES HER

Liege, Belgium, Nov. 19 (Reuters)—Lola Lambrecht quarrelled with her boy friend, apparently decided suicide was the only way out, and jumped from the window of her third-floor apartment.

But instead of meeting death, the landing broke the force of her startled suitor passing beneath the window on his way home.

A kiss ended the quarrel.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed Letters, Not More Than One Page, or 100 Words long, Pertaining to Personal Health and Hygiene, Not to Disease, Diagnosis or Treatment, Will be Answered by Dr. Brady if a Stamped, Self-Addressed Envelope is Enclosed.

PLEASE PASS THE VEGETABLES

Boiling robs vegetables of from 50 to 90 per cent of their vitamins and minerals and most of their flavor.

There ought to be a law.

Theoretically the idea of the dining out should convey pleasurable anticipation, but actually it is hard to suppress a shudder at the thought of the vegetables (and I don't mean mashed potato or limp French fried) even though you can count on getting delicious roast beef or excellent coffee.

I believe a great many children cultivate distaste or dislike of the vegetables simply because the vegetables are not properly cooked.

Several cooking methods are approved by the nation's top authority, Adelle Davis, author of the only cook book that has a place in my library, Let's Cook It Right, (Harcourt, Brace & Co.).

The general culinary crime is soaking, and boiling in water. By its worst, for boiling softens the texture of the food and so the minerals and vitamins are more readily extracted from the food and dissolved by the boiling water. When this cooking water is discarded, as by pouring it off, fly goes down the drain with it.

Scientific studies show that when vegetables are boiled or soaked for only four minutes 30 to 45 per cent of their mineral content and 73 per cent (three-fourths) of the sugars they contain pass into the water in which they are soaked or cooked.

To keep these nutritive losses at a minimum, Miss Davis makes these suggestions:

1. Use initial heating should be rapid, in order to destroy enzymes which in turn can destroy many vitamins.
2. To prevent loss of vitamin C avoid contact with oxygen by (a) leaving vegetables whole and (b) displacing the air in utensil with steam.
3. Cook vegetables the shortest possible time to develop tenderness.
4. Use every drop of water that touches the vegetable during cooking—in soup, gravy.
5. If any vegetable is to be cut, sliced or chopped first chill it.

Of all cooking methods Adelle Davis says steamed cooking is the best. The 70 to 85 per cent of water in all vegetables is enough to cook them, provided the heat is so controlled that no steam escapes. However, a tablespoonful or two of water should be put into the preheated utensil in order to displace air (oxygen) with steam.

Steaming in a pressure cooker is excellent, provided the cooking time is checked with step watch precision. Steaming without pressure is also excellent.

If equipment for waterless cooking or steaming is not available, vegetables may be cooked with little nutritive loss in the top of a double boiler or sauteed, that is, fried lightly in frying pan, using only enough fat to prevent sticking. Or baking and simmering in milk are both good methods, but, pleads Adelle Davis, please don't boil 'em; learn that method of cooking to the morgue.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Three in One

Our doctor gives half the shot in one arm, the other half in the other arm. Doesn't hypodermic giving babies three shots in one (to immunize against diphtheria, whooping and tetanus) hurt more than one shot? (Mrs. G. H.)

Answer — Physicians generally combine immunizing injections in a single dose, which may be repeated once or twice. I can't imagine why your doctor makes it so onerous.

Sour Milk

Is yogourt good for your health as they say it is? Can you make it like a laxative without habit formation? (Mrs. R. V. A.)

Answer — Yes, it does take like sour milk. If you like it, you probably will find it beneficial. Any buttermilk, sour milk, acidophilus milk or Bulgarian cultured milk. I believe it has no health giving or remedial virtues that plain milk, buttermilk or sour milk hasn't.

Tea Lesser Months

How many days is a woman pregnant? (Mrs. D. M.)

Answer — Ten lunar months, nine calendar months, 280 days, a week more or less. Send 25c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope for booklet Preparing For Maternity.

Folksy Letter Sent by Pearson To Constituents

Gore Bay, Ont., Nov. 19 (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson, who represents this Northern Ontario riding of Algoma East in the federal parliament, likes to let down his hair at times for his constituents.

For example, in a folksy letter to the editor in the current issue of the weekly Gore Bay Recorder "The Honorable Mike"—as he is known to his constituents—discloses:

1. Andrej Gromyko doesn't seem to have his heart in his work any more.

2. Princess Elizabeth, at the square dance at the Governor-General's residence in Ottawa, had to show him once or twice "what to and where to go."

3. There's a division of opinion at Ottawa about what should be done about the rising cost of living.

The minister wrote that the Japanese peace treaty conference at San Francisco was successful because precautions had been taken that Gromyko, the Soviet Union delegate and "my old opponent at Lake Success," would not obstruct proceeding unduly.

"More important was the fact, I think, that Gromyko didn't seem somehow to have his heart in his work, and really didn't put up much of a fight," the letter said.

Commenting on the manner in which the old age pensions bill had been approved by the Commons, the minister said: I wish we could be as unanimous about what should be done about the cost of living. But that would mean we had reached the millenium, and when we reach that era we won't have to worry about costs of any kind."

IT FAIL TO START

London, Nov. 19. (CP)—British motorists went back in memory to the turn of the century yesterday and chugged off on their annual "Old Crocks" run from London to Brighton, in a fleet of ancient autos. Seventeen of the 167 cars failed to start.

Campaign Ends Just Short Of Objective

With a total of $19,265, or an amount of 96 per cent of the minimum objective, the Red Feather Campaign came to an official close last ——, although contributions have continued to reach the Community Chest office up to a late hour this morning.

Officials are confident that business firms and the public generally will continue to send in donations next week which will send the total amount well over the $20,000 figures.

H. Homan Reports On Film Convention

The South Hastings Film Council met last Wednesday evening in the Carmel School.

Mr. Ron Ward, representative of N.F.B., opened meeting by showing the film "The Littlest Angel", which depicted the proper spirit of the Christmas season—the money value of the gift not so important as the love which goes with it.

The secretary reported $620 in the bank. He stated he had sent out 123 notices of the meeting.

Harvey Homan gave report of convention of Federated Film Councils of Eastern Ontario held in Cornwall on October 12-13. The highlight of the convention was the showing of a film on "Newfoundland". It was filmed for Imperial Oil and is 45 minutes long. To show the work involved in the filming it took eight days to get the sequence of whaling, which was only one and one-half minutes in showing.

It has been suggested that the federation purchase two religious films to add to library.

In January there will be a film workshop, sponsored by the three film councils, Belleville, Prince Edward and South Hastings. This workshop is for the purpose of showing effective utilization of films with actual demonstration.

In the business session, it was decided to purchase a small screen for the movie night. Next meeting will be in December at S.S. No. 22, Tyendinaga, the Mount Pleasant community with Mrs. Boldrick as discussion leader.

A practical picture "V for Volunteer" was then shown, which depicted how a community can work together for the salvation of the youth of the country and all, by volunteer work in spare time.

A colorful pictures on nature, "The Ruby-Throated Humming Bird", closed the meeting which was followed by refreshments and a social half hour.

News of Trenton Council Authorizes Vote On Community Centre Debenture, Bus Agreement

Trenton — (Special) — Besides casting ballots for mayor and aldermen, school trustees and public utilities members, rate-payers in Trenton will have the opportunity of expressing their opinion of two additional questions at the polls Monday municipal election.

The two questions to go before the electors are whether they are in favor of a franchise being granted to the Armstrong Bus Company to operate a bus line in the town, and whether they approve of the town raising $100,000 by debenture sale to assist in the construction of a new community centre.

At a special meeting of town council over the weekend, the Armstrong Bus Company was authorized to obtain a vote of the electors as to whether they wished a continuance of the service already being provided. At the present time the bus company is operating the bus line service only with the approval of council.

Agreement Outlined

The proposed agreement with the bus company would grant a franchise for five years, the town of Trenton to receive $100 per year from the bus company. Bus fare is three tickets for 25c.

All but two of the councillors were present for the meeting Absent were Councillors Don Sutherland and Vic Ryan.

No action was taken by council on a suggestion that instead of a set franchise fee, the bus company be asked to pay the town a percentage of its gross receipts on an audited statement.

The money by-law with respect to the proposed community centre to go before the electors reads as follows: "Are you in favor of the town of Trenton providing $100,000 by way of a 20-year debenture issue for a community centre after the community centre committee has raised $100,000 by government grants and private subscriptions?"

The community centre committee have estimated that the proposed community centre could be constructed for $250,000. The old arena site has been suggested as a possible location for the new proposed structure although additional property would have to be acquired.

Properties that would have to be acquired if the old arena site were chosen would be the Crosby Blacksmith Shop and the McInnes Lumber Yard property.

Otter Lake Club Fails to Bag Quota of Deer

Trenton (Special)—Deep snow prevented Otter Lake Hunt Club members from bagging their quota this year. Club member W. J. House reported conditions the worst since the club was organized 10 years ago. Otter Lake is 125 miles north of Trenton.

Heavy snow fell soon after the members reached the lake and after the first three days the hunters were forced to keep their dogs in camp. Snow in the bush was two feet deep according to Mr. House, bogging down the hounds and rendering them useless.

Nevertheless the seven members returned with five deer and a taste of real winter conditions.

Included in the club are V. Auger, G. Brown, K. Orr, W. W. Miller, F. H. Bowler, W. T. Shutt, Toronto and W. J. House.

STOCKINGS SEIZED

Trenton Industrial Survey, First Opposed by Couch, Ryan Now Rapped by Entire Council

Trenton.— (Special.)—Council has levelled severe criticism at Dominion Management Company, a firm of business engineers now preparing an industrial survey of the town.

Last summer after considerable hesitation, the industrial relations firm was employed at a cost of $2,000. They agreed to send field men into the town and gather the information they needed. They agreed to furnish 200 copies of the completed survey.

At the time Mayor Kenneth J. Couch was against making the commitment. Chairman of Finance V. J. Ryan protested vigorously against spending the money. While Mayor Couch was on his holidays he held up the survey by writing a personal letter asking the company to hold off until Mr. Couch returned.

It was while the chief magistrate was on holidays and councillor Ross Burtt was acting in him that council decided by a four-to-two vote that Dominion Management be hired. Earlier the firm's proposition had been considered and reconsidered seemingly without much success.

Councillors Donald Sutherland, Charles Allore, Claude Graham and Acting Mayor Ross Burtt voted "yea" for the expenditure while Councillors Norman Banfield and V. R. Ryan signified in the negative. And when Mr. Couch returned he again endeavored to persuade council to change its mind.

Sutherland Anxious

Councillor Burtt held that the majority of the people's representatives had spoken and any attempt to block their decision was strictly against the principles of democratic government. Councillor Graham favored the spending, maintaining that the town was in desperate need of new industries and it was worth giving the concern a chance when all other efforts had failed. Councillor Sutherland indicated that he was anxious to see the council try a new angle.

The council made no agreement with Dominion Management when they committed themselves to pay out $2,000. A resolution, effecting the hiring and a promise to provide the town with 200 copies of the completed survey, is all that exists between the town and the Industrial relations firm. Any other understanding between them was by word of mouth.

In October, Town Clerk O. W. Larry received two letters from Dominion Management asking him to supply them with information to complete the survey. Buy with royal visit details and pressing council matters, Mr. Larry laid the requests aside for attention when the pressure eased. In the meantime a management executive phoned Mr. Larry about the delay Mr. Larry in his conversation told the executive that he understood that the management company had agreed to gather their own information. A third letter complained about the town's lack of co-operation.

Larry Does Work

A councillor revealed that the town clerk had already supplied enough information to prepare 75 per cent of the survey.

Councillor Allore said he had not changed his attitude since voting for the survey but did not like the tone of the executive's third letter.

Councillor Ryan asked: "Do they have to do any of the work?" The town clerk advised council that the management company's men had spent not more than 36 hours in town gathering the information for the survey. Mr. Larry recalled that Mr. Ryan of the management firm told council a number of field men were around the town for two weeks running down the facts to put in the survey. Councillor Banfield wanted to know if the town had to make the survey and then give the printing job to somebody else?

Councillor Allore insited that the town get the value for the money. Mayor Couch said he hoped something would be salvaged from the wreckage. Councillor Burtt agreed with the mayor. "None of it is perfect," he said, "we did the best we could."

"Harsh Words"

"These might be harsh words," declared Mayor Couch, suggesting that a "No Salesmen Allowed" sign be placed on the inside door of the municipal office.

Councillor Sutherland who maintained he still figured the survey was good for the town asked if council had a contract with the Dominion Management. Clerk-treasurer Larry answered that council could tell townspeople.

A letter from Senator W. A. Fraser told council that the high board fence at the rear of the Lee property on the south side of Dundas Street had been pushed out of shape by garbage from the Boston Cafe being piled up against it. Mayor Couch said he was in perfect accord with Mr. Fraser's letter and supported any movement protecting the wharf area. Mr. Larry was instructed to have the sanitary inspector look at the fence on Saturday and have it straightened up.

Tenders are being called to tear down the wooden house on the firehall. When the requisition job is done bones will be dried by an electric heating apparatus.

Issues of modernizing the old bus terminal on King Street or replacing it with a ultra-modern terminal was laid over until the meeting at the end of the month.

Commandos Sent Flaming Cats Through Airfield

Cairo, Nov. 19 (AP) — The newspaper Al Ahram reported today that Egyptian underground commandos sent flaming cats racing through a British airport in the Suez Canal zone to touch off fires in several shops.

While the blazing cats ran through shops the paper said, the commandos then cut off the water supply. Other commandos slipped into a hangar and set fire to a plane during the excitement.

DRYOCOPUS PILEATUS

(Northern Pileated Woodpecker)

The Pileated Woodpecker is a startling bird. So spectacular is his appearance that he has long been a target for guns in the hands of thoughtless people. As a result he is becoming rare in many sections of Canada.

He should be protected. Besides being highly decorative and the largest Canadian woodpecker, the Pileated is extremely valuable. He destroys millions of wood insects and provides nesting sites for tree-dwelling ducks.

BCI Juniors Lose Title Game To Pt. Colborne

By DON ROSE

Bellerville Collegiate Juniors, 1951 Lake Shore League Junior "A" Champions dropped their final chance for Central Ontario Secondary School Association honors last Saturday when they were defeated by Port Colborne High School Juniors 21-8 at the latter's field. The local gridders won the L.S.L. championship by defeating Oshawa Collegiate the week before. Coached by Fred Bradley, assistant sports director at the Collegiate, the locals made a good showing at the Port but suffered a series of hard breaks. They honored the city of Belleville greatly by becoming the first team to win the L.S.L. league and to have the rights in C.O.S.S.A. honors in thirteen years.

The first quarter got under way with Belleville on the receiving end of the kick-off showing great form and making great gains. But it wasn't long until hard luck struck. Losses of 10, 25, 10, and 10 yards were suffered, all the ten minute mark of the quarter BCI showed their stuff by holding the Colborne squad on the BCI five-yard for three consecutive downs. They continued on even grounds until the Port clicked with their first major on a long run by Burba. The locals held the convert down. The quarter ended Port Colborne 6, Belleville 0.

Score Not Altered

The second started with a fine series of plays by the locals. After numerous gains through ground plays, the first of four forward passes clicked Baker to Meyers. The locals then scattered passes through off-tackles and holding and play continued up and down the field. The break, for the locals came midway in the quarter when Parsons intercepted a pass and ran 60 yards for the touch down. The T.D. was called back as the officials judged that the pass was caught behind the line of scrimmage.

The Port then took the limelight for a second time and advanced the ball to the Belleville 30 yard line. From this threatening position they pulled what was reported as their most successful play of the entire season, a faked kick. Ginther faked a kick, passed the ball behind his back to M. Vasko who tallied a second major on a long end run to the left. Convert clicked on a forward pass—Ginther to Grassie (11-0). The remainder of the quarter was scoreless.

Battle In Snow

Blinding wet snow commenced with the first whistle of the second half adding to the already existing poor conditions. A large hog hole decorated the centre of the field and mud holes were universal. Neither team, in spite of large gains, was able to score.

The fourth showed a definite change. A fumble behind the Belleville line at the five minute mark proved fatal. Campbell of the Port fell on the loose ball gaining a third major score for his team. Again the convert was blocked by the Collegiate boys. (16-0). Play continued at a somewhat fast pace with the locals gaining yards on ground plays.

From a threatening position Port Colborne got their final tally on a long run by M. Vasko. Attempted forward pass convert was incomplete (21-0).

From the kick-off B.C.I. marched down the field gaining first down after first down on terrific runs by Baker, Farmer, and Doig, until they reached the Port's 2 yard line.

A near disastrous fumble was made with only minutes to play. It seemed as though the collegiate squad had all the hard luck on the day until the Port took their first down. Then the Bellevillites got their first break of the day when their opponents fumbled the ball on their first down. Gerald Gove scooped up the loose ball and dived over the Colborne line for Belleville's only score. The convert kick went low and the game ended Port Colborne 21, Belleville 8.

Separate Trophy For Grid Pros

Sarnia, Ont., Nov. 19 — (CP)— William D. White, one of a group of Sarnia sportsmen who want to give the Grey Cup back to amateur competition, Saturday issued a statement through his solicitor. It said in part:

"I have no desire to interfere with the playing of the east-west finals for the pro football championship of Canada. However, I do not think the Grey Cup should be given to the winners of the game played on Nov. 24, but rather, a separate trophy should be designated for the winner of that game in the same manner that the Alexander Trophy was given to professional hockey teams whose status prevented them from competing for the Allan Cup . . .

JUNIOR HAWKS TONIGHT!

The Belleville Hockey Association Junior Hawks face the barrier tonight in their first appearance of the 1951-52 season and will be at full strength with the exception of Bobby Green, goalie and Pat Gilmour. Green was hurt Friday night when he suffered a serious jaw injury while Gilmour has been out for some time with a torn leg ligament. Hall will replace Gilmour while Don Barclay will start in the nets against Peterborough Triple Links, targets for the night.

Newcomers to the Hawks who will be showing their wares here for the first time are Bob Wilson, husky defenceman of North Bay; Hector Lalonde clever centreman from the same city; Hector Therrien, of Chapleau, speedy winger, George Jacklin also of North Bay while the last year's Rockets members include Duke Doran, Ray Carey, Billy Strahan, Peter Green, Hulle, Mason, Ted DeGray former Oshawa, Hall, Harry Brown and Stevens round out the squad.

The Juniors have been travelling at top speed the past few weeks and Coach "Red" Doran has been driving them hard perfecting plays and getting the squad into condition. The team fairly seems speed and as has been noted before, is the fastest squad to wear Junior Hawk livery here in some years. However, tonight will tell the story when the youngsters get their baptism of schedule fire. Peterborough is said to have a strong squad and tonight's tilt should be productive of some fast, exciting hockey.

TRENT VALLEY LOOP ORGANIZES

Arthur Duncan, popular president of the Trent Valley Hockey League was elected to another term of office at the annual held in Frankford yesterday. Other 1951-52 officials are, secretary, Dick Bridgman, Trenton; William Regan 1st vice president; Reg. Wardle, Belleville, second vice president; Frank Ogenshaw, Trent Bridge, third vice president.

Teams represented were Belleville, Peterborough Brintons, last year's champions; Stirling, Marmora, Norwood, Havelock, Trenton, Campbellford, Trenton RCAF, Lakefield, Campbellford There is a possibility that Wellington will enter a squad. According to reports both Belleville and Peterborough teams will be allowed to enter while Stirling and Campbellford might merge their league forces. Players, residence rules, etc., were discussed and some important business left to the new executive. The loop expects to open at the first of the year.

FINE EFFORT!

Gary Schreiber, fleet-footed backfielder of the St. Michaels College gridiron squad in the Ontario Catholic Conference galloped away with scoring honors for his second year in succession despite a severe leg injury. Suffering with torn knee ligaments from a previous game Gary was injected in his final football appearance against the Kitchener squad for about six minutes but he ripped off a 61-yard run for a touchdown. His injury prevented him from appearing in the Red Feather Football Tournament special game but the former Belleville athlete took points honors with 50 in four games. Adding three exhibition tilts he compiled the total of 76 points, just bad in any man's league. As soon as his leg is better. Gary intends trying out for the goalie job with the St. Mike's hockey "Buzzers".

NOT DISGRACED!

Both Belleville football representatives in the COSSA finals, Albert College and BCI juniors went down to defeat in their quest for their respective championships over the weekend. However the squads were far from disgraced and although defeated by more powerful squads turned in creditable performances. It was a long haul for both teams with the collegiate juniors going to Dunnville and the collegiate juniors going to Port Colborne. Both squads deserve a lot of credit for a splendid season and although they did not bring home any titular bacon they were worthy representatives of their schools and city. Better luck next year, fellas.

Stiff Last-Quarter Offensive Wraps Up Game for Riders; Meet Sarnia Imps Wednesday

Ottawa, Nov. 18—(CP)—Bring on the Saskatchewan Roughriders!

That was the happy chant heard in football circles today as this city let loose with a victorious war whoop for its own Riders, newly-crowned Big Four champions.

The Riders—Ottawa variety—wrapped up their first interprovincial title in three years on Saturday with a tense, last-quarter drive that knocked the leg-weary Hamilton Tiger-Cats out of the running with an 11-9 victory and a 22-18 bulge on the two-game total-points final series. Riders won the opener at Hamilton last Wednesday 17-7.

Ottawa now has a Wednesday afternoon date at Lansdowne Park with Sarnia Imperials for the eastern Canada title and the right to advance to the Grey Cup final against the western Canada champions. But football-happy fans here couldn't care less today about more than a tune-up for the Riders.

Sarnia Primed for Game

The Imperials, Ontario Rugby Football Union titleholders and the only senior all-Canadian club in the country apart from the colleges, are primed for this one. But they don't figure in anybody's books to give the Big Four champs too much of a fight.

The Ottawa-Hamilton final series was featured mainly by the all-round power of the Riders when the chips were down.

In the first game last Wednesday they uncorked a final six-minute drive that produced 16 points to turn a 7-1 deficit into a clear-cut 17-7 victory. They carried that bulge into Saturday's game, saw it shrink to two points at the half and then blew the game wide open with a last-quarter onslaught for the triumph.

Riders had to squirm for both victories and the manner in which they subdued the Tiger-Cats stamped them as a club hard to beat in anybody's league. Their bench strength was superb, their tackling was hard and their all-round effectiveness particularly in the second half—had the 17,-000 fans whooping it up.

Tiger-Cats, physically beaten after a tough two-game semi-final series with Toronto Argonauts, showed remarkable power in the Rider battles. They ran out of gas in the final 15 minutes of each game and that was the big factor in their downfall.

On Saturday, the Tiger-Cats went ahead 9-2 at the three-quarter mark on a single by Tom Worthington, a placement by Bob McDonald and a touchdown by quarter Bernie Custis. Bruce Cummings looked after the Ottawa scoring with a single in each of the first and third quarters.

Powerhouse in High Gear

The Rider powerhouse went into high gear on the signal calling of quarter Tom O'Malley who took to the air with a classy display of forward passing and mixed it up with off-tackle smashes and end plays. The Tiger-Cats folded under the steady pressure and the Riders were home free.

O'Malley tossed three passes that advanced the sticks from the Ottawa 54-yard line to the Hamilton one and then finished off the drive with a flead-first drive over a mass of players for a touchdown. Bob Cain, hard-hitting middle and placement kicker, added the extra point and then gave Riders the verdict with a 20-yard placement.

O'Malley's lockdown was set up by Ted McLarty who intercepted a Hamilton pass and scurried 45 yards past five of six tacklers to the Ottawa 34.

Vince Mazza, one of the best players on the field, pounded on the loose ball after an Ottawa kick was blocked in the second quarter to pave the way for Hamilton's major. The Tiger-Cats went over on four ground plays from the Ottawa 17.

Cleveland Browns Appear Headed For Pro Title

New York, Nov. 19—(AP)—The main interest in the National Football League today was in the national conference race because for all intents and purposes the American conference banting is all tied up by Cleveland Browns.

This will come as no surprise, of course, since the Browns have made a habit of winning titles since they've been in professional football. It's just that it took Paul Brown's Behemoths a little more time this year.

For a while, it looked as though the New York Giants, a young and aggressive club, would give Cleveland a battle. But the Texas were settled yesterday when Cleveland ground out a 30-6 victory over the Giants before a bumper crowd of 32,215—the largest turnout for a pro football game at the polo grounds since 1946.

The Browns now have a 7-1-0 record and the second place Giants 5-2-1. Each has four games left to play, but at the rate the Browns have been going they'll have to collapse completely to lose out.

In other games, Chicago Cardinals edged San Francisco 49ers, 27-21; Detroit defeated Philadelphia 28-10; Chicago Bears vanquished Green Bay 24-13; Los Angeles routed New York Yanks 45-21; and Washington trounced Philadelphia 22-7.

Badminton Tourney Won by Port Hope

Savitt Battles Way to Tennis Quarter Finals

Sydney, Nov. 19—(AP)—Dick Savitt of Orange, N.J. holder of the Wimbledon and Australian championships, battled his way into the quarter-finals of the New South Wales tennis tournament today with a hard-fought 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, 8-6 victory over Ken Rosewell of Australia.

The 19-year-old Rosewell, Australia's best junior player, had Savitt on the run during the first two sets with his steaming placements. But the veteran Savitt got his big game working and won down the young Aussie.

Savitt thus qualifies to meet Mervyn Rose, Australian Davis cupper, in the quarter-finals.

The crowd in White City Stadium was treated to one upset when Rose, the Aussie lefthander, surprised Lennart Bergelin, Swedish champion, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

Detroit Wings Increase Lead With 5-2 Win Over Rangers; Chicago Hawks Blank Leafs

(By The Canadian Press)

Detroit Red Wings, who have a habit of taking over the leadership in the National Hockey League early in the season and holding it until the final gun, today can boast of another record. They haven't lost a game away from home since the 1951-52 campaign started early in October.

They kept their slate clean last night with an easy 5-2 victory over the Rangers at New York, giving them a five-point edge over the second-place Toronto Maple Leafs who lost 1-0 at Chicago. Incidentally, the Leafs one was their first away from Toronto Gardens this season.

The Hawks capitalized on the victory, before a crowd of 12,327, to take over fifth position, one point up on the Hawks, who have won only five of their 15 games to date.

Bottom Teams Switch

Five N. H. L. games were played during the weekend and the results changed the bottom-place positions.

Leafs gained a point in their 1-1 tie at home with Boston Bruins Saturday — the fourth straight one-goal game for Joe Primeau's team. They haven't won a game since Oct. 27 when they beat the Hawks at Chicago 3-1.

The draw for the Bruins at Toronto's and 3-2 decision over the third-place Montreal Canadiens Sunday night at Boston left them in fourth place.

Canadiens were the greatest point-gainers of the weekend, following up their 3-2 Saturday victory over Rangers at Montreal with a 3-3 deadlock at Boston.

The Leaf-Hawk Sunday game was goaltender Harry Lumley's first shutout of the season and also marked the debut of Pete Conacher, son of the great Charlie and nephew of Lionel, and the kid made good. He assisted on the goal scored by Jim McFadden late in the second period.

Detroit made no mistakes against Rangers in its single two-goal game, Gordie Howe and Red Kelly each scored a couple and Marcel Pronovost finished it off with less than two minutes to go.

Rookie Wally Hergesheimer and Don Raleigh netted the New York markers.

Canadiens split the goals in their weekend action. Saturday it was Bert Olmstead, Maurice Richard and Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion and Sunday it was Geoffrion, Dick Gamble and Billy Reay.

Fleming Mackell scored Toronto's lone goal of the two nights at home. The veteran Milt Schmidt tied it up with less than 30 seconds to go.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

Saskatchewan Roughriders, Western Canada Football Champions, stopped off for almost an hour in Winnipeg last night on their way to Toronto and the annual Grey Cup battle with the eastern Canada champions.

The contingent included a Chinese cook to dish up food for Riders during their stay.

The Rider crew will reach Toronto early Tuesday morning. Two special train loads of Regina fans will arrive Friday.

In Toronto a soccer game broke up in a riot Saturday. It was so hot that one player jumped over two fences and sped off in an automobile to escape irate fans.

The trouble started before Earlscourt Legion and Toronto White Eagles had played six minutes of the first half in their city league game.

Eagle's left back, Charlie Lacoba, and Legion's halfback, Davey Calma, collided. The next thing the spectators saw was Lacoba sock apparently from a punch by Calma.

Legion officials claimed that Calma had slung because of a "dirty foul" by Lacoba. But the fans didn't let it go at that. They set after Calma.

Calma jumped the laner field fence, climbed the outer fence of the stadium and escaped in a passing automobile. Two other players were injured in the melee on the field behind him.

The second game of the series was called off.

An error in the transmission of American Hockey League referees assignments last night resulted in both Frank Udvari and Emerson (Red) Dunn reporting at Providence, R.I., last night for the Providence - Cincinnati game. Dunn was down to officiate in Indianapolis, where the start of the game was delayed until his absence was explained and linesman Harold Jackson assumed the referee's duties. Dunn was a spectator as the Reds and Mohawks battled to a 1-1 overtime tie.

Junior Ti-Cats Win Fourth Football Title

Edmonton, Nov. 19—(CP)—For the fourth straight year, Hamilton Tigers Cats are Canadian junior football champions.

Coach Fred Venles lads trounced the Edmonton Maple Leafs 22-1 Saturday on Clarke Stadium's ice covered gridiron as 6,000 fans watched.

After the game, Kent Phillips of Saskatoon presented Tiger Cats with the Reginald Leader-Post Trophy—Canada's "little Grey Cup."

Halfback Frankie Dilks scooted for three touchdowns for Hamilton and Ed Walker recovered a blocked kick to score another. Quarterback Joe Kozakowski booted one convert and Tiger Cats got their other point on a rouge.

Edmonton's lone point was scored when Kozakowski was stopped behind the Hamilton goal-line after receiving a kick from Syd Bercov of the Maple Leafs.

Hamilton tried 11 forwards and completed three for a net gain of 106 yards. Maple Leafs threw completed one and gained 119 yards. Tiger Cats intercepted five Edmonton passes while Edmonton intercepted two thrown by Hamilton.

The eastern champions who made 10 first downs, gained 180 yards rushing compared to 90 by Edmonton. Pete Shore's Leafs made nine first downs.

Venle's Tiger Cats used a two-platoon system—he changed the full team every 7½ minutes regardless of whether Hamilton was on the defence or offence while Edmonton switched teams for offensive and defensive play.

Using a single wing and "T" and spread, the Tiger Cats showed sharp formations on offensive plays and on the defensive they recovered one of Edmonton's fumbles and intercepted five forward.

However, the lopsided score didn't indicate the margin of play. Edmonton threatened but the Tiger Cats almost throughout.

Ottawa Riders Lose Two Players

Ottawa, Nov. 19—(CP)—Ottawa Rough Riders have lost Bruno Bitkowski for Wednesday's eastern Canada football final against Sarnia Imperials and there is a chance Bob Simpson may not play either.

Bitkowski, an outside wing who was chosen Big Four rookie of the year, suffered a sprained ankle in the second quarter of Saturday's game against Hamilton Tiger-Cats and did not return to the game which, Riders won 11-9. Officials hope he may get into action in the Grey cup final next Saturday if Riders get by Sarnia.

Simpson hit his left teammate's helmet while making a tackle early in the final quarter and suffered a bad shiner.

Ben Hogan Named Golfer-of-Year

Chicago, Nov. 19 (AP)—Probably surprising exactly nobody, Ben Hogan, the little guy with the magic touch, again has been named "golfer of the year."

The National Open champion got 164 votes, about 25 per cent of those in the Professional Golfers' Association annual poll of sports writers and broadcasters.

It was the third time in the poll's 24-year history that the award went to Hogan, who was followed by Lloyd Mangrum, Skip Alexander, Cary Middlecoff and Jim Ferrier, in that order.

Hogan previously won the honor in 1948 and 1950, missing in the 1949, in all probability, only because of a highway mishap that nearly took his life.

Bantam Ben finished only four of the five tourneys he started this year. In his first effort, the Phoenix Open, Hogan withdrew because of illness after leading the first round with a 63.

Next he appeared at Augusta, Ga., and won his first Masters crown. After finishing fourth in the Colonial Open, Ben captured the U.S. Open for the third time in four years. He closed shop for the season by winning the world championship of golf at Chicago's Tam O'Shanter.

Marlies Undefeated in 15 Starts; Tigers Trim Mercurys to Hold Lead

(By The Canadian Press)

Unless someone stops Toronto Marlboros soon, the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series here will be just a battle for second place.

In 15 tries, teams in the Junior A circuit have not been able to defeat Reg Hamilton's high-flying Dukes.

The latest to try, Windsor Spitfires, weren't even in the game as Marlboros won 11-0 before 4,163 fans at Maple Leaf Gardens Sunday afternoon. The second game of the Sunday twin-bill, between Toronto St. Michael's and Oshawa Generals, ended in a 1-1 deadlock.

Generals threw a scare into the Marlboros Saturday night, however, taking a 4-1 lead at the end of the second period in Oshawa. Marlboros rallied in the third period to tie the match and earned a 5-5 overtime tie to remain unbeaten.

Galt Loses 5-5

In other Saturday night games St. Catharines Teepees downed Guelph Biltmores 8-3, Waterloo Hurricanes beat Windsor 5-4 and St. Michael's defeated Galt Black Hawks 5-3.

In Senior A action Saturday night, Hamilton Tigers maintained their league lead by edging Owen Sound Mercurys 7-5, Sarnia Sailors blanked Stratford Indians 5-0 and Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen trounced Brantford Redmen 6-1.

Marlboro's No. 1 line of Danny Poland, Eric Nesterenko and Parker MacDonald led the winners, each clicking for two goals. Wally Maxwell also added a pair while singles went to Louis Bendo, Earl Balfour and Ron Ingram.

It was John Henderson's first shutout of the season.

Jim Logan's freakish goal, shot from behind the net and glancing in off goalie Bob Shropshire's pads, gave St. Michael's the draw and brought them into a third-place tie with Galt.

Defenceman Doug Moore hit for Oshawa's tally in the second period, giving the Generals a shortlived lead.

Poland fired two goals in the last minute of play in the third period to send Saturday night's Marlboro - Oshawa game into overtime. Maxwell also scored two with Nesterenko adding the fifth. Oshawa scorers were Bob Attersley, with two, Bob Holden, Herve Delorcy and Fred Eichel.

Ron Wallace's two goals and Murray Costello's three assists paced St. Michael's in Galt. Butch Hatchford, Ed Plata and Bill Dineen added others. Galt scorers were Ken Wharram and Tony Poeta.

Galt game marked the final appearance of Pete Conacher in a Galt uniform. The husky winger joined Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League Sunday.

Bob Mader and Paul Oliver each scored twice to give Hurricanes their second win in three starts for new coach Bun Cooke. Ilis Caron and Roger Maisonneuve blinked the light once each. Bob Brown scored a brace for the hapless Split with Ron Craven adding the other.

Cobourg Blanks Sarnia for Title

Cobourg, Nov. 19—(CP)—Cobourg Galloping Ghosts blanked Sarnia Wildcats 13-0 Saturday in a sudden death game for the intermediate B championship in the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

Tempers flared often during the game, played on a snowy field and in bitter cold. Due to an error in the time-keeping, seven minutes of time-out were recorded and this was added to the final quarter.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Nov. 19 (AP) — A committee of United States college presidents meets in Washington today to discuss the problem of athletics... just to get into the act, this author (who isn't president of anything) hereby offers a suggestion... It sounds like a cockeyed idea at first; it won't settle all the problems, but it seems to have possibilities... the idea briefly is this: Treat all major sports, especially football, as one course in the college curriculum.

A Few Answers

That suggestion, as we see it, automatically brings athletics under the control of the academic heads... Your head coach would become the head of one academic department, responsible to the president... How about time? Well, if an ordinary course calls for five hours a week for classroom and laboratory work, and each student preparing for classes, football could be allotted just as much without taking anything away from another course. And if the boys wanted to spend more of their free time learning more about the game, there's no objection. Of course, some extra steps would be necessary to handle the games, ticket sales, parking facilities, etc., could be under control, that shouldn't be too difficult... Then there's the matter of academic progress. Most organized sports, football in particular, are getting scientific. There's no more practical application of the principles of mass and momentum than in a running guard throwing a block on a charging tackle. You could call it applied physics with allowances for human variables and a bit of psychology thrown in. Anybody who can understand that has to be smart, and in a recognized course you'd have periodical examinations to show how much the lads were learning... Platoon system? Spring practice? ... Well, those exams would have to cover both offence and defence. And you teach math and psychology all year round, why not sports? A two or three-sport man might pick a basketball "elective" for the winter term and track for the spring. That would be up to him ...Okay, so you think its screwy? Give us a better plan.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

BY SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The value of your hand in bridge usually depends on what your partner has in that deal. If partner has a strong hand, a seemingly weak hand of yours may be strong help for him.

One of the strong defensive bids in bridge is a jump overcall. For instance, an opponent bids one heart and your partner bids two spades. Such a jump defensive bid in a new suit is a jump overcall.

A jump overcall promises a hand with a strong suit that is at least rebiddable. The hand contains a total of eight tricks in high cards and short cards.

It is not as strong a bid as an overcall in an opponent suit. But it is stronger than a double for a takeout. And, of course, it is stronger than a simple overcall.

Responses to a jump overcall are as follows: With less than two tricks, partner should pass; with two tricks or more, partner should bid. When partner bids, he follows T-A-N; takeout, assist, no-trump.

If the responding partner takes out in his suit, he not only admits having two tricks or more. He also admits having a biddable suit. Because any takeout promises a biddable suit.

If the responding partner assists, he not only admits having two tricks. He also admits having trump support. But his trump support need only be for a re-biddable suit.

You have this hand:

♠K 6 4 2
♥7 6 5
♣A 8

Suppose an opponent opens with a bid of one club and your own partner bids two hearts, a jump overcall. You have three tricks; two high cards and a short in clubs. So, you should bid.

You have no biddable suit for a takeout. But you have support for rebiddable hearts. Your response is an assist to three hearts.

For a partner who could not then go to four hearts, it should be hearts and flowers.

VARSITY WINS TITLE

Kingston, Nov. 19—(CP)—The University of Toronto intermediate football team Saturday captured the unofficial Canadian Intercollegiate Intermediate championship by defeating Queen's 12-6.

Queen's eastern conference champions, invited the western conference Toronto team to play off for the cup.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Day the Earth Stood Still", Twentieth Century-Fox's amazing new science-fiction thriller featuring Michael Rennie, Patricia Neal and Hugh Marlowe, will open Wednesday at the Capitol.

The production, first "A" treatment given a science-fiction theme by a major studio, narrates the weird and terrifying story of the arrival in Washington, D.C., of a strange space ship bearing two visitors from another planet. "Klaatu", the super-human gifted with special powers, and his giant robot, "Gort". Together they threaten earth with total destruction.

"The Day the Earth Stood Still" assumes that a civilization 5,000 years more advanced than ours has solved the problems of interplanetary space travel, the neutralization of electricity by remote control, the disintegration of objects by directed rays and the ability of robots to perform human tasks.

Produced Julian Blaustein and director Robert Wise carefully selected a special cast to bring the fantasy-drama to life. They felt that the role of "Klaatu" should be played by a better than actor not too familiar to American audiences and selected tall, dark-haired Michael Rennie, the British favorite who starred in "The 13th Letter" and "Adventure", as the Norman King in "The Black Rose".

As the war widow who understands the space visitor's motives and reveals to mankind his true mission, tall, curvaceous Patricia Neal was given the nod. Long an established Hollywood star, Patricia is making her Twentieth-Century Fox debut in "The Day The Earth Stood Still".

As an added feature, noted news commentators Drew Pearson, Gabriel Heatter, H. V. Kaltenborn and Elmer Davis appear as themselves reporting to the world the arrival of the strange space ship from another civilization.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 19 (AP)—Marilyn Monroe, the atomic blond, is the No. 1 cheesecake gal of Hollywood. She occupies the hallowed position held previously by Jane Russell, Rita Hayworth and Betty Grable.

Aside from her obvious attributes, Marilyn is a serious gal who reads philosophy as well as movie magazines. Asked if her art interfered with her dramatic ambitions, she said:

"I think cheesecake helps call attention to you. Then you can follow through and prove yourself."

Pays Off

After a year of minor roles, she is coming into her own. In "Clash by Night" she will get star billing along with Barbara Stanwyck, Paul Douglas and Robert Ryan.

Unlike some gals with dramatic leanings, Marilyn has no objection to cheesecake. In fact, she was disappointed when a national magazine ran a short story about her and featured a photo of her in a high-necked evening gown.

"They said they couldn't run cheesecake because it was a family magazine," she said. "Goodness, I don't think it would have hurt the bonnets to have had a little more exciting picture."

AT THE BELLE — Cary Grant and Jeanne Crain are co-starred in the smart new comedy romance, "People Will Talk," from 20th. Century-Fox which marks the latest joint effort of producer Darryl F. Zanuck and writer-director Joseph L. Mankiewicz. The film is continuing today and Tuesday.

WHY WE SAY

"TO CRY HAVOC".

. . . Forecasting rain When we use the expression that someone "cries havoc" today, we mean that they forecast ruin for themselves or others. Havoc was a medieval war cry which was used to order armies to pillage cities.

CLEAR "WASTE" AWAY AND SAVE THE DAY

SLUGGISH

Get rid of body wastes and see how quickly "dog" feelings give way to new elimination give way to sparkling pep and zest! These energy-robbing wastes accumulate not only from sluggishness of the alimentary canal, where your food digests—but also as a result of lazy kidney action. Millions of people all over the world have found Kruschen Salts to be a useful corrective, for such troubles. Why? Because Kruschen is both laxative and diuretic—it promotes healthy action in bowels and kidneys. Gently but thoroughly. Just a little Kruschen with your morning beverage when needed helps you keep thoroughly clean inside . . . "on top of the ball" all day, every day!

Drug Addicts Will be Helped

Vancouver, Nov. 17 — (CP) — Establishment of a modern institution in British Columbia for the treatment and rehabilitation of drug addicts was proposed last night by Attorney-General Gordon Wismer.

His proposals were unanimously endorsed at a conference attended by officials of modern institutions, business and professional organizations, penal institutions and authorities, and officials of the city, the judiciary, the R.C.M.P. and city police.

Object of the treatment centre would be to determine if a person's drug habit can be effected by scientific, medical and psychological approaches. Special training would be undertaken jointly by the federal and provincial governments.

Dr. Bert Howard Addresses Women Teachers' Association

Picton.—The annual fall banquet of the Women Teachers' Association of Prince Edward County, was held in the United Church, at Bloomfield, on Wednesday evening, and the ladies were joined for the occasion by the men teachers of the county.

Guests of honor were His Worship Mayor Harvey J. McFarland and Mrs. McFarland. A special tribute was paid for his generosity in chartering the special trains, so that the children of the county might visit Trenton, on the occasion of the visit of Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

Presentation Made

Mayor McFarland, who was prevented from accompanying the children to Trenton because of illness, was presented with an album of pictures of the trip, by the teachers and pupils of the county. The presentation was made by Mr. Carl Reid, who said that the trip not only gave the children a chance to become acquainted with the charm of Princess, but strengthened the bonds of loyalty to the British Commonwealth. Mr. Reid also thanked the Rotary Club, the Elks, the Legion, the Daughter of the Empire and the C.N.R. agent, Mr. Stonebridge, for their assistance in organizing the trip. Mrs. McFarland was presented with a corsage.

Guests Present

The president of the W.T.A. Association, Mrs. Hart, introduced the guests at the head table:

Mayor and Mrs. H. J. McFarland, Dr. Bert Howard, of Albert College, Belleville; P. S. Inspector A. F. Brown and Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Meda Hart, Miss Winnifred Wyeott, Miss Viola Valleau, Mrs. Kay Trumble, Miss Thelma Bird and Miss Hazel Stark.

Among the guests were Miss Helmer, president of the Business and Professional Women's Club, Mr. Bill McLean, representing the Legion; Mr. Stonebridge, Sheriff Herbert Colliver and Mrs. Colliver and Mr. Harry Hince, representing the Rotary Club and Mr. Pat Hodgson.

Musical selections during the evening were given by Miss Merle solos by Miss Merle Barker, accompanied by Mr. Bezeley; a vocal solo by Miss Irene Walters, accompanied by Miss Lois Dexase and a piano solo by Mr. John Walton.

Inspirational Message

Inspector Brown gave a message of inspiration to the teachers, saying that he would like to see every child and every teacher enjoy the finest schools, with the best equipment and ideal working conditions. But more important still, was the teacher. There is no substitute for a good, well-trained teacher. The success or failure of education depends on the teacher. As Marshal Foch said, "The human soul on fire is man's greatest weapon".

Mayor McFarland expressed the pleasure he had felt when reading the 700 or 800 letters he has received from pupils who journeyed to Trenton. He would have liked to have been with them. He felt that with the friends he has in the airforce, he could have made arrangements for the royal car to have been driven more slowly so that the princess would have particularly noticed the school children.

Mrs. Berna Bongard thanked the Business and Professional Women for taking the Grade 8 pupils of the county to Toronto to visit the museum.

It was moved by Eleanor Bongard and seconded by Kathryn Reed, that the fall conference be invited to meet in Picton next fall.

Guest Speaker

Miss Winnifred Wycott introduced the guest speaker, Dr. Bert Howard, principal of Albert College, who chose as his subject, "Discipline".

Dr. Howard congratulated the teachers and pupils on having such a good friend as Mr. McFarland, and was glad to see they appreciated him.

He said "discipline was the greatest problem parents and teachers have to face. This did not mean a dour-faced teacher, who caused pupils to tremble. Discipline was something bigger and higher than using authority to demand attention. You may wait 20 or 30 years before you see the fruits of your work but it is worth it. Keep on going to the end of the road. In your keeping is not only the destiny of the individual children, but the destiny of this country. You influence your personality to the pupil. A pupil is influenced 80 per cent by his teacher and only 20 per cent by outside influences."

Dr. Howard gave the following rules for teachers and parents to follow: Explain to a child why you punish him; show him your faith in him; praise and commend him when possible; work with the child; avoid a "do as I say" attitude but rise rather a "do as I do" attitude; make commands positive; never discipline a child when you are emotionally upset; know all the facts first and weigh them well; never threaten with a punishment you cannot or will not carry out; avoid unduly harsh penalties; the relationship between you and your pupil can be your richest experience now and in years to come.

Miss Marjorie Vance moved a vote of thanks to Dr. Howard for the fine address. Mrs. Carl Gaw, dinner thanked those who took part in the program and Mrs. Redner thanked the ladies of the W.A. for the fine dinner and welcome they had provided. Sheriff Colliver, president of the Rotary Club told the teachers that the Rotary Club will always be ready to help the teachers in special undertakings such as the trip to Trenton.

The Outsiders

By Jane Abbott

She hadn't come down to the noonday meal. Soon after it a sudden thunderstorm had blown up. When it cleared, he'd gone out to the garden. She had appeared in the door, a bag in each hand, a bus connected with the through train to Paris but the stop was a good mile away and the pension had no conveyance. She was going to walk the distance. . . .

She'd put the bags down as if she had to rally more strength before she set out and he'd stepped up to her for the first time.

"May I help you?"

She'd flung up her head, looked at him, her eyes cold and distant. "Thank you. I don't need your help." Then she had picked up the bags and gone on, her head still high.

He had gone himself, the next day, to Paris for the week before sailing for home. He remembered how that week, he had looked hard into the face of every redhaired girl he met, thinking it might belong to the girl of the pension, hoping it might.

Back home the episode had been crowded out of his mind. He was beginning his ministry at St. Stephen's. He met Elinor Grammyer. War broke in Europe.

But the girl must have been all this time in some corner of his subconscious—or why that jerk to his memory that afternoon on Spruce Hill when Eliza lifted her head and told him she did not need his help?

He threw back the bedcovers, but he sat for a moment on the edge of the bed, held by a dismaying thought. If Eliza had any glimmer of recognition of him as the American there at the pension, it would end his chances of knowing her better. And he wanted to know her very much better. . . He wasn't thinking of her as old Elisha's granddaughter now.

As he bathed he could get the smell of the earth he had turned the day before, smell last night's rain-in it. It was going to be a good growing day.

"And the earth brought forth grass, the herb yielding seed after its kind and the tree yielding fruit whose seed was in itself after his kind. . . ."

That, of course, really had to do with the soul, but men's souls and the earth weren't so different, he reflected, Half-dressed he went to the door to look with satisfaction over his small portion of the earth. It had "yielded" to him and "after its kind" taught him truths he had not comprehended in all the books he'd studied. Two simple truths, perhaps, to be put in books.

Each day he laid out work for the next. There was wood to be chopped this morning, potatoes to be put in the ground he had worked yesterday.

Driving to the mill the next morning, Eliza stopped her car outside the white picket gate of the Wilson house.

She was aware as she got out of the car, that she was doing exactly what the manager had asked her not to do, but her impulse was stronger than any compunctions, and she went on through the gate and up the path.

Her glance took in the neatness of the small house, its clean paint, its shining windows, the white ruffled curtains at the windows, the tidy yard around it, the returns slips in precise arrangement in the borders at each side of the path.

She knocked on the door and a woman's voice called "come-in."

But it wasn't Annie she found when she opened the door and went in. A taller woman, built more squarely than Annie, with thin white hair drawn back from protruding ears to a tight button at the top of her head. Her eyes sunk deep in the bones of her face, bored into Eliza as she answered Eliza's "good morning" with a laconic, "yes 'tis."

Eliza stopped just inside the door, "Is Mrs. Wilson—may I see Mrs. Wilson? I'm Eliza Forrestal."

The woman's expression did not alter. Nor did her voice. "She's at the mill."

"I thought, this morning. . . I stopped in to ask how Mr. Wilson is. . . ."

"You can ask him," said the woman and before Eliza could utter a protest, she turned and threw open a door leading into a bedroom. "It's the Forrestal girl."

Eliza had not expected to see or talk to Dave. But she could not avoid it for the woman had stepped aside and was waiting for her to go on into the bedroom.

Eliza said nervously, "good morning. "I'm so sorry, Mr. Wilson, that this has happened. If there is anything I can do. . . ."

She stopped, disconcerted by the hard dark glance the man was fixing on her.

"There isn't," he said shortly. A chair was near her and Eliza longed to catch hold of it. She had to say something. She spoke at random, not very steadily. "You'll get your wages, of course, and your doctor's bill will be paid and. . . Mr. Culbert is making a thorough investigation of the cause of the accident.

"He don't need to. He knew right enough the bester'd go, any day. I'd told him, plenty times."

Now Eliza did take hold of the chair. She said, a little weakly, "if that is so, there is— there must be compensation."

Dave thundered, "compensation! I want to work!" He lifted the injured hand, waved it.

The woman said quickly from the door, "now Dave, the doctor told you to keep that quiet!"

Eliza retreated to the door. "Will you tell Mrs. Wilson that I stopped in?" She spoke to the woman. She did not speak or look at Dave again. "If it will help her, I'll send Hespeth down."

"We'll get along. I'm Zanie Matthews from next door, and I can run in and do for Dave between my own chores, while Annie's at the mill."

"Please tell Mrs. Wilson —if there's anything. . ." said Eliza again and went out of the door.

Zanie Matthews. Probably the wife of the old man who had told her that the mill was no place for her to be. They all thought that. They were united, even to this old woman in their resentment of her.

Except Annie Wilson. . . Annie had walked up to the house to tell her she was glad she had come!

George Culbert was not in his office when Eliza stopped at it a door and she went on to her grandfather's.

She was thinking of Dave Wilson's thrust at the manager; last night it had been John Streeter and Chris Cameron and now it was one of the mill men. . . .

George Culbert opened the door, came in breezily.

"Good morning. And you're as fresh as the morning, I see, even after yesterday's dissipation! Hope you slept well!"

"Have you found out what caused the accident?"

He sat down on a corner of the desk. "My dear girl, didn't you promise to let me do the worrying about that? You don't found out. It didn't take me long. As I suspected it was the fellow's own carelessness.

"Then—there wasn't anything wrong with the machines?"

The manager's smile twitched a very little. "How what gave you that idea? Oh, I remember, Cameron said something at the table, didn't he? And we have he know about the mill? He's never put a foot inside the gate, to my knowledge. He's the sort who likes to throw his weight around."

Eliza said quickly, "it wasn't what he said. It was . . ." Her face reddened a little. "I saw Dave Wilson this morning. He said that you knew the machine might break down—go any day, was what he said."

"The liar," exploded from the manager's lips. Then at once he got control of himself, assumed a look of amused patience. "That's what I've been trying to get across to you, Eliza— what sort these men are. Of course he'd try to shift the blame on me! And putting it on me is putting it on you, too, As you said last night, you own the mill. Now maybe you understand why I didn't want you to go and see the fellow. I hope you don't hand out a lot of sympathy."

A refusal to the effect that the giving of her sympathy was quite her own affair, arose to Eliza's lips. But she did not make it; she said instead, remembering the look Dave had given her "I didn't have a lot—only that one Dave Wilson didn't want my sympathy."

George Culbert laughed. "You have learned something, maybe. You'll listen to me next time. Now what I came in for,—did you read that letter I took up to you last night from the Bradley Fellows?"

Eliza flushed again. She had not read it.

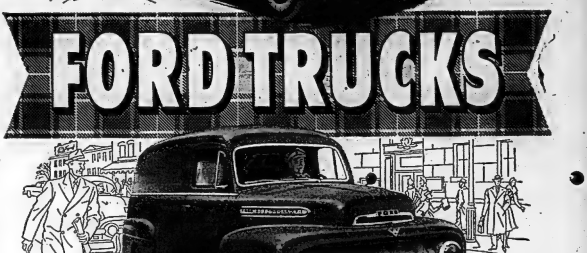
"We have to write something in answer to it. My suggestion is that we get together with them, and find out what there is to it. That is, if you're interested."

Eliza did not know enough about it to be interested, this as in everything else she must depend on this man's judgment.

She asked, "just how much of the land do they want to buy?"

"Everything from the Notch to the north to the south end of the valley. They'll dam the river and you'll see a pretty lake from your front windows."

She stared at him blankly. "You mean—the mill would be gone?"



The mill'd be at the bottom of your pretty lake." When Eliza made a quick sound of protest he dropped his jocular manner. "See here, my dear, you've got to be a realist. Anyone but your grandfather'd have closed this picayune mill down several years back. There hasn't been any profit to speak of for months. That bester breaking down'll stop work now for a time and it'll cost a lot more than it's worth to get to running again. You're throwing away your money—that's what it amounts to. I'd rather see you liquidate this plant here and invest what you can get for it in something that'll bring you a better return. These Bendley people may make you a good offer; they're pretty keen on getting their hands on this particular spot. And if we play along with them we may make a pretty deal."

Top-Level Switch In Red Truce Aims Dims Allied Hopes

Peiping Charges Allies With Wholesale Killings

Tokyo, Nov. 20. (AP)— An abrupt top-level switch in communist truce aims and charges of atrocities today dimmed hopes for an end to Korean fighting before Christmas.

Official word broadcast accused the Allies of killing 17,000 prisoners of war, killing or wounding 14,500 North Korean civilians, and shipping out 1,000 reds for atomic experiments.

United Nations spokesmen called the human atom bomb test story "ridiculous" and said they made no immediate comment on other charges.

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's headquarters said Tuesday "there is considerable evidence" the reds have killed about 6,000 American prisoners of war.

Korea Situation Clears

The general headquarters statement supported a recent report by Lt.-Col. William H. Hanley, head of the U.S. Eighth Army's war crimes section. Hanley's report presumably precipitated the red atrocity charges.

Headquarters said finding of only 226 American killed in atrocities have been recovered. However, it said, there was evidence "to justify a presumption of death by atrocity of a large number" of the 10,656 Americans listed as missing in action.

Almost simultaneously with the atrocity charges, Chinese and North Korean Foreign Ministers virtually rejected the 5-point Korean armistice proposal laid down by Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky of Russia before the United Nation's Assembly in Paris Nov. 8 (Sth).

Allied truce negotiators already have rejected all four points. If they should come up in the Korean truce tent in Korea, a U. N. spokesman said, they will receive "an immediate and unmistakable reply." That inferred the answer would be negative.

The communists have promised to reply Wednesday morning to the newest U. N. truce plan aimed at a Korean armistice within 30 days.

May Reject Plan

Views aired by red radios in Peiping and Pyongyang suggested the communist negotiators may reject the plan. At the U.N. command's daily briefing in Korea it was speculated the communists might come in with a new plan of their own—revision to the all-or-lied proposal that would lead to lengthy argument.

The Allied plan, advanced Saturday, would fix a tentative ceasefire line near the present battle front and call for a 30-day armistice period.

Even if the reds accept, Ridgway said, "there will be no cessation or slowdown in our combat operations in Korea."

There was a blast in the Peiping and Pyongyang broadcasts that the red atrocity charges would necessarily result in a Panmunjon truce talks. Allied charges of atrocities have not been mentioned in armistice negotiations.

But North Korean Foreign Minister Pak Ong Wong messaged the U. N. General Assembly's Security Council calling Hanley's atrocity report a "slander and plot."

Red Chine's Peiping radio admitted some Allied had died in red prison camps from injuries or disease. It charged Hanley's report "a thoroughly absurd lie."

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Nov. 20—(CP)—Synopsis: The weather Monday night was generally similar to that of the past. The lowest temperature in northern Ontario was 12 below at White River and in southern Ontario it was 11 above at Muskoka and 14 in London. There will be a warning trend in temperature in northern Ontario today which will reach the southern part of the province on Wednesday.

The unseasonably salubrity in the vicinity of Georgian Bay and Lake Huron is gradually tapering off. The only appreciable snow reported during the day has been in the Kenora Peninsula.

Judge Plouffe Will Conduct Investigation

North Bay, Nov. 20 (CP) Judge J. A. S. Plouffe will conduct a judicial investigation into charges that some aldermen have misconducted city business.

The charges were made some time ago by Ald. Merle Dickerson, who said commissions had been paid to aldermen by persons contracting and other firms. Last night Ald. Dickerson repeated that charge at a council meeting.

Provincial statutes specify that if such allegations are made, a council may apply to a district judge for an investigation. The statutes specify that in the investigation, the judge shall have all the powers conferred by the Public Commissioners Act.

Churchill Plays Gallant Role At Reception

London, Nov. 20 — (CP) — Prime Minister Winston Churchill flanked by two young and pretty princesses, played to the British public yesterday at London's reception for Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh.

Princess Elizabeth, a maple leaf brooch of diamonds against her olive green dress, sat on one side of the prime minister and Princess Margaret, in cerise, on the other.

Their chairs were at least a foot apart but each of the sisters, throwing royal restraint to the winds, leaned across in turn to talk animatedly to Churchill, who appeared to be at the top of his form.

Later in his speech, Churchill acknowledged his happy position by saying:

"If all the talks which fall upon a prime minister were as agreeable and inspiring as this, his responsibility for this particular office would be even less exercised than it is at present."

In proposing a toast to the royal couple, Churchill bowed low to Elizabeth, then rose and clinked glasses with her, smiling broadly.

ADVANCE PARTY HOME

Toronto, Nov. 20 (CP) — Seventeen members of the advance party which went to Korea ahead of the Princess Patricia's arrived in Toronto today.

All were members of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Service Corps. They, first job was to prepare a reception for the Canadian 25th Infantry Brigade.

Glorious Gloucestershire Battalion On Way Home After Year of Service

Pusan, Korea, Nov. 20 (AP) — The glorious Gloucestershire Battalion, all that was left of it, left today for Britain and Christmas after more than a year of service in the Korean War.

The 750-man force was hardly the same one that landed here Nov. 29, 1950.

Of those returning, only 15 members of the force of April's murderous battle of the Imjin, when the Gloucesters were trapped and almost wiped out in a hopeless two-day stand.

The rest of the original 600 officers and men . . . save for a few evacuees and wounded— are dead or missing.

Most of the officers and men who filled the battalion's ranks today are replacements poured in from Japan after the disaster of the Imjin fight. By special order of the Gloucesters they wear the blue-and-gold citation badge.

reorganized and fought through the bloody fall offensive that carried the Allies back across the Imjin and deep into red build-up areas.

As a farewell, Maj.-Gen. A. F. H. Cassels, commander of the 1st Commonwealth Division, sent the Gloucesters a final message:

"Your regiment, which already had a fine reputation, has won a reputation for valor and skill that you have done in Korea and we and the people at home are very grateful to you for that."

The Gloucesters also carried with them the American Distinguished Unit citation which was conferred on the battalion by order of President Truman after the Imjin fight. By special order of Maj.-Gen. Cassels, Gloucesters may wear the blue-and-gold citation badge.

GOVT. HOUSING POLICIES UNDER BRISK FIRE

Promises Torn to Shreds Says the Opposition

Ottawa, Nov. 20 (CP) —Government housing policies came under brisk fire in the Commons last night from Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto, Eglinton).

He pointed to a 46-percent drop in house construction started in September — the fifth consecutive month — and blamed it on government anti-inflationary policies which he charged were "tight money" and anti-house-building measures.

He criticized the government for not lending a previously-enacted $75,000,000 to extend an additional loan of one-sixth of building costs to private home-builders and said it thus had been "led to defeat" its promise in the 1949 general election campaign to stimulate home construction.

Mr. Fleming clashed with Wilfrid Mallett (Conservative) when he suggested that the government had made a "hopeless botch" of the building of the Prime Minister's residence. More money, he said, had gone into the construction of one house.

Mr. Fournier, the minister responsible for the house, said the land had cost $140,000, the building itself $284,329, landscaping $58,976 and furnishing $108,877.

He asked whether Mr. Fleming was not proud that Canada's first citizen was to have an official residence and whether Mr. Fleming wanted the Prime Minister to pay for those furnishings out of his own pockets.

Wants Loans to Farmers

Mr. Fleming was one of a number of speakers joining in the continuing Throne-Speech debate.

E. D. Fulton (PC-Kamloops) suggested Canada must increase her real wealth, through development of natural resources, if she is to continue to bear the cost of trade expansion for defence and social security.

Robert Fair (SC-Battle River) asked the government to loan money to prairie farmers who cannot harvest their crops each year because of weather conditions.

H. H. W. Beyerstein (SC-Camrose) suggested the cropless farmers should receive direct compensation in the same way that assistance was given to the flood victims of the great floods at Winnipeg and the fires at Matheson and Cobalt, Ont.

Armand Dumas (L-Villeneuve) urged the government to continue its policy of assistance to gold mines through 1952.

Augustus Alkenbrack (Charlevoix) felt domestic measures to fight inflation were of little value unless there was international policy which should be tackled on that level.

Arthur Masse (Ind. L-Kamouraska) proposed that the government purchase the patent rights and spread between what the farmer gets for his product and what consumers have to pay. The farmer was not getting the proper fit.

Leaders Make Final Radio Appeals in Thursday's Ontario General Election Campaign

(By The Canadian Press)

With the campaign in Thursday's Ontario general election swiftly drawing to a close, Premier Frost last night invaded Liberal leader Farquhar Oliver's home riding of Ontario and in an Oshawa speech attacked the Liberal party.

Mr. Thomson, speaking 30 miles away at Uxbridge, scoffed at claims of a split between the federal and provincial Liberal parties and said he had the blessing of his "close friend," Prime Minister St. Laurent, in his campaign.

E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario C. C. F. leader, said in Windsor that a vote for the Liberals was a vote for continuance of the present provincial government's anti-labor policies.

Mr. Frost, who yesterday tour-ed the home riding of Victoria and visited several factories in Lindsay, said in his Oshawa speech that the Liberal administration which the Progressive Conservatives succeeded in 1943 was "reactionary"— excerpt for former Attorney-General Gordon Conant of Oshawa, who was "hampered by reactionaries."

The Liberal party had split in 1943 over the issue of recognizing the principle of collective bargaining in labor legislation. The present government's "great program and great series of accomplishments" had been made difficult by the split, he said in the preceding Liberal administration.

The premier said his administration has a balanced budget, labor.

Mr. Thomson, speaking at Uxbridge in the Muskoka-Ontario riding in which Provincial Secretary Welsh seeks re-election, said:

No Split Says Thomson

"Those who say there is a split between the federal and the provincial Liberal parties do not tell the truth. I have the blessing of the prime minister. I can deal with Louis St. Laurent because he is one of my closest friends. And I can deal with Health Minister Martin because he graduated with me at Osgoode Hall. Yet some people say Premier Frost can't get on with Ottawa better than I can."

Mr. Thomson said the Liberal party's committee rooms in the Toronto area and has three speeches scheduled for Toronto tonight. Mr. Thomson speaks in Cobourg and Port Hope. Mr. Jolliffe campaigns in the York Centre Hall, Yet some people say Premier Frost can't get on with Ottawa better than I can."

Leaves For Ottawa

Ferdinand Demara Sr., a motion picture projectionist, left Canada since last night for Ottawa where he wanted to give authorities first-hand knowledge of his son "so he might be straightened out."

He says said Demara's wife conduct was fraudulent entry and he will be discharged in "due course." He is at present at Esquimalt, B.C.

He was brought back under naval escort from Britain to Halifax by air from the Korean war theatre last Tuesday. He was lodged in the H.M.C.S. Magnificent hospital, seeing no one but naval personnel.

The hoax was brought to light a month ago through Demara's wife's confession to her lawyer dealing with his surgery and identifying him as Dr. Joseph Cyr of Edmundston. Dr. Cyr now is practising at Grand Falls, N.B. He reported to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police that his certification documents had disappeared.

Interesting Letters

The navy said Canadian immigration authorities are investigating the circumstances of Demara's entry into Canada.

He joined the R.C.N. in March, 1951, using the birth certificate and medical credentials of Dr. Cyr. Boyd would not say how it came into the hands of Demara but said it was ascertained, it is known that he had served in the United States navy on medical duties," the navy said.

Vancouver Host To Exiled Crew Of Chinese Ship

Vancouver, (CP)—A Chinese ship with a crew of 38 "men without a country" arrived in Vancouver recently.

Capt. Chang Ta Hai Lieu, the first Chinese ship to enter the Port of Vancouver since the communists took over the country. She flies the Nationalist flag.

The trim 10,000 tonner is one of a score operated by Canadian Pacific Overseas Corporation, an 80-year-old firm, now with its headquarters in Taipeh, Formosa.

The ship's crew has been sent home on the mainland for more than two years.

The only contact now with families and loved ones is by letters smuggled out of the country. Any hint of how they are transmitted could lead to death or imprisonment for the crewmen.

And the members of the crew don't know when they will see their homes again.

"No one knows for sure what they would do if they go back to Tsun, second officer of the ship," he said. "Some. It will be many years before we see our homeland again, maybe never."

WAS NOT DROWNED

Woodstock, Nov. 20 — (CP) post mortem on the body of Leo Edward Burns, 20 — killed when a car fell into 15 feet of water — showed today Burns was not drowned but choked to death on a wad of chewing gum.

Police have charged the driver, William McDonald, with reckless driving and ordered him to appear in court tomorrow.

McDonald climbed through the shattered windshield and escaped. He made several attempts to rescue Burns.

Two Major Foes Of Britain's Policy In East Meet

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 20. (AP)— Two major foes of Britain's policy in the Middle East—Iran's Premier Mohammed Mossadegh and Prime Minister Mustapha El Nahas Pasha of Egypt—met today for the first time.

Tens of thousands of Egyptians paraded with anti-British and anti-American slogans between the aged Iranian, stopping here for a four-day official visit after a month in the United States.

Mossadegh's government already has nationalized Britain's oil out of Iran. Nahas Pasha's regime has ordered Britain out of the Suez Canal and the Sudan, but Britain's troops are still hold military control of both.

Crowds at Farouk airport shouted "Long live Iran" and "Down with British" as Mossadegh arrived.

Other sign-carrying thousands lined the route from El Abdin palace, where Mossadegh was received by King Farouk.

The two premiers held their first meeting later at the Middle East Treaty Organization headquarters place for travellers—Shepheards Hotel. Mossadegh and Nahas Pasha embraced and "kissed as they were introduced.

Mossadegh, during a month's stay in New York and Washington, has conducted a successful fight to block United Nations' action on its oil dispute with Britain. He hailed at length with U.S. officials about the oil wrangle and financial aid to ease Iran's economic crisis.

Political and press circles in Tehran, Mossadegh's capital, hinted the ailing premier will discuss formation of a Middle-East Mediterranean independent of both the west and Russia.

NAVY SURGEON TO BE DISCHARGED FOR MISCONDUCT

R. C. N. Admits Man Is an Imposter

Ottawa, Nov. 20—(CP) — The Royal Canadian Navy admits it has been hoaxed—spectacularly.

In a 150-word statement it announced last night that the man who was acclaimed for a series of "brilliant" operations while serving aboard the Canadian destroyer Cayuga is being discharged for misconduct.

The navy said the man is Ferdinand Demara Jr., 29, formerly of Lawrence, Mass., and not Dr. Joseph Cyr of Edmundston, N.B., as he had claimed to be and as he may had believed.

In his duties as surgeon lieutenant aboard the Cayuga, Demara performed a number of amputations and removed a bullet from near the heart in operations on South Koreans. One of the successful operations was described by Demara as a "hundred-to-one chance."

"In Lawrence Mass. last night the young man's father said as far as he knew the only experience his son had in medicine was as an attendant in a Massachusetts eye and ear infirmary in Boston.

He said that as a boy his son had been "crazy" about hospitals. "Things came easily to him and he read constantly. There was nothing lying in him. He always wanted to help others—especially those who were suffering. I have no doubt that's what led him to the trouble he is in."

Leaves For Ottawa

Ferdinand Demara Sr., a motion picture projectionist, left Canada since last night for Ottawa where he wanted to give authorities first-hand knowledge of his son "so he might be straightened out."

The navy said Demara's wife conduct was fraudulent entry and he will be discharged in "due course." He is at present at Esquimalt, B.C.

He was brought back under naval escort from Britain to Halifax by air from the Korean war theatre last Tuesday. He was lodged in the H.M.C.S. Magnificent hospital, seeing no one but naval personnel.

The hoax was brought to light a month ago through Demara's wife's confession to her lawyer dealing with his surgery and identifying him as Dr. Joseph Cyr of Edmundston. Dr. Cyr now is practising at Grand Falls, N.B. He reported to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police that his certification documents had disappeared.

Interesting Letters

The navy said Canadian immigration authorities are investigating the circumstances of Demara's entry into Canada.

He joined the R.C.N. in March, 1951, using the birth certificate and medical credentials of Dr. Cyr. Boyd would not say how it came into the hands of Demara but said it was ascertained, it is known that he had served in the United States navy on medical duties," the navy said.

129,885 Immigrants Show Increase Of 75,635 Over Same Period in 1950

Ottawa, Nov. 20—(CP)—Can.-9,649 to British Columbia, 9,078 to Alberta, 5,862 to Manitoba, 2,948 to Saskatchewan, 573 to Nova Scotia, 180 to Prince Edward Island, 163 to Newfoundland and 21 to the Yukon and North West Territories, and 1,036 to New Brunswick.

Immigration in September totalled 13,228, down somewhat from previous months. Highest month in the nine-month period was May, when 20,254 immigrants came to Canada.

Immigration Minister Harris has predicted that the immigrant total will reach 150,000 by the end of the year. The flow has been boosted this year through a government-sponsored assisted-passage plan by which the immigrant puts up a minimum of $30 with the remainder of the passage cost borne by the government.

Carry Out Robbery With Precision Of Football Team

Staff and Customers Forced To Lie on Floor by Bandits

Toronto, Nov. 20 (CP)—Five men today robbed a west end branch of the Bank of Toronto of more than $4,000. Witnesses said they carried out the robbery with "football-team precision."

The bank staff and four men and women customers were ordered to lie on the floor while the men scooped bills into two shopping bags.

Then the five robbers ran from the bank and disappeared.

The holdup was over in 10 minutes.

The bank is at Roncesvalles and Dundas Streets in the west end.

Police said they did not know definitely whether the bandits used a car in their escape.

Eyewitnesses said each of the bandits seemed to be working from "prearranged instructions and knew exactly what he was supposed to do.

Two Stayed Outside

Bank employees said three men entered the bank and two others stayed outside. One of the three bandits tried to hide his features.

"He seemed to be the guy who was giving the orders but he didn't want any of us to see his face," a bank employee said.

Another employee said the men "worked like a football team after it has been given its signal by the quarterback."

Shoppers and residents around the bank knew nothing of the holdup until police arrived.

Two bandits leaped over the counter and scooped money into two shopping bags. The third kept the employees and customers covered.

The bank is a short distance north of the Wright and Ronces-valles branches of the Canadian Bank of Commerce which was robbed in last year in another example of team precision.

Leonard Jackson, one of the suspects in the last robbery, was one of three men who escaped from the Don Jail Nov. 4.

Another of the escapees was Edwin Boyd, 37, whom police regarded as a "master criminal." Boyd was arrested Oct. 16 shortly after a $12,000 bank robbery in a north end bank.

Police charged him with seven Toronto-area bank holdups in the last two years. One of the banks was held up twice. A total of more than $30,000 was taken in the holdups.

Description Broadcast

After today's robbery, Boyd's description was broadcast to all police cars.

Police cruisers swarmed roads in nearby High Park, in case the robbers changed cars or clothes along one of its wooded roads.

Police said they had no clues from

Teacher Gives Alarm Cheese Factory Afire

The Beulah cheese factory at Ivanhoe, 18 miles south of Belleville, was saved from possible destruction by fire late Monday afternoon when the blaze started in a curing room partition, was noticed by the school teacher.

Miss Margaret Wright, returning home from school, saw the flames in the curing room as she passed the factory and gave the alarm.

Cheese maker Ross Lain and neighbors formed a bucket of water and fire extinguishers and held the blaze until the fire department from Belleville arrived. The siding was then ripped off and the flames extinguished.

Mr. Arthur Wood, cheese factory president, said the fire apparently started from a steam pipe leading through a curing room partition. Monday was the last day for factory operations this year. Damage was held to approximately $200.

Henry N. Becker Honored By Civic Bodies

Tribute to Mr. H. N. Becker, local Bank of Montreal manager, who has been moved to London, was paid Monday afternoon by members of city council, parks board and the local recreation commission when they tendered him a parcenation at the conclusion of the afternoon's council meeting.

The presentation of a fine leather Gladstone bag was made by Mayor R. T. Potter who said Mr. Becker had done more for Belleville in the past few years than almost any man in the city.

"Mr. Becker has not only been the mark, but the life of the Belleville Parks Board and the Recreation Commission," he said. "His genial nature and ready Becker had taken an active interest in the Boy Scout Legion and said he would be missed very much when he left the city. In presenting the luggage to Mr. Becker the mayor asked that when it was used he "think of us".

No Exception to Rule

In accepting the gift Mr. Becker assured that none was needed to make him think of Belleville, as he cannot say how much I have enjoyed my stay in Belleville," he said. "You meet great people everywhere and this city has been no exception."

Mr. Becker paid tribute to the committee members on the parks board and on the recreation commission. "You cannot do much without good committee workers," he said.

Touching on Belleville's recent growth Mr. Becker expressed the opinion that a gradual growth such as had been the case in this city was much better than a rapid growth based on one large industry. He said Belleville was fortunate in having a varied industry.

Sees Great Future

Mr. Becker saw a great future for Belleville's playgrounds and parks system. Supervised playgrounds were necessary for if a youngster was kept busy he would stay out of mischief.

"In two years Belleville's playgrounds have been made second to none, and better things are planned for the city's park system," he said.

He envisioned Zwick's Island and Victoria Park as spots of great beauty that would be an attraction for tourists. Facilities for yachtsmen and tourists would be installed, and tourists and yachtsmen would be thus encouraged to stop over in the city.

Members of the Parks Board and Recreation Commission were present at the city hall for the presentation.

The additional grant, Mr. Frost said, was for the purpose of providing ten additional patient beds and one nursery cubicle.

Previous grants made to Trenton Memorial Hospital by the Frost administration had totalled $74,000. The new grant brings the grand total of assistance given the institution to $84,333.33.

Public Address System Will Be Installed at Collegiate

Installation of a public address system and sound equipment at the Belleville Collegiate was approved by members of the local Board of Education at their November meeting held Monday evening.

The contract for the installation of the equipment will be let to the Engineered Sound Specialties Company of Toronto, distributors for Northern Electric equipment. The sale was made through their local agent, Mr. Gordon Thompson. Cost of the equipment will be $5,200 with an added amount of up to $300 for installation of a three wire system.

The sound system for the collegiate will include speakers in all the class rooms and also corridor paging.

The tender of McIntosh Brothers of Belleville for the supply of drapes for certain windows at the collegiate.

Take on Project

Members of the Students' Council at the collegiate will take on as a project the purchase of new drapes for the collegiate auditorium. Representatives of the council waited on the board and received the board's approval of the project. The drapes will cost in the neighborhood of $1,000 and the Students' Council expect to complete the project within the one school year. Board member George Wishart was named as advisor to the council.

The board approved of the payment of an amount of $43 to the collegiate football team to defray the balance of their expenses in making a trip to Port Colborne last Saturday.

Members made it a point, however, to point out they would have appreciated the team asking the board for money prior to their out-of-town trip rather than receive a bill following their return.

Board member Harold Seldon, said the team had sufficient money to defray expenses of the trip only at the last moment it had decided to take the night before and payment for overnight accommodation was necessary.

No Fees Necessary

Three members of the local junior hockey team from Northern Ontario centres will be allowed to attend classes at Belleville Collegiate without payment of non-resident fees, it was decided. At a previous committee meeting it had been voted to charge the out-of-town resident fees.

In asking that the names of the three boys be struck from the list as non-resident students, Board member Harold Seldon pointed out that imports were absolutely necessary if Belleville was to have a contending Junior team.

He went on to point out that the public would support only a contending team. He said Belleville Minor Hockey Association supported pee wee, juvenile and bantam leagues in the city and were dependent on their junior team being a money maker.

Committee Named

A special committee was appointed to inspect the Queen Elizabeth school and to make recommendations to the board regarding the re-roofing and new construction of the new building. A new schedule of school rates for school auditoriums has been set by the board. Where use is for non-profit purposes by the Home and School clubs there will be no charge for auditoriums either at the public schools or at the collegiate; where the use is for commercial purposes, educational or for community welfare, including elections, where no admission is charged the rate will be $10 for public schools and $150 for the collegiate.

For non-commercial entertainment where admission is charged the rental is $20 for public schools and $35 for the collegiate and for commercial use for admitting purposes the rental is $50 for public schools and $75 for the collegiate.

No Action Taken

There was a lengthy discussion last night regarding teachers' salaries but no action was taken. A committee consisting of the board will be called by the chairman to deal with the matter.

Present at the meeting were Chairman Arnold C. Campbell; and members Miss Josephine Tickell; Robb, Trudeau, Wilkins, Symons, Seldon, Wishart and Hyde.

Fred Turnbull, chief forecaster at the Toronto public weather office, gave the following outlook today:

Petty Jealousies Have no Place In Elections Says Mayor Potter

Placing of "political affiliations and petty jealousies" ahead of the welfare of the city has no place in municipal elections, it was stated Monday afternoon at city council by Mayor R. T. Potter.

Referring to the forthcoming municipal election Mayor Potter said it was with a great deal of regret that he had been informed there were still certain groups in the city who place political affiliations and jealousies ahead of the city's best interests.

He noted that there had been a most successful year in council, meetings having been carried out with the utmost harmony. He thanked all members of council for their co-operation and obvious spirit of interest and stated there had been an absence of catering to any particular pressure group or party.

"It is my earnest wish," he said, "that succeeding councils will display the same interest in community betterment and would like at this time to convey the thought to the citizens living in their election of candidates for council and the office of mayor, they place emphasis on the ability of the individual and his earnestness and sincerity rather than on his political affiliations."

City Council Defeats Motion And Amendment to Change Procedure By-Law on Meetings

Members of city council Monday afternoon defeated a motion that council remain in its former procedure of holding combined Monday evening committees meetings and evening council meetings in favor of the present system.

At present each committee holds its own meetings with recommendations being presented to council for ratification. Regular council meetings are held in the afternoon.

The motion to revert to the former procedure was introduced by Alderman Chas. Hyde who declared that under the present system committees were unable to get the details of all council business. Afternoon meetings had three deterrents in that they prevented employed persons from becoming council members; delegations were unable to be heard for the same reason and the general public could not be able to attend the meetings.

Alderman Countryman also disagreed with the afternoon council meetings and introduced an amendment to Mr. Hyde's motion calling for continuation of the present system of committee meetings and council meetings to be held in the evening. The amendment was defeated.

The motion by Mr. Hyde and the amendment saw considerable discussion before votes were defeated by wide margins.

Can Attend Meetings

Replying to Alderman Hyde's statement that councillors could not get the details of all business under the present system, Alderman Laidlaw said there was nothing to prevent councillors attending any committee meeting to be briefed. Such questions could always be asked." he said.

Alderman Thomas claimed council business was now getting so big that too much time would be taken up in combined committee meetings. He felt that the committee of public works at present was taking up too much time.

Alderman Countryman's objection to the present system was the afternoon council meetings.

"Not all employees could be allowed time off to attend afternoon meetings of council," he said, "Council meetings must be held in the afternoon or in the evening."

Alderman Butler favored the former method of procedure and said council business might be accomplished in a shorter period.

Alderman Rollins also favored the former method but said minutes of such meetings as the finance committee should be tabled in the minutes.

Mr. Hyde interjected here to point out that under the former system committee recommendations were presented to council prior to their ratification in open council, thus giving time to get the details of the business.

Chance to Change Mind

"Yes, and give some councillors the opportunity of changing their minds," was the rejoiner from Alderman Rollins.

Alderman Tice did not see that afternoon meetings kept anyone from attending council. "They had something to bring up. "If anyone has a complaint he comes to a point to be here," he said. He could see nothing wrong with the present system.

Alderman Rollins said he favored evening council meetings but did not favor evening committee meetings. Alderman Clarke agreed with a previous speaker that council should not be too long in getting to return to the former method.

Alderman Haig also pointed out that if any ratepayer had anything to bring before council the afternoon meetings were no deterrent. "If people have nothing to bring before council they simply will not attend," he said.

He was quite agreeable to committee minutes being elaborated if it was so desired but said he was opposed to a return to the former system. "The present system has proved harmonious and more business has been done. Council would be taking a retrograde step to revert to the former system of meetings.

Amendment Defeated

Alderman Countryman's amendment to Mr. Hyde's motion was defeated 9-3. Opposing the amendment were Mayor Potter and Aldermen Clarke, Deacon, Haig, Hyde, Laidlaw, Porter, Thomas and Tice voting Aldermen Argue, Butler and Countryman in favor. Three members were absent.

Alderman Hyde's motion was defeated 8-4 with Mr. Hyde being the only alderman to support the motion.

Council ratified the hiring of Keith Cowan in the role of 3rd engineer in the engineering department at a salary of $4,000 per year although one or two aldermen objected to the new worker committee retaining the engineer without bringing the recommendation before council.

"The matter should have been brought before council," Alderman Argue claimed. "The committee had no authority to act."

Matter Discussed

Alderman Haig admitted that the written recommendation to council had been omitted but he pointed out the matter had been discussed in council at a previous meeting.

Alderman Countryman was another who objected to the procedure. He pointed out that regulations called for a written recommendation from the committee concerned. "I'd like to know what is going on in the public works," he said.

It was pointed out by Alderman Tice that a third engineer had not been added to the staff. The hiring of Mr. Cowan had merely involved a replacement and his salary was in the year's budget.

$100 Grant Voted

Council voted $100 to the Belleville Veterans' Association to assist in defraying the cost of a banquet to be staged in connection with the official opening Dec. 7th, of their new clubrooms on the waterfront.

Council also voted for the purchase of a new typewriter and also for the purchase of a half-ton truck.

A letter from the Roslin Women's Institute was read pointing out the need for a rest room or room in the city where parcels could be left by country people. The matter was referred to next year's council.

Market Gardens rented by a farmer cannot be passed on to the new owner if the farm is sold, according to a ruling made by the Solicitor and City Property committee market manager Mr. A. Matthews stated this apparently had been customary but now renting of stands was done on a priority basis and when a farm was sold the stand was terminated. Market stands on the Belleville market were cheaper than in many other centres, it was stated the rates ranging up from $10.

Want Greater Control

Council will ask for greater control in the matter of compulsionary cheese given out by the city as a goodwill gesture, it was decided by the board following a such persons receiving cheese will be lifted at the city market.

The feeling was that compulsionary cheese as a goodwill gesture was not necessary in many instances, but names of persons receiving the cheese should be listed.

All complaints and inquiries in connection with the city will in the future be handled by the city controller and no work will be done unless the matter goes through his office, it was decided. By Action Only

No action will be taken by the city to improve accommodation at the city weigh scales building now rented to a local real estate dealer. It had been suggested that certain alterations be made and heat supplied from the arena heating plant.

"It is a question of whether the city wants to go into the real estate business," was the mayor's comment as council voted against the suggestion.

Thomson Promises to Cut Taxes, Also Institute Social Welfare Projects

Campbellford. (Special)—Liberal Leader Walter Thomson, speaking here Saturday afternoon, declared he could institute all the welfare services which he has promised and still reduce taxation.

Mr. Thomson affirmed that the people of Ontario had been overtaxed by at least $80,000,000 during the last eight years. "We will do away with a lot of this nonsense and will have that extra money to help with the social security program," he said.

Mr. Thomson answered those of his critics who said he talked too much and that his name appeared in the paper too often by saying; "How do you sell Coca-Cola? My product is Liberalism and I am going out to sell it."

"Just Coming Home"

"Coming to Campbellford is just coming home," said Mr. Thomson. He prophesied the Nov. 22nd election to be "one of the most shattering ones to the opposition's claims and promises." The speaker has travelled thousands of miles and has attended more than 150 meetings. He has spoken in every riding and met more than a quarter of a million people.

Answering accusations by the opposition that Liberalism was "dead" they say it talk too much and that I have my picture in the paper too many times. How do you sell coca-cola? You have to keep your name before the public. If you want to sell yourself or your product to the people," he said. His product was Liberalism and the speaker was going to sell it.

Mr. Thomson explained the planks in his platform, including the hospital plan and one cent per quart subsidy on milk, the reduction of the gasoline tax by three cents per gallon, tax-free gasoline to farmers, better housing and better old age pensions, long after the aged.

"There is a new hope for the people through these changes — we will marshal the resources of the province to aid the people" he said.

Will Pay Cut

Mr. Thomson said the cost of social security would be carried on by the party from revenues. He told of the spending of the present government which he said was the most extravagant in history. He blasted the government for their "give away" policy which destroyed through "timber rights". He said there was more timber being cut now than there was in 1943 and that timber companies were realizing higher profits. Stumpage on crown lands has remained the same since 1943, resulting in a decline of revenue from $3,000,000 in 1943 to no profit at all in 1951. By increasing stumpage dues, Mr. Thomson said he will realize an additional $15,-000,000 per year.

Mr. Thomson claimed he could reduce taxes and still carry on his social security program. He claimed the people were overtaxed $80,000,000 during the past eight years, and that the government would have a surplus of possibly $50,000,000 by next spring. He also said it was ridiculous for the Frost government to have 19 cabinet ministers while Winston Churchill requires only 16, with ten times our population. "We will do away with a lot of this nonsense and have that extra money to help the social security program," he said.

Real Issue

"The real election issue is social security and the reform party is the Liberal party," said Mr. Mr. Thomson also spoke regarding the building of rural hospitals and additional cottages for the aged, instead of building one large institution for these purposes. He also said the large institutions would be used as hospitals.

W. A. Hogle thanked Mr. Thomson for his talk and said that with Mr. Thomson as their leader, the Liberals would surely march to victory on November 22.

Coboung's Liberal candidate, Charles E. Johnston spoke along with the Liberal leader, Walter C. Thomson. William A. Hogle, president of the Northumberland Liberal Association, introduced Mr. Johnston.

Johnston Proud

"Chuck" Johnston said he was proud to be playing a part in Liberalism and that he regretted not being able to, part all the people personally. He told of the power invested in the municipal board in Queen's Park, and said this board made things tough for the municipalities. "Municipalities today have very little control over their own undertakings," he said. Speaking further in criticism of this board, the speaker said the board declined legislation to the municipalities, played petty politics, and led to an unfair distribution of municipal grants.

Mr. Johnston said that the Liberals had been responsible for all progress made in social security. They pioneered in old age pensions and could take credit for the present system.

Mr. Johnston said "the farmers are being sold down the river by the Tories and the packing houses. It is time there was a change—and we will make farming a profitable enterprise."

Tennessee Gas Transmission Co. Quits Field

Washington, Nov. 20—(AP) — The federal power commission today withdrew Tennessee Gas Transmission Co. has withdrawn its proposal for a $47,403,000 construction program for delivery of natural gas to markets in the province of Ontario.

The company had planned to increase capacity of its pipeline system in order to deliver 115,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas daily to Consumers Gas Transimsion Gas Co., of Toronto.

The gas would be delivered through a line from Buffalo, N.Y., to a point on the U.S.-Canadian border near Niagara Falls, for resale to Consumers Gas Co. for distribution in Toronto and for resale to other markets in Ontario.

The company said it is not yet prepared to submit the detailed information required under commission rules. The commission granted the withdrawal without prejudice to a later filing by the company of an application for authority to building facilities to accomplish the same or similar purposes.

Sportcaster Pays Kinsmen Club Fine Tribute

Speaker at the weekly Kinsmen Club meeting held last night in the Quinte Hotel was Jack Devine, sportscaster over radio station CJBQ. His subject was "My Opinion on Sports".

Born in Toronto, Mr. Devine attended and graduated from Riverdale Collegiate, later becoming a swimming instructor at Scarboro and professional skier. He served with the RCAF from 1941 to 1945 when he was discharged and assumed his present position. He is a former boxing representative for the province and is at present a member of the Parks Board.

The speaker paid special tribute to the Kinsmen Club of Belleville for their fine support of sporting activities in the city. "In almost every field of sports" he said, "they are behind it one hundred percent."

Mr. Devine expressed his opinion of what was wrong with the sports picture, comparing the activities of a few years ago with those of the present day and made his own suggestions regarding remedies.

Urged Support of By-Law

The speaker made several references to the by-law proposal on the forthcoming election ticket and urged all present to give careful consideration to it. "I ask you to support it to your utmost," he concluded.

Mr. Devine was introduced by Walter Harden and thanked by Ken McNaught.

Others present who spoke briefly included Bill Cook, Jack Yanover and Lloyd Doran.

Head table guests, welcomed to the club by President Ben Yanover, included Bill Cook, Jack Yanover, George Carver, Don Stanton, Lloyd "Red" Doran.

Other guests who were present included Tom Lewis, Tom Allan, Jacob Gale, all of Belleville, and Bob Cretney and Roy Chapman of Trenton.

Head table prize donated by W. Bell was drawn for by Don Stanton and won by Don Bacon.

With Ray Lennox at the piano, a lively sing-song was led by Bert Farrar.

Goodfellow Tells Campbellford 'Free' Services Cost Taxpayers Plenty

Campbellford (Special)—Hon. Wm. Goodfellow, speaking here Saturday night, emphasized that the Frost government is taxing the people of Ontario twice as much as the other provincial governments of Canada are taxing their people.

At the same time, Mr. Goodfellow stated, the Frost administration was doing more for the people than any previous government.

"Grants to the town of Campbellford," said Mr. Goodfellow, "have increased from slightly over $8,000 under the Liberals, during the last year they were in power, to more than $63,000 in 1951."

Mr. Goodfellow emphasized that "free" hospitalization and "free" insurance were not free, and that if and when such schemes were instituted, the taxpayers would have to pay for them in higher taxes. He described the higher taxation levied in other provinces.

Favors Free System

Mr. Goodfellow spoke in favor of the present hospitalization system, under which we must look after only those who are unable to look after themselves. His government, he said, had done a good job, and pointed out the introduction of old-age pensions without means test as an example. He said he had received few criticisms from Northumberland County, and regarded this as a sign that people are satisfied with the government. He said his aim was to do things for people that they could not do for themselves, and that the government was making no rash promises, but was planning on its achievements. Speaking of the cold weather, Mr. Goodfellow said he wished the election could have been held in milder weather.

Following his usual practice of refusing to mention his opposition, welfare minister did close up many points in answer to charges levelled against him by the Liberals.

Adverse Publicity

Speaking of the School Area By-Law recently put into effect in East Northumberland, Mr. Goodfellow said that certain individuals had brought adverse publicity to Campbellford in the unfounded claims they had made. He said he would not attempt to kill any by-law of any municipality or county council because these bodies knew best their own requirements, and he would not interfere with them. "Queen's Park tries to make it possible for municipalities to do a better job through grants," he said. These grants helped to reduce taxes and assisted in giving municipalities better hospitals, schools and other institutions than they could not provide on their own. "My own four daughters were educated in the Campbellford High School, and I would certainly not do anything to injure this town through a school area by-law," he said.

Highway Improved

Speaking of highways, he said the new $1,000,000 had been spent on No. 30 highway since he took office.

"Don't forget", said Mr. Goodfellow "all hospital and "free" insurance schemes cost money, and if your present government considered such plans feasible, they would have been instituted long ago". Ontario has no sales tax such as other provinces had, he said. He told also of the highways of the province, and the excellent repair in which they were kept. In contrast, he told of the highways of Manitoba and said that the highways of our sister province were sadly lacking.

Grants to Campbellford have increased from slightly over $8,000 in 1944 to more than $63,000 in 1951. Hydro has also advanced greatly under the Frost regime, he said. In 1943 only 36 per cent of 3,000 rural users had hydro, while in 1951, 86 per cent of 6,600 rural consumers used hydro facilities in Northumberland county alone.

Introduced Porter

Mr. Goodfellow introduced Attorney-General Dana Porter, who he said, had the ability to carry on his job without publicity, and with excellent co-operation from the police forces and from other governmental departments.

Mr. Porter let go with both barrels at the Toronto Daily Star for its attack on the Frost Conservative Liberal party. "They did the same thing with the C.C.F. a number of years back," he said. "The whole issue, as far as the Star is concerned, is the repeal of the Charitable Gifts Act." A number of years ago, when the C.C.F. was the opposition party, they opposed this act and the Toronto Daily Star supported them. Later, when the C.C.F. realized that the act was a good piece of legislation, after the act had been passed, the Star dropped the C.C.F. like a hot potato."

Mr. Porter said the Frost government had improved from year to year, and that the people will decide on November 22 whether they want to take a chance on promises made by the opposition.

Will Continue Improvements

He pledged a continuance of improvements as finances warranted, and mentioned the plans for the needs of the people.

Mr. Porter answered charges that the government was extravagant by saying that the cost of government has increased in line with just about everything else in the province. Materials are higher in cost, and there is a greatly increased population during the past eight years. The government pays about 1/3 of the cost per year in grants to municipalities, and this amount was just about the size of the entire budget in 1942. Half of this amount went for education.

Major Earl Dropp of Harwood thanked the speaker. He predicted a large majority for Mr. Goodfellow November 22.

HOCKEYE THE HAWK-EYED MAN

British writers, even skilled craftsmen, sometimes make curious and amusing mistakes when they undertake to portray certain phases of North American life.

We well remember seeing, some years ago, an English moving picture show dealing with "American gangsters." These gentry were portrayed wearing, along with the ordinary business suits in which North American urban travellers wear, wide-brimmed cowboy hats and high-heeled cowboy boots, plus one or more large calibre revolvers and heavy cartridge belt each. The effect of the lout ensemble was weird, especially since it was apparently the script writer's belief that "American gangsters" carry their artillery and ammunition in plain sight, ready for instant action.

Just the other day, we encountered in one of those 25-cent devil books, another "American gangster" who is operating in England and who bears the nickname "Hockeye." The context makes it plain that Hockeye is an extremely sharp-eyed individual. The writer had apparently been told that "hawk eyed" was a North American expression meaning "sharp-eyed." But whoever told the telling did not explain that "hawk-eyed" meant having an eye like a hawk." So the writer, unaware of the expression that "hawk-eyed" and "having an eye like a hawk," spells his gangster's name "Hockeye" throughout his book.

However, it comes out all right in the end, because the inevitable Scotland Yard detective, along with the blundering assistance of Scotland Yard, traces down and brings about the downfall of Hockeye.

GHOSTS DESERVE CONSIDERATION

Not the least of the problems which confronts the Churchill government in Great Britain is providing a housing program for Britain's displaced ghosts.

It is pointed out by the British press that so many of the old castles and manor houses have turned out to be built on the sites of numerous ghosts have no domicile in which to do their haunting. Further, a number of old buildings which were notoriously ghostridden have been taken over as government offices.

The socialist government of Britain's Attlee, in its preoccupation with advancing its "welfare state" theories, seems to have been brutally indifferent to the comfort of the unfortunate ghosts.

But a lover of tradition like Winston Churchill can surely be induced on to do something for the ghosts, whose status now is no better than that of those displaced persons about whom we have heard so much.

Besides, the ghosts have an economic value. America was tongue-tied, lest they have been treated if they cannot visit at least one haunted manor house where they may hear clanking chains or fearful shrieks. Furthermore, many British writers rely upon a "revenant" to supply an atmosphere of dread.

"NO SMALL TOWN"

All citizens of Ontario can take pride in the fact that the population growth which has been general throughout Canada in recent years has been above the average in Ontario's capital city.

While it is true that Toronto proper has not grown, this has been more than compensated for by the spectacular growth of the Toronto's satellite towns and townships, which have increased in population greatly and some of which have increased as much as fourfold.

Toronto is still smaller than Montreal in population, but Toronto is now wealthier than Montreal, as shown by figures recently released by Hon. J. J. McCann, minister of national revenue.

Measured by any other yardstick except that of mere population figures, Toronto is one of the world's great cities. To mention only one or two of the respects in which it stands near the top of the list, Toronto's educational institutions and hospitals are considered among the world's finest. Only recently, Toronto decided to spend $14,000,000 on expanding Toronto General Hospital, already said to be the largest on the North American continent.

A MODEL OF EFFICIENCY

None of us likes receiving those announcements which mean that our living expenses are going to be increased again, especially when such announcements seem to be an almost daily occurrence.

The latest such announcement is that the Board of Transport Commissioners has granted the Bell Telephone Company the right to increase its rates slightly in both Ontario and Quebec.

However, we can console ourselves, in this instance, with the knowledge that there is no company in Canada, and probably few anywhere, which can outdo the Bell Telephone Company in providing efficient service at reasonable cost.

THE HEAVY YOKE

God gives to none a guarantee
That life on earth shall easy be,
But even sad His own Son, down,
Through suffering, to earn His crown.

Sad earth been made a perfect place
Wherein man had no tasks to face,

No hardships and no griefs to bear,
There would have been no need for prayer.

For this to earth we all were sent:
The pride of high accomplishment;
By faith and courage to attain
True greatness ages could not gain.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

An elderly cheery friend of those long-winded religious mine who makes a modest living as a commercial traveller, has a weakness for helping him along his way. He travels by motor car, loaded with his samples, and his territory is a region of small villages, a couple of towns. At this time of year, he needs some sort of philosophy about the weather.

"I'll be, of course, a mere alternative of the old saying, on a wet day, that it is fine weather for ducks. But if you intrude yourself into the picture, instead of ducks, you have no idea how it helps. I employ the negative statement, as it were, to make up and see if one of those bitter cold mornings, I say: what a perfect day not to be a pallbearer at the funeral of a lodge brother who belongs to one

"For example," I say, reading bitterly, with sleet, I say to myself — this is a lovely day. A lovely day not to be out on a northern lake in a small motor boat.

Iran Learns Nationalization Of Oil Wells Brings Grief; Anticipated Profits Vanish

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

The determination of the Persian government to oust the British company and nationalize the great oil industry at Abadan has by world well described as an "act of national suicide." One can well understand and sympathize with people who feel that they are being exploited and robbed of their natural resources by alien rule. The oil fields certainly belong to the Persians, but the oil well and refinery plant for producing, refining and marketing the oil belong to the Anglo-Iranian Company. The industry represents the investment of millions of pounds of British capital and fifty years of development by British technical skill and enterprise. The oil fields were there before the company entered the country and they were at that time owned by the Persians. But all its resources would still be thousands of feet underground and Abadan would still be a barren desert if the British, or some other foreign company had not developed them. The Persians could never have developed these oil fields by nationalization themselves, for they have today they could not carry on the industry without the aid of technical, technical skill and enterprise from outside.

The great oil industry at Abadan is a monumental tribute to the efficiency and value of free enterprise. The British, as well as other industries in Canada and all other democratic countries. Without free enterprise they would be left with industries to nationalize, and if a government were to take them over, out of sheer jealousy for their success, it would be committing industrial and economic suicide, as the Persian government is doing today. Canadian mining industries are among the best in the world, but they are not entirely owned by Canadians, nor would they be desirable to by Canadian capital and technicians. Without capital, skill and equipment from outside they would not have the great and valuable mining industries which we claim to be our own and if we were to nationalize them they would decline in efficiency and value for lack of free enterprise and venturesome capital.

Communists and Socialists alike talk about capital as if it were an evil thing, and they rail against profits as if they were total public losses. But there can be no industrial and commercial enterprise and progress without capital, and there can be no capital at all without profits. By taxing away profits the Labor government of Britain has in fact drained away the reservoir of capital upon which British industry and enterprise depended for its maintenance and progress. Nationalized industries themselves cannot be run without profits, and they must have large profits than private industries, because the government requires larger overhead in the form of bureaucratic oversight and control. The profits of the Soviet industries do not go to the workers in Russia, but to the government, which they go to the maintenance of a host of officials, planners, inspectors, engineers, labor-drivers and national police.

Whatever ground there was for the claim that the Persian people were not getting a fair share of the profits from the oil industry in the past action of the government has destroyed all profits from the oil industry, the greater part of the government has destroyed all profits and brought the country to the point of bankruptcy. The government's income from the oil fields paid half or its yearly revenue before the war and the company to its native employees amounted to over $3,000,000 a month. Besides this it provided housing, education, hospitalization and health services for its native employees at a standard of living far higher than that of the Persian people generally. The oil and the profits received from the oil company have been shared among themselves, with high income out off and a dead industry on their hands, they have discovered that there is no magic in the word "nationalization" to revive it.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

DIFFICULTIES

Henri-Frederic Amiel tells in his famous diary of listening to an inspiring sermon and he commented: "it was borne in upon me that for some men difficulties are a source of inspiration." He might have added that all men, who have ever accomplished anything worth while, have had difficulties to have experienced difficulties.

Think of the difficulties that every inventor goes through — trying again and again to accomplish what he set out to achieve. Edison went through a multitude of tests and trials before he arrived at his electric light. Look at our modern automobiles! do our great high speed printing presses and there you see the stumbling blocks that existed before they were all finally overcome.

Difficulties stir the mind, give power to the will and determination, and inspire us all to try again and again. I never forget the sign that I noted on my way to work one day. It was that of a young man who had evidently chose the job of doing the difficult thing!

We are challenged when a difficult problem is placed before us. There will always be those who will say that it's certain thing cannot be done—but there are always others as well, who will do it anyway! They are the builders and inspirers of the world.

It's only the difficult things that stir the imagination and spirit as it white heat, from which many a great enterprise is forged. The easy jobs are getting scarcer every day and there are fewer who want to do them. Difficult jobs pay better, offer quicker advancement and give greater personal pride.

The diamond is the most beautiful and costly of all precious stones, yet think what difficulties face it before it is ready for the jeweler to set. Look at all the difficult digging in the mines and the long careful labor in its perfect polishing. Life is difficult—but it can be made beautiful!

Rabbits on some western farms are leading frustrated lives these days. The succulent bark of their favorite fruit trees has been wrapped in aluminum foil, so now they can't get at it.

This was a new one on us. We had heard of all manner of uses for the foil we roll at Kingston, Ont., but never for frustrating rabbits. However, it just goes to illustrate why more people are using more aluminum and why we are the most efficient producer of this modern metal, must go on expanding. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. ## Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed Letters, Not More Than One Page, or 100 Words long, Pertaining to Personal Health and Hygiene, Not to Disease, Diagnosis or Treatment, Will be Answered by Dr. Brady if a Stamped, Self-Addressed Envelope is Enclosed, Etc.

THE TRUTH ABOUT RUPTURE

Rupture, otherwise called hernia or breach, is a bulging or protrusion of any internal structure, usually a loop of intestine or omentum at one or another place in the wall of the abdomen or great body cavity.

The most common site is the groin, and the protrusion here is called inguinal hernia. In this area the wall is structurally weak by reason of the inguinal canal in the wall, through which, a month prior to birth or in some instances after birth, the testicle descends from its perinatal position within the abdomen through the inguinal canal down into the scrotal sac, and of course arteries, vein, nerve and seminal duct or tube reach the testicle on either side through the same inguinal canal. The entrance to this canal called the internal or abdominal ring, at the middle of the groin, is one point where bulging (hernia) may occur.

The most common site of hernia in women is just below the groin, and beside the point where the femoral (thigh) vein enters and the femoral artery leaves the abdomen.

There are four lines of treatment for hernia, first, simply wearing a suitable truss or other support favors correction of the weakness or defect and sometimes, though rarely, seems to bring about spontaneous cure.

Second, if the hernia is not too large and if it is reduced and carefully supported with fingers or hand while doing the exercises, the regular routine of exercises described in the pamphlet on Hernia, available on request if you enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Third, radical operation, which necessitates hospitalization usually for two weeks or more and perhaps several weeks of semi-invalidism thereafter before returning to work or other activities. Hernia recurs weeks or months after operation in about 12 per cent of all cases, no matter who does the operation.

Fourth, ambulant injection treatment, which is office treatment, does no detain you from your work and is not a serious nor more painful than the filling of a small cavity by your dentist, and as likely to give a permanent cure as is radical operation.

The old timers, the ever ready operators, and some medical writers who obviously have no practical knowledge of the injection treatment continue to misrepresent it to their patients and the public. The other day a medical writer said:

"This method" (injection treatment) "requires several treatments and carries some risk."

The writer did not say what the risk is.

While the scar tissue formed is not always strong enough to bring permanent relief.

That's true enough, and it applies to radical operation as well as to injection treatment.

Although the injection treatment still has some supporters, it is probably not used as much as it used to be and is not as desirable as surgery in most cases.

Well, I'll be—here all along I thought the injection treatment is more popular today than it has ever been before and I tell the world that for my hernia the injection treatment, if it were applicable, would be far more desirable than surgery, and mind you, children, if I be nothing of the nature, I'm not inclining to do at the moment I'd consider going to hospital for a hernia operation a lark.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Grampa is Salty—Aren't We All?

Grandfather, 83, purges twice a week with Epsom salts, becomes angry if we tell him it might be harmful, quotes the Holy Bible as medical authority for the regimen... (P. R. C.).

Answer—Habitual use of salts or other unnatural "aid" is harmful to any one, Grampa is probably constipated and has to let him alone. The stupidity of the notion that regularity of bowel habit is explained in the booklet The Constipation Habit and Colon Hygiene, which you may send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Varicose Veins

Twenty-four years ago I followed your advice about injection treatment for varicose veins and found it wonderful. Husband for the relief I obtained.... Recently my 14-year-old son had varicose veins for a serious case of hemorrhoids and it was very successful.. (Mrs. O. H. S.)

Answer—Yet the old timers continue to tell gullible customers that the injection method is "no good" and only operation is hopeful will cure such things. For a pamphlet on Varicose Ulcer send stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address for pamphlet titled It is Stupid to Suffer From Piles. If you want both pamphlets inclose ten cents.

OLD age Security is "in the Air" Most people believe that, when they grow old, there will be some form of government help for everyone—but few also realize that only payments will be on a "minimum need" basis!

What you need is nothing more than, in addition to anything which may be paid to everybody, they have their own "PERSONAL PENSION PLAN" which will guarantee them:

1—$100.00 A MONTH FOR LIFE, beginning at Age 65.
2—$11,220.00 IN CASH at Age 65 if desired instead of the income payments.
3—$10,000.00 IN CASH TO FAMILY in event of death before Age 65.

Such a plan is readily available in The Excelsior Life's Individual PENSION "Unit System" Plan, paid for on the flexible premium arrangement which is a novel part of all Excelsior Life Policies.

Col. P.H. Wills Outlines Plan To Improve Waterfront, Park

Headed by Col. P.H. Wills and members of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, along with members of the local Parks Board, a movement is afoot in the city for the rejuvenation of Victoria Park and the local waterfront.

Plans call for a general cleaning up of the Park and its surrounding waters with the construction of yacht piers and service facilities for visiting yachtsmen.

Addressing city council Monday afternoon with the object of securing financial assistance from the city to help do the work, Col. Wills said that for a great many years he had been disappointed in Belleville's waterfront.

"Passing yachtsmen hate the sight of Belleville and go on either to Trenton or Picton," he said. "They simply will not tie up at Belleville."

Lack Facilities

"The reason", he said, "was the complete lack of facilities on the local waterfront and its general disgusting and filthy appearance."

In contrast to Belleville, Mr. Wills said that as many as 1,000 yachtsmen a year visit Picton's fine harbor, while the same was true in a lesser degree to Trenton. We have no services at Belleville, no gasoline and no telephones."

Rejuvenation of Victoria Park and the local waterfront was all the more important because of the recent re-organization of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, according to Mr. Wills. He said the yacht club during the past summer had been a "going concern".

Splendid Mooring Ground

Mr. Wills said the local Parks Board was anxious to clean up Victoria Park next year. He envisioned a renewed interest in yachting in the city and said the river side of the Park offered splendid mooring grounds.

On the east side of the Park he would like to see yacht and cruiser docks constructed, but this, he said, was a job for the "harbor board". Picton and Trenton had received large government grants for harbor improvement and the speaker saw no reason why Belleville could not get the same aid.

He said that Mr. Frank S. Follwell, local member at Ottawa, had promised to bring the matter before the department.

For the Front Street side of the harbor Col. Wills said that already work had commenced for the provision of marine facilities.

Concrete Already Poured

He said he had purchased 85 feet of waterfront and a complete marine service would be provided. Already concrete was poured for the dock and building foundations and the buildings would be completed by spring. Included in the services would be two fuel pumps, one for gasoline and the other for diesel oil, both with large storage accommodation. Yachtsmen were rapidly turning to diesel power for their yachts, he said. But no services were available about of Kingston.

In addition to fuel service, free water for visiting yachtsmen would be provided; also there would be ice service available throughout the summer, including weekends and holidays.

The complete project of rejuvenating the park and providing facilities would cost considerable money and it was here that city assistance was sought. Mr. Wills asked that council next year earmark additional money to the parks board to be used in Victoria Park improvements.

Choir Festival Will be Presented

Several choirs of the city will present their music festival on November 28th at the Collegiate auditorium. The complete program will feature local talent. Under the direction of Miss Phyllis May, combined public school choirs from the East and West Hill will sing. The two choirs will then join making a total of one hundred and forty voices in all.

The Barber Shop Chorus, well known for their four-part harmony singing will be on the program along with the Quintette from the local chapter.

The ever popular Helen Grant with her xylophone, an instrumental trio comprised of Clifford Templar, Don LaFrance, violin, and Glen Elliott, cello, will be featured.

The Albert Colleges Choir, Bridge St. Ladies' Choir and church choirs from Victoria Ave. Baptist Church, Holloway St. United and Bridge St. United Churches will round out the program which promises to be well worth while.

The final number will be a special arrangement of the National Anthem sung by massed choirs of the three churches.

The festival is sponsored by the Kiwanis Club and proceeds will be for welfare work.

SECRETARY RESIGNS

Winona, Minn., Nov. 20 (AP)— The secretary of the Winona county draft board resigned yesterday, saying he couldn't send American boys to Korea "to be murdered in cold blood by Chinese communists — who seem to be getting away with it." Frank J. Allen said his resignation was prompted by reports that communists have murdered 13,400 United Nations' war prisoners.

News of Trenton

Paratrooper Freddie Genereaux Tells Folk Back Home About Korea War

Trenton. (Special.)—Paratrooper Freddie Genereaux, in Korea with the First Battalion of the P.P.C.L.I., has written to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Genereaux, 203 Dundas Street, West.

Private Genereaux tells of the respect the red soldiers have for Canadian fighting men. He describes one of the skirmishes between Chinese reds and United Nations troops when the Canadians killed 40 reds, losing two men themselves.

The letter, written from Yochon, Kores, tells in simple words the life of a Canadian infantryman on that far-off battlefront.

The Letter

Dear Mom and Pop: Well, I've been in the lines three days now. It's quiet up here during the day, but the Chinese shell us every night, from dark until sunup.

Right now our men are shelling the Gooks, The Gooks don't show themselves in the daytime because they don't stand a chance. They sure give us hell at night though. Piche and I stand guard every night together. It sure gets dark. We have a slit trench every so many feet apart.

The Chinks broke through the line last night and killed tons of our guys, but we cut loose and got 40 dead Chinks. They buried them yesterday in a rice paddy.

It sure is mountainous around here. Piche and I have two rifles, 12 grenades and a machine gun in our trench. We can't see far ahead at night so we have to depend on our ears. We each hold a grenade in our hand and the pin ready to pull.

"It's pretty hard for them to get to us because we have trip wires and four strands of barbed wire in front of us. If they touch trip wire it sends up a flare and then we have 'em. We are about 500 yards from Gook positions.

Piche and I are dug in on the side of a hill, in an old Chinese bunker. We sleep on the opposite side in a dugout. We have six Koreans side digging crawl trenches for us. They are good till workers. We give them cigarettes and candy and they carry our water, etc.

All we carry is our rifle, two grenades and a bandalier of ammo. We went out and laid a minefield last night 300 yards from Chinese bunkers and nothing happened. They don't touch Canadian much cause they know better. They attack American spots most of the time. Their artillery is always banging away at us though. A shell fell near Piche and me the other night and we ducked in our trench and the end flew all over the place.

It's an awful place to fight a war. We can see the searchlights from here where they are having the peace talgs.

We have three dead Chinese in our minefield. One poor kid is not more than 18 years old and he had the top of his head blown clear off with one of our mines.

The Chinese leave surrender passes all over the place and promise us safe passage if we surrender. They have signs all over saying to surrender, etc. Am sending you one of our surrender passes that we send to the Chinese and also one of theirs.

Bye for now, Mom, and write again soon. Don't worry I'll be OK. Send me the Trenton news and give my best to all. Freddie.

Deer Vanishes Then Reappears; Leavey Mystified

Trenton—(Special)—Deer hunter Sturgess Leavey is a realist of the first water but the other night he swore that Gremlins had played a trick on him. It was a case of there it was and then it wasn't.

Mr. Leavey had shot a 140-pound doe at the animal trail into the north woods. He was proud of his prize and took every precaution to keep it.

When he arrived home he went to special pains and hung the doe from a high limb in a tree beside his home at 120 McGill Street. He felt sure that he could rest without fear that his venison was safe.

Mr. Leavey was so proud of his marksmanship that he wanted to show the deer to everyone who visited him. One special friend must have had a good look.

A sick feeling came over the praiseworthy hunter as he motioned with his hand to the tree where he had secured the doe. Investigation showed that the deer had disappeared.

Police aid was summoned and a fruitful hunter returned to his house for the night.

Some time during the same day the deer was returned to the tree, for the next time Mr. Leavey took a look there it was hanging in the same place from the same tree.

Mr. Leavey swears that there is nothing wrong with his eyesight and police reported that there was no deer there when they examined the scene.

RELIEF ROLLS DECLINE

Washington, Nov. 20 — (AP)— The Social Security administration said yesterday public relief rolls have declined in the last decade from 17,500,000 to 5,500,000, and relief expenditures have dropped from $3,500,000,000 to $2,350,000,000 yearly.

Expansion of Hydro in Bancroft Area Next Year Predicted by P-C Candidate

Bancroft, (Special) — "Hydro will be available to almost every section of this district by next year", stated Elmer Sandercock, Progressive Conservative candidate for Hastings East riding in the provincial election at a party rally in Bancroft Community Hall on Monday night.

In reviewing the work of the Frost government in the riding in the past four years he first thanked the people and the municipal councils for their support and reminded them that improvements came when they requested them. Some examples of co-operative work accomplished by the government at Toronto and the local municipalities were the building of new schools at Birds' Creek, Paudash, Coe Hill, Lake St. Peter and North Hastings High School in Bancroft.

He congratulated the local department of highways for their splendid type of roads they were building and said that the roads here were of the best types that could be built in a rocky country. Besides the work on Highway No. 62, Sandercock stated that the newly improved road from the Madoc-Bancroft highway in to Coe Hill had been carried on at practically no expense to the county of Hastings.

Always Available

"I am available at all times and people will not have to wait for three months to see me", said Mr. Sandercock after he had mentioned the plan of Angus Duffy, Liberal standard bearer, when Mr. Duffy had stated that he would have regional meetings quarterly to consult the electors.

Reeve Theodore Tyron of Bancroft spoke of the benefits that Bancroft had received from the present government. Among them were grants for hospitalization, education and roads. He announced that due to increased provincial grants the municipal requisition for public and separate schools per cent lower in 1951 than it was in 1947. The village council also receives a rebate of about $600 as a 50 per cent grant on county roads within the boundaries of the municipality.

As a member of the municipal council and a former member of the county council J. Bronson of Bancroft paid tribute to the painstaking work of Mr. Sandercock both when he was superintendent of the county home for the aged and during his term as a member of the legislature.

In asking the audience to support the present member, Mr. Sandercock, the co-chairman of the meeting, Dr. Russell Scott of Belleville, President of the Conservative riding association opened fire on Mr. Angus Duffy, the Liberal candidate, because he stated, "The Liberals have not a candidate. Mr. Duffy was never in a Liberal meeting. He dropped in through the ceiling, took the convention, and went out through the ceiling. Why, he even ran for 4th vice-president of the Conservative association in the city of Belleville".

Attacks Hospital Plan

Dr. Scott then switched his fire to Liberal leader Walter Thomson and his proposed hospitalization plan and declared that it was unworkable. To support his contention he declared, "If everybody had coverage, children would be going in with chicken pox. This plan would cost Belleville $3,000,000, and Bancroft would have to provide 50 extra beds in the hospital. There would have to be a crowd of people going from door to door to collect the rates. It is unthinkable and unworkable. It would take five years to get enough nurses and hospital assistance".

Quoting from editorials of the Globe and Mail and the Toronto Star, Mr. Scott said that if Belleville read extracts praising the Frost administration and criticizing the promises of Liberal leader Thomson. He spoke of the handsome remuneration received by Mr. Thomson saying: "From Jan. 1947 till June 1951 he received $233,-000 in fees for government work." Finishing his speech he read the Liberal platform, declaring that it was utterly impracticable and unworkable.

Mr. Jack Wills of Belleville spoke briefly on three points. The first was to state that the Liberal promises were impossible and for this reason they were conducting a scare campaign. The second was a draw attention to the fact that Ontario was one of the few provinces that did not have a sales tax. The third was to tell the gathering of the work of Mr. Sandercock in connection with the construction of homes for the aged in different sections of the province.

Recalls Early Elections

A former citizen of Bancroft and now retired in Belleville, Dr. A. T. Embury, made a short and witty address that was one of the highlights. After reminiscing of political meetings in Bancroft 50 years ago he told the group, "It's wonderful how much money elections cost. I know for I've run four of them!"

His speech concluded with some general remarks about political candidates and this poem—"He loves you in the springtime; Hates you in the fall; But round about election time, He loves you best of all."

Co-chairmen for the evening were James Maxwell, president of the Bancroft Progressive-Conservative Association and Dr. Russell Scott, of Belleville, president of the Provincial Riding Association. Besides the speakers Mr. Israel McGuire, a long-time member of the local association, was seated on the platform.

Following the program there was a free dance, sponsored by the riding association.

STOLE FROM PRISON

London, Nov. 20 (AP)— Two brothers-in-law were fined £3 yesterday for stealing £2 10 shillings from a roof they were repairing. The roof was on Holloway prison.

FORCED TO LEAVE

Bakersfield, Calif., Nov. 20 (CP) — A dust storm yesterday engulfed Bakersfield and surrounding farmlands and forced 25,000 cotton pickers to leave the fields at the peak of the harvest.

Justice Mackay Gives Address On 'Shakespeare and Holy Writ'

While Shakespeare's intimate acquaintance with the scriptures has not escaped the notice of his many commentators, he has not been made the subject of research as one deeply conversant with Bible truths, the Hon. J. Keiller Mackay, justice of the Supreme Court of Ontario, Toronto, said in an address here last night.

Justice Mackay, brilliantly eloquent, spoke to the University Women's Club at the home of Mrs. W. H. Finkle, 353 Bridge Street, West, on the theme "Shakespeare and Holy Writ".

The immortal Bard of Avon undoubtedly drew his unrivalled inspiration from that source of bounteous overflowing, limitless grace recorded in God's unspeakable gift to those he created in His own image and into whose nostrils he breathed the breath of eternal life, the speaker said.

Justice Mackay estimated the scope and extent of Shakespeare's knowledge and use of Scripture in three ways. First the frequent references which he made in his plays to the facts and character recorded in the Bible. Next, the quality and coloring which pervade his moral and religious principles and expression, and thirdly, the poetical thoughts taken directly from Holy Writ and used to guide and assist him in his immortal prodigious.

Not Guided by Education

Shakespeare's achievement in attaining in a life of fifty-two years a vocabulary three times as great as that attained by the scholarly Milton in the 66 years of his life prompted Justice Mackay to express the opinion that education had nothing to do with it.

"Credit Shakespeare with ten times the learning he had and for me he intrudes upon the realm of sense. It is the miracle of genius, and what his learned wife always gave him more words than Milton could find in books," he said.

Justice Mackay's remarkable and intimate knowledge of Shakespeare's works and his finger-to-pulse touch with the Holy Scriptures were evidenced in his many eloquent references to both, proving by comparison and quotation the fact that Britain's famous poet had thorough knowledge of the Bible.

He said, "by the magic splendor of his creative power, he developed a wealth and mastery of expression at once the richest, most subtle, most flexible, most rhetorical, poetic and imaginative ever to fall on the ears of man."

Answering questions the speaker used Portia's famous address in the quarrel scene of "Julius Caesar" as displaying the divine attributes of mercy and forgiveness by invoking the clearest references to Holy Scripture.

He had the opportunity of viewing Shakespeare's last will and testament during a visit to Stratford-on-Avon, Justice Mackay said. "In it we learn where his hope was fixed, by commending his soul into the hands of God, 'my Creator'."

Commending Christian Morality

Shakespeare in his many references to the Bible commended the highest Christian morality. He emphasized the Justice of the Governing Providence and used a wealth of theology. He repeatedly used the titles and names by which God is revealed in Holy Scripture such as "The Lord of Hosts," "the King Immortal" and the "King of Kings" Justice Mackay pointed out.

Closing, he said, "the true test of genius is the impression made on the thinking mind by the lines when they are heard. If they transport the soul and exalt the thoughts, if they suggest more grand and lofty the oftener they are heard, they may well be pronounced noble and sublime. Measured by this standard, Shakespeare's place as the intellectual monarch of the world is, at once and forever, commanding and secure — yea, the acknowledged supreme ruler of the kingdom of the mind."

Miss Marie Mackay was introduced by Mrs. W. J. Doyle with Mrs. W. L. Langlois expressing in a gracious manner the appreciation of the club.

Mrs. Douglas Starr, president of the society, conducted a brief business period prior to the address. Mrs. Starr was presented Mr. Justice Mackay on his visit to the city.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the address.

Mary Pickford To Star in Just One More Film

New York, Nov. 20. (AP)—Mary Pickford, long known as "America's Sweetheart", is coming out of her year-retirement from the screen to star in just one more film.

The 58-year-old Toronto-born actress will play the role of a librarian in "Miss Tilly, The Librarry", to be made by Columbia pictures.

Her return to the screen matches in many ways the movie comeback of another early Hollywood queen, Gloria Swanson.

Miss Swanson, now 52, regained her former prominence last year with the film, "Sunset Boulevard". She went on to further successes on the stage and in television.

But unlike Miss Swanson, Miss Pickford indicated yesterday that "The Library" would not be followed by further roles. She said in a statement released by Columbia pictures that it "is the one and only story which would have induced me again to appear before the cameras."

Miss Pickford declined to give further details on the film.

Since her retirement from acting, Miss Pickford, born Gladys Mary Smith, has continued to be active in the management and ownership phases of the film industry. She was one of the founders of the United Artists producing and distributing organizations.

She started her stage career at the age of five with a Toronto Stock Company and made her first film in 1909 at the age of 16. But the real start of her movie career dates from the 1914 film, "Hearts Adrift".

Her other silent film successes, which led to her title as "America's Sweetheart", included "Tess of the Storm Country" 1922; "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm", 1917; "Poor Little Rich Girl", 1917; and "Little Lord Fauntleroy", 1921.

In 1920, Miss Pickford cut off her famous curls and started making talkies. These included "Coquette", "The Taming of the Shrew", and "Kiki".

Miss Pickford married her onetime leading man, Buddy Rogers, in 1937. Previously she was married to Owen Moore and Douglas Fairbanks, Sr.

W.C.T.U. States 'Education Solution To Drink Problem'

The Women's Christian Temperance Union held their November meeting on Friday in the Y.M.C.A. with Mrs. Farnsworth, president, presiding. The meeting opened with the hymn, "Jesus the Very Thought of Thee" and was followed by prayer, and a poem, read by the president, entitled, "November".

Following the reading of the poem, Mrs. Farnsworth spoke on "Remembrance Day", prefacing her remarks by stating that, "October ends with Hallowe'en and November begins with All Saints Day". November 11th is a day set aside for the commemoration of those who paid the supreme sacrifice that we might live in freedom." A poem, emphasizing these thoughts, was also quoted.

Miss Barnum conducted the devotional, taking as her theme "Faith", with the scripture reading from Hebrews 11:1-19, in which she stressed "action" and saying that it was a faith that accomplished something -constructive, as the endeavour to overcome the liquor traffic.

Stages of Difference

The last chapter of the study book was presented by Mrs. Bennett which was "Education the Solution to the problem." The distinction between intoxication and drunkenness was discussed. A person is intoxicated long before he becomes drunk, with the first stage being much more serious than the second stage. In the first, crimes and accidents may be committed, while in the second, the person is taken into custody and looks after.

During the business period, the treasurer's report showed a balance of $36.66 on hand. Cards had been sent to the sick and the bereaved; plans were made for the Christmas meeting with the following committee being appointed:

Decorations, Misses Reeves and Mrs. Bruton; music, Mrs. Foster; program, Miss Clarke; Mrs. Bennett and Mrs. Farnsworth. It was also decided that the group leaders contact their members for a donation to aid the "Kobokan Mission" in their endeavor to erect a community hall in Tokyo.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about FOOD ... What's Cooking?

Fish and fowl like to pal.

There are many recipes in which members of the bird or animal kingdom and denizens of the sea are successfully combined. Roast turkey with oyster stuffing, Spanish chicken with clams and rice, lobster and sweetbread or New Orleans ham jambalaya are a few of these combinations.

In New England States fricasseed chicken and oysters are an old-fashioned combination. Stewing chickens are simmered until tender, and then diced and combined with a fricasee sauce made from the chicken broth. To give the sauce a strong natural flavor, the chicken fat should be rendered and mixed with the flour as a thickening agent.

Just before the dish is served drained oysters are added and cooked only until the edges of the oysters curl. This is the kind of dish that can be prepared hours beforehand and reheated at the last moment without fuss or fanfare. A single 4 lb. fowl provides 6 to 7 generous portions.

Chicken and Oyster Fricasee. Serves 6 to 7.

4 lb. fowl
Salt—pepper
1 large onion
1 piece celery
1-3 cup fat
1-2 cup flour
2 teaspoons grated onion
1-4 cup light cream
18 freshly opened oysters
Remove any pinfeathers from fowl. Singe if necessary. Wash well. Place in water with the onion and celery. Add 2 teaspoons salt and 1-8 teaspoon pepper. Simmer until tender, about 2 1-2 hours.

Melt down the chicken fat. Remove brown pieces. Add enough vegetable fat to make 1-2 cup. Blend in flour. Remove fat from the flame.

Stir in the flour. Gradually stir in 1 quart of the chicken broth. Return to a slow flame. Simmer 15 minutes.

Remove skin and bones from the fowl. Cut the meat into large dice. Add to the sauce. Add grated onion and cream. Simmer 10 minutes longer.

Drain the oysters well. Add the oysters to the chicken mixture. Heat only until the edges of the oysters curl. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Serve between split baking powder biscuits.

For 50 years we have used little white tablets—acetylsalicylic acid —for relief of pain. Today the leader and the largest seller is a new form without the disadvantages of acidity, insolubility and slow rate. It is called "DISPRIN" and is sold at druggists everywhere.

"DISPRIN" is available in bottles of 25 tablets or Handy Packet Packets of 8.

"Headache?...take a Disprin"

Why DISPRIN? Because DISPRIN is soluble and scientifically neutral. When taken in water as recommended, it enters the stomach as a true solution and not as undissolved particles. It is therefore less liable to cause stomach disturbances.

DISPRIN is readily absorbed. Because it definitely dissolves (not merely disintegrates) DISPRIN permits speedy absorption and gives fast relief.

DISPRIN is palatable. Even children will take it readily.

First Battalion of P.P.C.L.I. Replaces Second in Korea; Second Now Homeward Bound

By BILL BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the Canadians in Korea, Nov. 20 — (CP) — The changeover was made quietly.

A few maroon berets . . .

Then a few more . . .

And then almost before it was quite realized, the 2nd Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry had been replaced by the 1st Battalion.

The Patricias of Kapyong were on their way home. Convoys by company they had been replaced by their parent unit, and the last to leave its Korean ridge was "A" under Maj. K. J. H. (Paddy) Krail of Hamilton. It was relieved by a 1st Patricia company under Maj. C. O. Huggard of Halifax.

That was Nov. 11, six days after Gen. James Van Fleet, commander of the United States Eighth Army in Korea, had inspected the 2nd Patricias, the day of the formal turn-over to 1st Battalion.

As he walked down the parade ground, Maj. Huggard asked Lieut.-Col. Jim Stone, the 2nd Patricias' commander, and said:—"Do you mean to tell me that these men were in foxholes on the front yesterday?"

Show Easy Precision

Smartly turned out and with the easy precision of veterans, they looked as though they'd rehearsed the ceremony for weeks. Since replaced, No. Sir, most only left their foxholes this morning. They were the men of "B" company under Capt. W. F. (Paddy) Fine of Rivers, Man.

During their last two months in Korea, the 2nd Patricias had participated in actions which saw the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade Group advance its front in the west central sector 12,000 yards. That's by the map — overland it works out here to three times as much.

They had seen battlefield temperature rise from complete absence of artillery and only sporadic mortar fire to shelling at the rate of 3,000 rounds an hour — the equivalent of anything seen in Europe during the Second World War.

They occupied, in September's "Operation Commando," part of the Chinese winter-line, and then sat tight while the communists repeated the Kapyong tactics which saw the Patricias earn an American presidential citation. In efforts to recapture the lost ground, the enemy buried his troops in waves only to see them mown down.

A 1st Patricia company commanded by Maj. Jack George of Edmonton, on its first night in the line, withstood just such an attack and next morning had 54 dead Chinese strung up on its wire, with unounted others lying in the artillery's beaten zone ahead.

Stone Talks

Recapitulating the 2nd Patricias' last two months in action, Lt.-Col. Stone said highlights were an early September attack by "C" company under Maj. Bob Swinton of Vancouver, and a raid by "A" company of 1st Patricias, commanded by Major Geoff Williams of Calgary, while under Stone's command.

Harrison's attack, he said, started within 200 yards of the enemy's positions atop a ridge. The company had laid up "under his nose" during the night which was very dark.

The charge went in at 6 a.m., screened by mortar and artillery fire. The Patricias closed in at Grenade range and cleared the enemy from the positions after a tough scrap. Thirty-eight Chinese bodies were counted after the engagement and three prisoners were taken.

Swinton's assault was with fixed bayonets uphill against opposition.

Tanks from the Lord Strathcona's Horse also close over the Canadians' heads, carrying the men onto their objective, where they closed in with grenades and grenades. Twenty Chinese were killed there.

Williams' action was the 1st Patricias' baptism of fire in Korea. "They certainly did the job of well trained troops," tributed Stone, "and showed steadiness in holding ground in no man's land."

The action was a raid ahead of the main U.N. defences west of the Imjin River.

Assault Difficult Slope

The newcomers assaulted a difficult slope, encountering heavy Chinese mortar and rifle fire But again the Lord Strathc' tanks carried the day, shooting the infantrymen onto the objective. where they closed with the communists.

Said Stone: "They inflicted considerable casualties on the enemy, stayed there until one in the afternoon, and then pulled back into the main line, leaving 16 dead Chinese right in the position.

The operation is completed, and the 2nd Patricias, who established a reputation for themselves "apart from and above" other units of the Eighth Army — so reads their Presidential Citation — are on their way home.

But the maroon regimental pennant still flies outside a Patricia headquarters, and its color has spilled over the Korean countryside in the cherry berets of its paratroop followers.

Crime in Quebec Province Getting Drastic Surgery As Police Stage Cleanup

Montreal, Nov. 20. (CP) — Crime, what sociologists call the cancer that destroys a nation's moral health, has undergone some drastic surgery in Quebec province; and the treatment isn't finished, police say.

Police are cutting at the roots of crime, in the places where it might breed— betting houses, open night spots.

The most spectacular move was made last week when a squad of Quebec Provincial police made a cloak and dagger raid 180 miles from their base.

Their objective— Montreal's richest gambling joint where hundreds met nightly to enjoy French Canada's favorite dice game, Barbotte.

That raid brought 203 persons before the courts, all arrested by the police squad which travelled here in buses from Quebec City on orders of the province's Attorney-General, Premier Maurice Duplessis.

Most of the cases are still pending and the majority of those charged on found-ins are out on bail. But the two alleged operators were refused bail on the Premier's orders and, if convicted, may get the jail terms which he has asked instead of fines.

The raid on the Barbotte just outside the city limits frightened off patrons of similar establishments within the city. Montreal newspapers reported one large Barbotte closed up and only isolated games in betting parlors.

Close on the heels of the gambling came the closing of one of the city's night clubs for operating after the 2 a.m. closing hour set by provincial law.

The club automatically lost its liquor license and its valuable stock of liquor in a raid by provincial police in the heart of nightclub row on downtown St. Catherine Street.

Such raids aren't new in Montreal where it has always been possible to get a drink after hours. But there are two factors indicating that clubs once raided would stay closed this time.

The first is a petition now being circulated among Roman Catholic parishes in the province calling on the provincial government to enforce the liquor laws more rigidly. Priests in all churches in the Montreal archdiocese preached sermons last Sunday urging the faithful to sign the petition which will be sent to Premier Duplessis.

Cleanup Final

The second indication that this cleanup is final for those caught is the remarks of the premier to the Quebec legislature in commenting on the petition.

He said the provincial police will spare no one who is brought to their attention as breaking the liquor laws or the laws against gambling. Such a promise, if broken, would give the opposition a good issue to bring into the campaign now going on in anticipation of an election next year.

The clean-up seemed to have spread to other cities in the province. From Quebec came reports of a police raid and seizure of $-,000 ticket stubs to be used in the drawing of an automobile at a wrestling program.

Meanwhile, in Sherbrooke police made the first raid in 13 years on an alleged brothel and picked up two men and three women.

COMPLETE HIGHWAY

Tokyo, Nov. 19 (Reuters — Peiping radio today reported Chinese army engineering units during the recent summer months had completed a highway from China into Tibet over some of the roughest terrain in the world.

Basketball 'Fixer', Five Players Sent to Prison; Nine Suspended

By ORLO ROBERTSON

New York, Nov. 20—(AP)—Cheap basketball bribers today were quick to refute a New York judge's accusation that 1000-ball and basketball were awash big-business deals.

But a combination of seven college prosecutors, meeting in Washington agreed "something must be done to remove whatever evils are in the intercollegiate athletics program.

And in Chicago, Hugh Willett, president of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, said a substantial majority of the organization's 000 institutions oppose a 14-point program for tighter controls on college athletics.

Judge Lee Hines

Basketball and football came under fire of Judge Saul S. Streit yesterday before the jurist sentenced a basketball fixer and five former players to prison and gave nine other former players suspended sentences.

"Commercialism and over-emphasis in intercollegiate rootball and basketball are rampant throughout the country," said Judge Streit. He said the schools are courting an "atomic athletic scandal."

The jurist blamed college authorities, alumni and the public—terming "despicable" the attitude of many big-time coaches who urged the schools to clean house in a hurry or save congress do it for them.

Streit singled out Oklahoma, Texas, Texas A. & M., Southern Methodist, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Maryland and Kentucky as examples of the over-emphasis on football. Kentucky is the only one of the group involved in the basketball point-fixing scandal that has reached a referee and more than 30 players from seven schools.

The judge said academic standards for athletes are a laugh. Judge Streit started much of the discussion shortly before he sentenced gambler Salvatore Sollazzo to eight to 16 years in prison for using $2,000 to bribe basketball stars playing in Madison square Garden games.

Former players given prison terms were: Bernard White, Long Island Univ., one year; Edward Warner and Alvin Roth, City College of New York. Nat Harvey, Connie Rideau, New York University, six months; Edward Gard, a Sullivan lieutenant and former Long Island player, up to six years.

Suspended sentences were given to Adolph Biggs, Richard Fuerstein, Nathan Miller and Leroy Smith, all of L. I. U.; and Norman Magar, Irwin Dambrot, Herbert Cohen, Floyd Lane and Edward Roman of City College.

Cases against 10 other former players are pending.

Eagles Defeat Petes By 7-4 Score

Peterborough Eagles stepped into the top spot of the senior 'B' hockey group last night when they defeated their intra-city rivals the Petes 7-4 in a game that was marked with all the traditional rivalry of the squads. Petes defeated the Eagles 5-4 in the first clash of the squads last week.

Eagles with three wins and a loss lead the loop with 6 points, the extra point coming from a four-pointer played with Queen's University. The Cobourg Hawks are the only unbeaten squad in the group, to date and they face a tough game tomorrow night when they meet the Petes in Peterborough.

Seaway Statement Delayed Several Days

Ottawa, Nov. 20—(CP)—Transport Minister Chevrier has postponed for several days a statement to the commons in connection with the establishment of a St. Lawrence seaway authority by which Canada hopes to build the development without the help of the United States. It was learned yesterday.

The minister gave notice on the commons order paper last Friday that he would propose "on Monday next" a resolution for establishment of the corporation, which would be empowered to borrow up to $300,000,000 and set tolls for shipping through the way.

The phrase "on Monday next" is an order-paper formality and it was learned the minister probably will not make his statement for several days.

FRANKFORD Will Operate Sectional Hockey In Valley League

Frankford — (Special) — A weekend meeting of the Trent Valley Hockey League was held in the Recreation Hall in Batawa for the purpose of electing officers for the current season and to review results for the year.

Art Duncan was re-elected to the office of president, and Dick Bridgman was appointed to the post of secretary-treasurer. It is hoped that a new office can be declared, with the officer responsible for all referees. This will cut the secretary's work about in half.

First vice president is Bill Regan of Marmora; second vice president Reg. Wardle of Belleville; third vice president Frank Oppenshaw of Havelock.

In the southern division, all teams who played last year will be represented except Brighton, Trenton, Belleville, Wellington, R.C.A.F. and Frankford. Frankford have a transfer in the Northern division, not because of any hard feelings against any team in the southern half, but because the teams in the local division do not bring a following with them. In former years, Frankford has had a good following of Marmora, Campbellford, Norwood, Stirling fans in games played in Frankford. The Frankford fans have in turn, followed their own team wherever they went. However, it was found impossible to grant this request, as it would have a top-heavy northern division, with only a four-team southern loop.

All Teams Back

In the north, it looks as if all the teams will be back this year, with one or two changes. Stirling will combine with Campbellford, which should make them a team to beat. Lakefield and Havelock have sought entry into the league as well. Last year's teams which will again be represented are: Peterborough, Brinton's, Norwood, Marmora, Campbellford and Stirling Combines.

The league will not be in as good a financial position to start this season, as they were a year ago. However, the initial expense in starting the two-division league going will not be required this year, so the operating costs should be lower.

The following financial report of the league has just been released by the executive:

New York, Nov. 20 —(AP)— The American Jewish Committee said yesterday "thousands of the estimated 2,000,000 Jews still alive in the Soviet Union are prisoners in Soviet slave labor and interment camps." ## ROSCOE ROBSON, Hastings East

PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE CANDIDATE

LADIES and GENTLEMEN,—

On November 22nd, we will go to the polls to elect a Government in the Province of Ontario. No doubt there are many of those of the radio audience, who have not yet made up their minds as to how they are going to mark their ballots.

Some of us continue to support one party or the other, from one election to another, and I think that is well.

Regardless of what I may say on this broadcast, some of my listeners will be supporting either of the opposition parties, but I am, no doubt, speaking to many of those who have no direct party affiliations.

The independent voters are the people who have the power to change Governments in the democratic country, and we hope that privilege will never be lost. The independent voter looks with a critical eye at the record of the Government which has been in power. He examines carefully the platform promises of the candidates in each riding, and he rewards each of the platform talk, that will be forgotten, when the election is over. That is why the Independent voter, in Hastings East, AND EVERY OTHER RIDING, is an important person, at the election on Thursday.

MERITS SUPPORT

Some day, our opposition in this election, may have policies which appeal to the independent voter. But in this election, we think, the record of the Frost Progressive Conservative administration is one which merits their support. For that reason I consider it a privilege to be afforded the opportunity of talking to those people, who may still be debating in their own minds, as to the party which they should support.

We feel that many of the independently-minded citizens are saying to themselves: LET'S GO FORWARD WITH FROST. He has proven his policies and he is making the promises he can fulfill.

Premier Frost said over this same station on Wednesday night: "We of the Progressive Conservative party come to you, the electors, with one simple promise, and that is, to continue to give you "GOOD, CLEAN, HONEST ADMINISTRATION."

We of the Progressive Conservative Party are happy in the knowledge that this campign in Hastings East, has been conducted in a clean manner, free from any bitterness. We have the fine personal regard for both of our opponents, and we know that we will still be friends with them, and their supporters, after November 22nd.

IT IS A PRIVILEGE FOR ME TO SPEAK ON BEHALF OF MY FRIEND, ROSCOE ROBSON, CANDIDATE FOR THE PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE PARTY IN THE RIDING OF HASTINGS EAST.

It is not my intention to deal at any length with the accomplishments and achievements in Hastings East. That work will be adequately covered by Premier Frost, in his address in Belleville on Wednesday night. However, in fairness, a few of the highlights in Hastings East has been 'neglected' is in order at this time.

HIGHWAY EXPENDITURES

A detailed report from The Ontario Department of Highways indicates that a total of $5,997,533.82 has been spent on roads by the Progressive Conservative Government in Hastings East since 1943. Does this indicate that Hastings East has been neglected during a record construction is concerned? One of the GREAT ACHIEVEMENTS has been the completion of No. 62 Highway, leading to Bancroft, and the development of tourist paradise, which will bring more American dollars to the district each year, for years to come, in this area.

Premier Frost has already told you that eleven hundred new Hydro consumers have been added in Hastings County, providing this needed service to the rural people who, up until now, have been denied those privileges, which most of us have enjoyed for many years.

We are sure that every resident that the Leader of the Liberal party says he will halt the construction of new schools. If his party is elected, the riding of Hastings East we have two fine additions to the High Schools at Madoc and Tweed under construction. One of the first considerations of those of us, who have children, is to see that they are given a good education. I can assure you that this expansion in our educatiup system in Hastings East has been badly needed. The overcrowded conditions have been apparent to educational authorities, teachers, and parents for a long time.

EDUCATIONAL ADVANCES

This Leader of the Opposition, to whom I have referred, would apparently have us go back to the days of 'the little red school house', with all the lack of facilities, poor and improper lighting, and inadequate ventilation.

We are living in an era of progress and advancement, and the Frost Government is to be commended on s'eps to provide equality of opportunity, for all of our children. They have the right to ENJOY, in their formative school years, all the conveniences and comforts of our modern Canadian way-of-life, and they shall be better citizens for it. The Progressive Conservative Government is determined that no obstacle shall stand in the way of the children of this province in enjoying every advantage which our educational institutions can make available.

RECREATIONAL FACILITIES

In the field of community service MR. ROBSON has done a great deal to assist those projects, which offer greater opportunities for our young people, to enjoy indoor and outdoor recreation. In this connection it was partly through Government grants that the new skating rink at Tweed, in Madoc Township, the football and diamond in Tweed, the Community Hall at Fort Stewart, and other undertakings were accomplished. Only this week we, in Tweed, received a cheque for $1200.00, which liquidated the debt on our new ball field.

As chairman of the Moira River Conservation Authority I am familiar with what the Ontario Government is doing in regard to flood control and reforestation. The cost of the survey, completed by the Ontario Department of Planning and Development, which described, incidentally, was established by the present administration, was entirely borne by the Government. It is the aim to create public parks, conserve water, and develop reforestation. The large survey portion of the necessary expenditures will continue to absorbed by the present Frost Government, when returned, and we have every confidence, that it will be most efficient.

Of interest to the farmers is the fact that The Dairy Herd Improvement Association was started in Hastings County in 1948 and likewise, the Quinte District Holstein Breeders in the same year.

Representing on behalf of all Commodity Groups, more especially The Cheese Producers and Vegetable Growers, were made to The Ontario Government, and they received every consideration. YOUR PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE CANDIDATE, MR. ROBSON, was chairman of The Agricultural Committee of the Legislature for three years and during that time the interests of all Commodity Groups were carefully considered and publicized.

All of these things are a tribute to the faithful and untiring service which YOUR MEMBER, MR. ROBSON, has given you. It was his help and advice that made them possible.

ELECTION PROMISES

It is quite apparent, at this stage of the election campaign, that the issue is between ROSCOE ROBSON and LEADER. I URGE UPON YOU TO RETURN MR. ROBSON, so that LITTLE WILL BE GIVEN AWAY. Even after making due and generous allowance for the difference between pre-election promises and actual delivery, it must be apparent to all but the most gullible, that we are drifting into pretty deep water.

No responsible party offers a product to the public without the price tag being clearly displayed. Only trouble comes when the buyer and buyer when someone agrees to take something he can't really afford

On a great many political promises, however, there is rarely a sign of a price tag, and no hint of how bills it taxes that must follow, as surely as night follows the day.

Unless we are willing to pay this costly business, unless we insist on the real price tag being firmly attached to every promise we are going to wake up some morning and find the Province of Ontario on the rocks of bankruptcy.

Nobody has ever discovered a substitute for taxes as a means of government revenues — TAXES SOMEWHERE SOMEHOW — so when the Leader of the Opposition tells his secret about where he is going to get all the money to fulfill his many promises he will have earned the world's thanks.

A native of Lindsay, a fine and typical Ontario town, Mr. Frost personally represents this province's progressiveness of Ontario. THERE IS NOTHING FLAMBOYANT or spectacular about him or his administration. Since becoming Premier he has lent personal prestige to this high office.

GAS TAX REDUCTION

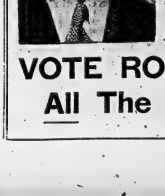
It is not my intention to say anything personally about his opponent, the Leader of the Liberal party. He is making extravagant promises, which all of us know cannot possibly be fulfilled. Last week he made the statement that, if elected, he would reduce the gasoline tax by three cents per gallon, and that it would be a saving of $150.00 per-person for the motorist who drives ten thousand miles a year. HE HAS MADE A WILD STATEMENT, either in the hope that it would not be noticed particularly, or that the figures would not be checked.



Presuming a mileage rate of 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline, the 10,000 mile driver would use 500 gallons of gasoline, and at Mr. Thomas's figure of reduction of 3 cents per gallon ,this would be a saving of $15.00, NOT $150.00 as suggested.

RESPONSIBLE LEADERS

Political aspirants, and particularly those who would lead one of Canada's major parties into the Legislature, should be responsible persons, in order to have the confidence of the people of the province. Just how Mr. Thomson expects citizens to have the necessary confidence in him, while at the same time making these irresponsible statements, is a mystery to us. Ontario's government MUST be in the hands of persons whose responsibility is proved.

We should all give serious and conscientious thought as to how we mark our ballots on Thursday. The future of this province lies in the hands OF YOU, the electorate.

In trying to place these few facts before you I will leave it to your GOOD JUDGMENT, to go out and vo'e in the interests of this, the banner province of the Dominion of Canada. AFTER YOU HAVE EXAMINED THE RECORD OF THE PRESENT ADMINISTRATION, AND THE EMPTY, OF UNFULFILLED PROMISES OF THE OPPOSITION, I HAVE CONFIDENCE THAT YOU WILL ALL GO OUT AND VOTE FOR MR. ROSCOE ROBSON, THE CANDIDATE OF THE FROST GOVERNMENT IN HASTINGS EAST.

Here's Your MAN!!

Junior Black Hawks Open Season With 5-2 Victory Over Peterborough

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

HAWKS COME THROUGH!

The Junior Hawks came through with a 5-2 victory over the Peterborough Triple Links in their seasonal debut in Memorial Arena last night, and for first-game junior hockey it was a full bread of the pastime. It was a typical Belleville - Peterborough junior clash with both teams caring not for the borderline between rough and rugged play and players of both squads were not the least reticent about issuing their scorns in the face of direction with little or no regard for locality.

It could have been a touch of stagefright; their first taste of fire under heavy hockey guns, or something else but despite their win, and they were the game in the drying minutes of the game, the Hawks did not display the dash and fire that characterized their later practice workouts. They were up against a hard-hitting fast-skating Peterborough squad, one that was improved nearly fifty per cent over that which bowed to the Kingston Vics by a 7-4 last Saturday night.

At that it was anybody's hockey game up until seven minutes to go when a last-minute offensive by the Hawks netted Dean three quick goals, one coming at 19.29 minutes for a brilliant solo effort by "Pinky" Doran. Doran, Strahan and Lalonde shared honors for the night with Don Barclay turning in a goaltending performance that was shaded only by that of young Wasson in the Peterborough nets.

Both teams, however, gave ample promise of better things to come and with Kingston and Lindsay said to have strong junior squads the boardism group this year bids fair to examine that of last season when four of the five squads swept through the schedule practically neck-and-neck.

QUITE A COACH!

Up in Niagara Falls they're singing the praises of Keith Lougheed, coach of the Stamford Collegiate Institute junior football squad which was eliminated by the powerful Port Colborne team which in turn eliminated the Belleville C. I.'s junior squad last Saturday.

Coach Lougheed rates this tribute from the Niagara Falls Gazette sports columnist: "One of the nicest guys you could meet anywhere . . . whose name can be added to top coaching ranks".

Last year Lougheed coached the Stamford basketball squad which defeated the BCI team in the COSSA playoffs held in Toronto. He is a member of the Stamford teaching staff besides coaching the football and basketball teams.

Incidentally he is a son of the Rev. A.-W. Lougheed, and Mrs. Lougheed, formerly of Shannonville, and a brother of Mrs. G.M. Fraser of Trenton.

QUITE A RECORD!

More details of the 1951 gridiron record of youthful Gary Schreiber, former St. Michael's Academy football and hockey star and now with St. Michael's College, Toronto came to hand today, and it is an enviable one.

Gary gained 562 yards from scrimmage in 45 tries averaging 18.9 and he caught 15 out of 16 forward passes fired at him. He kicked for convert 23 times and was successful in 14 of them. He scored 12 touchdowns and one safety touch which with his conversions gave him a season's mark of 76 points in seven games, three of them exhibition. He won the individual scoring championship of the Ontario Catholic Football Conference. Congratulations, young fella!

ACCENT ON YOUTH

Bill Tobin's Chicago Black Hawks will be reinforced by the finalization of the Jones farm system in an effort to bolster the squads game-winning efforts. Young Pete Conacher brought up from the Galt junior "A" squad inaugurated his National Hockey League experience with an assist on the Hawks' lone goal against the Leafs last Saturday night.

The Hawks will try out their young players in a three-game trial with the games alternating, according to Chief Eastern Scout Bob Wilson, at present in the city. Other Galt juniors who will get their chance at the big time with the parent club are Kenny Wharram, Costello and Wallace. Each will play three home games with the Hawks.

Meanwhile, a despatch out of Chicago says that Peter Conacher has been ordered home to complete his schooling, by pops Charlie Conacher. Bid Finney, a centre from the St. Louis Flyers has been brought up by the Hawks in their latest reinforcement move.

REFS, COACHES WANTED!

A miniature invasion of Memorial Arena took place last Saturday morning when 140 bantam hockey players surged in, on and over the ice in their first appearance of the season. Don Stanton, Belleville Hockey Association official tells us the bantites will get under way on Saturday next starting at 9 a. m. A schedule will be drawn up later. And coaches and a few referees are still urgently needed to help in getting the youngsters organized so any of you fellows who would like to assist in these capacities, please seen Don Stanton at the Arena Saturday morning. Thursday night the midgets and juveniles get under way.

Late Third-Period Drive Nets Three Goals After Teams Stalemate For Two Sessions

By MAURICE REID

Coach Red Doran's junior edition of the Belleville Black Hawks opened the season on the right foot last night at the Memorial Arena by pulling away from the visiting Peterborough Oddfellows in the closing minutes of the game to win a neat 5-2 victory.

Although never behind in the score, the Hawks, not until the dying moments of the fray, had a margin of more than one goal. Both clubs played hard and fast with the play of the opposing goalies, Wasson and Barclay, standing out.

Tied 2-2 with less than eight minutes left to play, Strahan took a pass from Wilson and pumped it by Wasson for the goal that was to eventually prove the winner. Four minutes later, Doran who had been playing well all night, sank another one for Hawks, scoring on a pass from the puck to DeGray who was standing on the goal crease. DeGray made no mistake and scored the goal that took a lot of pressure off the Hawks.

Doran's Picture Good

"Duke" Doran scored the picture goal of the night just before the final bell, with the Hawks playing a man short. He took the puck from centre ice around a pair of Oddfellows, pushing persistently around a defenceman and lifted the puck into the right side of the lines just as the final bell went off.

Play was quite close in the first two stanzas, both teams playing a rushing, hard-checking game. Every now and then, they would lose it, turn at throwing his weight around although it was comparatively clean, only several penalties being called.

Barclay, who played as good a game as anyone on the ice, tallied first for the homesters at 3.14 with Lalonde getting the assist. The lead was short-lived however, as Sullivan tied it up shortly after the eight minute mark. The teams remained deadlocked through the remainder of the period.

Strahan Gets a Pair

Billy Strahan got the first of his two counters shortly after the second frame with Lalonde drawing another assist. The lead held a little less than this time but Coyle set Twist up for tying tally late in the period and once again the teams left the ice in a deadlock. The score was indicative of the play with some nice stick-handling and clean hard checks featuring throughout. Both Barclay and Wasson pulled off some nice saves.

End to end rushes sang was the way the third chucker began with Wasson robbing Strahan and Therrien and Barclay pulling off clean saves from Robinson and Buckton. Barclay chalked several second-effort shots that looked labelled. About the half-way mark, the Hawks took over control and maintained a drive that proved sufficient to win the game.

Ten Penalties

A total of ten penalties were handed out, six to the visiting Oddfellows, Belleville's first and last markers were made when the platoon were shorthanded.

Strahan and Jacklin stood out as the best two way players for the Hawks with Doran, Brown, Green, Lalonde, Therrien and Barclay also deserving mention. Wasson and Robinson were the pick of the Peterborough club, Floyd, Twist and Coyle also turning in creditable performances.

The same two clubs hook up again on Friday night in the Little-lock City.

The Teams:

Belleville Hawks—Goal, Barclay; defence, Wilson, Green, Stevens, Brown; forwards, Lalonde, Jacklin, Strahan, DeGray, Therrien, Hall, Doran, Carey and Houle.

Peterborough Oddfellows—Goal Wasson; defence, Armstrong, Kimball, Bigford, Willson; forwards,

New York Rangers of the National Hockey League yesterday called up a 20-year-old forward Herb Dickenson of their Cincinnati farm of the American Hockey League.

Dickenson, in his first year of pro hockey, scored nine goals and was credited with three assists in 17 games with Cincinnati.

He will replace Nick Mickoski on the line with Don Raleigh and Ed Slowinski Wednesday night when the Rangers play host to Boston.

Dickenson, a five-foot-11-inch 175-pounder, played last year with Guelph Biltmores of the Ontario Hockey Association Jr. A group.

In Philadelphia, Arthur King, 136, British Empire lightweight champion from Toronto took only slightly more than two rounds to pound out a technical knockout decision over Hermie Freeman, 136, Chicago, in a scheduled 10-round bout last night. Referee Pete Tomaso stopped the fight at 1:17 of the third round after King's left-handed blows had Freeman's features pretty well mixed up.

In Toronto Allan McFater, promising young Toronto lightweight, [illegible] unanimous eight-round decision over Orlando Zu[illegible], Cuba, in the main bout of a professional boxing show at Maple Leaf Gardens last night. McFater weighed 140¾ pounds and Zulueta 133½.

At Dallas, Texas, it was announced yesterday that the University of Kentucky has accepted an invitation to play whatever team the southwest conference puts in the Cotton Bowl Jan. 1 on, lucky, way of the Sugar Bowl last Jan. 1. Just who Kentucky will meet in the Cotton extravaganza in Dallas won't be known for two weeks. The southwest conference has five teams still in the running for the title.

THE TRUE FACTS ABOUT THE SASKATCHEWAN AUTOMOBILE INSURANCE

The compulsory $11 plan meets the average driver's need. The "Package" plan available for an extra $17.50 — total $28.50 — gives the Saskatchewan auto insurance policy holders the following coverage:

1—Collision insurance with $25 deductable.
2—Public Liability insurance with $35,000 and $110,000
3—Property damage insurance with $6,000 limit.
4—Fire and Theft insurance
5—Passenger hazard insurance with $50,000 and $100,000 limits.
6—Accident insurance with death, $10,000; dismemberment, $2,000; loss of income, $3,000; medical and funeral benefits $125.
7—Hail and windstorm insurance.
8—Insurance on radio.

The Saskatchewan insurance office hasn't lost any money selling auto insurance. They made money in previous years but are committed to return their surpluses in the form of better coverage or lower prices. The so-called loss of $196,000 used up only some of the surplus from previous years.

What other Insurance Company returns the extra money to the motorists in extra value when they show a surplus?

Tigers, Argos, Riders Players Claim All Berths But One On Big Four All-Star Team

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 20 (CP) —The over-all dominance of Ottawa Rough Riders, Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Toronto Argonauts in the 1951 Big Four Football Union is reflected in the Canadian Press all-star team announced today. The "big three" yielded only one spot to the also-ran Montreal Alouettes.

Tiger-Cats, who went in a gallant two-game final series to the riders, gained some satisfaction with a five member representation on the team, chosen for CP by football writers, coaches and sportscasters. Ottawa and Toronto each placed three. Ray Ciccia, Montreal inside wing who has been an all-star the last three seasons, was the lone Alo choice.

Canadians Got Three

As in recent years, since the Canadian Rugby Union allowed an increase in imports from five to seven a club, Americans again predominate the mythical dream team. But Canadians made some gains in this direction, sending three home-breds to all-stardom against only one in 1950— Rod Pantages of the Als.

Santiago wasn't returned. His flying style here went to Bronco Cummings, former University of Toronto kicking and passing star now with the champion Riders. Outside Bob Simpson, a product of Windsor, Ont., collegiate football, took an outside position and Tiger-Cats' Eddie Bevan, from Hamilton, gained all-star recognition for an inside spot.

With the balloting weighted to give equal voting strength to each Big Four city, the selectors put the finger on four hold-overs from the 1950 all-stars—Ciccia, Vince Mazza of the Tiger-Cats and Tweedle's Hyrnes (Craig Logan, Curtis and Ed (Buckets) Hirsch.

It was the first time since CP inaugurated the poll in 1933 that spectacasters were given a vote.

Three Americans made the grade in their freshman year in Canada.

Middle Bob Gain, University of Kentucky lineman, one of the best in U.S. college football last season and now with Riders; Bernie Custis, Tiger-Cats quarter and forward passer from Syracuse University, and Hal Wagoner, hard-hitting Tulane University expatriate also with Tiger-Cats.

Gain six-foot-four-inch middle who combines his line play with deadly convert and placement-kicking, drew the most points in the ballot—310 of a possible 340. The Team:

Flying wing, Bruce Cummings, Ottawa.

Half, Hal Wagoner, Hamilton.

Half, Ulysha Curtis, Toronto.

Half, Billy Bass, Toronto.

Quarter, Bernie Custis, Hamilton.

Snap, Buckets Hirsch, Toronto.

Inside, Ray Ciccia, Montreal.

Inside, Eddie Bevan, Hamilton.

Middle, Bob Gain, Ottawa.

Outside, Jack Carpenter, Hamilton.

Outside, Vince Mazza, Hamilton.

Outside, Bob Simpson, Ottawa.

Trawick Missing

Missing from the team for the first time in five years is Herb Trawick, 220-pound Montreal middle from Pittsburgh who no longer is classed as an import.

And probably the biggest surprise in the absence of Tip Logan, rangy outside wing with Hamilton who finished the 13-game schedule as the league's leading scorer with 51 points, made up of two touchdowns, five placements and 36 converts.

A two-man race for the quarterback slot finished with Custis getting the nod over Tom O'Malley, a vital spark in Ottawa's drive to its first title since 1948.

George Ratterman, the high-priced import from New York Yankees who was labbed to set the league on fire with his deadly passing for the Als, and Argonauts' Nobby Wirkowski did not get a mention for the spot taken last year by Frankie Filchock when he called the signals for the Als.

Filchock went to Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Canada League this season.

Tennessee Back In First Place Over Mich. State

By WILL GRIMSLEY

New York, Nov. 20 (AP) — Tennessee reclaimed No. 1 position in The Associated Press college football poll today, pushing Michigan State back into the runner-up spot.

The Sugar Bowl-bound Volunteers, who meet Kentucky Saturday in one of the top games of the day, received 60 of 106 first-place votes cast by sport writers and broadcasters across the United States.

The Vols won their eighth straight game last weekend, smashing Mississippi 46-21. Michigan State's Spartans had a tight squeeze with battered Indiana before prevailing 20-26.

Tennessee and Michigan State have staged a nip-and-tuck battle for top honors from the start of the campaign.

The Spartans drew 38 first place votes, compared with 35 in the previous poll.

There was no change in the personnel of the top 10, but the order of standing underwent a slight shake-up. Illinois, held to a scoreless tie by Ohio State limbled from third to sixth place while Stanford and Maryland, impressive winners over formidable rivals, pushed to the front of contention.

Stanford leaped to third place on the strength of its 35-14 triumph over Oregon State. Maryland, Lonely named as Tennessee's opponent in the Sugar Bowl smothered North Carolina State 35-6, to take fourth place.

The top 10 (with first-place votes and season's records in parentheses):

| | Pts. |
|---|---|
| 1. Tennessee (60) (8-0) | 1348 |
| 2. Michigan State (38) (8-0) | 1290 |
| 3. Stanford (18) (9-0) | 1193 |
| 4. Maryland (26) (8-0) | 1187 |
| 5. Princeton (8) (8-0) | 816 |
| 6. Illinois (2) (7-0-1) | 802 |
| 7. Georgia Tech (1) (9-0-1) | 672 |
| 8. Wisconsin (3) (6-1-1) | 442 |
| 9. Kentucky (4) (7-3) | 339 |
| 10. Baylor (6-1-1) | 333 |

Remember When

(By The Canadian Press)

The first professional hockey game was played at the Boston Garden 25 years ago tonight, when Montreal Canadiens defeated Boston Bruins 1-0. The Boston Bruins won the league championship in that 1926-26 season and went on to win the Stanley Cup. Their last Stanley Cup triumph was in 1941.

Kyle Unseats 'Rocket' Richard As Loop Bad Man

Montreal, Nov. 20—(CP)—Detroit Red Wings, with two victories last week increased from three to five points over Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League race.

Red Wings now have nine victories, two defeats and five deadlocks for a total of 23 points. They broadened the gap with victories over the lowly Chicago Black Hawks and the cellar-dwelling New York Rangers after a five-game series of deadlocks.

Toronto has six victories, five losses and six ties, holding on to second place with a point lead over Montreal Canadiens. The Habs have a 7-7-3 count.

Howe Moves Up

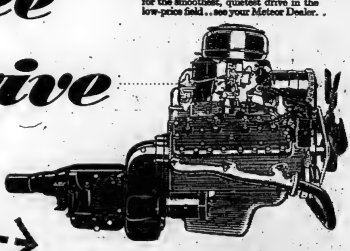
Two behind the Montreal club are Boston Bruins with 15 points in 15 starts—made up of an even 5-5-5—while Chicago follows with 12 points, one more than New York.

Detroit's Gordie Howe, right winger born in Floral, Sask., picked up three goals and an assist last week to move into third position in the individual scoring race.

With his eight goals and six assists, Howe is threatening to unseat two Montreal Canadiens who have held top spot for some weeks now.

It's the only two points behind Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Elmer Lach. Richard's 11 goals are a current mark, while Lach is setting the pace in the assists division with 14.



Al Rollins, Toronto net-minder, has had 28 goals scored against him in 17 games for a 1.65 average. He also boasts two shutouts. Following him closely is Detroit's Terry Sawchuk who has 26 jucks past him in 16 games for a 1.75 average. Sawchuk is leading in the shutout department with three.

The two Canadian N. H. L. teams are the most penalized ones in the league. Canadiens lead, 198 minutes in penalties while Toronto's lost 171.

St. Laurent Cautions United States Against Doctrine of Preventive War

New York, Nov. 20—(CP)—Canada's prime minister last night cautioned the United States against the doctrine of preventive war.

Louis St. Laurent, in a speech before the economic club of New York which was later broadcast over the CBC's dominion network, said:

There may be many who will say that . . . . we should hit first before we are hit—that the best thing to do is to get the inevitable over with.

"The appeal of that kind of doctrine is likely to grow as the military strength of the free world grows," he said. In the next few years it may be that nothing will be so important as to remember that what we are doing is trying to prevent a third world war, not to win one."

Though convinced that the west would win if forced into war, St. Laurent said that even victory "will bring with it destruction, dislocation and desolation so great as to constitute a threat to civilization itself."

Warning that the democracies are faced "for many years to come" with living in the framework of a totalitarian system behind the iron curtain, St. Laurent said the only choice before North Americans is one "between the calm, patient and intelligent leadership of the free world by the United States" and a "rapid deterioration of the circumference of the free world."

Supports Leadership

St. Laurent strongly supported U. S. leadership of the west. He said that while free countries may differ in tactics, they "cannot quarrel with the strategy of American leadership."

St. Laurent said that North America's importance in the world is not transitory. He added: "And though I have said North America and though we like and expect to be consulted, we Canadians are realistic and we know that there has to be proper relationship between power and responsibility; and that the U. S. alone has the necessary power to support the required leadership."

To create a peaceful world it would be necessary to maintain military strength "perhaps for generations," the prime minister said. And this strength must be so substantial to be challenged by any potential aggressor with any hope of final victory."

St. Laurent expressed the view that there could have been no North Atlantic Alliance if American leadership had not been backed "upon a consistent and clear-signed foreign policy which has been pursued steadily . . . ever since the close of the war."

Marriage on Rocks In Seven Weeks

Hollywood, Nov. 20—(AP)—The seven-week marriage of Francbot Tone and actress Barbara Payton is on the rocks, her lawyer said today.

The lawyer, Robert S. Feder, said the couple quarrelled bitterly Sunday night and separated yesterday. He said he plans to file a divorce action soon, possibly next week.

Feder said he did not know what the quarrel was about.

Neither Tone nor Miss Payton could be reached for comment.

They were married Sept. 29 in Cloquet, Minn., after Tone was released from a hospital here. He spent several days in bed recovering from a beating given him by actor Tom Neal in a dispute over the blonde actress' affections.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)— Dull influences likely but going to very benefic ones. Why not plan and work carefully now that you may reap the big possibilities indicated for tomorrow? Much may be obtained.

YOU BORN TODAY are on the Scorpio - Sagittarius Cusp with characteristics from both Signs. Strong, fine qualities, and by same token, some strong traits that unless corrected can become harmful faults. Great energy, general ability, talents are yours plus true charity, generosity and magnetic personality. On the other side is a tendency to procrastination, be too arbitrary, perhaps susceptible to flattery. Higher education, spiritual development are bulwarks upon which you can lean and succeed. Pray daily for guidance.

Hospital Plan of Liberal Party Outlined by Speakers At Joint Meeting in Village

Bancroft—"The cost of hospitalization is simply beyond the reach of the working man today and in a province as wealthy as Ontario there is no reason why people being harassed by these costs, stated Angus Duffy, Liberal candidate for Hastings West at an open meeting in Bancroft's Canadian Legion Hall on Saturday night.

Under the plan sponsored by provincial leader Walter Thomson and the Liberal party the total cost for a prepaid plan for the average family of father, mother and children will be approximately $30 per year", said Mr. Duffy.

Reminding his audience to vote "Think and vote Liberal", the candidate for Hastings West said that the voters should not be mesmerized by simple jobs and hysterical back-slapping by the spokesmen for the present government. As an illustration he mentioned the newly-completed road between Madoc and Bancroft, stating that this job was started about 1932 and in the ordinary course of events should have been finished years ago.

"The present 11 cent per gallon tax on gasoline is unreasonable", announced Mr. Duffy, when speaking of the Liberal viewpoint on that subject. "When the federal government placed their tax of three cents per gallon the provincial government picked it up before it reached the ground. This present tax is unreasonable and it is reflected in the costs of everything everyday articles. Just think how it adds to the costs of delivering."

Plan Outlined

If he were elected as a member of the provincial legislature Mr. Duffy promised to keep in constant touch with his constituents. "My plan is to hold four meetings a year in the riding" he said. "They will be held three months apart in Bancroft, Trenton, Marmora and Belleville. The first one will be held in December. At these meetings the people will bring their problems to me and I will explain the government legislation to them."

There was too much ballyhoo and publicity about the government's policy of building new schools when it did not completely cover the situation was Mr. Duffy's conclusion. He stated that more building was necessary in many places and that practically every urban school had at least one room in the basement".

"That road from Belleville to Foxboro to Marmora is up and down like a roller-coaster at a midway. I am amazed that the Hon. George Doucett is living up and letting amassment tax from people who ride on it", said Don Carruthers, Liberal candidate for East Hastings.

Should Improve Road Claim

He, Mr. Carruthers, also agreed that the road from Foxboro to Madoc should be improved and that it should have been taken over by the province of Ontario years ago.

Speaking of the policy of the Frost government on the hydro question he classed many of the present rates as ransomous and criticized the administration for not yet releasing its financial statement for 1949-50. He maintained that hydro should be available to all before the government embarked upon an expensive program of carrying from 25 cycle to 60 cycle in Southwestern Ontario.

Frank S. Follwell, Liberal M.P. for South Hastings reiterated the opinions of his colleague for the provincial house when he placed the hospitalization plan of provincial leader Walter Thomson at the top spot in the present Liberal platform.

"Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia have provincial hospital plans, yet there is not one in the wealthy province of Ontario, despite the enormous surplus of the present Progressive - Conservative government", he said. Mr. Follwell also praised Saskatchewan for introducing such a plan in spite of the fact that compared to Ontario, Saskatchewan was a poor province and recent statistics showed that its population was decreasing instead of increasing.

Department Criticized

The present policy of the department of lands and forests came under fire from the speaker. "In the eight years since 1943 a number of the large pulp and paper companies have increased their dividends 471 per cent yet they are still paying the same stumpage fees that they paid in 1943", he said.

"Many of these big companies cut balsa bolts and thousands of large trees that should become logs are cut into pulp wood that is manufactured into paper, not in Ontario, but in United States," he continued. If this wood had been diverted from pulp wood to lumber it would have produced a sufficient number to build 600,000 houses, announced the federal member for South Hastings.

Mr. Follwell stated that "all legislation for old age pensions had been started by Liberal governments." Starting in January, 1963 the provincial government would be saving millions per year as the federal administration was absorbing all the cost of pensions for those over 70 and the Ontario government would just be paying 50 per cent for those between the 65 to 69 age bracket.

Forced to Co-Operate Claim

"When you talk of co-operation Walter Thomson could do more in a few months than Mr. Frost could do in years," continued Mr. Follwell. "Mr. Frost started to co-operate with Ottawa when Ontario elected 58 Liberal members to the federal parliament in 1940. There certainly was no co-operation during the regime of the Drew government, especially evident during the dominion-provincial conference of 1945 and this same policy was continued by Mr. Frost, until 1949."

Continuing on the co-operation theme and relating it to hospitalization plans he stated that "there was neither co-operation nor cohesion nor understanding among the members of the present administration," as the Hon Dr. Vivian had promised a health plan, when it had not been announced by the cabinet as a whole.

The speaker promised that a Liberal administration would relieve the powers and-attitude of the present municipal board so that it would fulfil its primary and intended purpose of advising and not dictating to municipal governments.

In conclusion the present gasoline tax came under fire for the second time in the evening. The Liberal party is pledged to take three cents off the present tax" said Mr. Follwell. "The ink was not dry on the repealing measure of the federal government before the provincial government pick-ed it up. In 1950 Ontario collected $97,000,000 by this tax yet it spent only $46,000,000 of this total in road work."

All speakers, and the chairman, Walter Turner, urged and reminded the gathering to get out and vote and to pass this word along to the citizens of every political party.

Threats of New Floods Follow Heavy Rains

Rovigo, Italy, Nov. 20 (AP)—Threats of new floods in the already-devastated Po River delta appeared today following heavy rains through Northern Italy. More than 100 deaths already have been recorded.

At Turin, nearly 300 miles to the northwest, the level of Italy's mightiest river rose three feet last night. Many Po tributaries were approaching flood stage across the country.

Water was running in the streets of Gallarate, a town of 34,900 north of Turin. Damage to the electric power plant plunged the town into darkness last night.

Flooding rivers threatened to overflow Lake Lugano, along the Italian-Swiss border.

In stricken Rovigo province and the Po River delta—scene of the greatest damage in the Po Valley during the last 10 days —a huge rescue force continued to clear danger spots of remaining inhabitants.

A fleet of planes—British, American and Italian—supplied food and medicine to those marooned in the areas.

Premier Alcide de Gasperi and his cabinet began deliberating on measure to care for the huge refugee population —estimated at 200,000—and to meet the staggering reconstructio: bill.

Relief funds running into millions of lire already have been donated by Italians, along with tons of food, clothing and blankets.

Induction Ceremony Held By Belleville Rotary Club; Four New Members Join

Edward Simmons, past district governor and charter member of the Trenton Rotary Club, conducted an induction ceremony of four new members into the Belleville Club following the weekly luncheon meeting in the Quinte Hotel on Monday.

Mr. Simmons reviewing the history of Rotary stated that Rotary, aside from the church, is one of the most successful organizations in existence. "What you are and what you make of yourself is your gift to Rotary", he stated.

"A fine ideal of Rotary is largely a matter of individual inspiration", he continued, "and each member has his own interpretation. Do something with your membership and give something back to Rotary."

Deals with History

The speaker dealt at length with the history and activities of Paul Harris, one of the founders of Rotary International, as well as the organization itself. Rotary International was founded in 1905 and now has a membership of $30,000 in 7,200 clubs throughout 83 countries. "The International organization has outlasted several great men of that year as well as their ideas," the speaker stated, and cited evidence to bear out his claim.

The four new members inducted were Ted Booth, introduced by Gilbert Scott; Frank Tulk, introduced by George Campbell; Harry Gourley, introduced by Arthur Hill; and Dr. Harry Burns, introduced by President Court Miller.

Mr. Booth, born and educated in Montreal, is the president of the Northern Electric Belleville plant. His classification is electronics.

Born in Huntingdon, England, Mr. Tulk has lived in Belleville for the past 24 years, joining Rotary under the classification of retailer.

Born In Toronto

Harry Gourley was born in Toronto. He associated himself with General Motors in Oshawa in 1926 becoming a dealer associate with that firm in 1940. He moved to Belleville in 1945 becoming president of his present business. His classification is auto parts and accessories.

Dr. Harry Burns was born in Cobden, Ontario, is a graduate of Ontario Agricultural College and also the Ontario Veterinary College. He is a specialist in agronomy and was at one time an assistant agriculturist inspector for Ontario.

A sing-song was led by Bert Holuston with Harry Gourley at the piano.

President Court Miller made reference to the Rotary Fellowship Awards and also to the district conference at Niagara. George Campbell has been appointed chairman of th e On-to-Niagara campaign.

Regret was expressed about the confinement to hospital of J. Spragge because of a heart attack and hope was expressed that both he and Wilfred Holmes, who is also in hospital, would be out soon.

The Outsiders

By Jane Abbott

As he presented it, and with what he had said the evening before about it, it sounded childish to say she wanted to keep the mill. So she did not say anything.

Clibbert patted her hand. "It's no time for you to work up any sentiment, my girl. This is business, remember, and that never don't go together. This may be a heaven-sent chance for you to get out from under a losing thing. Understand, I'm not sure of this Reading crowd and we mustn't hurry 'em, but at the same time we mustn't let them get discouraged and go looking for another valley. I'll answer this last letter as soon as I get back to my office. I'll suggest we get together on it." He slipped off the desk. "And remember what I said—don't talk about it to anyone."

He stood at her shoulder. "I'm driving over to Cranford this afternoon. Got to get something started on that beater. How about going with me?"

She shook her head. "I'm sorry, I can't—not this afternoon. "A swell day like this! Well, we'll drive over some evening and take in a movie. Now I'll go and write that letter." He looked at her shoulder lightly as he went past her.

"Will the doctor give you a report on how badly Dave Wilson's hand is hurt?"

His laugh was wholly individual. "You refuse to put that out of your head, do you? Yes, I'll get a report and give it to you. Anything more before I go?"

There was suddenly a great deal more but it was all too jumbled in Eliza's mind to be put into words. She said "no" and lowered her eyes from the slight challenging in his.

She did not stay long, after he left. When she went out to her car she saw a little group of men standing idly in the mill yard. From the shed where the beater had broken down, she thought. She had a sudden impulse to go over to them, talk to them, but it faltered when she saw them turn their heads away from her.

As she drove out of the yard Marilyn Streeter came out of Pete Smead's store, some filled paper bags in her arm. Eliza stopped the car, called to her.

Marilyn asked, "will you get out and come in?" There wasn't much urging in Marilyn's voice.

"I stopped to tell you we had a nice party you had last night." Then Eliza opened the door and got out. "Just for a few minutes."

"The kitchen's a mess. I have not done a thing this morning."

Eliza said quickly, "we should have helped you clear up everything last night. Wash them now and let me wipe."

"Well, if you want to. I suppose they've got to be done. John'll be in for some lunch soon. If anyone could know how sick I am of washing dishes!"

"Maybe you don't get out enough," suggested Eliza.

Marilyn swashed the soap around in the water with some violence. "Where'd I go? You'll find out what a dreadful place this is! I hate, hate, hate it!" Tears suddenly began to roll down her cheeks. "It's worse than a prison. All alone every day."

"But you have Doctor Streeter."

At that Marilyn began to laugh in little sharp spasms, her tears running, her hands working blindly over the dishes.

"Marilyn, please," begged Eliza, terribly embarrassed.

"It's your saying that— you don't know how funny it was!" Another burst of laughter came and tears with it. "Don't mind me—it's just one of those things when I have to let go. Either cry or get awful mad—you ought to see me when I'm mad! You'd rather see me cry!"

Eliza hung her towel on a rack. "Will you come up to my house for lunch some day? I can stop for you when I leave the mill." Marilyn was lonely here, as she was. It would help both of them, perhaps, if they saw something of each other.

But Marilyn said quickly, with a defiant lilt of her head, "maybe I won't be here. Maybe I'm going away."

"When you come back then. And I'm glad you may be going to have a little holiday."

Marilyn pushed the teakettle to the back of the stove. "And maybe I won't be coming back!" She gave a sharp little laugh, turned from Eliza's surprised look. "Oh, I'm just cracked this morning! What I mean is—if ever I did get away, naturally I wouldn't want to come back to this!"

Eliza made an excuse to go. Hespeth will be wondering where I am." And Marilyn did not urge her to stay longer.

Approaching the Wilson house, she saw Hespeth coming out of the picket gate. She stopped the car, opened the door for Hespeth to get in.

Hespeth said, when she had settled herself "I made a loaf out of that end of meat and took it down there. Takes a lot to feed Dave Wilson. And Annie's got her hands full, now."

Envy struck Eliza. Hespeth knew so well what to do!

Eliza knew Hespeth listened while she practised. She would hear the scraps of a chair put against the kitchen door to hold it open and sometimes Hespeth would come into the back parlor and sit on the edge of a chair there. So today, when her ear caught the creak of a floorboard she thought it was Hespeth, and did not so much as glance over her shoulder.

She was working on the Liszt rhapsody, going over and over the more difficult parts, intent on the technique. So after a little she had to stop to rest her fingers and immediately someone behind her said "pretty fine!"

She knew the voice . . . She swung around on the stool, her heart pounding against her ribs. "I thought—it was Hespeth!"

Chris Cameron came up to the piano. "Hespeth told me to walk in. It's a habit we got into when your grandfather was living. He'd be in his study and I'd come and Hespeth would tell me to go along in." He did not say it apologetically. He stood by the piano leaning against it, smiling across it at her.

"What?" asked Eliza.

Chris paused to choose his words. "A kinship among the people, stronger than blood ties. A very fine kind of neighborliness.

You know about your great-grandfather—so, he'd be your great-great grandfather, wouldn't he?—sending word to his friends up north to join him here? They had shared some pretty rough going together and he wanted to go on sharing with them what this valley had to offer. Quite a few came and more after them. Kind to the valley, now, I'd say, is peopled by the sons of the sons of those first settlers, living on the land this first Forrestal decided to them. There are some old notes and a few old letters pasted in that journal of your grandfather's." Chris nodded toward the bookshelves.

"Neighborliness," repeated Eliza with some spirit. "Isn't it more a clannishness? They shut out everyone who comes in from the outside."

She saw Chris smile and thought he was remembering the indignation with which she had denied being an outsider.

"I figure that's a throw-back to the cautious those first settlers had to follow. They had to be very certain who and what a man was before they let him into their midst. A defensive instinct then, and I suppose it is now. But it's only a matter of time . . ."

Eliza looked around at him. "And proving something, I remember you said. But wouldn't you think my grandfather's will was enough to prove my right to be here?"

(To Be Continued)

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a Sunday walk with pop, and pop said, There's something familiar about that chap that just passed.

Meening a man with a brown suit and a cane, and I said, I thought I knew him too, but I dont think I do.

I'm sure I know him from somewhere, pop said.

And he looked back for another look, and just then the man looked back too, and he waved at pop and pop waved back, and they both terned around and shook hands, pop saying, How do you do, I didn't know you at first.

Yes, I thought you looked puzzled, the man said, A lovely Sunday, isn't it? he said, and pop said, Yes, isn't it? As a matter of fact, to speak frankly, I dont quite seem to recall you even now.

Maybe I can refresh your memory, the man said.

And he took an envelope out of his pocket and handed it to pop, and pop read the name on it, saying, You mean this is your name, Roger Appleby?

Y but that's not the point, the man said, I'll tr again, he said.

And he took out another letter and handed it to pop, saying, Now do I seem more familiar?

For Peet sakes you're the mailman, pop said, and the man said, That's me, Hardly anybody knows me without my uniform. I always carry a cane when I take my ing me I'm walking for pleasure and not for hirness. Well, good bye now, he said.

And he kept on going, and I said, G, pop, how do you think he feels when he opens his own front door and another mailman hands him a letter?

He probably feels like a barber being shaved by another barber, pop said. He feels fine, he said.

Train-Car Crash Takes Five Young Lives at Dryden

Engineer Says Driver Raced Train to Crossing

Dryden, Ont., Nov. 21 (CP)—Five persons were killed Tuesday night about 11 miles east of here, when a motor car to which they were riding was in collision with a 100-car freight train.

The dead: Mrs. Rose Franklin, 20, of Winnipeg; Anne Marcoux, 19, of Richer, Man., Adrien Aubin, 19, of Qreber; Roger Lebeh, 23, of Quebec; and James Gerow Atkinson, 23, of Winnipeg. Ida Marcoux, 17, of Richer, was the only survivor. The car was driven by Aubin.

The engineer of the train said the car, travelling north, raced the Canadian Pacific Railway freight to the crossing, and was hit by the front of the locomotive ripping the cow catcher off the engine. The car was carried a half mile before the train was stopped.

All three men were killed almost instantly. The two girls died in hospital. Mrs. Franklin's injuries admittance. Ida Marcoux, the survivor, suffered two broken ankles, and minor injuries. She is expected to recover. Miss Marcoux, sitting in the back seat of the car, was cushioned during the impact by the bodies of those sitting in front of her.

The victims were all employed in Dryden.

Orphanage Ward Missing 5 Days Found in Bush

Kitimpani, Ont., Nov. 21—(CP)—Dudley Stumm, 24-year-old ward of a Buffalo orphanage, was rescued yesterday from what he thought was his "last sleep."

A search party found him collapsed on a knoll in the Hailstone swamp-and-muskeg country. He had been missing without food or matches in freezing weather, for five nights and days.

Wallace Scott, game overseer and search leader, said the party stumbled on Stumm less than 90 minutes before the band was supposed to end.

"The first thing he wanted was a cigaret," Scott said. "Then he asked for food. He told us he was just about all-in—a sleep he figured was his last—when we came along."

Stumm was carried out of the bush on a makeshift stretcher and sent to hospital at Matheson 30 miles north of here.

He told searchers he lost hope yesterday after he sighted a search plane and was too weak to signal it.

Stumm had taken off his shirt and bound his hands to keep them from freezing at night. When found he was soaking wet, having stumbled into a pool a short time before.

"He spent a day and night on the knoll," Scott said. "He had no matches and couldn't light a fire to keep warm."

Stumm, with two priests, was on a vacation from the Roman Catholic Mission Home in Buffalo. He went into the bush with Rev. Howard Schwartz and Rev. Franklin Keliher and the party became separated.

Impostor Will Be Discharged At Esquimalt

Ottawa, Nov. 21 (CP)—Ferdinand Waldo Demara, Jr., who joined the navy as Dr. Joseph Cyr and performed medical operations aboard the destroyed Cayuga, is to be discharged from the navy at Esquimalt today, naval headquarters announced.

The navy said he would be dishonorably discharged from the service. He is entitled to transportation back to the point in Canada where he enlisted—Saint John, N.B.

Meanwhile, immigration officials have opened an investigation as to how the mysterious 32-year-old American from Lawrence, Mass., got into Canada. If it is found he has no legal status in this country he will be shipped back to the United States.

Immigration authorities said it is possible Demara may have illegally entered Canada aboard a bus at St. Stephen, N.B., last March. He was detained at that point on application for permission to remain in Canada.

Investigation of his case is continuing.

Only Five Nations in Non-Communist World Have More Food Than Needed

Rome, Nov. 21—(AP) — Only five countries in the non-communist world, Canada, the United States, Australia, New Zealand and Argentina, have more food than they need, the United Nations food and agriculture organization reported today.

Most of the countries are getting hungrier, a survey put before the organization's sixth world conference added.

The survey included neither Russia nor any of its satellites, which also are in the food deficit, but that is known of their food situation in the harvests this year have been reported above normal due to excellent weather.

Argentina said the report still has a food surplus to export though her production actually has decreased since the war. In the United States and Canada there have been large increases in food output, while Australia and New Zealand have maintained their output at pre-war levels and also have fed considerably increased populations of their own.

The other countries, with nine times as many people, not only have failed to push production is slightly below Second World War levels and food supplies per person, due to population increases, average only 90 per cent of the 1934-38 output.

The report, fast, however, shows "considerable improvement" in its agricultural production since the war, ther improvement is 'anticipated.."

The report said:

"The United States, Canada and Oceania (Australia and New Zealand) present a striking contrast to the near east, the far east and Africa. The United States and Canada combined, with only seven per-cent of the world's population to feed and clothe, already produced 17 per cent of all agricultural output before the war and now have advanced to 22.8 per cent.

Latin America's food production outside of Argentina also has been expanding, F.A.O. said.

ONTARIO ELECTION CAMPAIGN NEAR END OF TRAIL

Voters Will Give Verdict on Thursday

(By The Canadian Press)

Campaigning in tomorrow's Ontario general election is all but over.

E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario C. C. F. leader, speaks today in Kitchener. Premier Frost is spending the day quietly in his home riding of Victoria and his home town of Lindsay and has no speeches scheduled. Walter Thomson, Ontario Liberal leader, also has cancelled campaign speechmaking and plans to put in the day in his home riding of Kent East in the Ochawa area.

Tomorrow the voters in the province's 90 ridings from the Quecec border to the Manitoba boundary and from the international line to the sub-arctic will give their verdict.

Premier Frost, who has campaigned for re-election on the basis of the administration's record, predicted in his closing address that his government will be returned to power.

In an apparent reference to his Liberal opponents, he said in Toronto:

"The party which has made so many promises is now trying to escape solitary member in Toronto and the Yorks."

Mr. Thomson, in a statement yesterday, pledged his party to "clean up liquor abuses in Ontario" if the Liberals win. He made public his party's liquor policy, which included more effective control of sale in licensed outlets and the sale of liquor profits for social services.

Rent Control Needed Claim

In another statement he said his late-Sunday pay for 5½ years' work as a solicitor for the veterans affairs department was $37,000. His opponents had repeatedly charged that he say how much he kept of the $347,000 paid by the government to his law firm.

Later, speaking at Cobourg and Port Hope, he said rent control is needed in Ontario because there is a shortage of homes. He repeated a promise that, if necessary, a Liberal government would go into low-rental housing. He said he has received many letters from ex-service persons wishing his party "God speed" in its proposed provincial housing plan.

Mr. Jolliffe, sharing a platform at Kitchener with Clarke Gruhn, area with Agriculture Minister Kennedy, disputed a claim by Mr. Frost that the C.C.F. opposition to Co-operative is the only example of an agricultural co-operative working against other provincial legislation. Mr. Jolliffe said farmers in other ridings including the western wheat pools which he said are regulated to some extent by boards of international marketing arrangements.

He said the C.C.F. proposed to establish a Canadian marketing board for marketing agricultural products thereby freeing Ontario farmers from such problems as fluctuating prices for their produce.

Hon. L. B. Pearson Sees Need Of Breaking 'Circle of Fear' Which Hampers Disarmament

BY NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Paris, Nov. 21.—(CP)—Canada's external affairs minister, L. B. Pearson, said today a way must be found to break the vicious circle of fear" holding back effective west disarmament.

Pearson, Canada's chief delegate to the United Nations, told the U. N. 60-member political committee in Paris the present U.N. western disarmament proposal that would way to cut through the circle is by establishment of U. N. agencies for international arms inspection.

His statement put Canada behind the proposals presented by the United States, France and Britain. But, he added, their suggestions are not necessarily the only ones which could be devised, and he is anxious to hear say others.

No Harsh Words

Pearson's speech was free from the harsh anti-Soviet wordsewhich characterized his general debate address, but nevertheless struck at the arguments advanced by Andrei Vishinsky, Russian foreign minister, against the western proposals. Vishinsky said U. N. statements have been free of invective since last week's moderately-worded address by Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary.

Western delegates awaited Vishinsky's answer to the west—Pearson's and the tone for the rest of the session.

Pearson said the question of disarmament is one of real and effective disarmament. Therefore-a paper agreement without guarantees as suggested by Russia—was not enough.

"We must begin by putting trust, not in each other—which for the time being is impossible—but in U. N. agencies which we hope to get up," he said.

Confidence Could Grow

If only mutual confidence could grow if both advance step by step in the proposed stages of the western disarmament plan.

Rejecting Russian charges that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is aggressive, Pearson said

Be Sure to Vote

(An Editorial)

In the Ontario election which was held in June, 1948, 2,626,816 persons had the right to vote, but only 1,759,961, or just over 66 per cent of them, took the trouble to do so.

Since Ontario's population has increased substantially in recent years, it is estimated that about three million citizens have the right to vote in the provincial election which will be held tomorrow. If about the same proportion votes as in the election held in 1948, about two million will vote tomorrow. That is not nearly good enough.

Anyone who has read the editorial columns of the Ontario Intelligencer in recent months, or previously, knows that this newspaper does not presume to tell its readers how to vote; it has no hesitation, however, in telling them that they should vote.

Democracy on the original Hellenic model, in which every citizen actually participated in the government of his city-state, is not possible and perhaps not even desirable under modern conditions. But every Ontario citizen more than 21 years of age has the right to help decide who is going to make the laws under which he lives, and it behooves every citizen who has that right to exercise it and by so doing help to preserve and strengthen it.

In a long list of countries in various parts of the world, citizens who once had the right to decide by whom they would be governed no longer have lost that right. In most instances, if not in all, they lost the right to name their rulers because of the apathy of a large proportion of the voters. This apathy could be highly organized and determined minority (this minority appears under different names in different places, but its objective is always the same) to move in. After the moving in is completed, the taking over of power begins, gradually at first, but with increasing momentum until all power is concentrated in a small group.

After this happens, there is either no voting or none that we know of. The state controls everything. If it allows voting, it retains the right to name all candidates and thus is able to see that whoever is elected is a creature of the all-powerful central dictatorship.

We have been told "it can't happen here" so often that it seems trite and tiresome to repeat the phrase, but the plain truth is that it can happen here unless those of us who want to preserve our own institutions show vigilance in doing so.

The freedoms which we enjoy have broadened greatly since that faraway day when the barons, Normans by birth but French-speaking and half French in ancestry, assembled in a meadow beside the River Thames and forced a tyrannical king to sign away forever his right to rule by royal decree.

Those freedoms which the Norman barons won for us have, during the centuries, spread around the world and given birth to lands greater than anything dreamed of in Anglo-Norman England. But those freedoms are still under assault and, as stated previously, it behooves those of us who value them to preserve them by choosing the right kind of people to make our laws and administer them for us.

"For the reasons we have tried to explain and for others as well, your franchise is too important to be neglected. Vote tomorrow. Vote for whichever candidate you wish, but be sure you vote.

PLAN TO FINANCE CBC APPROVED BY PARLIAMENT

$6,250,000 Grant Given For Next Five Years

Ottawa, Nov. 21 (CP) —A new plan for financing operations of the publicly-owned CBC was approved in principle yesterday by the Commons.

Members gave second reading to a bill authorizing a grant of $6,250,000 in each of the next five years to the financially-harassed CBC. The measure, providing also for several amendments to the Canadian Broadcasting Act, was referred to the radio committee of the Commons for detailed study.

Revenue Minister McCann who reports to parliament for the CBC, said the statutory grant along with revenues from licence fees and commercial programs will provide the corporation with about $16,000,000 annually, or approximately $1 per capita of population.

That, he said, was the amount the Massey Commission on arts and letters, recommended the CBC have to operate properly.

Although there was criticism of the financing plan, it carried stages—notably by Progressive Conservatives—the bill was given the second reading without a dissenting voice.

The day also brought these developments:

1. Final reading to a series of technical amendments to the national defence act, after opposition members renewed a demand that the government provide auxiliary services for the troops in Korea and at home to see that they get Canadian cigarets.

Help to Link Country

He added:

"We are more important to this country is the building up of a television broadcasting system which will help link the country together in a new way; which will use a large amount of Canadian talent; and which, by bringing in some material from outside the country, will be essentially a Canadian operation carried on in the national interests.

"Into this system I expect later it will be possible to have private operations co-ordinated under the general plan, operating community interests ad also acting as outlets for national program services."

REJECTS ACCUSATION

'London, Nov. 21 — (AP) — Britain rejected today an Egyptian charge that Egyptian workers are being forced to work for British military authorities in the Suez Canal area.

The denial was made in a statement to the Egyptian charge, Sir Guildhaume Myrddin Evans, to the International Labor Organization in Geneva.

A copy of Evans' statement was released here by the Foreign Office.

Rotterdam Sees Dominion's Troops; Claxton Present

Canada Will Foot Bill For New Airdromes

BY DOUGLAS ROW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Rotterdam, The Netherlands, Nov. 21 (CP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower took Canada's 27th Brigade under his wing today and welcomed its red-capped troops as a symbol of the fact that "Canada is with us in the area of danger."

Canada's Defence Minister, Brooke Claxton, turned the brigade over to the leader of the Atlantic Pact army in Europe in a brilliant ceremony in a cobbled square before Rotterdam's city hall. A crowd of 25,000 Dutch people watched the ceremony.

As 1,200 Canadians, just off the ship from home, stood in a light drizzle, Eisenhower spoke with emphasis and conviction that he was proud and glad to meet Canadian infantry anywhere.

But, he said, every allied soldier in Europe will welcome the brigade as only because of Canada's battle record but because the brigade's arrival means that "Canada is not only with us in the production and other fields but actually in the area where danger occurs."

The troops arriving today made up practically all of the 1st Canadian Infantry Battalion. Previously an advance party had arrived to prepare for the main body of the brigade. A second contingent, made up of miscellaneous groups, arrived last week. A fourth contingent is at sea and a fifth group will leave Canada Monday.

Will Feet him

Before the ceremony, Claxton announced that Canada will foot the bill for four or five new airdromes to be built in Europe to accommodate the 11-Squadron Air Division Canada plans to establish.

The ceremony of handing over command took place against a color and pomp enacted in this city where liberating Canadians marched in May, 1945, and where fine tall buildings now altergate the scars left by shells and the mass German bombing of 1940.

There were few cheers from the people of this port city of 600,000 and they were mainly for Eisenhower as the columns of the troops and moved briskly down lines of infantry and engineers drawn up in front of the ancient city hall. It was a far from unfriendly crowd, but it was undemonstrative.

Inevitably in peace leaflets showed that that was the open sign of Communist sentiment.

The leaflets were thrown out of an office window as the troops marched off.

Distraught Parents Decide to Allow Son to Die of Cancer Soon as Possible

Alameda, Calif., Nov. 21—(AP)—The distraught parents of three-year-old Rodney Dale who has cancer decided today to let him die of cancer as soon as possible.

It was one of the toughest decisions a parent could be called upon to make.

A hospital doctor told Mr. and Mrs. LeeRoy Dale that a nitrogen-mustard compound might keep the boy alive a few days longer, but pain-wracked body for two or three months more.

"We thought even if it for a long time" said 29-year-old Mrs. Bonnie Dale last night.

"Then we decided against it. It would only prolong Rodney's misery. And he's miserable enough now."

Death may come at any time. Already Rodney has had his Christmas tree and toys. But he scarcely was able to know it.

Rodney became ill last August. Doctors operated and found cancer cells were filling his body.

They told the parents there was nothing more they could do.

Rodney's mother has told off work as a freight handler to be with his son.

Breathing for Rodney became laborious. He couldn't walk, scarcely could eat. All he wanted to do is ride. His father takes him daily—in cars loaned by neighbors. Since the work season is over, slim funds, last Saturday the worst of his plight got out to the newspapers.

The story brought an outpouring of generosity.

Yesterday Dr. Luigi Luraatti offered the gift of inetical aid—an offer to retard the growth of the cells with a drug. He made it clear that Rodney would die anyway—but his parents not until Christmas was over.

Tearfully the Dales searched their hearts and came up with the answer they felt was best. It was "no".

South Koreans Accuse Reds Of Murder

Pusan, Korea, Nov. 21 (AP)—South Korea today accused the communists of "a campaign of murder, never before exampled in the history of the civilized world."

The Republic's public relations bureau repeated a government charge that warring reds had slaughtered more than 250,000 Korean civilians and 7,000 captured Republic of Korea soldiers.

Robert T. Oliver, a spokesman for the South Korean government, said the republic blames North Korean and Chinese reds for the slaying.

The statement was the latest in a barrage of atrocity charges by south Koreans.

The allied high command says there is "considerable evidence" that about 4,000 U.S. soldiers captured by the reds were victims of "death by atrocity."

The communists accuse the United Nations command of killing or starving to death 17,000 red prisoners.

BODY RECOVERED

Seeton, Ont., Nov. 21—(CP)—A search party yesterday found the body of Arthur Trump, 62, missing 24 hours from his farm home two miles north of here.

The body was lying beside drums of water he had chopped on his way home, after cutting wood for coal oil. Death was to exposure.

His sick wife, Rose, 73, had been unable to report him missing until a neighbor called at the house.

Seeton is 25 miles northwest of Toronto.

DAY FROZEN OVER FOR FIRST TIME

With the night's temperature dropping to 12 degrees above zero, the Bay of Quinte took on a mantle of ice Tuesday night. This morning as far as was visible both east and west the bay was frozen over.

One of the reasons for the early freeze-over of the bay is that the mean temperature during November has been driven almost to the freezing point—32.7 degrees—and consequently the temperature of the bay water has dropped. The mean November temperature for the past years has been 35 degrees and last year was 37.6 degrees.

Earl Bird, 59, Foxboro, Killed When Team Runs Away

Thrown from a manure spreader when the team of horses he was driving ran away in a back field that John Bird, 59-year-old bachelor farmer of Foxboro, six miles north of Belleville, was instantly killed Tuesday afternoon.

His body was found last night by a nephew, Leon Wilson, who went to look for him when he failed to show up at his house. His body was found in the middle of a field, the broken manure spreader piled up some distance away against a fence.

The accident is believed to have happened some time during the afternoon as a neighbor had seen Mr. Bird's horses and manure spreader away in a field about 4 o'clock He told no attention thinking the horses were out pasturing.

Mr. Bird had always been a lover of spirited horses and it is thought the horses either ran away throwing him off onto the ground or that he had fallen off the spreader scaring the horses. He is thought to have struck his head on the wheel of the spreader.

Coroner Dr. J. S. Demorest at Foxboro was called and said an inquest was unlikely. Provincial Constable A. S. Watson of Belleville investigated.

Splendid New Store Opened By Wray's Home Furnishers

Attractively designed to keep pace with the modern business trend with accent on customer facilities as well as the last word in merchandise the new Wray's Home Furnishers store opens its doors to the general public at 306 Front Street Thursday morning.

The store, fresh in its modern garb, adds another colorful flak to the city's Front Street business district with its up-to-date interior and ultra-modern front which is the only one of its kind to grace a Front Street building.

The new Wray's Home furnishers differs from the figurative ashes of the second fire since its establishment to necessitate a practical rebuilding and decoration.

Strangely enough, the fire damage was caused, by blazes which did not originate within the building but in those of Robert J. and Harley Wray, but in those adjacent. The Wray Home Furnishers took on of the damage brunt of two fires built in each case it has risen from its ashes" to become a bigger and better and more attractive spot for the family shopper of the city and district.

Established In 1916.

The present new home of the business which originated back in 1916 when Mr. Robert Wray purchased the former Dominion Bedding Factory. It is the last word in attractive up-to-the-minute stores of its nature. Its opening front will direct customers to the store with its original design and at night a colorful spot system of lighting will serve its purpose.

To take care of the expansion of business, the owners have increased the depth of their establishment to double that of the former store. The new showrooms now extend some 180 feet rearwards from Front Street in place of the 90 feet depth of the former establishment.

Also in keeping with the store's upper floors is the basement which now comprises one of the three-floor showrooms of the business. The rear of the basement will be used exclusively for warehouse purposes.

The main and second floors which extend the full depth of nearly 200 feet are used exclusively as show rooms. One of the features of the second floor is a trio of completely furnished rooms consisting of dining room, living room and bedroom, furnished in the last word in modern furniture. Customers' potential and otherwise, can see at a glimpse the expert arrangement of carefully selected furniture as done by experts in the business.

Attractive Lay-Out

The main floor will feature the many lines of furniture carried by the firm. It is attractively laid out in a warm, pleasing manner with merchandise so arranged that it can be viewed from all angles with the least effort. Customer comfort is one of the main features of this new store.

And its interior decorative motif is warm, colorful and restful to the eye, but not distracted that do not dazzle with brilliancy yet blend easily with the varied shades of the merchandise without any sharp contrasts. The ceilings in both the first and second floors are finished in a soft jonquil yellow tone with wall tones of dusty rose merging easily. The floors add another tasteful decorative touch with a light grey terrazzo tiled marbleum.

From down up-to-date floor-mount lighting casts a soft light over the show rooms. On the entrance a translucent ceiling sits in colorful contrast to the window hazing. Owing to location difficulties Messrs. Wray are unable to "spread their wings" so to speak, but expansion has taken place in depth.

Fire Precautions

Special precautions have been taken to prevent future damage by fire, Mr. Harley Wray said this morning. Two fires within a comparatively short time are sufficient especially when the blazes occurred through no cause within the store. The building has been made as nearly fireproof as possible.

The staff of the store besides the owners consists of Miss Jean Cornwal and Mr. Don Doyle.

The official opening of the store takes place Thursday at 10 o'clock. "We would like the people of Belleville and district to come in and see the splendid new store without any obligation to buy," Mr. Wray said today.

The Wray Home Furnishers will carry the same lines of merchandise that it has offered the public for many years. New lines have been added and the showrooms will provide an attractive appearance in their display of fine furniture.

ARMY TRIMMED

New York, Nov. 21—(AP)—Gen. Mark W. Clark, chief of army field forces, said last night that the United States army will be trimmed of all "pleistocene" as more and more men are drafted. Clark said such services as canteens and educational programs are being pared as the need grows for more infantrymen.

WILL ACCEPT PROPERTY

Brantford, Ont., Nov. 21 (CP) —Brantford Board of Education last night decided to accept property in Mohawk Park—parallel to Fleetwood Drive and including the oval—as site for a new $1,-000,000 secondary school.

City council had offered the Board two city-owned sites, including the one in Mohawk Park, but turned down a Board petition for approval to buy property near Carling Cross Street and St. George Road.

Both quickly revived after receiving fresh air.

A coal truck driver waiting to have his load of coal weighed saw Mr. Anderson collapse against the parking meter and run into the street, and calling to weigh scale attendants, placed the man back into the car, thinking he had been struck by an auto. It was not until the boy collapsed that it was realized the two persons had collapsed from gas fumes.

Mr. Anderson later said the family had driven down from Millbridge and when some distance north of Belleville he had felt sick and stopped the car awhile before proceeding.

Millbridge Man and Son Overcome by Monoxide Gas

Cheese Sell 1-2 Cent Higher On Exchange

For the first time in many weeks more than 36 cents per lb. was received on the Belleville Cheese Exchange for a portion of the night's offering. With a total of 2,226 cheese offered, including 699 white, 96 1-16 cents was paid for 353 colored cheese.

Apparently catering to the domestic trade, a high percentage of the cheese offered was colored.

The cheese board will sit next again until Dec. 4th, it was decided. At that time all November cheese will be boarded and the only factories operating will be those continuing for the winter months.

S.E. Goodwin Appointed Manager Of Bank of Montreal Branch Here

F. Stanley E. Goodwin, newly-appointed manager of the Bank of Montreal branch here is noted taking secret trips to Paris for the next summer, it will be for purely personal reasons only.

Mr. Goodwin who succeeds Mr. Henry Becker who was transferred to the London, Ont. Market Branch after five years service as a, as he says, a "golfer of parts" but he has stern opposition within his own household. It so happens that Mrs. Goodwin, the former Miss Marie Barker of Amherst, N. S., was the ladies' championship of the Mississauga Golf and Country Club, Toronto, this year.

Mr. Goodwin, however, has no hopes of becoming a champion, but he does like his golf, a little fishing now and then with an occasional bit of bird hunting. None of this deer "stuff" however.

And with Mrs. Goodwin and sixteen-year-old daughter, Betty Jane, Mr. Goodwin is looking forward to a pleasant sojourn in the city of his adoption, one which he already regards with high esteem.

Mr. Goodwin brings to his new post a background of considerable banking experience acquired in eastern Canada since he joined the Bank of Montreal at Saint John, N. B., in 1933. He received his early training at various centres of the Maritimes, including Saint John, Port Hood, Amherst and Halifax, before receiving his first appointment, as accountant, at the bank's Fredericton office in 1939.

During the war, Mr. Goodwin interrupted his banking career to enlist in the Royal Canadian Navy as Pay Corps, with which he served as paymaster, and as field cashier with various units in England, Italy, Belgium and Holland. In July of 1945 he was awarded the M. B. E. Demobilized with the rank of major, he rejoined the bank service and became assistant manager of the Halifax main branch in 1946. The follow-

"FREE" USED TOO FREELY

The way in which some politicians go about abusing some of the commonest and simplest words in the English language is getting on our nerves. This is not done through ignorance — it might be preferable if it were — it is done in a deliberate attempt to mislead.

An excellent example of what we have in mind is the manner in which the word "free" is knocked down, kicked and trampled. It is impossible to read a political speech in a newspaper, or to listen to a political speech over the air, without encountering numerous references to "free hospitalization," "free medical attention," "free school books," "free milk for school children," and so on.

Do these politicians who speak of "free hospitalization" mean that the contractors who build hospitals are going to do so at their own expense, and that the physicians, nurses and orderlies who will staff them will also give their services gratuitously? Do "free medical attention" mean that the physicians have agreed to accept no more fees? Does "free school books" mean that the publishing houses where these books are produced have gone philanthropic and are going to donate the books to whomever uses them after paying for the printing and so forth themselves? Does "free milk for school children" mean that the farmers have caught the fever too and are going to start working for nothing?

The answer to all of these rhetorical questions is no, a thousand times no. When a politician starts talking about giving the public something free, he means that he is going to make the taxpayers pay for it and then give it back to them, with the hope of buying their support with their own money. When there is so much talk about "free" this, "free" that and "free" the other thing, it would be a good plan for us all to keep firmly fixed in our minds the thought that nothing is free; everything that has any value, whether goods or services, must be paid for; furthermore, it must be paid for, not by the handful of wealthy people, but out of the toil and sweat of the "workers" themselves.

"WHAT'S IN A NAME?"

Since the arrival of the colder weather, a good many Belleville damsels have started wearing babushkas. These youngsters probably think that the babushka is of recent introduction, but their grandmothers and great grandmothers were babushkas too, only in days gone by babushkas were called shawls.

Babushka, it seems, is a Slavic word meaning grandmother; its use to mean shawl among English-speaking people is derived from the fact that grandmothers wore shawls in Europe. The English-speaking Canadians learned the word from Slavic immigrants.

If a babushka was called a shawl, probably the teenagers would scorn them; but "babushka" has an exotic sound. Besides, the babushkas of today are for ornament rather than warmth.

The babushka fad probably owes its origin to the fact that both Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret have been photographed wearing babushkas more than once in recent years.

TORONTO'S TOPS

Which is the wealthiest city in Canada? Which has the highest per capita wealth? Which occupational groups have the highest incomes? Answers to these and a thousand similar questions are available in "Taxation Statistics," an imposing-looking volume issued under the authority of Hon. James J. McCann, Canada's minister of national revenue.

Based on the number of income taxpayers and the total paid by them, Toronto leads the list, in spite of having a smaller population than Montreal. Toronto has 544,000 income taxpayers, who pay a total of $92,300,000. Montreal has 299,360 income taxpayers, who pay a total of $85,600,000.

But neither Toronto nor Montreal is at the top of the list of average incomes upon which income tax is paid. That honor goes to Lethbridge, Alberta, whose 5,480 income taxpayers have an average income of $3,477. If a high average income means anything, Lethbridge can claim to be Canada's wealthiest city, per capita.

Belleville has 9,440 income taxpayers whose average annual earnings are $2,892.

ABUSE OF THE FLAG

In Detroit a young man who used the Stars and Stripes as a seat cover in his car was fined $25, put on three months' probation and ordered to listen to a lecture on respect for the flag. The lesson could be taken to heart elsewhere, including some places in Canada, especially at this election time. Politicians and their managers are reminded that it is improper to use either the Union Jack or the Canadian ensign as a tablecloth, though it is all right to hang such flags in front of a table or platform.—(Peterborough Examiner.)

THEY ALL SAY IT

I asked about the baby and he smiled and he met:
"I've never known a baby
three weeks old so good to be."
I thought he'd cry a little, but he's quiet as a mouse.
You never would imagine
we've a baby in the house!

"Unless you saw the washing on the clothes line by the door,
You'd think the home precisely as you'd seen it months before.

You'd have to see him sleeping with contentment on his face
Or wait until we told you
we've a baby in the place

I know the grandpa language, and I know the grandpa
pride.
And I know he will remembers
that his baby often cried.
So I chuckled when I heardi him saying what I knew he would:
"I've never known a baby
three weeks old to be so good."

IN STEP WITH HIS MASTER

Some months ago a friend was trying to teach a young puppy how to walk on a leash. It was an amusing sight. First the dog was out in front, tugging every far all he was worth; a moment later he was far behind, trotting along. Part of the time he was biting furiously at the leash, and was terrified. Once he tangled in his legs and tripped him up.

Recently I saw the same dog trotting along in perfect step beside his master, the leash hanging slack from hand to collar. He had learned one of dogdom's great secrets—that the leash doesn't pull against the dog when the dog doesn't pull against the leash.

Apparently some humans are not as clever as that dog, for they never learn to stay in step along with their Master. God's laws are like the leash: if we don't struggle against them, they are the lightest of burdens. But if we keep trying to go in all kinds of different ways that are against God's will, then we have a terrible time indeed.

No one can avoid all the stresses and strain of human existence, but wise men try not to make extra ones for themselves. Those people who go through life keeping in step with God are quite sure to be happy.

Letters to The Editor

The Other Side

The Ontario Intelligencer,
Belleville, Ont.

Dear Sir:

I would like space in your newspaper for an opinion which seems to be quite prevalent among the citizens of this old rotund Belleville the past few days.

We in Belleville should be quite proud that we have in our midst a man like Eugene Lang, and more and more I see more like him, who have such a deep appreciation of the classical and can, as time goes on, do so very much to maintain and even to enhance the cultural life of a community.

But should we let the half grow so long down the back of our necks that the neck becomes stiff, and we are unable to turn our heads to see any other type of entertainment?

Last week, the Belleville Elwanis Club presented an entertainment project which was patronized by hundreds of people, yours truly included, from which the Kiwanis Club was able to make some money to further their activities. Surely we can give the Kiwanis Club nor the entertaining artist, Mr. Rabinoff, even a pretended to be bringing to the people a demonstration of high classics. His name constantly referred to his instrument as a "fiddle" and himself as a "fiddler." This fact alone would remove him from the high pedestal on which Mr. Lang would relegate him.

I have heard it said others that most of the paying customers enjoyed the performance, and they were there having anyone tell them, either privately or publicly, that they were "duped" by not having seen another Heifetz performance. Most of us, even if we have a slight appreciation of the arts, can take entertainment for what it is, and really enjoy it.

Mr. Rubinoff is the only entertainer I know who is not afraid to take an engagement, whether it be a theatre, nightclub, or what have you. Although he arrived at 3 a.m. Thursday, he was on the stage at Belleville 2:30 a.m. instrument under his arm, waiting to be piloted to his hotel, and then to school to offer a word of encouragement to teachers and pupils alike, pounding the virtues of the country in which we live and of citizenship, a worthy way of life, and playing a tune or two on his "fiddle". The reception on this fine occasion seemed to be very grateful. At noon, Rubinoff attended a Kiwanis luncheon meeting, and, forgetting if you will the two hours difference in time, his humorous talk was a treat for everyone present.

One mention of Mr. Rubinoff's accompanist, Dod Mr. Lang ever hear on the air? If so, I don't mean over the footlights and call him "Dod" to his face, because he'll get "Professor"? Why must a man be "panned" because he performs a duty to the best of his knowledge?

It's too bad that Mr. Lang couldn't accept the fact that Mr. Rubinoff is from a school of concert artists, and has treated the effort to the people, and suggest that Mr. Lang's clever, factual report of Rubinoff's musical career would find more favor in the colums of the New York Times rather than the Belleville Ontario Intelligencer. You see, Mr. Lang, Rubinoff is not going to their playing.

TORONTO ORDERS CARS

Answers Thereon

Nov. 17, 1951

The Ontario Intelligencer,
Belleville, Ontario.

Sir:

Another outburst from Wellie Thomson, this time in St. Catherines, was called to my attention. I only last night when making an inspection of the Hastings County Home for the Aged in Belleville. It is reported in the Toronto Daily Star of Saturday Nov. 10, 1951 under a block type subheading:

"Architectural Blemishes"

People are entitled to free opinion provided by Mr. Thomson to the recently opened home for 110 aged persons at Belleville. Such further statements with respect to this home and its buildings were attributed to Mr. Thomson as follows:

"The aged living there are not given their proper dignity.

"The men and women living in such institutions are not 'herded' about with little segregation between the sexes, the sick and well."

Many there should have their own private room. It is unfortunate to do what they want when they want to do it.

"The general confusion in the minds of the public with respect to aging and old age can be revealed by such statements as 'senile debility,' 'senile fault of lack of information and superficial thinking. The general public should learn from failure to distinguish between the needs of old persons and those of mentally ill and care and those old couples who are well enough to conduct their own households.

The Home in Belleville is for the aged and is not specially designed adapted to its purpose. The Department of Welfare in collaboration with Dept. of Health has set the program, and the writer's interest in the matter was such that this writer checked and supervised the construction of the present building. Every room may be able to handle a bed, plus a chair, dresser, and a table of the day. But sedentary people, while couple would prefer to have a room away from the table before they would eat.

When I say 2 or three pounds a week is a reasonable rate of reduction achieved by moderate control of diet and exercise. I do not mean that exercise will reduce. Generally it does not reduce weight, in fact it tends to increase the weight of the sedentary person—at the same time it builds muscle by replacing fatty flabby fat with firmer flesh of better tone.

INTEMPERANCE OF MANY KINDS

Whether all of the nicotine in tobacco or only part of it is dangerous to health, either slowly burning is still debatable, but the presence of a deadly poison in tobacco smoke is now scientifically determined and proclaimed by science. This is a poison called carbon monoxide. Carbon monoxide is found in the mixture produced wherever any kind of fuel, coal, wood, cloth, paper, vegetable matter, gasoline, oil, charcoal, oil, coke, straw, leaves or tobacco burns in the presence with a restricted supply of air, insufficient draft or without free vent. Even dangerous is carbon monoxide that breathing air containing only one-half of one per cent of it may be fatal within a few minutes if the victim is not rescued. Air containing a tenth of one per cent of it may be breathed for a few minutes for half an hour will render a quarter of the red blood corpuscles incapable of carrying oxygen. Chemists report that about 2/3rds of the riddance of carbon monoxide in twenty puffs of cigaret smoke — some two parts in a thousand in the puff of air taken into the lungs, but enough of the effects of smoking for yourself.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Lime Water

Is there any harm in taking ½ teaspoonful of lime water in a glass of water, three times a day? (Mrs. J. McA.)

Answer—Ben had tongue in cheek when he said "Lime water (calcium) is a glass of fine water than you get in a glass of milk."

Speaking of Oatmeal

Six months ago X-ray revealed decalcification of my teeth and constipation... Was told to take calcium and vitamins from then on. Have taken them. (Mrs. R. B.)

Answer—Wur, I take it, is a typographical error for "decalcification or loss of calcium from the bones (and teeth) where calcium from it normally stored, caused with many prolonged disabilities. Your diet supplied plenty of the high calcium foods and daily exposure to sunshine between the 1st of April and October the essential vitamin D to calcium utilization. ## TODAY'S TALK

THE GREAT LITTLE THINGS

A reader has kindly sent to me the extract of a letter by Mr. Gladstone, who was four times Premier of England. In a letter to his wife, Gladstone said he tired of the little great matters which are attracting so much attention, please write and cheer me with news of the great little things of interest about the home."

How well we can understand the feeling behind the words of the statesman's mind and heart. It's the great little things that never leave about the home that are the world that are significant and truly powerful. There was never a letter from home or to be returned to that home but knew how to write the words of these great little things that they left behind and on which their memories so vividly dwell.

No matter how far away one's home is from the earth, the Mecca to which our heart's desire is ever turning, there are the great little things that are the most treasured memories, there it is that we learn our first great lesson of life.

What a multitude of good little things there are in the home that deserve our attention and care. There is an eternal value in the little things of life, the things that is the very cradle that holds both the birth and the growth of the great characters that later mature. Love, kindness, considerateness for others, encouragement, appreciation are all great little things that add to the richness and quality to life—and they touch us all the more deeply.

The great little things are the ones that are first and last in character. People who are big in the great little things never grow small and mean. It doesn't matter if they never have occasion beyond the home to win and kind. They are like Shakespeare's little candle that sheds its light afar.

Anchored in the home are our best memories, and when we wend our way through life, our thoughts keep journeying back to the home and fond dreams. They give to each one a wholesome nostalgic lift to the duties of each one of our days.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of the boys home wounded from Korea telephoned me to come and see him in the hospital to "cheer him the Cold War."

"What is this Cold War? he inquired from his iron bed, where he lies with his wounds. "Does nobody in the country realize that Canada is at war? Ordinary civilians and even Cabinet Ministers go around as if they were living in a dream. Canadian regiments are fighting right now, every day, and in fact, right now, it looks to me as if ninety-nine Canadians out of a hundred are completely unaware that we are fighting a real war right now."

I said that it might be nine hundred and ninety-nine out of a thousand of us who went on only through a whole day but a whole week without thinking about Korea. Even when we see news stories in the papers each day, we actually skip over them, without letting the facts penetrate our thoughts. It is almost as if it were a war between the Zulus and the Crusts. A far-off thing that does not really concern us.

"You look through the papers" he said, "and you can find any news about us Canadians at war. But I happen to know that many of the boys and Canadians—just guys like me—are getting pretty complete every hour at the risk of their lives, shooting and being shot at. And who gives a damn?"

I looked through the papers, and could find nothing on Korea. It must have been an oversight on some sub-editor's people. It would be in the next edition, or possibly it had been in the one before.

Recreation Fully Discussed By Kiwanis Club

In support of the by-law concerning the Recreation Committee, Dr. George Faulkner addressed the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis Club on Tuesday.

"One of the greatest deficiencies in industry is unhappy living", stated Dr. Faulkner, "is idle hours. Today there is a lack of cohesion in hours not taken up by work and there is a great need of adequate recreational facilities."

The speaker explained the Recreation Committee is a group who are attempting to plan and improve recreational facilities in the city, regardless of age group.

Elaborating further, Dr. Faulkner appealed to the members, as business men, to understand that in order to operate any business successfully, it must have the known budget. He said that that was the sole reason for asking the ratepayers to give a stable figure, so that the committee could plan for the future.

The committee's intention, Dr. Faulkner continued, if granted a steady income would be to support any activity in which a person could reasonably spend spare time. "In time it would be organized into a co-ordinated and compact plan," he said.

Dr. Faulkner then enquired whether anyone present had any questions pertaining to the subject and proceeded to answer each one asked.

Urged Support of By-law

He concluded by stating that this is a matter of interest and concern to all of us. "I would urge that you actively support the passage of the by-law", he said.

Dr. Faulkner was introduced by Dr. Reg. Anderson while Lorne McDougall expressed the appreciation of the club for the informative address and discussion.

International Kiwanis representative, Bruce Lattimer, presented the Belleville club with the Governor's Award for outstanding achievement in the Ontario - Quebec - Maritime district during the second quarter of the year. The award was presented for by 113 clubs in this district and is awarded for club service, attendance, secretary's report, Boy Scout promotional activities, underprivileged children activities, and public affairs and relations.

President Everett Fairman announced that the monthly directors' meeting would be held on Monday, November 26, in the Kiwanis Centre.

A discussion took place concerning the forthcoming Choir Festival in the Belleville Collegiate and it was mentioned that over 400 artists would be participating.

A sing-song was led by Harold Carruthers with Phil Hoddleston accompanying at the piano.

Rod Lamper was welcomed back to the club after his recent illness and sojourn in the hospital.

The attendance prize, donated by Herb Fox, was won by Stanley Jose.

British Soldier Hurt, Captured Returned to Lines

With the Canadians in Korea, Nov. 21 (CP) — A British soldier, wounded in action several days ago with the King's Shropshire Light Infantry and subsequently captured, was returned by the Chinese to the United Nations line Tuesday.

Pte. Peter Smith of Kent was held by the communists but will leave you in front of the Canadians' wire in the morning. Don't attract attention before the first light. Tell those who come to help you they will be safely but if they go further they will be shot at."

The Princess Patricias manning the front in that sector reported a movement at 3 a.m. At dawn Sgt. Ted Shaw of Calgary reported seeing a large sign with black letters on a white background reading: "Take your own buddy back."

Cpl. Jim Remmer accompanied Shaw toward the area near which they heard Smith calling "Hello Canada. Hello Canada." They found Smith lying on a stretcher and were greeted with "gee, I'm glad to see you guys."

He told a story of having his slit trench blown in during a Chinese attack and finding shelter in a dugout with five other men from his regiment. They were taken prisoner and en route to the Chinese lines shelling from United Nations guns wounded many of the group, including Smith and some of the Chinese.

Smith said he was given good care, cigarets and chocolate bars.

The stretcher on which he was left in front of the Canadian wire bore communist propaganda leaflets.

Stretcher-bearers under Pte. John Rorz of Emerson, Man., carried Smith to a regimental aid post. The medical officer, Capt. David Willingham of Toronto, said Smith had "excellent treatment, apparently from a qualified medical officer."

Balloons Land At Shannonville

Shannonville—(Staff Special)—Two balloons from faraway Elgin, Ill. landed on the farm of Frank McCullagh, district farmer.

Twenty-four of the balloons were released by the junior chamber of commerce in Elgin, Ill. They were released as an experiment, to see how far they would travel, and in what direction.

Similar balloons are to be used according to plans of the junior chamber of commerce in the United States, to carry messages to countries beyond the Iron Curtain.

Mr. McCullagh said that a message conveyed by each of the balloons indicated they had been released November 4.

The balloons are called "freedom balloons." Each is about two feet in diameter when inflated.

ROTTERDAM

Eisenhower and Claxton struck home the point that Atlantic pact armies are being built not to make war, but to preserve peace that could only be preserved through strength.

Eisenhower, speaking from a platform heavy with top-hatted diplomats and red-bridaled military officers of a half-dozen countries, addressed the Canadians as "fellow soldiers."

In reference to the spectacular red berets of the 1st Infantry Battalion, he said if anyone won the right in a beret of his own choice it was the Canadian infantry man.

Castonguay in Command

The parade was commanded by Lt.-Col. J. L. Castonguay of Montreal, commanding officer of the infantry battalion.

The soldiers in battledress stood a half-hour in fairly heavy rain before the ceremony began. Then the sun came out and hid behind the clouds again.

The soldiers looked smart as they marched off after a 45-minute review from Quebec which ended early this morning.

They left later by train for Hannover, Germany.

Claxton flew to Paris this afternoon to join Canada's External Affairs Minister, L. B. Pearson, for a flight to Rome to attend a N.A.T.O. meeting.

In a brief speech he clashed directly with the views expressed in the communist leaflets which said Canadians were welcomed here in 1945 but their 1951 arrival "coincides with preparations for a new war."

Claxton reiterated the theme that the troops are not here to make war but to prevent war.

Will Send Arms

The Canadian Defence Minister told a press conference attended by 50 Canadians, Americans, British, Netherlands, French and other correspondents that Canada will be sending enough arms for another two European divisions—making a total of five.

The airdromes, he said, will cost in the vicinity of $100,000,000. Claxton said the air division, which will be equipped entirely with F-86 Sabre jets, is a formation which normally supports an army consisting of two or more corps. It was not known in what theatre the drones will be built.

Claxton arrived from The Hague to greet the second party of the brigade proper as they disembarked from the 4,778-ton Panamanian ship Fairsea. He will hand them over officially to Eisenhower, who flies in for the ceremony.

The contingent left Quebec City Nov. 12. An earlier body of 500, which left Canada Nov. 5, arrived at Rotterdam on the S.S. Canberra.

Claxton told reporters that the production of Sabre jets at Montreal is the biggest phase of Canada's arms production. He said the Sabre can and does lick the Russian-built MIG-15 daily in Korea.

Claxton said he would like to see western European rearmament moving faster but he was "astounded" at the progress in building a six-power single European army.

Canada has been working on two types of rifles of its own but had dropped them when both Britain and United States were found to be developing new ones also.

HON. L.B. PEARSON

there is nothing inconsistent in N. A. T. O.'s military build-up and the western disarmament proposals.

He said the confidence the west is gaining in the N. A. T. O. defence build-up should make it easier for the west to negotiate with Russia, and thus make some N. A. T. O. strength unnecessary.

9th Anti Tank Regt. Praised At Unit's Annual Inspection

Fine tribute was paid to the officers and other ranks of the 9th Anti Tank Regiment, RCA (SP) RAY by Brigadier A. P. B. Knight, OBE Eastern Area commander, Kingston, at the regiment's annual inspection held in the Bridge Street Armouries last night.

"Lieut. Col. MacGregor, your commanding officer is to be congratulated on such a splendid turnout, the inspection arrangements and the fine spirit of his command. You have been very steady and your appearance and deportment are very creditable. You have shown a fine spirit." Brigadier Knight told the regiment as it stood on parade following the inspection and marching past.

It was his first opportunity to inspect a reserve army unit since his appointment as area commander, the Brigadier said, "And I am extremely proud of the fact that it is a gunner regiment, the only gunner regiment I have seen that has a pipe band".

"The guns", he said, "have taken part actively in major engagement and this regiment should be proud of the artillery's accomplishments".

Brigadier Knight urged the "recruit" to see to it that regiment was recruited to full strength, for, he said "if another war comes there will be no breathing space for training. We shall have to fight at a moment's notice."

"You are the Army"

The reserve army, he went on, is not a second string team to substitute for the regular. "You are the Army and that is the role you will play."

The regiment some $50 all ranks were inspected by Brigadier Knight following the general salute executed to the skirl of the pipes of the regimental kilties band under Pipe Major Burns. Lieut. Col. MacGregor was Major R. W. C. Stethem, OBE, CR, general staff officer of the command.

Following the inspection the regiment marched past the viewing party in column of route. Major Jack took the salute. The four battalies, two from Belleville under the commands of Majors Joe Black and W. Burgoyne, one from Napanee under Major Medd and the other from Cananoque under Major Warwick swung past the stand with the precision of permanent force veterans.

The armouries balcony was crowded with special guests of the regiment, their wives and the general public.

34th Wins Trophy

The proudest officer on parade last night was Major Joe Black, commander of the 34th Battery of Belleville. The 34th, proud holder of the P. H. Wills Trophy presented by Lt.-Col. P. H. Wills to the regimental battery making the most progressing during the course of the year, was won for the second time in a row by the battery. Major Black's gunners piled up points out of a possible 100 for the year's work. The 33rd Battery of Cananoque was a close second with 92 points. The 31st Battery, Napanee was third with 73 points and the 32nd Battery of Belleville brought up the rear with 66 points. The trophy, a handsome hand-chased silver rose bowl was presented to Major Black by Brigadier Knight who took the place of Col. Wills, unable to attend.

Evidence of outstanding training and knowledge of their subjects were shown by the regimental gunners and officers of the various training phases demonstrations staged on the armoury floor. The building rang to the crackle of rifle and machine-gun fire as the troops engaged in realistic battle drills. Humor was injected in this part of the program when chickens and a pig suddenly appeared as part of the "properties."

The foot drill would have delighted the mind and warmed the cold heart of "Old Regimental Sergeant-Major" with its precision-like manoeuvres and fine deportment of the marching troops.

The gun drill was carried out with the same precision as the foot drill. The various phases of training and manoeuvres were assembled over a public address system by regimental adjutant Captain R. W. MacPherson and Regimental Sergeant Major A. W. Lacey.

Following the inspections and demonstrations Col. G. W. MacGregor, MC, ED, commanding officer and his officers entertained Brigadier Knight, his staff and a number of special guests at a reception held in the officers' mess. Refreshments were served by members of the Ayr'll Chapter Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire.

The guests included: Lt. Col. M. Porritt, M. C., Commanding Officer, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment; Lt. Col. G. Milton Davison, Belleville; Lt. Col. J.M. Cousins, Belleville; Lt. Col. R. H. Widdifield, Belleville; Lt. Col. R. C. Duncan, Belleville; Lt. Col. R. J. Fisher, Commanding Officer, Royal Canadian School of Artillery, Picton; Capt. P. U. Laidlay, Napanee; Maj. D. D. Sills, Napanee; Dr. E. E. Fyfe, Napanee; Lt. Col. J. V. Doyle, Belleville; Lt.-Col. H. L. Harris, Royal Canadian Dental Corps, Trenton Air Station; Brig. F. J. Genet, O.B.E., M.C., C.D., Belleville; Group Captain D. H. McCaul, C.D., Commanding Officer, No. 2 Repair Depot, RCAF Trenton; Commander G. M. Coleman, Commanding Officer, H.M.C.S. Cataraqui, R. C. N., Kingston; Lieut. Commander L. Whalley, R. N. C. S. Cataraqui, R.C.N. Kingston; Major N. Featherstone, Kingston; Major J. Goforth, Kingston; Lt. Col. F. A. Geen, Belleville; Major H. W. C. Stethem, O.B.E., C.D., G.S.O. 1, Eastern Area Command, Kingston.

Women's Club Hears Reports On Convention

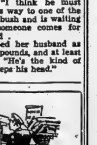
The November dinner meeting of the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club was held in the Y.M.C.A. on Monday. Mrs. Eva Doolittle, president, was in charge. Following regular club business, Mrs. Isabel Wallbridge spoke briefly on the appeal now being made by the Canadian Red Cross for the Blood Donors' Clinic.

Highlights of the meeting were the reports given by Norma Arkley and Mildred Moorman, two of the delegates to the annual provincial convention held last month in Toronto. The returns held gave a clear over-all picture of what the business and professional women's clubs stand for, their aims and ideals. The main achievement for the year was the "Equal Pay for Equal Work" bill, the B. & P. Clubs being responsible for the successful passing of this bill. In Ontario there are 67 clubs with 2,900 members. The democratic spirit of the clubs is symbolic of the world Ontario women are getting things done and giving better service as a result of their participation.

Following the speakers, a social hour was spent under the convenorship of Marion Nichol.

Theory Advanced Missing Hunter Dead of Exposure

Capreol, Nov. 21 (CP)—The theory was advanced today that Lawrence Fortier, 21, missing since Sunday on a hunting trip to the Whistle Mine area from here, may have succumbed to exposure. About 150 searchers now are combing the woods for him.



The Capreol hunter, attired only in light clothing, was feared to have fallen into one of many abandoned mine shafts in the area. This possibility, however, was not strengthened following an intensive search of the shafts, Tuesday.

Mrs. Jacqueline Fortier, the missing hunter's wife, was optimistic. "I think he must have made his way to one of the cabins in the bush and is waiting there until someone comes for him," she said.

She described her husband as weighing 193 pounds, and at least six feet tall. "He's the kind of a guy that keeps his head."

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Proven "method" not necessary to get a husband.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

In a recent column, you mentioned letters you have received in regard to "necking". I would like to pass on the story of how I won my husband without "necking."

In high school, my husband had the reputation of getting a kiss from a girl whenever he wanted one. On my first date with him, after thanking him for a wonderful evening, I went directly into the house, not lingering to give him an opportunity to ask for a kiss. I honestly believed I would never be asked out again by him.

Quite the contrary! The following weekend. We had our second date, but it wasn't until our third that I kissed Joe goodnight, and then it definitely wasn't a long, lingering kiss.

Reminiscing one time after our marriage, I asked my husband why he never asked for a second date. Here was his answer:

"You were the first girl to ever say no to me. You were quite a challenge, and I respected you very highly for it, that I gotten to neck with you that first night, I doubt that I would have come back.

Now I ask you, isn't it worth refusing a good-night kiss if your reputation is enhanced by such an action? I should like to add that my views are not those of the past generation, but of the present. You see, I am 19 and my husband is 23. I sincerely hope that my experience will be of some help to any other girls of my age who are wondering about "kissing and necking".

E. W. D.

Dear E.W.D.:

It is fine to have a young woman like you come along to back me up in what I have always said on this same subject.

Your letters speaks splendidly for itself, and needs no particular comment from me. I am glad to pass it on for other girls to think about, with just one further thought. That is, that the boy who doesn't come back for the second date because he didn't get a kiss on the first, is not likely to be the boy the girl marries anyway. He is usually a cheap who doesn't solicity of a girl, even if he gets that prompt kiss, so what difference does it make whether you have one date or three or four with him? He will be off after a new conquest shortly, anyway.

If you can't make up, don't send a wedding invitation

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Would you please tell me how a marriage invitation should be given out?

What I mean is, if you are not on speaking terms with someone, and you would like to invite them to your wedding, would you mail the invitation or would you go up to them personally?

L. M.

Dear L.M.:

If there were someone with whom I was not on speaking terms—a pretty silly state of affairs anyway—I certainly would not invite that person to my wedding.

If you have such a person in mind, as you obviously do, I would advise you to get friendly terms one way or another before sending the invitation.

Why don't you write a friendly little note to whoever it is, saying that you are hoping bygones can be bygones, that you would like to have him or her at your wedding, and that you are sending a formal invitation under another cover. If you can't bring yourself to make up with this person, it would be very poor taste indeed to issue an invitation to your wedding.

BEAUTY

Redheads! This is for you!

If you are a blond or a brunette, you can skip this. It is addressed especially to the girls with flaming thatches. The old masters considered those titian-colored hair the most beautiful of all, selected redheads for the models of their famous paintings.

Time was when this type considered her hair one of Nature's dubious gifts, but today she is envied by many. Her tresses are usually a mixture of many shades. The shafts vary in color, so that the growth carries charming lights and shadows.

This quality of loveliness requires careful treatment so there will be no possibility of color changes. Harsh shampoo mediums can cast a film upon the silky threads, have a deplorable effect upon the scalp, and impair the health of the growth. Excellent shampoos are now available, whereas in the past we had to choose from among three or four proprietory offerings.

Liquid soaps that we buy at cosmetic counters should be diluted one half with hot water. There should be two applications with brisk friction and two prolonged rinsings with a bath spray. Brushing is essential to bring lustre.

The make-up the redhead uses is important, and she must be careful with it. Nothing should detract from her shining mop. If her eyes are hazel or brown, rachelle powder and rouge of orange red—very faint—make a becoming combination. If her eyes are green or blue and her skin fair, a pinkish-gray powder and coral blushes are what the beauty doctor orders. Purplish shades of rouge and lipstick should be avoided. Often it is best to use no rouge at all, and to tone down the lip veneer to the natural tint.

As a rule, eyebrows and lashes need a bit of darkening. Use a deep brown crayon on the eyebrows, moving it toward the far ends, doing little light strokes. Never use black mascara on the lashes; it offers too much contrast to a fair, delicate complexion. For the gala evening one can take a bold step; apply the very lightest film of green eyeshadow. When using that, rouge should not be used. The feminine face brightens with discreet, artistic coloring, but becomes hard and brittle if too much is used.

In the matter of dress, black is the ace-high color selection; while is also good. Redheads seem to have a yen for beige and brown, both of which act seldom flattering. Green is wonderful for them, and navy blue has its points.

Auburn-haired girls should select jewelry with care. They can wear exotic items with distinction, especially those that are richly colored. Crystals, emeralds and aqua-marines should be among the favorites.

When you stitch heavy fabrics such as canvas or duck, rub plenty of soap over seam and hem lines. The soap makes it easier for the machine needle to pass through these heavy fabrics.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Should hosts enclose reply cards . . . or should guests write notes?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Some time ago I wrote you asking you to settle a discussion we were having—and your reply had very good results. Now I would like to have you settle another discussion. I say that when a wedding invitation is sent out, with a reply card to the wedding dinner enclosed, the reply card should be stamped and addressed to the person or persons to whom it is to be mailed back. Now my daughter-in-law's brother is being married very soon, and the invitations are all sent out. But on the reply cards are the names of the invited guests; for example, Mr. and Mrs. Smith. I told my daughter-in-law that this is incorrect, but she said that the guest invited to the wedding dinner or reception should reply by sending a letter. Who is right about this?—M. T. C.

If I understand your question correctly, your daughter-in-law is right. (I am confused by your saying "On the reply cards are the names of the invited guests.") If you mean that you think that reply cards should be enclosed with the wedding invitations, and that your daughter-in-law maintains that the guest should write his or her own reply, your daughter-in-law is definitely right. Surely a guest should be polite enough and appreciative enough to take pen in hand and write a courteous reply to such a kind and generous invitation!

A good recipe for expressed thanks at announcement party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My aunt and uncle, with whom I have lived ever since my parents died, are soon going to give a party to announce my engagement. I am not sure, of course, that anyone will bring a gift to this party, but, if anyone does, please give me some hints as to how to express my thanks.—Frances L.

Here are five guiding hints. (1) If at all convenient, open at once the package when it is handed to you. . . so to show your appreciation and enthusiasm. (2) First say a general thanks . . . "Rose, dear, how very kind of you to make me so happy." (3) Then comment enthusiastically on the gift and special features. . . "What a handsome tray-cloth! Just what I have been longing for . . . to use on my desk and for travelling too. It's a beauty . . . and I'll have it begin at once to tick, the happy minutes. Thank you . . . thank you . . . thank you." (4) If you receive several presents, don't give the impression that you are in a hurry to thank for the one in hand so that you can get on as soon as possible to find out what is in the next package. Take your time! (5) And be sure to write a follow-up note within a day or so, to complete your expression-of-appreciation.

RAWDON

Mrs. Ida Denton Pays Official Visit to Mt. Pleasant W.M.S.

Rawdon. — The November meeting of Mount Pleasant Women's Missionary Society was held last Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Herbert Smith. There were 12 members, seven visitors and five children in attendance. A three basket of floral tributes added a note of beauty to the service.

Mrs. Burton Sharpe played quiet music and Mrs. Ross Hoard read a poem "Our Lovely World". All sang "Near the Cross" and the Prayer from the October Missionary was read.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen gave her report and the treasurer reported $66.33 for October. The community Friendship secretary read a letter from the presbyterial secretary of this department which gave ideas for recording individual visits each month. Plans were made to pack the supply bale soon. The Christmas meeting will be held December 12, at home of Mrs. Gordon Linn and Ruth. Mrs. Roy Thrasher and Miss Ruth Linn gave good reports of the sectional rally held at Shannonville in October.

Mrs. Will Hubble and Mrs. Ross Hoard contributed a musical selection, violin and piano.

Pays Official Visit

Mrs. Ida Denton, stewardship secretary, of Belleville presbyterial, paid her official visit. She said "In the three quarters of 1951 Mrs. Mills had received $11,256. The 1952 allocation for Belleville presbyterial is $20,000.

"When the value of the Canadian dollar dropped to a new low, it was necessary to raise more funds. An appeal has gone out to each auxiliary to reach and surpass their allocation and to remit all their money at the end of each year."

Mrs. Denton outlined a weekly budget which she felt wise to consider for another year. Mrs. Mills hopes all treasurers will have their remittance in Napanee by January 5, and not hold up the line.

"Christian Stewardship is, giving ourselves, our time, and our talents, sharing our possessions and sharing our money. God can use us in His work. In these days we are being asked to give to outside charitable institutions but we must remember missions is the top need, as it is up to us to save lost souls.

"Missions and the Christian Church go hand in hand. This is a day of opportunity and each one is asked to justify the faith and do all they can to further the great missionary cause.

Mrs. F. L. Wilson, vice president, urged each auditor to increase their membership as the W.M.S. is a group of women trying to do the Master's work. Our obligations to Missions is Christ's command, "Go ye into all the world . . ". All people need the gospel, those who have it owe it to others to help advance the Kingdom of God now. She closed with a poem.

Mrs. Frank Jeffs thanked the ladies for their messages.

Devotional Period

The devotional opened with a hymn and Mrs. James Hoard read the Bible lesson.

Mrs. Roy Thrasher read an article on "The Abiding Peace".

Mrs. Mac Sharp read a poem based on "The Words of Christ".

After the service closed the hostess assisted by a few friends served light refreshments and Mrs. Percy MacMullen tendered thanks for hospitality.

RE ELECT SANDERCOCK

KEEP FROST AS PREMIER

TO THE

ELECTORS OF HASTINGS WEST

During the past few weeks I have endeavored to meet as many of you as possible, that I have not met you all is I am sure understandable, there are only twenty four hours in a day.

Over the radio and through the press you have been kept informed of the various issues in this campaign. The one thing that stands out and you must have noticed is, that with all the speaking and all the writing, not one instance of wilful mismanagement on the part of the government has been laid at the doors of the Progressive Conservative government of this province. The record is there for all to see, that more has not been done is due entirely to the fact that progress does cost money and there is a limit to the funds of any government. You the taxpayers of Ontario must pay for all the improvements in services and all the grants to the various institutions maintained or partially maintained by this province. That so much has been done, and still left you in Ontario with the lowest provincial taxes of any province in Canada, is why the record of the government of which I am proud to form a part is so remarkable.

The party I represent in this election did not come to you with promises, rather they have in every way possible, through every medium, attempted to show you that the government you elected in 1948 has kept faith, has given you a government of which you can be proud.

The pledge I made to you in 1948 and which I have every day, not just four times a year, kept: that is to look after every complaint and suggestion from my electors, has been fulfilled. I have worked steadfastly for West Hastings. The grants to hospitals, the Old Folks Home, the improved highways, the personal attention I have given to Old Age Pensioners and to Mothers' Allowance recipients is evidence of the sincerest interest I have always taken and will continue to take in the welfare of the people of this riding.

I am qualified by my record of public service, by my three years' membership in the government of Ontario and by my 20 years' service as superintendent of your Old Folks' Home to truly represent you at Toronto. I was proud to be your elected representative in 1948 and if again I am trusted with your confidence will do all in my power to promote the interests of this good old riding of West Hastings. My business gives me plenty of latitude from a time angle to investigate every complaint or suggestion that may be made and my experience and proven ability to get action at Toronto for my constituents is your guarantee that you will receive that personal attention to your business in Toronto that I have in the past been able to get.

I urge you all to exercise your franchise on Thursday, November 22nd, and go to the polls and vote to retain in office the Frost Progressive Conservative administration, the finest government Ontario has ever had. If you cast your ballot for Sandercock you may be sure your trust will not be misplaced.

BANCROFT

Public Library To be Enlarged

Bancroft—Plans for enlarging, renovating and rejuvenating its present facilities occupied the majority of the time at a regular meeting of the board of Bancroft Public Library in the library quarters of the community hall on Thursday night.

With a gross circulation of 8,-170 (from 160 children and 135 adult) borrowers in 1950 the board and librarian, Miss Allen Mullett, unanimously decided that now was the time to enlarge the present library room. This conclusion was not a spur of the moment decision but the result of an intensive survey of the situation during the past two or three years. It was noted that since the library was established in its present quarters in 1930 Bancroft's population has increased from less than a thousand to nearly fifteen hundred.

Committee Appointed

Previous to the meeting Reeve Theodore Tryon had notified the organization that they would be able to use the room that was formerly the village gaol. Since the provincial police headquarters on Flint Street has been completed the gaol in this building is being used by the local municipal police. A committee of Mrs. obert Stirrett, Mrs. Emerson Laundry and Mrs. J. W. C. Hutton was appointed to handle the details of the renovation program that is hoped to include removing the present trustees bodies converting the added space to a combined book and reading room.

Besides the village of Bancroft the local library services the townships of Faraday, Dungannon and Herschel-Monteagle and many borrowers from other points in North Hastings. Among its regular customers are many rural school teachers from the unorganized schools of this area.

A review of the board's financial position for the year was given by the secretary treasurer, Mrs. J. W. C. Hutton. The chairman for the evening was the president, Mrs. Emerson Laundry.

Little Benny's Noté Book

Pop was starting to leen back comfortable in his private chair, and ma said William, are you going to bestir yourself and put a new washer in that bathroom faucet, or do I have to lie awake all though another nite waiting for the next drop to drip?

I'll fix it if you say so, my dear, but first I'd better tell you about Randolf Zoom and the cricket, pop said, and ma said, First you'd better attened to that faucet.

You may change your mind after you've heard about Randolf's crickit, pop said. It was some where in Randolf's bedroom, but he couldn't locate it, and it began its song every nite just as Randolf started to drop off to sleep. Randolf was a very considerate man, and he thought if he waited patiently, the crickit would eventually wear itself out, but apparently that wasn't the solution, because practice just seems to make the crickit more and more perfect. So Randolf thought a cat, and the cat caught a cupple of mice that Randolf didn't want, without showing the slightest intrist in the crickit. So Randolf, at grate expense, called in a crew of termites men, and they tried to cast a spell on the crickit, but naturelly it didn't werk, because the crickit didn't understand a werd of termite language. And then one day the crickit got bored and moved somewhere else, and Randolf stayed awake nite after nite waiting in vain for its cheery song to begin, till fi nally he had to buy himself a crickit at the pet shop, and now he's all rite again and goes to slepp like a baby every nite to his crickit lively lullaby. Do you still want me to stop that drip? he said?

I'll give you one guess, ma said. The result being you guessed yes and went and did it soon 2 sauLL. vbg cnf mw ffd

Congress Favors Elimination Of Price Practices

Ottawa, Nov. 21 (CP)—The 360,000-member Canadian Congress of Labor said today it favors elimination of resale price maintenance practices, but doubts the ban would bring much relief from high living costs.

In a 4,000-word brief presented to parliament's special committee on retail price-fixing, the Congress said it prefers to concentrate on price controls which it believes more effective in dealing with living costs.

But since the government and parliament had set "their faces like flint against public control of prices," the Congress would welcome action against retail price-fixing, which might lead to a "considerable number of small price reductions; a few drops of water in a thirsty land."

The Congress said resale price maintenance practices are an old story in Canada, and that a "whole string of reports under the Combines Investigation Act have noted its existence and condemned it."

There were reports as far back as in 1936 and 1937 which dealt with the Canadian drug trade, and there investigators had found clear cases of intention to fix resale prices. The Congress alleged there were other cases such as in combines reports on dental supplies, optical goods, breadmaking and matches, where the question of resale price maintenance showed up.

"Unmistakably, resale price maintenance limits competition," the Congress maintained. And anything which limits competition is on the face of it "at least suspect."

"The government and parliament of C[illegible]da have apparently set their f[illegible]s like flint against public control of prices—yet they have tolerated for years private control of prices by individual firms . . ."

The Congress believed "it is time that this paradox is ended."

Marmora W.I.

The November meeting of Marmora Women's Institute was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. G. Kerr. The president, Mrs. H. P. Nayler, was in the chair, and the attendance of members was particularly good.

Letters of appreciation were received from relatives of a deceased member, for tokens of sympathy received.

Also from P. Timmins, field secretary of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, a letter of thanks was read congratulating the branch on the fine results of the canvass and Tag Day last month.

Another letter of thanks was also read from Mrs. Irene Robson, librarian, thanking the Institute for the yearly donation which means so much to the Library Board.

As the result of no appeal, $5 was voted towards the purchase of a community tractor for a part of Greece which suffered from the occupance and a further $5 for the "Bread for Greece Fund".

For the sick committee, Mrs. F. Sweet reported the sending of cards to three sick members. The president announced that Institute efficient names had been received to warrant the proposed bus trip to the Royal Winter Fair, so, consequently it was cancelled.

To Purchase Matting

A motion was passed, authorizing the purchase of cocoa matting for a section of the floor of the Public Library which has recently undergone renovation with the Institute bearing the expense. The branch decided to accept the invitation of Marmora Chapter of the Eastern Star to serve the supper at the latter's Inaugural meeting on December 8th.

A paper was read by Mrs. R. E. Neal dealing with "Citizenship and Education", with special reference to instructing youth as to the meaning of "Democracy". The president followed with a report of the Area Convention recently held in Belleville.

The program consisted of a solo by Mrs. E. E. Prentice, Kipling's "Lest We Forget", and a garden contest in which Mrs. P. Gray and Mrs. R. Nayler tied. The break of the tie was in the latter's favor. Refreshments were served by the committee in charge. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. F. R. Wells.

"I brought my family up on crisp, creamy, fresh home-baking from FIVE ROSES flour, so naturally I use it for all my baking. My little ones — and my husband, too! — can't wait to get into the cooky jar or taste pies made with FIVE ROSES — and when I bake a batch of bread, it seems to be eaten up in a minute! As soon as my little girl is old enough, she'll begin baking with FIVE ROSES — making two generations!"

MRS. WALTER P. HEISE, R.R. 2, Dunnville, Ont.

"The first time my husband had lunch at home, he told me "Above all, you're a FIVE ROSES Cook!" Everybody laughed, and my mother explained that nothing was astonishing about it, because she had taught me to bake with FIVE ROSES flour. Believe me, — my husband makes sure that FIVE ROSES is used all the time in our home!"

MRS. ARTHUR BOUCHER, 9 St. André St., Hawkesbury, Que.

"I have used FIVE ROSES flour for twenty-five years, and I never let me down. My husband and friends always compliment me on my cakes, cookies, breads and most anything I bake. I would not be without a large bag of FIVE ROSES flour in our house."

MRS. J. BRYDEN, 2364 Oakwood Avenue, Toronto, Ontario.

"FIVE ROSES All Purpose Flour is my favourite cooking friend. It has been my friend in all the years I have used it for baking, let me down. I like to do all my baking and am really proud of the wonderful results this all purpose flour gives. I certainly recommend FIVE ROSES for perfect baking."

French, British Economic Plight Points to Possibility Of Special Foreign-Aid Help

Washington, Nov. 21—(AP)—An urgent request from France for fast United States dollar assistance today heightened the possibility that the administration may ask Congress early next year for a special foreign-aid appropriation.

Britain is in about the same economic plight as France. In fact, almost all America's European allies were described by authorities as requiring help to maintain defence production and scheduled contributions to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's European army.

Officials told reporters that within the next few days the U.S. will probably make a final decision on how much direct help the French need. Estimates range from $200,000,000 to $400,000,000. Officials have said the U.S., according to informed sources who may not be named, that it will have to cut imports and reduce its defence operations unless special help is forthcoming promptly.

Congress this fall voted a mutual security appropriation totaling $7,228,000,000, while the great bulk of that was earmarked for purchase of military equipment for American forces, $1,022,000,000 was earmarked for economic aid—primarily for western Europe.

Tentative Allocation

This was almost $700,000,000 less than the administration had asked.

Several weeks ago, mutual security officials made tentative allocations of $950,000,000 in military aid fund for 13 countries considered eligible at that time.

Also tentatively, officials had scheduled another $600,000,000 which they could divert from military to economic assistance purposes should be the situation warrant until a survey of the whole north Atlantic defence effort—now under way is completed.

None of the allocations made to help the French and British, Although Britain's declining gold and dollar health is a cause of concern here as in London, the amount of British aid needs is reported to be still unknown in Washington.

The French situation was described as the first to present itself clearly and specifically. The only question still to be determined apparently is not whether the French will get U.S. aid, but how much and where it will come from.

What the French seek, it was learned, is assurance that their total dollar income, including funds from U.S. troops and military spending in France, will amount to between $400,000,000 and $600,000,000 a year.

Thomson Earned $90,000 and Paid $33,000 in Tax

Pickering, Ont., Nov. 21—(CP)—Liberal leader Walter Thomson said yesterday that for 5½ years' work as a solicitor for the Veterans Affairs department he earned $90,000, paid $33,000 in income tax and took home $57,000.

Mr. Thomson's political opponents have repeatedly demanded that the Liberal leader state how much he kept of the $347,000 paid by the federal government for his services.

In a statement yesterday, Mr. Thomson said the operating expenses of offices he had to maintain for D.V.A. work used about three-quarters of the gross federal payment.

"I personally had $90,000," said Mr. Thomson. "Of that, $33,000 went for income tax; and I had $57,000 left."

Mr. Thomson said he took the D.V.A. job when no other Toronto lawyer would touch it because the rate of payment was low.

"I wouldn't do it again for all the rice in China," he said. "I went back to a naked practice, an empty office, I had to go to Florida to recuperate after it."

Whooping Crane Dies of Wounds From Shot Gun

San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 21 — (AP) — Howard Lee Whooping Crane died today of a gunshot wound.

His death makes another gap in the vanishing flock of 32, the only known whooping cranes in the world, counted last year.

Howard came from the far north Nov. 3 to spend the winter on a sun-bathed island in the Gulf of Mexico near Corpus Christi, Tex.

Manager Julian Howard of the Arkansas Wildlife Refuge found Howard the crane on the ground, unable to stand. Few of the 32 cranes legs had been broken by a bullet.

Last Saturday Howard the crane was put to bed in a crate of hay and taken to the San Antonio zoo for treatment. Howard failed to respond to treatment.

Last year 8,000 of the long-legged winter tourists with a wing spread of some 7½ feet stayed at the Aransas refuge. This year joined the two permanent residents, Crip and Jo, two crippled captives.

Twenty-two have returned this year, and more are expected.

U.N. Push Gains Nearly 5 Miles Since Saturday

Seoul, Korea Nov. 21—(AP)—United Nations' forces today threw back the communists' strongest attempt to halt an allied thrust strengthening drive on the central Korean front. The U.N. push has gained nearly five miles since Saturday.

The republic of Korea 6th division stopped counter-attacks by elements of two red battalions. Allies were described by authorities as requiring help to maintain defence production and scheduled contributions to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's European army.

Officials told reporters that within the next few days the U.S. will probably make a final decision on how much direct help the French need. Estimates range from $200,000,000 to $400,000,000. ## Police Holding Two Suspects In Man's Death

Kitchener, Nov. 21. (CP)—Police said today they have been busy two days and questioning about the death of Don Fowler, 21, of Waterloo, whose body was found beside a house trailer on a sideroad a few miles west of here.

Two men in custody were identified as Albert De Leary, Muncey Reserve Indian, and Albert Lebolt, 22, of Wellesley. They lived in the trailer with Fowler.

Police refused to say the cause of Fowler's death.

The French editor reporters that during the night—while De Leary was sleeping—he scuffled with Lebolt. He said Fowler had a poker and that he grabbed a 22 rifle, intending to use it as a club if necessary.

Lebolt said he heard a crack and thought Fowler had hit De Leary. Lebolt said he did not know the gun, his own, was loaded.

"I didn't know anything had happened because everything after I walked out and found him dead. I will take the consequences."

The death was reported to police by Clayton Bechtel, Fowler's employer.

Sergeant McCuish Declares Korean War 'Not Really Tough'

By BILL BOSS'
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the Canadian in Korea, Nov. 21—(CP)—Sergeant Ken Stratta 9½ months in Korea, Sgt. David L. McCuish says "it really wasn't so tough."

The 24-year-old Torontonian counts just five days of close-quarter fighting with the communists and figures on member of the 2nd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, recently replaced by the 1st Battalion, could have had more than 10 days of red-hot fighting during his Korean service.

"The rest of the time it was either dull plodding uphill and down dale, days on end in the mountains, sheer hard work, or close sitting in the line, is nonstop but not forcing any issues, under the hazard of mortar—and incoming artillery-fire, always ready for anything that might come up."

McCuish, who joined the Korean force in July, 1950, is "about the average Patricia" who was in the battalion's single engagement to spent most of his time working or waiting for something to happen.

Five Red-Hot Days

McCuish's five days of red-hot action:

Three days in February, soon after the Patricias entered the line after training at Punsan; the night of April 24, when the Canadians stopped the Chinese spring offensive on their front, and last Oct. 3 when his platoon stormed and captured a ridge against stiff opposition.

Other Patricias might have "hit it hot" other days. But none would have seen more than 10 days of close-quarter fighting.

"Korea, as I've seen it—and I'm about the average Canadian—has been more of a dull, slugging kind of campaign than fever-pitch actions like Oct. 3."

That was the day McCuish, after reconnoitring the ridge by night, led his platoon in a charge on an enemy bunker. After McCuish's men had hurled eight grenades into it, nine Chinese bodies were found.

McCuish, a merchant seaman in the Second World War, gained his sergeant's stripes last May. He says the Korean war is the sort that perfects a soldier's fieldcraft. The Canadians "learned almost to think like the Chinese."

Became Experts

"We became pretty expert at making ourselves comfortable. We copied the Chinese, building bunkers like theirs. We learned to improvise ways of preparing our food, of keeping our clothes and bodies clean, how to place our shelter-halves (a sort of two-man pup-tent) so the rain wouldn't sweep into them.

"We learned to distinguish between the birds and animals that roam at night. There was one we used to call the 'hey, hey' because it used to say 'hey, hey' all night. One corporal even answered 'what do you want?' before we knew what it was—a kind of magpie.

"We learned not to throw grenades when rabbits ran into our barbed wire and set off the trip flares."

Also the Canadians, who McCuish says "used to consider the Koreans almost as vermin," learned to treat the natives of this unhappy country as people."

That wasn't all they learned. "We as Canadians do not appreciate the full fact of freedom and democracy," he said as he "sweated out" the long, hot days before preparing drafts of his homeward-bound comrades.

Sixteen Killed In Plane Crash Near Calcutta

Calcutta, India, Nov. 21 (Reuters)—A Deccan Airways DC-3 plunged into fogbound jungle and burst into flames three miles from here at dawn today, killing 16 persons. The sole survivor was taken to hospital.

Nearby villagers, wakened by the explosion, said those aboard could be heard screaming for help.

But would-be rescuers were driven back by flames which covered the plane from end to end.

Passengers who died in the crash included H. C. Hines, a courier of the United Kingdom High Commissioner's office in India; Lala Deshbandhu Gupta, 53, president of the All-India newspaper Editors' conference, and two other journalists of Indian papers.

Harry Hay, managing director of the daily Taj and Indians News Chronicle.

RESERVES DECISION.

Toronto, Nov. 21—(CP)— The Ontario Milk Control Board has reserved decision on an application from Brantford milk producers for permission to increase the price they charge for milk.

Milk now sells in Brantford for 24.12½ a hundredweight and 19 cents a quart. The producers want $4.90 a hundredweight and 21 cents.

American Admiral Will Command Atlantic Forces

Rome, Nov. 21 (AP)—Britain today was reported ready to agree to the appointment of an American admiral to command the west's naval forces in the Atlantic.

A qualified informant said British concurrence was made possible by agreement of the North Atlantic Treaty organization military committee, meeting here, to give more clear-cut responsibilities of the Atlantic naval commander, and also on the establishment of a new English Channel commander under a British admiral.

The Atlantic naval commander will control sharply-defined powers, the informant said, indicating that Britain will retain certain powers she considers vital.

Presumably these would include control of the western sea approaches to the British Isles.

The British presently had blocked appointment of an American to the post.

The new English Channel command will be under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters and will direct western defences in the channel and the southern part of the North Sea.

Although the military group has authority only to recommend to N.A.T.O. council was expected that council would accept recommendations on the commands at the December session which opens here Saturday.

Meanwhile the west's top military men are meeting to discuss and how much Eisenhower needs to carry out an accelerated build-up of his international army.

A top-secret listing of forces, airfields, equipment and other requirements was made for them by Eisenhower's chief of staff, Lt.-Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther.

Attending the closely-guarded meeting (9:30 a.m. EST) were the chiefs of staff of 11 European countries of the N.A.T.O.—including Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C., of Canada, and a representative of army-less Iceland.

Liberal Leader Issues Policy On Liquor Question

Toronto, Nov. 21—(CP)— Liberal leader Walter Thomson yesterday pledged his party to "clean up liquor control in Ontario" if it forms the government after the Nov. 22 election.

Mr. Thomson, in a statement which he last week promised to issue, set out an eight-point Liberal liquor policy.

1. Adequate facilities for the sale of beer and liquor "in additional standard" have been raised.

2. The liquor inspection system be overhauled to provide adequate inspection and appraisal of operating standards in licensed outlets."

3. Consideration to establishment of a non-political advisory board to help the liquor control board.

4. Support the principal of local option on sale of alcoholic beverages.

5. Use of liquor revenues for increased research and rehabilitation centres, alcohol education and more effective law enforcement measures.

6. More effective control of sale in licensed outlets.

7. Encouragement for establishment in the province of schools based on the experience and curriculum of the Yale University school of alcohol studies.

8. Use of liquor profits for social services.

"Our objective is to take liquor control entirely out of politics," Mr. Thomson said.

SEEKS LEGAL SEPARATION

New York, Nov. 21 (AP) — Former swimming star Eleanor Holm has served papers on her husband, showman Billy Rose, seeking a legal separation, her lawyer reported yesterday. Reports said the papers were served on Rose, 50, during the weekend. The Roses were married 13 years ago.

CANNOT WEAR SLACKS

Toronto, Nov. 21 (CP) —Girl pupils at public schools in suburban Mimico, New Toronto and Long Branch will have to give up wearing slacks to school under a ruling announced today by the Lakeshore Board of Education. "Girls should be girls and wear skirts to school," said trustee Mrs. Marjorie Evans.

Opposition Renews Demands That Govt. Provide Auxiliary Services for Troops in Korea

Ottawa, Nov. 21 (CP) —In one final stand, opposition parties yesterday renewed a demand that the government provide auxiliary services for the troops in Korea and at least see that they get Canadian cigarets.

Members in the three opposing parties campaigned again in the Commons on that issue as the chamber gave third and final reading to a government bill making technical amendments to various statutes affecting the armed forces.

They reported that soldiers returning from Korea spoke of the lack of domestic cigarets in that far eastern theatre, and asked that the government see that the troops get a chance to have a Canadian smoke.

Ralph Campney, parliamentary assistant to Defence Minister Claxton, said he could not say fully add anything to what Mr. Claxton already has said—that the terrain and weather conditions of Korea make auxiliary services impossible.

Mr. Claxton now is in Europe seeing Canada's 27th Brigade as it takes its place in Gen. Eisenhower's European defence forces.

Leader Drew of the Progressive Conservative leader, recalled that Mr. Claxton had said last May arrangements would be or were made to get Canadian cigarets and other amenities to the men in Korea.

Troops Smoke "Gaspers"

Veterans returning from Korea as late as Monday had been quoted as saying Canadian cigarets and other things still were not available in Korea. They received Australian cigarets, similar to the "gaspers" that Canadians smoked in France during the First World War.

He suggested that if there is any difficulty in getting paper it is so well disguised that it couldn't be distinguished from "something else that was quite different."

Mr. Drew said Canadians shouldn't have to rely on other countries for entertainment. The Canadian people themselves, like U.S. the YMCA, the Knights of Columbus and other organizations served not only Canadian troops, but the troops of other countries as well.

It was not good for Canadians to see men from other countries getting things that they could not get themselves.

Angus MacInnis (CCF-Vancouver East) said something should be done immediately about providing auxiliary services for Canadian troops.

Mr. Claxton (Cartier) (PC-Cape Breton South) said that unless adequate facilities are provided it will be found that Canadians behave badly when on leave.

John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) said correspondence indicated that the government knew that the Canadian Legion, the Knights of Columbus and the YMCA all had offered to set up auxiliary services. None had been accepted. The people were demanding that the government give the offers favorable attention.

Lt.-Col. Douglas Harkness (PC-Calgary East) said on returning home to Calgary from Korea reported that the available services are poor, but could easily be improved.

North Atlantic Treaty Group Planning Military Security

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Paris, Nov. 21—(CP)—Members of the North Atlantic Organization are telling all to each other in precedent-setting exposures.

For the first time in history members of an international group are exposing completely their economic, political and military situations for the common good—in essence a uniformly solid organization.

The executive committee of three men is taking the information to provide a rounded picture of the relationship between A. T. O. plans and the economic, political and military realities. They are Averell Harriman of the United States Sir Edwin Plowden of Britain and Jean Monnet of France.

These "three wise men"—empowered for that job by the 12 of the N. A.T. O. meeting in Ottawa, have the immediate task of recommending how to get the most military security at the least risk of economic and political collapse.

Leaders Make Reports

Finance and military leaders of the member countries have been reporting one at a time to the "three wise men" here in Paris, following a questionnaire sent to each country concerning troops, supplies, production and economic situations.

Finance Minister Douglas Abbott of Canada was one of those quizzed. As a member of the 12-member temporary council committee of which the "three wise men" are the executive, Abbott will receive their report on the situation in a meeting scheduled for Dec. 23 in Paris.

The T. C. C. will make preliminary recommendations to the North Atlantic Treaty Council meeting in Rome Nov. 24 over which Lt. Gen. Lauris Norstad, U.S. external affairs minister, will preside at this year's chairman.

Feader Economic Problems

The T. C. C.'s job, which the "three wise men" will be supervising, is largely one of economy. What it finds, for example, that one country is planning to build military trucks that are not essential for immediate security needs, it might recommend that effort's would be better spent in other directions.

But on the other hand, the T. C. C. may come up with the recommendation that some country might make bigger contributions to the joint effort than it has planned.

It has been indicated that N. A. T. O. now is aiming to have an integrated security force available by next year in case of an attack against western Europe. But since 1950, when the target date was when it could be hoped the buildup might be able to taper off.

U.S. Plane Lost; Used as Target By Slav Gunners

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Nov. 21 (AP) — Hungary and Romania complained today that a United States plane which is still missing after being fired on by the satellite border guards Monday—accused, over their territories illegally.

Protests were presented to the American missions in Budapest and Bucharest, even as U.S. planes prepared to search over Yugoslavia for the missing C-47 transport. The plane disappeared Monday with four crew members and a diplomatic cargo aboard.

The notes were presented after American inquiries were made about the fate of the unarmed craft of the plane, whose pilot had radioed by the Munich airport that day that he had been fired upon by the Border patrols of the two countries as he turned back westward.

The pilot's reports, as disclosed by the U.S. Embassy in Belgrade, did not mention any damage from the shooting.

Premier Tito's government today began the search for permission to fly over the northwest part of Yugoslavia, an area previously forbidden to foreign planes.

Hope for Truce In Korean War Grows Brighter

Munsan, Korea, Nov. 21—(AP) —Truce hopes brightened today when communist negotiators submitted a cease-fire plan of their own that could open the way for a Korean armistice by Christmas.

It was similar to a United Nations' plan for creating a buffer zone along the present fighting line, to take effect if an armistice is signed within 30 days.

A U.N. command communique referred to the resemblance as non-sacrificial.

But the command's official spokesman, Brig.-Gen. William P. Nuckols, said if the new plan "seems what we think it means. Then I think we are very close to solution" of the buffer zone question.

The point in doubt was whether the communist proposal means "that troops will be withdrawn from the buffer zone after an armistice is signed," as the U.N. has proposed.

The communist submitted their counter-proposal Wednesday, allied negotiators tried to determine whether the reds contemplated an immediate or delayed withdrawal from a buffer zone to become effective on armistice day.

At the close of the session Maj.-Gen. Henry I. Hodes, heading the U.N. sub-committee, told the red delegates "we will present you with the necessary revisions to clear up this proposal" at Thursday's meeting. It is set for 11 a.m. Wednesday.

Smaller Lands Said Favoring Churchill-Truman-Stalin Meet

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Paris, Nov. 21—(CP) — President Vincent Auriol of France apparently took a step back in time by suggesting a Truman-Stalin-Churchill meeting but several lesser-powered United Nations delegations are aiming at the same target.

Diplomats believe that a meeting of the Big Three in the near future is unlikely but that it is the ultimate goal. Reports that Prime Minister Churchill or Britain will visit Prime Minister Stalin in Moscow and that a Churchill visit to Washington to see President Truman.

Auriol's surprise move at the opening of the United Nations assembly soon was echoed in the general debate by a number of medium powers including India and Yugoslavia. Many smaller powers indicated they still retained hope that a meeting of the Big Three could lessen to some degree the chances for an east-west cold war.

Truman, diplomatic sources speculated, might soon find himself one of the few who thinks such a meeting is a good idea.

Russia has indicated that she would like a Big Three conference and Churchill has stated that a new effort should be made to bridge the gap between Soviet Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, but his policy speech before the U.N. assembly did not "break the start." One major item ruling against the meeting of the Big Three meeting is the question of travel. Stalin contends he does not like to travel and Truman says he would like to see Stalin but only in Washington.

Unless there is a big change in views, Churchill is left as the man who can link the three by going to both. The British leader is expected to try to change Truman's mind during his visit in Washington but the most he is expected to receive in that connection is Truman's blessings for a visit to Moscow.

Huge Crops of Vegetables Grown Along Holland River On Land Formerly Unused

Bradford, Ont. (CP)—A few years ago, the soil around this village 23 miles north of Toronto was just marshy wasteland along the banks of the Holland River.

Today it's one of the richest market gardens in the country.

But the "black muck" has done more than grow crops worth millions of dollars annually. It's brought the people that live here into one democratic unit, a harmonious community the United Nations might well envy.

Of the 1,500 citizens who live here include such nationalities as Poles, Slovaks, Japanese, Chinese, Dutch and Canadians.

Bradford, without co-operation, could well be a kind of horizontal tower of Babel. But the new Canadians immediately set about learning the language of their adopted country and their children have picked it up with incredible facility.

George Cowan, principal of the public school that is so new it has not been formally opened, said that many children arrive at the school not knowing one word of English.

19 Nationalities

"We have at least ten different nationalities in the school but we don't differentiate in any way and we have no difficulties. This makes for a fine spirit in Bradford which typifies our Canadian way of life."

And the rich, black soil is the main reason.

In 1919, visionaries dreamed of the days when the Holland marsh would be drained and the land reclaimed. The late Prof. W. H. Day of the Ontario Agriculture College, went so far as to make experiments but two decades passed before the scheme had sufficient impetus to produce results.

In the early '40s the marsh began to boom.

Canals were dredged for proper irrigation and the yearly crops began to hit the over-a-million-dollar mark.

George Cowan, manager of the Bradford co-operative storage, is proud of the growers who work this rich soil.

"The marsh produced enough vegetables this year to give every family in Canada one bushel of mixed vegetables."

Once Wasteland

This is not bad for an area where once the main crop was marsh hay for use in stuffing mattresses and packing purposes.

Originally the hay was cut by scythe, but as demand increased, and hay-fever hadn't come into its own, horses with boards fastened to their hoofs pulled the machines that cut the hay.

But the prosperity was Victorian compared with the present day.

The Bradford co-op, with its baths for washing vegetables and its mammoth refrigerator rooms, looks like the last word to ordinary individuals. However, Mr. Carson is always experimenting.

These days he is trying out a new method, involving rapid cooling, for the preservation of celery.

At the Holland River Gardens Co. plant, called "the world's most modernly-equipped vegetable packing plant", the produce is packaged in splintered ice to arrive "garden fresh" at distant markets.

Reeve Frank Allen said: "Last year the population increased by almost 100 and it's bound to continue to grow. . . I wouldn't be surprised to see some canneries start here soon.

"The marsh has made Bradford. The town is booming."

SHORT SEASON

Corner Brook, Nfld. (CP)—The moose-hunting season lasted only a couple of hours for E. Critch, who was out at daybreak and back home before noon with a four-year-old buck. His moose weighed 600 pounds.

GOOD RECORD

Sheet Harbor, N.S. (CP) — Nova Scotia's oldest licensed automobile driver is 93-year-old Henry Hall of this eastern shore town. Active and alert despite his years, he has had only one accident in 36 years of driving—he knocked the hub cap off another car while passing on a narrow road 35 years ago.

Noted Cartoonist, Lou Skuce, Dies At Drawing Board

Toronto, Nov. 21—(CP)—Lou Skuce, 68, who entertained and delighted persons throughout the English-speaking world with his sport cartoons and other drawings, died today at his drawing board. His symbol, a goose with a hat perched on its head at a rakish angle, was as well-known as its originator.

During the First World War he was with the psychological welfare branch of the National Defence Department. In the Second World War, he produced government posters and helped promote the sale of victory bonds.

In his youth he was an athlete, in his later years a playwright, an actor and a painter of landscapes and portraits.

He won world and Canadian honors for paddling while a member of the Britannia Club in Ottawa. He also paddled for the Parkdale Canoe Club.

While living in New York, he became interested in the theatre and started writing and acting in plays. One of his best-known plays was "Bill of 13." At his death he was chairman of the Toronto chapter of the American Guild of Variety Artists.

He started his cartooning career with the Ottawa Journal. After moving to Toronto, he worked for the old Toronto World, the Star, and the Mail and Empire (later combined with the Globe to form the Globe and Mail), and for 14 years was art editor of the old Sunday World. For the last 15 years he free-lanced.

Among the works of the little man with the facile pen were the murals he drew for the Toronto Men's Press Club. These drawings, which illustrate club scenes and humorously depict the evolution of the printed word from the stone age up to today's giant printing presses, cover the walls of a large lounge.

TWO GIRLS DROWN

Hamilton, Nov. 21 (CP)—Two little girls were drowned today in a private swimming pool half a mile from their home at nearby Alderwood.

Linda Joan Carr, 4, and Susan Spencer, 5, wandered away from their homes during the forenoon. Late in the day a neighbor saw their bodies floating in four feet of water.

One theory was that they fell through thin ice on the pool.

HEAVY SHIPMENTS

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. (CP)—With the lake shipping season not closing before the middle of December, cargo totals are already higher than the previous record peacetime year of 1948. As of Oct. 31 a total of 140,000,000 net tons was chalked up for iron ore, grain, coal and limestone cargoes.

Union of Germany Difficult Job, Split Six Years

By TOM HENRY

Berlin. (AP)—Germany is a shattered, crumpled dumpty. Despite all the talk about national aloofness and unity, can Germany be put together again?

For six years the nation has been split. East Germany has gone the Kremlin's way. West Germany has been integrating itself with U.S. free world.

Between the two is more than a geographical line. The Elbe river frontier might as well be Styx.

With sustained pressure, the Russians and their German-born henchmen gradually have transformed the life of 18,000,000 people in their zone until it has become almost un-German.

Meanwhile, the 48,000,000 people in the west have hurried impatiently back to traditional Germanism—respect for constituted law and order, respect for titles and authority, respect for the profit motive and above all German pride in their own culture and destiny.

In the east zone, Stalin is the public hero; in the west, Bismarck, Beethoven, Struesmann—Germans all.

If national unity were to come in many observers believe it would be possible to wipe out the differences in life in the two divisions of Germany relatively quickly. But in another five or 10 years, these same thinkers are convinced, the red imprint might be indelible on many East Germans.

There are vested interests in the impoverished east who have much to lose and little to gain by unity with the west.

The politicians, for example. The ruling Socialist Unity (communist) party leaders would be almost certain to be shelved and they know it. Some might have a pleasant fate when they got around to explaining conditions in the uranium mines, the concentration camps for political prisoners and their collaboration with the Soviet secret police.

Youthful Mayors

Then there are the elite youth. The communists have elevated these young people in East Germany to a pre-eminent position. More than 300 mayors of small towns and villages are no older than 21 or 22.

West Germans aren't so anxious about all this accent on youth. They saw it during the Hitler regime.

There are, too, the courts and legal machinery of the East, in which "people's judges" and a host of "people's attorneys" are entrenched.

The farmer in the East is harder to predict. The old "Gutsherr" who owned a large acreage is out of business. The reds reformed the land and parcelled out the big estates in driblets to small farmers. The old landowner would be grateful for his return to gentry status but what of those who had shared his wealth?

The average workmen in the eastern cities obviously would relish westernization. They would be relieved from political "mass demonstrations", forced contributions to communist campaign chests, and fear of a sabotage charge for some trifling error in a factory.

More than a million communists rule East Germany. The West thinks they have much to answer for and that may be point number one for the agenda on unity day. An organization of Soviet zone judges and lawyers who had to flee to the west is keeping a giant dossier of "illegal acts" in the "imperialists", Germans fled against the day they can be served.

A unified Germany would mean a unified Berlin, which once more would be the seat of government. The new Reichstag would be a steamy place. Anti-west deputies, and there probably would be some, would scream about the Ruhr producing for the "imperialists". German Nationalists would never get fired demanding return of Silesia, Pomerania and East Prussia, not to mention a little matter of multi-billion Soviet reparations.

It would be noisy.

Many Berliners don't really expect to see the day.

BOUGHT SWISS ARMS

Paris, Nov. 21 — (AP) — An Egyptian spokesman said today his country bought arms from Switzerland to equip forces in the Suez Canal area after Britain, the United States, France and Sweden had refused to supply them.

Dr. Mahmoud Azmi told press conference the arms were purchased "several weeks ago." He gave no details.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson (left) of the U.S., and Anthony Eden, British foreign minister, are shown in a serious conference between sessions of the United Nations General Assembly in Paris. Later Secretary Acheson offered the West's step-by-step disarmament program to the assembly as a way back to peace and challenged Russia to join the West in achieving the goal of world peace. Dove of Peace is Passed On Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky holds a white dove which was presented to him by Anny Gould, Parisian cabaret star, as he arrived for a U.N. Assembly meeting in the French capital. He passed it along to an assistant. J. Lobanov, who said "it was handed to Mr. Vishinsky as a token of peace." — Central Press Canadian.

Pilot Sends Mother Message Before Dying

Clayton, England, Nov. 21—(Reuters)—A Canadian flight-Lieutenant in the R.A.F. sent a message to his mother before he died of burns received in a plane crash near here last night.

He and Sir William Stamp, famous British sportsman, were fatally injured when their light Auster aircraft hit a tree and burst into flames just outside this Devon town.

The Canadian was taken to nearby Exeter where hospital authorities identified him as Flt. Lt. William Brown, a navigator.

He was pulled from the blazing plane by the local vicar, Rev. H. T. Hillier.

The minister said the airman said the airman told the minister "terribly burned, he never gave a murmur.

"I told him I was a padre and he said to me simply 'remember me to my mother and tell her not to grieve.'"

Premier Scott's Papers Depict Evolution of Pioneer West

Regina, (CP)—Walter Scott, Saskatchewan's first premier, was a meticulous preserver of his papers and records.

He kept not only his correspondence with political leaders in the early years of the century, but left a huge collection of photographs, pamphlets, maps, calling cards, and even a record of his golf scores.

Last month the Scott papers, including some 25,000 items of correspondence, were presented to the Archives of Saskatchewan by Miss Dorothy L. Scott, of Winnipeg.

Scott was instrumental in the creation of Saskatchewan and Alberta as provinces, and in 1905 headed Saskatchewan's first government. His papers throw light on a wide variety of subjects connected with the west's early political, social and economic development.

Scott's Saskatchewan career began in 1886 when he came to Regina to assist C. J. Atkinson in publishing the Regina Journal, a rival of N. F. Davin's Regina leader.

Later he became associated with J. K. McInnis in publishing the Regina Standard. In 1894 he became publisher of the Moose Jaw Times and the next year succeeded Davin as editor of the Regina Leader.

The foundations of his political career were laid in his forthright editorials on western problems and aspirations, and in 1896 he was nominated—and elected—by the Liberal party in Western Assiniboia. He defeated his rival, Davin.

In Federal House

He sat at Ottawa for five years, then returned west to head the Saskatchewan government for 11 years, until 1916. He died in 1938.

Scott's letters include correspondence with Sir Wilfrid Laurier and other leaders of the era.

Provincial Archivist Lewis H. Thomas said the collection will be of immediate value to persons preparing studies of various phases of early provincial administration. It is also expected that in the future a biography of the premier, based on these papers, will be undertaken.

The correspondence contains material on the building of the Saskatchewan Legislative Building in Regina, the founding of the University of Saskatchewan at Saskatoon, immigration promotion, liquor guarantees, agricultural credit and election campaigns.

During recurrent ill health, Scott took many trips abroad and he used these occasions to study stimulating new economic developments in the countries he visited with a view to their adoption in Saskatchewan. In this way he contributed to the ferment of new ideas and political experiments which were a feature of Saskatchewan life prior to the First World War.

The papers now are being classified and indexed by the Archives staff. The bulk of the collection will be preserved in the Archives office at the University of Saskatchewan, but certain pictures and documents have been earmarked for permanent display as soon as historical museum facilities are available in Regina.

Chicken Supper Enjoyed by 250

Wallbridge.—The chicken supper which was held in the Wallbridge Church hall on Wednesday night was a decided success. The tables were laden with chicken and all that goes with a supper, to which about 250 people did justice.

While the supper was in progress, Rev. C. W. Neelands put on slides for the people in the church while waiting their turn for supper and Mr. Arthur Duncan, of Bata, also gave some of his witty little stories which caused much merriment.

On Thursday all were asked to come and have dinner to help set up the remaining chicken, pies, potatoes, which were left from the supper. Over $17 was taken in.

Everyone enjoyed the old-fashioned supper and the W.A. ladies are to be congratulated on their work in preparing for such a splendid time.

Mr. J. Hogg, who is still a patient in the Belleville General Hospital, is progressing favorably.

Mr. W. Silce is staying with Mr. and Mrs. Barton Hinchliffe, having spent a few weeks at the Quinte Lodge.

Englishman Crosses Canada On Last Stage of World Trip

Calgary.-(CP)— A 30-year-old Englishman is hitch-hiking across Canada on the last lap of a trip around the world.

Lanky blond David Potter started out from London, near Norwich, in July, 1950. Since then he's worked his way around the globe and still has the money he started out with—"in cash".

He is on his way to New York and from there will work his passage on a ship to England.

Dressed in a plaid shirt and ski cap, a heavy wool sweater, and a windbreaker bought in Vancouver, he told his story at the Calgary tourist bureau. He'd dropped in to find the best way to get to Winnipeg.

He was sent to Rhodesia in 1950 by his father to work six months, then come home. His father is the managing director of an English engineering firm. But instead of coming home, he decided to travel around the world.

He hitch-hiked to Durban, South Africa, then got a job as a deck hand on a ship going to Australia. To avoid possible parental opposition he didn't write home about his plan until he was aboard ship. He needn't have worried—his father approved.

The young Briton worked at a variety of jobs in cities and farms in Australia. Then he landed a job on a ship bound for Canada. Deck Worker in Fiji

He turned to loading sugar during the two weeks the ship stopped in the Fiji Islands.

He landed in Vancouver five weeks ago, then worked on farms, gas stations and building jobs in the district.

In three weeks he had $100 and was ready to set out again.

Optimistic about getting rides across Canada, he had averaged 200 to 300 miles a day.

David carries all his belongings on a pack sack on his back. He says he's had a wonderful time, although he's been in some tight spots.

He refuses to spend the money he brought with him from England, so when he runs out of cash he stops and finds work.

Once he had to sell his shirt. That was in Southern Rhodesia. He had hitched to Victoria Falls with only £3. That took him to within 100 miles of his home at Salisbury. Then he ran out of money again and had to sell his pyjamas to a native.

Interested in farming, he's picked up ideas all over the world from working on tobacco, wheat, sheep, cattle and mixed farms.

His dream is to come to Canada and farm in British Columbia.

Cushy Ocean Trip Delights Soldiers Bound for Europe

By DOUG HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Hannover, Germany.— (CP)— Canadian soldiers moving to Europe are finding there is at least one place where there is too much to eat and where the price of cigarets and beer is low. It's aboard the ship bringing them here.

They are facing the hazards of these oceanic oases in the best Canadian tradition but sometimes it seems more than can bear: six meals a day tax-free beer at 15 cents a pint, servants to make your bed and serve your meals.

The transfer of 5,998 men of the 27th Infantry Brigade and their equipment across the Atlantic will cost probably $1,000,000 just for transportation. As far as the soldiers are concerned, it's worth every cent of it.

Of seven shipdecks crossing at intervals, the Greek Line's Canberra is taking three. She's providing a passage that would arouse the envy of the averaze veteran. There are no hammocks jammed in the holds, no queueing for food, no real crowding.

The soldiers, 500 on the trip I made, sleep between white sheets.

There usually are four soldiers to a cabin. They leave their beds to be made by stewards buy a pint of Canadian or German beer or a package of Canadian or American cigarets for 15 cents and generally enjoy all the facilities of a tourist-class passage.

Excellent Food

There are dormitory-type cabins down in the hold but they are not used.

But it's the eating which tops everything. Aboard the Canberra it is axiomatic that the human being should be fed six times a day—breakfast, 11 a.m. snack, lunch, afternoon snack, dinner, evening snack.

Lunches and dinners are five courses. Steaks, chops, beef are served twice a day. The food not only is endless, it is good. Small wonder that a good number of officers and soldiers are gathering copies of the menus to stimulate their memories in more frugal days ahead, or to prove their point when they write their wonderful at home.

Meals are served by waiters in white jackets, on tables with white cloths, while a four-piece orchestra plays soft music in the wings.

They might have been a bit taken aback at first but towards the end of the voyage it was a common sight to see privates from Flin Flon or Steelacks urbanely scanning a waiter's try of hors d'oeuvres, making their selections, then turning graciously to applaud something from Beethoven.

To the old term "officer and gentleman", the army is appending a new one—"soldier and gentleman".

3,000,000 Eligible For Ontario Voting

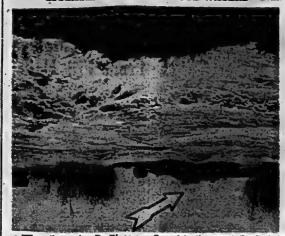
Toronto, (CP)—Some 3,000,000 persons are eligible to vote in Ontario's Nov. 22 election. A turnout of 50 per cent or better would mean a record vote.

In the 1948 election 1,757,767 of the 2,623,281 eligible voters cast their ballots for a 67-per-cent showing. The total was about 3,-000 short of the record 1,765,763 votes in 1943 when the turnout ran to 67 per cent of the 2,718,549 eligible.



The Progressive Conservatives won 53 of the 90 legislature seats in 1948 by polling 725,798 votes, 41 per cent of the total. The Liberals took 13 seats with 515,-795 votes, or 29 per cent. The C.C.F. received 466,004 votes, 27 per cent, and elected 21 members.

Other candidates polled 50,169 votes, three per cent, and three were elected—two Labor-Progressives and a Liberal-Labor who supported the Liberals.

Vote in the last election as compiled by The Canadian Press (percentage bracketed):

| 1948 | | |
|---|---|---|
| Prog. Con. | 725,798 | (41) |
| Liberal | 515,795 | (29) |
| C.C.F. | 466,004 | (27) |
| Others | 50,169 | ( 3) |

ISOLATED BY RAGING FLOOD WATERS

When the raging Po River overflowed in the worst flood of the century, in Italy, some eighty persons were isolated on a tiny island near Occhiobello. Looking across the raging flood waters, the arrow points to the isolated farmers and their families who were without water or food while stranded on the island. After many futile efforts, they were finally rescued. Throughout northern Italy more than 100 persons have been killed by the two weeks of storms and floods which have caused approximately $330,000,000 damage. U.S. and British air force planes have joined Italian aircraft in mercy flights over flood-swept area, dropping emergency food supplies to the thousands of refugees who are fleeing Italy's worst natural disaster since the Messina earthquake of 1908. ## Develop New Type Pre-Fab Dwelling

Ayr, Ont., (CP)—Norman Hipel, Ontario Minister of Lands and Forests 10 years ago, has developed a new type of pre-fabricated dwelling which can be erected in a day and costs less than $8,000.

Mr. Hipel had a complete four-room modern cottage built on his farm recently. Everything used in erecting the house was loaded in the morning on trucks at a factory in nearby Preston. By sundown all that remained to be finished was installation of interior partitions.

Ten men worked on the job.

The windows are all sealed and ventilation is supplied through special aluminium vents in the outer walls. Filters are installed to clean the incoming air.

The roof is self-supporting and walls can be erected wherever the owner wishes them. The shape of rooms can be altered at any time the owner wishes to move the partitions.

Scientist Says Greenland's Eskimos Form Sturdy Race

Paris. (Reuters)—The world's northernmost people, the North Greenland Eskimos, are a highly civilized community, according to Jean Malaurie, a young French scientist who has just returned to Paris after a 14-month stay among them.

With six Eskimo helpers and 70 sleigh dogs, he spent part of his time exploring the eastern shores of Kane Basin, the frozen sea between Danish-administered North Greenland and Canadian Ellesmere Island, and the "real" living at the Eskimo settlements of Siorapaluk.

Malaurie, though only 29, is a veteran of three Polar expeditions. This trip was financed by the French government's scientific research centre.

Malaurie is full of enthusiasm and respect for the high degree of civilization reached by the people of Northern Greenland despite their almost complete isolation from the outside world.

The Northerners, a group of about 400 semi-nomadic people, are substantially different from the South Greenland Eskimos who have had far more worldly contact. They speak a strong dialect which is barely comprehensible to the Southerners, and their present development has been on different lines.

In the south, the Danish government's post-war policy of raising living standards and improving the use of natural resources has already brought important changes. The Southern Greenlanders were once great hunters, but their reserves are almost exhausted, and the Danish administration has been leading them deliberately towards a new means of gaining a livelihood—fishing.

In the north, game still abounds. Hunting is still the only business and Danish government control has been limited to the careful administration of a handful of about 30 Danish officials resident in the northern "capital", the legendary town of Thule.

They are making conscious efforts not to interfere with the Eskimo customs which, according to Malaurie, are ideally suited to their surroundings.

Most aspects of Eskimo life are regulated by traditional rules which are strictly observed. These include especially hunting rules. Infringement of which is punished by fines. An Eskimo "parliament" which meets once a year in Thule fines such fines, settles any conflicts arising from the customs or makes new rules.

Dunnville Fmds Teletype Helpful To Hospital

Dunnville, Ont. (CP) — The unique feature of the Haldimand War Memorial Hospital that opened here Nov. 3 is its teletype.

Linked with the office of a radiologist 38 miles away in Hamilton, the teletype is to expedite X-ray reports, providing the hospital with a specialized X-ray service which it, like other small-town hospitals, could not otherwise afford.

Dr. Charles Vaughan, the Hamilton radiologist, says he believes it is the first time the idea has been tried anywhere.

X-ray films developed at the new $415,000 hospital, if urgent, can be sent to Dr. Vaughan's office by automobile or bus. In this way, the specialist's report can be back at the hospital within two hours of the time the films left.

And if the doctor wishes to consult the radiologist, he may "talk" to him over the teletype circuit.

Another advantage of the innovation, says Dr. Vaughan, is that duplicate copies of the teletype report may be filed as a permanent record of each case, saving secretarial expense.

Christian Island Experiencing Housing Boom

Christian Island, Ont. (CP)—This historic island in Georgian Bay is experiencing a housing boom.

It's a slow-moving boom because the 370 Chippewa Indians who live here aren't anxious to build a city overnight They realize the need for new houses—some of them were built a century ago—and are building them themselves.

Henry Gauthier, agent on the island for the department of Indian Affairs, persuaded the band to re-open a sawmill at the edge of the village in 1948, and work has gone ahead steadily.

The tribe has a credit of more than $300,000 in Ottawa from the sale of Beausoleil Island to the government. One thousand dollars of this is put toward the cost of each house built, and the rest is paid off in instalments.

Cost of the buildings is about $3,400 each. They would sell for $6,000 in the city. The Indians build the houses themselves and are paid for their work. Some veterans' families also applied Veteran Land Act credits to their new homes.

Chief Simpson King, elected in June, and his four councillors select the families in greatest need to occupy the new houses as they are completed.

Slowly the island village is becoming urbanized. Agent Gauthier isn't trying to hurry the process because he believes in allowing the Indians to do things in their own way.

This chicken, a single comb buff Orpington, has something to crow about. She's the grand champ of the fowl division of the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair, Toronto. But she's not conceited and even allows Joan Robertson, of King, Ont., to become friendly.

Jungle Fighters Going to Malaya From Fiji Units

Auckland, N.Z. (CP)—The decision of the government of Fiji to raise a battalion for service in Malaya means a most valuable reinforcement for the anti-guerrilla campaign, the British have been fighting there many months.

During the war in the Pacific the Fijians showed themselves to be among the world's best jungle warriors. The Fijian battalion for Malaya will consist entirely of volunteers and is expected to reach Malaya early next year. After further training on the spot, it will join the forces now fighting the communist-led terrorists.

The Fiji Islands are about 1,100 miles north of New Zealand, and New Zealand has been responsible for the organization and training of the Fijian forces since 1945.

As was the case with the Fijian forces, which fought in the Second World War, a number of officers and non-commissioned officers from New Zealand will serve with the battalion. Racially the Fijians are Melanesians, men of magnificent physique who can cover remarkable distances through dense forest and still fight a skilful battle against an enemy who often does not suspect their stealthy approach.

During the war two battalions of Fijians fought in the Solomons and Independent companies proved invaluable in many Pacific island operations. The New Zealand-led Fijians proved far superior to the Japanese as jungle fighters. In some cases they lived for weeks behind the enemy lines, harrying their communications and picking off groups of the enemy.

Red Prisoners Held by Allies Well Cared For

U.N. Prisoner-of-war Camp, Koje Island, Korea, Nov. 18. (AP) —Communist prisoners of the Allies in Korea are well-fed, well-clothed, get an objective education and a well-rounded sports and recreation program.

Most of them say they don't want to return to China or North Korea.

John Benben, chief of the instructional branch, civilian information and education section, at the prisoner-of-war camp, made these statements:

"The average prisoner does not know why he was fighting.

"Most of the Chinese would like to go to Formosa to join the Nationalist forces, which in most cases they originally belong to. With the exception of the few hard-core North Korean communist officers, the average North Korean soldier would prefer to stay south of the 38th parallel.

"That should be an indication of the treatment these men receive here."

"We have 160,000 people interested here including 18,000 Chinese and 40,000 North and South Korean civilians who are considered dangerous," said Col. Maurice J. Fitzgerald, commander of the camp.

The prisoners receive a diet of 3,000 calories a day based on 1.60 pounds of rice a man, plus additional Oriental and American foods.

Lethbridge Was Shipbuilding Town in Wild West Era

Lethbridge, Alta., (CP)—This Alberta city, once in the heart of what was known as the wild west, was at one time a shipbuilding centre and port of embarkation too.

It built steamers and barges to sail coal.

Lethbridge owes much of its prosperity to coal—it was originally known as coal basin—and to Sir Alexander Galt, one of the Fathers of Confederation, and Elliott Torrance Galt, who directed the Galt Enterprises that helped to open up this part of Southern Alberta.

The Galts began developing the coal found on the west bend of the Oldman River by a Mich. elas Sherman. Sherman had broken his own trails, found his own markets and hauled the coal by ox team 300 miles to Fort Benton, Montana.

When the Galts started in the coal business, though, the Canadian Pacific Railway was inching its way westward over the Prairies.

The railway agree in 1882 to take coal from the Northwest Coal and Navigation Company operating at Lethbridge.

The contract put the coal business on its feet and Lethbridge—as it became known in 1885 in tribute to the coal company's president William Lethbridge—on the map as a shipbuilding port.

The problem was to get the coal to the railway and how to take delivery at Medicine Hat, Alta.

Material for three steamers and 16 barges was brought by teams the 250 miles from the main C.P.R. terminus at Swift Current, Sask., to Lethbridge, and lumber was hauled 60 miles from the Porcupine Hills to the shipyard.

Workers From Pittsburgh.

Skilled shipbuilders were brought from Pittsburgh via the Missouri River and Fort Benton.

The first steamer, the Baroness, was launched on June 1, 1883, amid great celebrations.

The navigation season was found to be too short however, for the Baroness to make enough trips in the seven weeks of good weather.

So by 1884, Lethbridge had turned out two more steamers and 16 barges to earn its long forgotten reputation as an inland port.

The original contract called for the steamer and barges to move 3,000 tons of coal via the Belly and South Saskatchewan Rivers to Medicine Hat. The railway would then go about its business of putting the steamers out of business.

Old files available in Lethbridge indicate that the plan didn't work out too well.

The shipbuilders apparently didn't take into account the fact that the steamers had to get back to Lethbridge for more coal. They apparently went just as much coal getting back upriver as they had carried downriver.

The railway, pleased with the coal it was receiving, offered a long-term contract if a rail line was built connecting its terminus with the coal mine.

A narrow-gauge line was laid down in August 1885 and Lethbridge began to grow. It was then the terminus of another rail line running to Great Falls, Montana.

AUTO INSURANCE

$28.50 IN SASKATCHEWAN
$116.00 IN ONTARIO

SO SAY THE C.C.F. ASSOCIATIONS OF HASTINGS.

TRUE?

Well, ask anyone if in his own line of business $28.50 will buy $116.00 worth and he'll say,

"It's a Phoney Somewhere",

SO IT IS IN THIS CASE.

WHY . . . Because

1.—Many residents of Saskatchewan carry two automobile policies as the government plan which they are FORCED TO CARRY does not give them proper protection.

2.—The Saskatchewan Government Basic Policy contains a "joker" in the form of $100.00 deductible clause on all coverage, the like of which is not permitted to be unloaded on the unsuspecting public in any other province.

3.—The Auto rates in Ontario are based on locality, claims and use of the car whereas everybody pays the same in Saskatchewan. A rural province like Saskatchewan cannot possibly have the accidents of a highly concentrated area like Ontario which has more people, more roads, more automobiles and many times the tourist traffic.

4.—The Saskatchewan Auto Policy is not the world's best policy nor is it the cheapest. Several Belleville Agents represent a Company which is underselling the Saskatchewan Government right in their own province.

5.—The Saskatchewan Government according to their own figures lost $196,000 last year on their automobile insurance. So even those who don't drive autos may be called upon to pay part of the premiums for those who do.

6.—The Legislative Research Committee of North Dakota, after studying the Saskatchewan Auto Scheme, advised against such a system and went on to say "Compulsory Automobile Insurance produces — does not prevent—automobile accidents. The entrance of the State into a compulsory insurance program does nothing to remedy the defect of compulsory insurance but adds another negative influence — more politics and a MONOPOLY.

7.—The Saskatchewan Government charged a basic fee of $4.50 to $10.00 depending on the make of car plus a personal premium of $1.00 per driver which is a compulsory fee paid by each motorist when buying his license. This must be added to the "package policy" premium to arrive at the true cost.

8.—The premiums quoted in the C.C.F. advertisement of November 5th. as applicable to Ontario are more than twice what is charged by Belleville Agents. For instance a farmer in Hastings County using his car for pleasure and business use can buy public liability, property damage, collision, fire, hail, riot, theft, transportation, explosion, wind, falling aircraft and flood for as little as $30.00 per year. The Saskatchewan C.C.F. policy apparently costs $28.50 plus the basic charge add the special tax on each driver. There is really no comparison.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

HAWKS AT PETERBOROUGH

The senior Hawks face the toughest test of their brief but successful tour down the senior "B" trail tonight when they hop over to Peterborough to take on the Petes of that village, a right lusty crew of puck-chasers who are not in any notable mood. In fact the honorable Petes are smarting but painfully from that 7-4 shellacking handed them by their arch bitter-style rivals the Eagles Monday night, and they'll be in no mood for social amenities, or anything that breaks of a friendly nature. In fact they have a double bill to settle tonight since that 11-3 decision set them in the opening game of the tenth schedule by the aforesaid Hawks still rankles in their bosoms.

It should be a right lusty tilt, however, providing the Hawks don't develop claustrophobic complexes after that open sashay on the wide prairie-like spaces of the Kingston Memorial Centre. Civic Arena in Peterborough is inclined to be on the smallish side after the Kingston playground, but the Hawks have always managed to put up a strong battle on the Littlock ice surface.

According to advices trickling in from Peterborough, rivalry between the Petes and Eagles is as keen if not keener than last year, when the Petes led their "Toonsfm friends" down the schedule stretch and celebrated right lustily when their "Redmen" defeathered the Eagles in the semi-finals playoff. The Petes' teams have not been the class far and the results leave the sounds all even. Tonight, the Hawks will be out to settle some of those old 1950 scores, and the fans up around Peterborough should get an eyeful of typical Peterborough-Belleville hockey.

Friday night sees the Battle of the Birds in Memorial Arena when the Eagles will be the guests of the Hawks, and methinks, even Richard Reaze, Keeper of the Privy Purse of the Belleville Hockey Association puts it, "the feathers should fly".

NICE PARTY

Neat and enjoyable dinner party was that tossed by the Kinsmen Club in Kitchener on Monday evening. Was sports night or something along the line and the lads of the Kin Krew proved excellent hosts. They let their hair down, the meat of 'em have it, and inhaled in hearty food-absorbed if slightly-wilting manner at one another. The tell must be terrific to some of there Kin folk, since once you protrude your neck, it is promptly lopped off, and you pay for the operation. And some of these fellows are expert in the art of ouhe-hauing. They can park a lump of sugar expertly in your hip-pocket, your coffee when it is hot a scant inch from your nose, and your leonine region of your haypen to be airing that area at the second the pitcher winds up.

Twas a barrel of fun, an excellent dinner, genial camaraderie and a fine gesture on the part of the Kinsmen. And there is no truth in the subsequent rumor that Bill Cook and "Red" Dorey of the Belleville Hockey Association, two of the needs greatest, have been tabbed as after-dinner speakers "most likely to succeed".

IT'S CONTAGIOUS!

They're having their hockey troubles, financial and otherwise up around Kitchener - Waterloo way, according to news despatches from that district. Waterloo which has junior and intermediate clubs and its sister city Kitchener with a total of about $38,000 — count 'em — $28,000 last year. Kitchener's new ice palace which seats 7,000 people is raising hob with the Waterloo attendance. The juniors in their city are drawing only 800 fans and their games while the Kitchener youngsters pull in about 2,000 on an average, and the seniors 2,000, considered a fair attendance.

NOTE TO "RASSLE" FANS

There's a quartet of characters from the rice-paddies of Japan, huge chunks of "so sadly, boys" who are cavorting their huge torsos about the countryside, under organized wrestling of course, and who are causing quite a furore among the wrestling fraternity's fandom. Seems they are named Macdayama, Yakstayama, Fujitayama and Qucsmi. The last-named son of the soun of the setting sun, must belong to a different class than the others. He dropped the "rama" for sweety reasons. Then Yamas from the shadow of Fujiyama have the fans yammering all evening with their odd mat exhibitions dubbed "Yama". They tip the scales at 300 pounds, the skinny Jay weights 285, and go through their warm-ups by doing a geisha rendition of the charleston called a "shike". They wear kamonos in lieu of gowns; wear their hair in top-knot hair-dos; retain not their geishas and wips their bodies with paper. Then they sprinkle purifying salt in the ring. (That should be standard equipment for any wrestling arena).

Then they rise from their haunches, heave themselves up on their hind legs, salute each other and go into a glare session. In this they glare at each other like a couple of fighting cocks, or lusty roosters prior to a fight, then the battle starts. They disdain top-knots; hair-pulling, tussil-gouging, thumb-nibbling, and toenail extraction, nor do they use the ring-posts as receptacles for foemen noggins. They merely grab each other's loin-cloth and push, heave, grunt and squirm in an effort to roll the other yama on his yama. They are expressionless, and show no signs of emotion either in victory or defeat. In short Macdayama, Yakstayama, and Fujitayama apparently Dontgivedamn whether Onetuni yammers or not.

Red Wings Shut Out Bruins As Sawchuk Gets 4th 'Duck'

By BARRY WEST
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Terry Sawchuk is showing Detroit Red Wings the way home in the National Hockey League race.

The Winnipeg-born net-minder scored his fourth shutout, collaring the Boston Bruins 2-0 last night.

The victory also proved a booster for his goals-against average.

While the Leafs and Canadiens them out, the Red Wings are consistent in their scoring to lead the league in points with 25. This is a seven-point edge over their nearest rivals, Toronto Maple Leafs.

Outstanding Rookie

Voted the outstanding rookie last year and awarded the Calder Memorial Trophy, Sawchuk now seems to be fighting for the Vezina Trophy awarded each year to the goal-tender who has let the lowest number of pucks past him.

Sawchuk's average now is 1.84, one-tenth less than Toronto's. Al Rollins who copped the Vezina last year.

Holding such a heavy lead in points and having played the same number of games as Toronto and the third-place Montreal Canadiens, the Wings are favorites to pull farther away from the pack than ever as the season progresses.

Red Kelly and Tony Leswick scored in the last period last night to find a wide gap of scoreless play between the Wings and Bruins. The clubs battled through 114 minutes and 57 seconds of scoreless hockey in their last two games on Boston ice.

Defenceman Kelly fired his corner into an empty Boston cage after goalie Sugar Jim forward in the last minute of play. Henry was removed for a sixth.

During the game, Sawchuk kicked out 32 Boston shots.

Boston so far has been winless on home ice, having tied four and lost three games.

With the Wings safely in top spot, Toronto and Montreal are carrying out a struggle for second place. The Leafs hold a one-point edge with 18 points.

Player Leads Football Team In Prayer

Los Angeles, Nov. 21 (AP)— Deacon Dan' Towler leads the Los Angeles Rams in prayer before every game, and then proceeds to give his opponents mercy-ri fit for the rest of the afternoon.

The Deacon, who weighs 220 pounds and has run the 100 in 9.3 seconds, is today the leading ground gainer in the National Football League, and on the personal side, a study in contrasts.

The 23-year-old former Washington and Jefferson star is a full-time student in the Divinity School at the University of Southern California.

He attends classes most of each week, and when the Rams are on an extended road trip, he flown home each Sunday night to resume his schooling.

Towler asked pelmission to lead the team in prayer just before the division title playoff game with the Chicago Bears last year.

Coach Joe Stydahar readily agreed so did the players, and the practice has continued ever since.

This season he has gained 803 yards in the 71 trips he's taken with the ball for an average of 5.5 carry.

He has two more years at U.S.C., plus one semester at Howard University in Washington, and like Jackie Robinson of baseball fame, he wants to work with youths. Later, he hopes to become pastor of a church.

Arenas' Assoc. Meets in Kingston Over Weekend

The regular monthly meeting of the Ontario Arenas Association was held in Kingston at the Community Memorial Centre over the weekend. Managers from close to 20 different arenas and community centres throughout the province were in attendance as well as representatives from the Kingston Community Memorial Centre Board of Directors, the Ontario Hockey Association and the Ottawa Valley District of the Canadian Hockey Association.

The Ontario Arenas Association which has a membership of close to 70 arenas in the province also includes a few in Quebec and two in the United States. One of the founders of the group, Jim McCormick, manager of the local Community Memorial Centre, is still secretary-treasurer of the association, a position he has held since its inception.

The association holds its meetings at different cities each month, spotting them according to districts and this month's meeting was the yearly one slated for Eastern Ontario. Ald. Claude Tice of Belleville is the president of the organization for the 1951-52 season and was in the chair on Sunday.

Remember When

(By The Canadian Press)

The late Frank Calder, president of the National Hockey League, limited N.H.L. games to 60 minutes, 10 years ago today. The no-overtime rule was introduced to meet wartime conditions, according teams to catch trains, and has since remained in force with the result a large number of tie games have already been played this season.

Pete Conacher Scores Three Goals To Celebrate Return to Galt Hawks

(By The Canadian Press)

Galt Black Hawks undoubtedly agree that Pete Conacher needs more schooling. After all, it gives them a hockey player.

Young Conacher, who made his short-lived debut in the National Hockey League with the Chicago Black Hawks Sunday night, returned to the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A circuit last night.

He practically whipped Oshawa Generals single-handed, picking up six points—including three goals. Hawks dominated the last-place Generals 10-2.

Forty-eight hours earlier, the 19-year-old was the centre-fire-on assist as Hawks downed Toronto Marlboros 5-3. Two days before his father, Charlie, told him to go back to the minors so he could complete his academic studies.

While Conacher was cutting up like a pro last night, four other clubs fought it out in the junior league. Kitchener-Waterloo shirts ended up by beating Barrie Flyers 7-3 and Toronto St. Michael's defeated St. Catharines Teepees 6-4.

Tigers Wallop Sarnia

In the senior A loop, Hamilton Tigers walloped Sarnia Sailors 7-2 at Hamilton.

At Galt, Conacher broke loose for two goals in the second period and added the other in the third. His centreman, Ken Wharram counted two goals. Right winger Bill McIntosh had a goal and an assist. Jack Price notched two goals and had two assists.

Little Bobby Shropshire was Oshawa's only star. He handled 44 shots as Hawk snipers blasted in on him time and again. George Nicholson and Jack Furlation tallied for Oshawa.

The victory, however, left Hawks in a third-place tie with St. Michael's. They each have 19 points, eight less than the pace-setting Toronto Marlboros, idle last night.

At Kitchener the game was studded with two majors and two 10-minute misconducts as well as 25 minors.

The result made no change in the standings for each club. Kitchener stayed in fifth place; St Catharines in fourth.

Barrie jumped into an early two-goal lead but Greenshirts rallied it by one at the end of the first and looked the better club from then on.

Orv Tessler and Frank Toyota came up with two goals apiece for Kitchener. Greg Hicks, Ron Austin and Joe Ingoldsby tallied one each.

Bob White, Skip Teal and Dave Whalen scored for Flyers.

Meanwhile, it was the first time this season that St. Michael's had invaded the St. Catharines area and they left little doubt as to the outcome with a great third-period rally.

Ron Wallace and Murray Costello got the two goals at the tail-end of the game to give Toronto the edge.

In Hamilton, Tigers piled up their safe lead by ramming in three counters in the second period.

Rod Kemp, Frankie Liscombe, Murray Dunnette, Murrey Comforn and Fred Pankowski scored for Tigers, John Shedden and Dick Savage accounted for the Sarnia markers.

Three games are scheduled for tonight. In the junior loop, it's Waterloo Hurricanes at Windsor Spitfires and in the senior, Stratford Indians clash with Kitchener and Brantford Redmen travel to Sarnia.

Queen's Retires From Senior B Hockey Group

Kingston—At a meeting of the Athletic Board of Control held yesterday it was decided to withdraw the Queen's University team from the OHA senior 'B' race, a decision that may force an adjustment regarding the playoffs in the group now composed only of Peterborough Petes and Eagles, the Belleville Hawks and the Kingston SAC entry. The Gaels, outclassed in the series had no alternative but to retire as quickly as possible.

Hockey, which in the long ago was one of the two major sports at Queen's, has fallen on evil days. Last season the Gaels were withdrawn from the Intercollegiate Union senior series and entered in the OHA senior 'B' race but the experiment proved costly. The Gaels made a deplorably weak showing although they were permitted to use the services of city players. This season their plight is worse and the decision to retire will cause no surprise.

Coach Johnny Carr — coach chairman of the hockey committee, reported to the AB of C that not enough players of senior 'B' calibre were available to make the Gaels a consistent machine. It is understood that there are other players registered at Queen's but for reasons they have not joined the squad.

In addition to other reasons for withdrawal is was pointed out that the long schedule adopted by the group demanded the loss of much valuable time that would otherwise be devoted to studies. Players who otherwise might have sought places on the team couldn't afford to do so owing to the risks involved regarding the passing of examinations.

(By The Canadian Press)

Conn Smythe, general manager of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, said yesterday at Toronto he will recall leftwinger Danny Lewicki from Pittsburgh Hornets in an effort to bolster sagging goal production.

Lewicki and Ray Timgren were sent to Leafs' American League farm club three weeks ago for seasoning.

At yesterday's practice, Smythe said only that his Leafs were "all good fat, and well-rounded."

Eric Cradock announced last night at Toronto that he has sold his one-third share of stock in the Montreal Alouettes football team for $40,000. His shares are being absorbed by a Montreal club headed by Charlie Stone and Roy Robertson.

Cradock, Toronto stock broker, said in his announcement that he also is parting company with Hayman, who now owns two-thirds of the Alouette stock, because he feels that his business calls on too much of his time to be associated with any football venture beyond Toronto.

Cradock said that Hayman has agreed to relinquish his coaching duties and become a full-time general manager. He said he didn't know who might succeed Hayman.

Cradock's decision to sell his shares follows the recent action of Leo Dandurand, Montreal sportsman, in disposing of his one-third share in the club to Hayman. Dandurand and Hayman split over the reluctance of Hayman to give up the coaching job after two dismal seasons following the Alouettes Grey Cup triumph in 1948.

At Baltimore, Judge Joseph Sherbow fined a man $2,500 yesterday for betting on horses, and said the penalty should "serve as a warning to nice people." Judge Sherbow recently announced that he would regard bettors in the same category with bookmakers and number operators when they came before his bench.

Assessing the fines against Bernard H. Mass, 61-year-old parking lot operator, Sherbow said: "when a respectable business man past the age of 60 does the things this defendant has done, it sets a pretty bad example for the community. Without the latter, we would not have the profession-al gambler and racketeer."

The Kingston Hockey League announced yesterday they have acquired Cal Farnan, high-scoring forward, from Seattle Ironmen, an affiliate club in the Pacific Coast Hockey League. The Barons said they were shipping Ray Ceresino, a speedy left wing, to the Ironmen.

Could be Wishful Thinking But Imps Take It Seriously

Ottawa, Nov. 21—(CP)—Everybody seems to be laughing at Ramie Imperials' chances of upsetting Ottawa Rough Riders in today's eastern Canada football final. Everybody, that is, but the Imperials themselves.

Maybe they were thinking of the day in 1939 when the Imps went out on a freeze gridiron (such as Lansdowne Park is today) and, aided by the late Orm Beach and Hugh (Bummer) Billing, beat Ottawa 26-25 for eastern honours.

Ottawa said say, however, that was the last champion of the Ontario Football Union that ever gave the Big Four Utlit a battle.

Furthermore they point to the 40-0 trouncing Riders handed Toronto Balmy Beaconsfield in Semis in this year's O. R. F. U. final—in a pre-season exhibition game.

Blue Got Jolt

Hugh (Pud) Macklin, 34-year-old coach of Imperials, had this to say:

"I know a lot of people figure we're sort of a middle-of-the-street aggregation for the Ottawa team, but I think this is a good two, in fact if Cam Crowe stages his second-stringers against us, he's one for a shock. This is a young, hungry ball club and they're capable of a thing or three."

Maurice Chilten, Semis supporter and former O. R. F. U. official said: "I feel our team can beat Riders with a break or two."

But coach Crowe indicated yesterday Ottawa will go with the game lineup that brought them the Big Four title and "some of the regulars will be rested."

However, at least three of the regulars unavoidably have had to be benched for the game—Ken Franz and Jake Dunlop will miss the game as a result of the injuries of their father last night and outside Bruno Bibkyrski is prevented from playing by a leg injury. Bob Simpson, who suffered a shiner in Saturday's Big Four final against Hamilton, is scheduled to get into action.

Pending announcements with flight winds are forecast and attendance is expected to be slim. Pre-game ticket sale was little more than 3,000. Kickoff time is 1:30 p.m. EST.

Seymour Wilson of Hamilton will referee the game. Other officials will be Tackles Ken Ford, Windsor; umpire; Bob Latin, St. Thomas, Ont., and linesmen are Harry Bowden, Montreal, field judge.

Rough - - - Also Ready - - - Riders Arrive for East-West Football Final

Jack Russell, left, and Martin Ruby — A Wink for Fans from Bob Sandberg

Complete with white sombreros and cowboy shirts, the Saskatchewan Roughriders breezed into Toronto for the East-West football final on Nov. 24 at Varsity Stadium. Led by their 230-pound tackle, Martin Ruby, who must be the biggest human in captivity, the team looked like biggest ever to come out of the west. They may also prove to be one of the best. If Jack Russell and Bob Sandberg are allowed to play, Russell, the Roughies great pass-catcher from the New York Yankees, has torn cartilages in his knee, which may sideline him for Saturday's game. Without him the Western Conference champs will lose a lot of their scoring punch. As for Sandberg, who will always be remembered for his play in the 1947 Grey Cup game with the Winnipeg Blue Bombers, he is still hoping the Canadian Rugby Union will rule him a Canadian and allow him to play in the "big game." — Central Press Canadian.

Award Trophies To Grid Winners

Toronto, Nov. 21 (CP)—Jimmy Lorenc of Oshawa, and Bill Rumley, of Petrolia, are joint winners of the Johnny Bassett Trophy, awarded annually to the most valuable and sportsmanlike player in the Ontario Rugby Football Union Intermediate series.

Bill Fry, who has charge of the series, said yesterday the two halfbacks tied in the balloting among the players in the league each player votes for two members of his own club and one from another club.

The trophy is named for Johnny Black of Oakville, injured in an O.R.F.A. Intermediate game in 1940. Black is a quadruple paraplegic as a result of his injury.

The trophy is to be presented here Friday night at a dinner on the night the Grey Cup game. Proceeds from the dinner go to a benefit fund for Black.

Sasky Riders Have Their Troubles But Coach Has Gleam in His Eye

Toronto, Nov. 21 (CP) —I'm not kidding, we've got miseries" said Harry (Black Jack) Smith yesterday. And a first look at the Saskatchewan Roughriders convinced onlookers that coach Smith, built like a baby tank, wasn't kidding.

"Practically every guy on our first team has a bruise or a lump somewhere — ankle, leg, knee or hip," said Jack said in an interview a few hours after his Western Canada football champions arrived in town for Saturday's Grey Cup final. But he had his "crocked up" team out for a two-hour light practice session anyway.

Probably the biggest source of grief in the Roughies' camp is and Jack Russel who didn't dress for the practice on a public school field, about a half-mile from the club's sleeping quarters in southwest Toronto. The former New York Yankee pass-catching star who scored 45 points on nine touchdowns in western league play has a torn knee cartillage.

Glenn Dobbs, Saskatchewan's six-foot-four-inch quarter and probably the most popular player around Regina, is the most photographed and talked-to man on the club. Even Toronto's school kids know about the big, good-natured passer and kicker.

The youngsters "snobbed" him yesterday shortly before the practice and he was tossed for a loss by sprawling to the ground when a few tackled him. He won their hearts by posing with 15 or 20 of them for newspaper photographers.

Look for Brisk Baseball Trading Following Leanest Draft in Years

Cincinnati, Nov. 21—(AP)—A brisk trading winter was predicted today as a result of Monday's "lean pickin's" in the annual major league draft that brought promotion to only 17 minor league players, the lowest number in years.

K. J. (Buzzy) Bavasi, afterwecest vice president of the Brooklyn Dodgers didn't bother to conceal his pleasure and relief over the termination of the draft.

"Maybe now we can settle down and do some business among ourselves," he sighed. "I look for one of the busiest trading seasons in years."

The personable Bavasi made no bones over the fact that he was looking for a starting pitcher or two. He blames the lack of sufficient good pitching down the stretch for the loss of the pennants.

Heavy "Dickering"

The young Dodger official held several chin sessions with Gabe Paul, Cincinnati general manager, in an effort to pry loose Ewell Blackwell, Howie Fox or Herm Wehmeier, all before than fair righthanders.

Paul was perfectly willing to let one of the trio go to Brooklyn but insisted upon one of the Dodgers' all-star flychasers, with special emphasis upon Duke Snider. Buzzy's counter proposal of rookie shortstop Bobby Morgan and a second string outfielder was rejected by Paul.

Bavasi still hasn't given up hope of landing a redleg hurler and at late hour was attempting to work out a three-way transaction involving Philadelphia. It is believed that Paul had interested the Phillies in a deal for outfielder Del Ennis, who would be turned over to the Reds for one of their righthanders. The Dodgers also were making a strong bid for a Chicago Cub pitcher, supposedly righthander Bob Rush.

Garver Not For Yanks

A spokesman for the New York Yankees said the world champions had just about given up hopes of acquiring ace Ned Garver from the St. Louis Browns. He admitted the Browns had rejected a proposition that would have transferred five Yankees to the cellar dwellers.

"They (the Browns) simply want too much," he said. "We are not going to break up our club just to get one player, no matter how good he is."

Four of the 16 big league clubs participated in the draft. The fastest bargain hunters were the Reds and the Cubs who selected three players each. The biggest name of the lot was Floyd (Bill) Bevens, former star righthander for the Yankees.

Bevens, shunted to the minors in 1948 because of a "dead" arm, gave evidence of complete recovery with a 20-12 record at Salem (Ore). In the class B western International League. He was picked by the Reds.

Flyers Defeat Indianapolis Caps

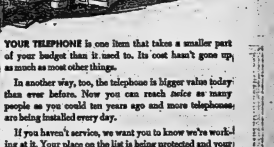
(By The Associated Press)

The Indianapolis Capitols, usually one of the strongest teams in the American Hockey League, appear headed for the worst season in their history.

Coach Ott Heller's young Caps have failed to win any of their last 10 starts. During this slump they have managed to tie one game.

The St. Louis Flyers turned back the Caps 5-3, last night and moved into a tie with Cincinnati for second place in the western division.



Harry Taylor led the Flyer attack, scoring two goals. The Flyers built up a 3-0 lead before Early Reibel counted for the Caps in the third period.

AT THE BELLE

Belleville Favorite Anna Neagle Stars with Trevor Howard in "Odette"

Born at Forest Gate, London's Anna Neagle was one of the three daughters of Captain H. W. Robertson, Merchant Navy. She had always wanted to go on the stage, though on leaving school Anna taught athletics for a time.

Eventually, she managed to procure a part in the chorus, but it was a long time before she would speak lines; in fact, Anna was terrified of doing so. Even today she still dislikes making speeches.

Then, Anna went to America in a Cochran show and on her return to England was offered her first real stage chance by Jack Buchanan in "Stand Up and Sing". It was in this that Herbert Wilcox first saw Anna Neagle and chose her as his leading lady in "Goodbye Vienna". Thus commenced a long and happy partnership, for she had played in every Wilcox production, both in this country and America.

Among the many 'character' roles Anna has played is are: "Nell Gwyn", "Peg O' Old Drury" "Nurse Edith Cavell", These films were followed by "Victoria the Great", and its successor "Sixty Glorious Years". Then came "Irene", "Sunny", "No, No Nanette", and "Yellow Canary".

During the war, Anna and her husband Herbert Wilcox, started the 'London' series with, "I Live in Grosvenor Square" "Piccadilly Incident" — the commencement of a happy and successful partnership with Michael Wilding. Then came "The Courtneys of Curzon Street", "Spring in Park Lane", and "Maytime in Mayfair", all co-starring Anna Neagle and Michael Wilding.

"Spring in Park Lane" won for Anna the Motion Picture Herald Award, the Daily Mail National Film Award for 1948. More recently she was awarded the "Picturegoer" Gold Medal Award as the No. 1 Film Actress of the year for her outstanding performance in that film.

Her latest film is "Odette", now on the Belle Theatre screen.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 21 (AP) — Gene Kelly today attacked 'snobism,' which he said kept some musicals and their stars from being given Academy awards.

The issue arose when I suggested that Kelly and his latest picture might be up for Oscars next March. The actor-dancer-director said he doubted it.

"There is a strange sort of reasoning in Hollywood that musicals are less worthy of Academy consideration than dramas," he remarked. "It is a form of snobism, the same sort that perpetuates the idea that drama is more deserving of awards than comedy. But actually the kind of thing that Groucho Marx and Red Skelton do is 10 times as hard as straight drama.

No Favors

"Sir, I don't argue that musicals should be given a special category in Academy voting. I think musicals can and should stand on their own merit in competition with straight pictures. And I think people next year or at least within 10 years, the movie musical will have progressed so far the Academy voters will be able to overlook it.

"The same thing is true on the stage," he said. "The legitimate drama has stood still for about 30 years, while musicals produce the really exciting things in theatre. Shows like 'Pal Joey,' 'Oklahoma!' and 'Carousel' are worlds apart from the operettas of the past.

AT THE McCARTHY — James Mason is starred as Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, the wily commander of the Afrika Korps who became a legend in his own lifetime, in 20th. Century-Fox's production of "The Desert Fox," opening today at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. Based on the best-selling biography by Brigadier Desmond Young, "The Desert Fox" recounts the story of Rommel from the grim days of the North African campaign to his untimely demise in Germany.

AT [illegible] — And terrified as she watches the giant robot "Gort" bring the fatally wounded "Klaatu" (Michael Rennie) back to life. It's only one of the amazing feats accomplished by the space visitors in 20th. Century-Fox's astounding science-fiction thriller, "The Day The Earth Stood Still," now at the Capitol Theatre and having its first Belleville showing.

"The culmination is in 'South Pacific,' which I think is the greatest show I have ever seen."

The actor feels the movie musical is progressing in the same direction.

Just like any glamor boy, Handsome Harry Wilson's face is his fortune. The only difference is that Harry's is the ugliest pan in Hollywood.

It doesn't hurt Harry's feelings to have that pointed out. After all, he has made a good living since 1924 from his over-sized, leathery fae.

"I guess people think I'm the perfect criminal type," said Harry in his rumbling voice. "Whenever they're making a crime or prison picture, the producers always think of me. I've been in almost every class-C cops-and-robber picture ever made."

Harry's only trouble is that cops have the same type-casting ideas as producers. Once he was waiting for a streetcar to take him to a film location early in the morning. A patrol car stopped and questioned him about a report he was casing a drug-store for a robbery.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

For Thursday, November 22

March 21 to April 20—(Aries) Maybe some unpredictables in business, perhaps in personal matters. Be on guard, don't get enmeshed in anything you shouldn't. Keep clear of foolishness. Have faith, always.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Plenty of beneficent rays, especially before 5 p.m. and after 8 p.m. Very favorable for progressive matters, wise investments, general business; also romance. But have tact.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Good all 'round day for daily duties, substantial industry, merchandising, civic work, military action. Routine personal likes, dislikes they can hamper good results.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Sort of half-and-half day. Good for some things, poor for others. Stop idle talk, get real sound, honest action going. A realistic attitude needed to accentuate advancement.

July 24 to August 23—(Leo)—Cannot afford to be lax, disinterested, especially in affairs close to home, family, community, property. Some restrictions likely before noon, then tension lessens. Think don't rush.

August 24 to September 23—(Virgo)—Both personal and business attainment indicated if you are alert open to suggestions, sound hints. Professional work can make fine headway all day. Try harder to achieve more.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Fine prospectives. A few obstacles in early hours, they should not hinder, but spur you to make more creditable records. Banking, contracting, all worthy endeavors can advance.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Hold back action until you have thoroughly studied plans, your type of approach. Day favors some restraint in money matters. Watch personal property, family budget.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Promote your talents, seek your opportunities don't wait till they happen along. A certain surness and coolheaded front will command respect, better co-operation.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn)—Better by-pass emotionalism or moodiness and smile your way around. May be a challenge day to you steady, serious folks but it is interesting and you can do plenty with it.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Advantages are not all evident. You can gain more through your own push and ingenuity, into your bit of things, promote them with earnest will, things should shape successfully.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Influences excellent for financial and personal affairs, if you are up to par. Take to this day as though it was made to order for you. Aboveboard tactics only, and return favors.

YOU BORN TODAY: Strong characteristics, plenty of what it takes to become big in any field you put your best into. Your Sign is symbolized by the Scorpion and the Eagle—a combination which gives a fair idea of possible scope of its sons and daughters. Build the constructive, be wisely aggressive. With energy, initiative and courage rightly used can bring you to top. Seldom inclined to envy or excess in affairs of the heart. Generally informed and can stand on own two feet.

Two Men Killed While Working At Accident

Malarlic, Que., Nov. 21 (CP)—Five men working at the scene of an earlier accident were struck down by an automobile shortly after midnight. Two were killed; the others injured.

Charles Cartimill, 35, a grocery store manager at Malarlic, and Robert Lapointe, 30, a fellow employee, were killed. Injured were Ted Blais, owner of the Malarlic store, Aldrice Poisson, and Val D'Or mechanic, and Peter Wall.

The men were attempting to get Blais' car out of the ditch after a previous accident when they were struck by a car police said was driven by Rene Cote of Val D'Or. Cote told police he thought the lights of the Blais car were those of an automobile coming toward him on the wrong side of the road.

Blais, Wall, who had driven from Malarlic with her husband to aid Blais, witnessed the accident. Mrs. Blais arrived earlier with a tow truck.

WHY WE SAY . . .

. . . From a monastery

We call the head of a college a dean because in Latin this was the name of the person set over ten monks. Since the first installations of bicker learning were sponsored by the church, the application of the name dean to the head of a college was natural.

A good bridge player profits from the signals he gets from his partner. And a response to a signal often begets a new signal. Otherwise the pair would never reach so many favorable contracts.

A jump overcall is a jump defending bid in a different suit. It is a signal that shows a hand with at least eight tricks and a suit that is at least rebiddable. With only eight tricks, it is not forcing in game.

Such a bid needs two tricks in partner's hand for a good try at a game. So, partner may pass if he has less than two tricks. But with two tricks or more, he should bid something.

Then, any responding bid by partner promises help enough to make a game. So the responding bid acts as a new signal. It turns the non-forcing jump overcall into a forcing three-game proposition.

All bidding follows T-A-N: takeout, assist, no-trump; in that order. So if partner bids he has a selection from one of those three kinds of bids. Only he chooses his bids in that order.

If partner takes out to a new suit, he admits his side should go to game. If he assists the suit named, he admits his side should go to game. If he bids no-trump, he admits his side should go to game.

You have the east hand shown here:

♠J 8 6
♥K 5
♦8 7 6 2
♣K Q 9

South opponent opens with a diamond. Your west partner sticks in a jump overcall of two hearts. He says he has a re-biddable suit in hearts and eight tricks. He does not know you bid. He asks you to bid only if you have at least two tricks.

Your cards would be three clubs. This says you have at least two tricks, at least a rebiddable club suit, at least enough to help make a game in something.

Partner should not stop there. You promise to help him go to game. You are both ready to carry the mail.

Royal Winter Fair Near End

Toronto, Nov. 21 (CP)—The Fair closes today.

The thousand little pieces of farm life from Canada and the United States that made up the 42nd annual Royal Winter Fair will fall out of place about midnight.

The animals and exhibits which filled the 23 acres of fair buildings will be herded and packed into box cars and trucks to start for home after eight days in the huge agricultural showcase.

But there was no relaxing for the final day.

There were still horses to be judged and market cattle to be auctioned. Saddle horses and thoroughbreds went into the judging ring for the last time this year.

There were still afternoon and evening sessions of the Royal Horse Show to be run off and after the last event in the evening show—the closing ceremonies with gold, speeches, flags and winners on parade.

In last night's show, 83 champion horses and cattle were taken around the ring. Six provinces and six states were represented in the long line of champions. There was one each from Saskatchewan, New Brunswick, Illinois, Indiana and Minnesota; two each from New York and Ohio; four from Michigan; seven from Alberta; eight from Manitoba; 13 from Quebec and 42 from Ontario.

Truman Anticipates Lies and Smears From Republicans in '52 Campaign

Washington, Nov. 21—(AP)—President Truman, in a reminiscent of his 1948 "give-'em-hell" style, said last night that the Democrats won't be cutting down the "lies and smears" he anticipates from Republicans and "special interests" in the 1952 presidential campaign.

Truman told party members he thinks more money will be spent "in trying to defeat the Democratic party next year than has ever before been spent in any election in the history of the country."

The brought from Republicans a reiteration of the "corruption" charges. Truman did not mention in his speech any of the charges of wrong-doing which have been alleged against his administration.

His declaration that "the truth and the facts are on our side" brought a retort from Senator A. Taft (Rep., O.) that "maybe Truman should certainly get the prize for political effrontery" for his speech.

Guy C. Gabrielson, chairman of the Republican National committee, said Truman had "a flash of recklessness" when he said "a mistake in presidential election can cause the country untold harm."

"The reminder isn't necessary for millions of Americans," Gabrielson said. "They are disgusted and alarmed at the high taxes, high prices, corruption, crises and war of his incompetent administration.

Did Not Name Taft

Without naming the senator, Truman singled out Taft with the assertion that "special interests" had poured money into Ohio last year to reelect the Republican.

Taft, an avowed candidate for his party's presidential nomination, said in a statement in Cincinnati that "it is—the Truman party which is the beneficiary of the money of special interests and of millions of dollars of the taxpayer's money used for political propaganda. . . ."

Taft said the C. I. O. and A. F. L. had undertaken to raise $30,000,000 from union members "to purge all Republican from congress."

Truman outlined for his party before the National Women's Democratic Club the kind of a campaign he said it must make next year.

He pictured it as a slugging battle against well-heeled Republicans who could be expected to call on a "dirty smear campaign."

WORKERS OPPOSE PLAN

London, Nov. 21—(Reuters)—Steelworkers yesterday declared their opposition to the Conservative government's plan to denationalize the steel industry next year. The iron and steel trades confederation, representing about 112,000 workers, announced a resolution that any attempt to hand back the industry to private control would be detrimental to its well-being.

Fined $1,000 For Smuggling

Sherbrooke, Que., Nov. 21 — (CP)—Royal Canadian Mounted Police Monday night seized 240,000 American cigarettes, and yesterday the man who smuggled them into the country was sentenced to a fine of $1,000 with the option of a year in jail.

Leo Riendeau, 22, of Granby pleaded guilty to the smuggling charge when brought before Judge Dorais Panneton. The heavy fine was imposed following a request for a stiff penalty, made by lawyer Benoit Turmel, representing the R.C.M.P.

The cigarets were seized by two members of the Sherbrooke detachment of the R.C.P. at St. Hermenegilde, in the Compton Frontenac district.

THOMASBURG

Thomasburg—Mrs. W. Vance, of Newmarket, is the guest this week of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Vance. She also visited with her son, Burton, and his family, in Tweed.

Early in the week Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Richardson, Brock and Teddy, accompanied by Mrs. J. E. Bateman, took in a small part of the Royal Winter Fair. They reported an enjoyable trip, but lack of time prevented them from seeing many of the interesting exhibits.

Mrs. Clara Blackburn, Englehart, New Ontario, is visiting friends and relatives in the Thomasburg district.

Mrs. G. Boldrick's many friends will be pleased to know she was discharged from the hospital last week and is recuperating at her parents' home, in Thomasburg.

To deepen the interest in the Evangelistic services to be held November 19-20-21 in the United Church, the committee in charge have made community-wide personal calls this week. Mr. Kenneth Steward, of White Lake, will be guest minister at all the services.

On Thursday, November 15, Rev. M. Clarke and Mr. J. E. Bateman attended the Bay of Quinte district presbytery of the United Church, at Demorestville. They report a good attendance, and an interesting meeting.

On Friday, November 16, several of the ladies of the Thomasburg United Church attended the open meeting and bazaar, sponsored by the West Huntingdon W.M.S. They reported an excellent program and a well arranged bazaar.

Next year's cars aren't going to differ much from present models, except probably for the price tag, according to a survey of the automotive field conducted by the Toronto Star. Chief problems facing the industry will be a new car shortage, a used car glut and higher prices. Only a few additions to the line of 1952 cars are expected, the survey says. Most of the changes will be in the dealers' showrooms. Most dealers surveyed in recent days said they expected no basic changes in the styling of cars next year. Some said they expected a reduction in the number of models offered. Others said they expected no drastic changes in the line-up. Only a few dealers said they expected any substantial changes in the line-up of models.

Washington, Nov. 16 —(AP)— U.S. production officials predicted today that new cars ordered as civilian use is resumed next year after the present defense controls are lifted will fetch higher prices and cost more to operate.

The announcement last night that the auto-truck industry will be allotted only 60 per cent of the steel allotted for civilian use during the first quarter of next year, and 70 per cent for the second quarter, was interpreted by Production and Materials Administrator Manly Fleischmann as an ultimate cut in the first quarter production of 200,000 cars and trucks.

This could mean an ultimate 30 per cent drop in civilian production of cars and trucks.

The Outsiders

By Jane Abbott

"You're right to be here —but not one of them. No one's denying my right to live on my half-acre up there in the Notch, as long as I paid for it, but it ends there until I've won a place among them. It took six months for me to get on the ballot with your grandfather. It wasn't until he knew what I was and why I was here."

"Why are you here?" asked Eliza.

Chris laughed "The New Internal Yankees coming out in you. Your grandfather put it just about as bluntly. A fair enough question and I'll answer it. I'd come to a realization that what I was and everything I was doing was all wrong — I cut out from it all. I liked this locality and decided to stay here a while — at least until I got straightened around with myself. It's a good place for that—you learn real values here."

Eliza exclaimed, "that's why I sensed it was not my grandfather's money—I didn't think of that! I didn't think of the mill until I got here. It never everything I was doing was wrong and I was a chance to leave it all behind me."

"It must have taken courage to make your decision."

She shook her head. "It was desperation! I simply couldn't face another day of that other! Anything would be better! —I didn't think until after I got part of the responsibility it meant. I don't think it was very practical of my grandfather to turn it over to me!"

"You're a Forrestal," said Chris smiling a little.

Eliza gave an impatient laugh. "And because I'm a Forrestal I'm supposed to understand everything about running the mill!

Chris did not speak for a moment, then he said, "He wasn't too certain of your going on with it. He talked about it sometimes. For one thing, he didn't know whether you'd come. And another, whether you could carry on. But I remember his saying 'Let her try. There's no one else. .'"

"Oh!" said Eliza, low. "You're telling me that makes it harder!"

Chris leaned a little toward her. "I don't think you'll fail! I'm willing to bet everything I own that you will not!"

Chris stood up, some confusion in his every line. "Well, thanks for letting me say it. Next time I come, I'll bring along that book I spoke of —Weygandt's White Hills. It'll help you know your New Hampshire."

"I'll read it."

Chris held out his hand she put hers into it for an instant and their eyes met for as brief an instant.

When he had gone she dropped down on the ottoman, her arms clasping her knees, her eyes on the dying fire.

He'd said, "next time I come."

She found herself wanting to know more about him, everything about him, what he did, what he thought about things. . .

Chris Cameron took a familiar short cut to the valley bottom. He felt a queer giving way around his heart, a shakiness in his knees.

"You are in love with Eliza Forrestal!" He said it aloud in a tone of wonder.

On the valley road he saw Tod Wilson coming toward him. He would have liked to avoid this encounter—he did not want to have to speak to anyone just now —but there was no way to turn.

"Hi, Tod."

Tod said "Hi," gruffly and moved to pass Chris.

"How's school?"

"Okay. Goin' to quit."

Reality closed in around Chris. Dave's accident, he knew. And he knew what Tod would say next.

"Goin' to get a job in the mill. I'm 16."

"That's too bad, Tod—to have to stop school!" Chris heard it inadequate but it was all he could say. "You like school, don't you?"

Tod scowled, kicked a stone out of the road. "Don't know as I do. Doesn't make any differ anyways whether I do or don't." He shifted his books. "Sting."

"See you again," said Chris and went on.

He knew something of Annie Wilson's dreams for the boy. For him to have his marks, above all else. He had a strong suspicion that Annie'd taken that job of picking rags to pay for music lessons. Now Dave had had this accident. . .

It could have been avoided, according to Pete Snead. Tom Matthews had reported the condition of the machine to Culbert, weeks ago. And Culbert had done nothing about it.

Now because of that neglect of Culbert's, Dave's hand and Annie's dreams were smashed. The second second as much of a tragedy to Chris, as the first.

"Eliza must do something — I'll tell her all about it tomorrow." He would go up to the big house tomorrow.

As he climbed the grade to his cabin he imagined bringing Eliza here.

He opened the door, to step back with a sharp exclamation that was half surprise, half delight. Eliza was there.

"What in the world are you doing?" Chris did not quite keep his annoyance at this intrusion out of his voice.

Jeremy held hard to the broom handle, her face crimsoning with embarrassment.

"I didn't think—you'd be back!" She spoke haltingly and she kept her eyes lowered. "I wanted to do something for you and I came —I thought I could clean things up some and be all through—before you got back."

Chris went to her, took the broom from her hands. "You must not do this Jeremy. Though I appreciate your thought. I manage very well on my own —don't you think I'm quite tidy?"

Jeremy looked slowly around her, nodded her head, a little unwillingly. "There were dishes of the kitchen. I've washed them and put them away."

"Well—thanks a lot, I suggest you sit down now and let me bring you a cup of tea. It won't take but a few minutes. Or a glass of lemonade."

Jeremy sat down stiffly, her hands clutched together. "I think —I'd rather—lemonade please."

"I like it better that way myself."

Chris was glad of an excuse to go into the kitchen. He was aware that the situation had to be met carefully.

He brought ice cold water from the well, filled the glasses and took them into the living room. Jeremy was sitting exactly as he had left her, stiff and straight and her hands gripped together. But now there was a bright shining on her face as she turned it up to him.

"I didn't dream your place was so nice! I've heard the Abels say things—that it was queer the way you lived up here alone, and it isn't."

Chris laughed, sat down with his glass. "Probably I do seem queer to most of them."

"But you're not!" protested Jeremy, taking a sip of her lemonade, looking at him over the rim of her glass.

"How does school go?" asked Chris, a little hastily.

"All right. I don't keep the children's attention very well."

"Springtime. I remember what it used to do to me. There'll be only a week or so more of it. I suppose you will go away, as soon as the term ends."

Jeremy said, "oh no, I'm staying here."

"But you ought to get some change—from the Abels, at least."

Jeremy shook her head, swallowed more of her lemonade.

Chris went on, "find some place over on the Maine shore. The sea air would be very bracing. . ."

"I've never been in Maine," said Jeremy.

He saw her glance go to the rough bookshelves and he caught at another lead. "Do you have time with your teaching for any reading? If I've any books you'd be interested in, I'd be delighted to lend them to you."

A spasm drew the muscles of Jeremy's face. "I don't ever read now. I—hate books!" Her voice was tight and thin.

"Oh, come now!" protested Chris with a little laugh. He put down his empty glass. "Hate's a pretty big word! I can't imagine how any one book could offend you so much as to make you damn all of them!"

"It wasn't any particular book. It was—oh, you don't know!" Jeremy walked it and her eyes, swimming with tears, hung on him in a desperate pleading.

Chris crossed to the fireplace. Then he said gently, as if Jeremy were a child, "Is it because that brother of yours writes books?"

"Yes, it is!" She cried it with passion. "He used to read them to me while he was writing them —I'd type his manuscripts for him—he'd bring books home and I'd read them first. He used to ask me if they were books he'd be interested in reading. He depended on me! That was—then was before—" A sob choked her off. She covered her face with her hands.

"Before what, Jeremy?" asked Chris quietly.

"Before—before he got married!" It came brokenly from behind her hands.

Of all things that might have come up to embitter this girl against her brother, this was the last he would have thought of. "Jeremy." He spoke her name evenly, though he had a strong desire to go to her and shake her. Shake some sense into her.

"W-what?"

"Take your hands down. Look at me."

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was doing the bridge problem in the papper, and pop was smoking to himself in his private chair, and I was looking at my junior Encyclopedia of Nollledge, and I said, Hay pop, do people live on the sun?

If they do, they must be made of asbestos, pop said, and I said, Well is that impossible?

I dont know, Nature is wonderful, pop said. You'd better ask me about something closer to home. The sun happens to be about a hunderd zillllion miles from where we are sitting, he said, and ma said, My, what a statement to make to a trusting child. There aren't that many miles in all the tape measures in creation, she said.

Astronomers dont use tape measures, my dear, they use very accurate telescopes, pop said, and ma said, I dont care how accurate they are, if you joined all the telescopes in the world together, they wouldn't reetch to the moon, much less the sun.

Their combined seeing power would reetch to Infinity, pop said, But be that as it may it's just as ell that the sun isn't much closer, because its rays are pretty warm as it is, and they reach us at the rate of almost 200 thousand miles a second, he said, and ma said, Do you expect me to believe that!

Why, no! pop said, and ma said, Because you even doubted the simple little fact when I told you I was sure the butcher puts his finger on the scales to add to the wait of his meat, and yet you expect me to believe fantastic tales about people wearing asbestos clothes on the sun because its rays travel by the second instead of by the hour.

Yes gods, it's a woman's world, pop said.

And he got behind the sporting page and stayed there.

Negotiators Move Near Agreement On Truce Proposal

Only One Point Remains In Buffer-Zone Dispute

Munsan, Korea, Nov. 23—(AP)—Truce negotiators today near agreement on a plan which could open the way for an end of fighting in Korea by Christmas.

Only one point remained to be settled in the buffer-zone dispute. Delegates were so close today they called a Friday meeting of staff officers to start drawing the line of battle contact across Korea.

This would become the centre of the buffer zone, 2½ miles wide, if an armistice is signed within 30 days.

If the remaining dispute on a cease-fire line is ironed out, three major hurdles will still stand in the way of making it effective and the uneasy truce by Christmas —(1) Terms for enforcing the armistice, (2) exchange of prisoners ,and (3) recommendations to governments on withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea.

24th Meeting

The United Nations command spokesman said only one question is holding up full accord on the cease-fire line—that is how a new cease-fire line would be fitted in if an agreement is reached in 30 days.

Thursday was the 28th time the truce negotiators committees signed to the cease-fire line discussions in Korea to remember. They will meet again Friday at 11 a. m. (9 p. m. EST Thursday) in an effort to remove the last stumbling block to an agreement.

During a one-hour and 55-minute morning session, Allied truce negotiators offered a revised version of the compromise plan submitted Wednesday by the reds. It incorporated much of the communist proposal verbatim.

Brig.-Gen. William P. Nickols, U. N. command spokesman, said there was almost immediate agreement on the first two points. The first provides that the line of battle contact will be in the area through which both sides withdraw when an armistice is signed. In rewriting the communist proposal, the U.N. committee inserted a clause specifying that there would be no withdrawal of troops until there is an agreement on full armistice.

The second point provides that the line of contact be determined immediately. If an armistice is signed within 30 days, the contact will become the final demarcation line regardless of changes resulting from military action during the interim.

It was the third point which caused trouble. In their Wednesday proposal the communists suggested that if the armistice is signed in 30 days, the demarcation line "already established" be revised in accordance with changes in the line of battle contact prior to the signing of the armistice.

The U.N. command said this would mean the original line could be drawn only after the fighting continue after the 30-day deadline and then only just before the armistice is signed.

Election Sidelights

Owen Sound, Nov. 22—(CP)—Election day in this western Ontario town brought mild weather and overcast skies. Urban Streets were wet but comparatively free of ice and snow. Rural roads were slippery but passable.

Brockville, Nov. 22—(CP)—The weather in Leeds riding was fair but overcast early today as voting began in the Ontario general election. The early parade to the polls was slow to fair.

Galt, Nov. 22—(CP) — Early voters were hard to find in this centre of textile south midland as newspaper photographer, trying to get a picture of one, had to visit six polls before he succeeded.

Dull weather and unseasonable temperature of 43 degrees were the climaxes till 10-Clare.

Hamilton, Nov. 22 — (CP) — Early-bird Hamilton-are voters found some Ontario election polling-booths ready to open at the scheduled 8 a.m. today. Some rural voters indicated they didn't know where to vote but in city ridings the political parties sent an instruction card to each voter.

Early voting was light.

Cornwall, Nov. 22 (CP)—Overcast skies, threatening rain, and warmer weather greeted voters in their steady turnout to the Ontario election polls in Stormont riding up to noon today.

Niagara Falls, Nov. 22, (CP)—Voters in Niagara Falls riding went to the polls this morning under cloudy skies with forecast-ened rain. Morning voting was light, but slightly heavier than in the 1948 provincial election.

In Windsor-Walkerville and Windsor-Sandwich there was by noon little indication of the trend although voting was expected to be heavy before polls close at 7 p.m.

Chatham, Nov. 22. (CP)—Rain threatened today in this centre in Kent West riding. Early voting in the Chatham area was light.

Woodstock, Nov. 22. (CP)—Early balloting indicated today there may be a heavy vote in Oxford riding in the Ontario general election. Early voters were more numerous than in the last provincial election.

The weather was cloudy and mild.

LIBERAL MEMBER WANTS MIGRATION TO BE ENCOURAGED

Claims British People Are More Desirable

Ottawa Nov. 22. (CP)—The Canadian government was urged yesterday to encourage communities of British people to migrate to Canada.

George Murray, 42-year-old Liberal member from Cariboo in British Columbia told the commons that Canada's population must be increased and resources developed, if it is to be defended successfully.

"We should encourage not only individuals and families, but whole communities of Britain to migrate to western Canada and to share in the rich resources available there," said Mr. Murray.

His spoke after Joseph Noseworthy (CCF—York South) asked the government to overhaul anti-inflation policies lest they plunge Canada into a depression. The policies, he said, may cure inflation at a price the people can not afford to pay—the depressing disease of unemployment.

The two members spoke in continued debate on the address in reply to the speech from the Throne.

In the House opening, George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, protested the announcement by Defence Minister Claxton that Defence Minister Claxton that a supplementary bill for approximately $100,000,000 for the building of four or five airdromes in northern Canada. Such announcements should be made in parliament.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said he would not attempt to answer Mr. Drew until he knew exactly what Mr. Claxton has said. But he would be "very much surprised" if the defence minister had said what Mr. Drew said he did.

Increase Production

Production Minister Howe said that certain projects planned by Canadian steel companies is expected to increase their production by a basic steel by about 33 per cent.

Mr. Howe also said the Canadian government does not believe that steps will be taken at the meeting of the United States Congress to remove American restrictions on imports of cheese and other agricultural products.

Married Couple And Five Women Taken in Raid

Toronto, Nov. 22 (CP)—A teen-aged married couple and five women from 20 to 26 years old were charged today in a raid by R.C.M.P. and city detectives on a "dope party" in a city rooming house.

Held on charges of illegal possession of drugs were Edward Silichen, 19; his wife Lillian, 18; Beverley Dale, 20; Grace Turner, 26; Betty Walton, 21; Doris Sone, 21; and Jacqueline McGraw, 22, all of Toronto.

Police said they seized a quantity of heroin.

Pharmacists Say Outlawing Of Resale Price Maintenance Will Lead to New Monopolies

Ottawa, Nov. 22 (CP) — The Canadian Pharmaceutical Association said today that if resale price maintenance practices are made illegal, a price cutting war will be unleashed which will lead to the formation of new monopolies.

It urged a special parliamentary committee on trade and profiteering to support proposals to ban the practices, for it believed that "legislation to make price maintenance illegal will bring down all the corrosive forces of predatory price cutting on our economy."

Price-cutting the association maintained in a brief presented to the committee, is not good marketing. "It is fundamentally gone mad."

It joined forces with the Ontario Retail Druggists' Association to argue that resale price maintenance does not hurt the consumer; and in fact receives substantial benefits from its existence."

"It is our opinion," said the national association, "that the abolition of price maintenance will do nothing to bring down the rising cost of living.

"It will unleash a price-cutting war which will result in new monopolies and seriously curtail the distributive system by which the public gets the present efficient health service through pharmacy."

Claimed Discriminatory

If legislation against the price by which a manufacturer determines the price at which his product will be sold by a retailer is enacted, it would be "discriminatory." It would be legislation benefitting the larger operator to the detriment of the small.

The large operator could afford to cut prices below cost on some lines, particularly the small operator out of business and "achieve an effective monopoly in the distribution of the price-cut merchandise."

Aside from these arguments, the association could not understand how either federal or provincial governments could legislate against the principle of price maintenance "when they have used it most effectively themselves to bring about orderly and efficient marketing."

The association cited the federal wheat board as providing a "good example." Provincial marketing boards "go far beyond this and in some instances maintenance with which we are concerned. The prices of certain commodities are fixed by the government and there are no price cutting wars to which the consumer can turn."

It therefore disagreed with the MacQuarrie Committee which had recommended that resale price maintenance be outlawed, but the association did agree with the MacQuarrie group that the price-fixing, loss-leader type of trade was incompatible with public interest.

"... it leads to retailer monopolies which could be used to control prices to the detriment of the consumer."

Inquiry Fails to Solve Riddle of Bridge Collapse

Quebec, Nov. 22 — (CP) — A commission inquiry has failed to solve the riddle of collapse of the $3,500,000 Duplessis Bridge Jan. 31 at Three Rivers.

The commission's report, issued today by Premier Duplessis, said evidence submitted two hypotheses:

1. An unknown scientific cause;

2. Sabotage.

These two "most probable" causes mentioned by the commissioners, Magistrate Rene Lippe and Engineer Lucien Dansereau both of Montreal, were included in 'subsidiary conclusions' of their 50,000-word report.

The main conclusions based on evidence in the Three Rivers from Aug. 27 to Sept. 26 were:

The bridge failure was due to "rupture" of one of the 1,000 steel beams in its super-structure;

There was no "fault or negligence" by the government, its department or officers, or by the builders of the bridge or their employer;

Bailey bridges set up to restore road traffic across the St. Maurice River were installed in "record time" of three months.

These main conclusions answered eight questions put today by a government in an order-in-council creating the Lippe Commission Aug. 1.

The commissioners said it was not their responsibility under the terms of the order-in-council to find who was responsible for the collapse nor to fix any legal responsibility for it.

Question Asked

At least half the 138-page report quoted excerpts from the testimony of 43 witnesses, including Quebec Public Works Department officials who prepared the bridge plans and specifications, United States and Canadian engineering experts and those who dealt with subsoil knowledge of demolition.

The report also got one of the engineering experts—Ernest F. Howard of Kansas City, Dr. Lawrence D. Reed of Toronto and Antonio Lalonde of Montreal—who were able to explain the collapse.

The commissioners dismissed it in a few lines as impossible. Both that Dufresne Engineering Company Limited, the government's building agent and contracting firm for the concrete underpinning and the Dominion Bridge Company which built the steel superstructure, had no part in the plans and fabricated the steel; work fulfilled all the terms of its sub-contract.

The report said that expert testimony concerning the disaster that occurred in 30-below-zero weather and cost four lives "particularly approved the system of construction of the Duplessis Bridge which was a welded bridge."

"... it should be remembered there are large number of bridges in Quebec province, identical to this one, which have borne loads as great and temperatures as low, and none of them has had a serious accident."

Quick Arrest Follows Warehouse Break-in

Simcoe, Nov. 22 — (CP) — Less than an hour after $3,900 was stolen from a warehouse here night, the first of three suspects was arrested and the money recovered.

Held in connection with the theft are Raymond Rayner of Simcoe and Gerald and Aubrey Lambert, brothers, of Port Dover, police said.

A police officer, off duty and on his way home, discovered two men outside the Norfolk Fruit Growers' warehouse. They fled and he followed. A question from Provincial Police were notified.

Less than an hour later Rayner was stopped in a car outside Simcoe. The Lambert brothers were picked up at Provincial and Port Dover police a short time later.

The $3,900 in three money bags was discovered in a back lane where the suspects dropped it as they fled.

Lost Hunter Tells Of Brush With Wolves

Sudbury, Nov. 22 (CP)—Lawrence Fyrich, 17, was in Sudbury hospital here after three days lost in a rugged area 38 miles north of here, partly overcome by an early morning brush with timber wolves.

Mr. Fortier, a boiler-maker with the Canadian National Railways, was found Wednesday by Joseph Hansel, 17, and Albert Lamothe, 14, of Capreol. He became separated from his brother-in-law while on a deer hunting trip Monday.

Mr. Fortier estimated he walked 25 miles Monday night before he fell asleep about 5 a.m. An hour later he awoke to find two wolves sniffing at his feet.

"I leaped up and fired pointblank at the first, which I killed one of them and I beat the other off with the butt of my rifle."

ALD. DAFOE TO RUN

Oshawa, Nov. 22 (CP)—Ald. Hipley Dafoe charged at council meeting last night that Oshawa is "galloping towards bankruptcy too fast to suit a great many ratepayers" and announced his intention to contest the mayoralty next month.

TWO MILLION VOTERS EXPECTED TO CAST BALLOTS

Ontario Today Elects 24th Legislature

Toronto, Nov. 22—(CP)— Ontario today elects its 24th legislature.

Voters decide whether the Progressive Conservative party will continue to govern Canada's most populous province or the Liberals should be given an opportunity to put into effect their program of increased services and lower taxes, or Ontario should try the socialism of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation.

Two million of an eligible 3,000,000 voters are expected to cast ballots in Ontario's first November election. Generally clear weather was forecast with snowflurries in some northern areas by evening. Polls opened at 9 a.m. EST—an hour later in tw onorth-western ridings—and close at 7 p.m.

A total of 271 candidates contest the 90 seats. The Progressive Conservatives and Liberals put up candidates in every constituency. The CCF is represented in 74, a half-dozen Independents and some minor-party candidates completed the list.

Standing of the 23rd legislature at dissolution: Progresive Conservatives, 56; Liberals, 16; CCF, 8; one Labor-Progressive (Communist) 2. One seat was vacant. This was one of Ontario's longest. On Oct. 4, Premier Frost, since criticized by his political opponents for calling the early-winter vote, announced that he was calling a general election. Active electioneering got under way about five weeks ago.

Campaign Started a Year Ago

The campaign of the Liberal party, in office from 1934 to 1943 and played an important party role in 1948 when the CCF became the official opposition, actually began a year ago with the election of Walter C. Thomson as provincial leader. Retaining his seat in the House of Commons, he gave up his practice as a Toronto lawyer immediately began stumping the province and made some 140 speeches. He is the son of the party's modern-day founder, Mitchell Hepburn.

This is Mr. Thomson's first test as party leader. It also is the first election he has faced as leadership. Mr. Frost, whose one campaign promise was "continuity," has already led an unofficial Progressive Conservative leader in 1948 when he succeeded Premier-sook provincial politics to become national head of the party.

Mr. Frost, in the House of Leaders, only the CCF's E. B. Jolliffe, has already led an election fight. Mr. Jolliffe, at 42 some 14 years younger than his political foes, has obviously led through three previous elections.

Bride Suffocated When Fire Razes Toronto Mansion

$100,000 Home Was Owned By Former Oshawa Man

Toronto, Nov. 22—(CP)—Bernice Gelkie, 26, bride of a wealthy Oshawa manufacturer, was suffocated today when flames destroyed the couple's 22-room mansion in suburban North York.

The 72-year-old husband, W. R. Gelkie, was carried from the flaming building by firemen. He is the retired president of the Pedlar People Limited, Oshawa sheet-metal firm.

Firemen said the blaze is believed to have started at dawn in a ground-floor den of the huge residence, "Donnybrook." Flames roared 50 feet above the building by the time firemen kicked through terrace doors and fought to the second storey.

Lack Owner In Truck

"Mr. Gelkie fought and kicked and struggled with us to let him go to his wife," said Captain Charles Dawson of North York Fire Department. "When we got him outside we had to lock him in one of the trucks to stop him from running back in."

Two maids got out of the house safely.

"If Mrs. Gelkie had stayed on the sunny balcony, where she had taken her husband, she would have been alive now," said one. "But she went back and down the front stairs."

Captain C. Dawson said he managed to get up to the bride, but couldn't find Mrs. Gelkie "until it was too late."

"When we got there the whole building was on fire," said Capt. Dawson, "flames were shooting 30 to 40 feet."

In Secluded Area

He said the building of brick and stone, was in a secluded area and estimated the house and contents to be worth about $100,000. It was believed the fire may have started from a smouldering fireplace in the den.

Mrs. Gelkie and her husband's nurse before she married him two years ago.

Mounties Given Needle Treatment Before Admittance

Montreal, Nov. 22 (CP)—Five husky R.C.M.P. officers lassoed today how difficult it can be to get into Canada if you haven't the proper papers.

The five, who accompanied Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh to England after their tour of Canada, didn't have papers to prove they had been vaccinated on their return by plane. Immigration officers had an alternative but to shunt them off to the medical officer for vaccination.

After receiving the needle treatment, the five again were citizens in good standing and headed to their homes across the Dominion.

Heading west were Constables T. A. Mathews of Revelstoke, B.C. and Sgt. W. H. Stank of Melville, Sask. The other members of the party were assistant commissioner M. H. Anthony of Ottawa, Corp. J. T. Oulnet of Rock Island, Que., and Constable E. S. Hunt of St. John, Nfld.

Scientist Makes Movie Stars Out of Butterflies in Your Stomach

Baltimore, Nov. 22 (AP) — Johns Hopkins scientist has souped up the old X-ray to a point where he can make movie stars out of the butterflies in your stomach.

The result could be a boon to medical research.

The new apparatus produces X-ray motion pictures. Its creator is Dr. Russell Morgan, professor of radiology at the Hopkins Medical School and radiologist-in-chief of the Hopkins Hospital. He and his assistant, R. E. Shurn, have received the gold medal of the American Roentgen Ray Society for the invention.

Their brain-child consists of an X-ray lens, a pair of mirrors, a television pick-up tube, a mechanism which brightens the television picture, and a movie camera.

Its operation is explained in the Johns Hopkins magazine, monthly magazine of the school and hospital.

The patient lies on a stretcher, beneath which is placed the usual fluoroscopic X-ray generator. The X-ray picture is then fed by mirrors into the television tube, where it is broken down into electrical impulses. These impulses are amplified and transmitted before being converted back into a picture on the television screen. The amplification is so great that the television picture is bright enough to be photographed by a movie camera.

Morgan's pictures can be made up to 50,000 times as bright as the standard fluoroscope photo. And they can be taken easily in 15 minutes, compared with the many-hour fluoroscope exposure possible with X-ray sequence photographs.

Soldier Does Front-Line Stock-Taking And Decides It's Worth Fighting For

With the Canadians in Korea, Nov. 22 (CP)—Rifleman Ray Hall says did a bit of personal stock-taking in the front line the other day and decided that, all things considered, the investment had been worth it.

Jim is 20, and from Edmonton. A private with the 2nd Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, he has been a professional soldier since the machine gun platoon all the while he has been over here.

Before 1950, when the Korea force was raised, he had just graduated from high school and was thinking of entering law or commerce at the University of Alberta.

Aboard the Pvt. Joe P. Martinez as he neared Korea a year ago he told why he enlisted.

"I decided," he said then, "to take 18 months out of my life to do something about communism, to get the experience army life offers and incidentally to see a bit of the world. Once the 18 months are over I'll go on to university."

Now he's homeward bound with others of his platoon, commanded by Capt. Andy Poulin of Vancouver. It's one of the few platoons in the 2nd Patricias where the policy hasn't been essentially the same men who came over with them.

Just before his outfit pulled out of the Commonwealth division's area of the Imjin River, Jim totted up the "lessons learned" and "time not time wasted" account and decided it worked out on the profit side.

He had developed his ideas and his convictions, he broadened intellectually, and he had learned tolerance.

"We are here for the right reasons" he said. "The people and their country are - worth fighting for. But actually all this is something bigger than they represent or know.

Music Teachers Hear Address By R.G. Geen

The Belleville branch of the Ontario Registered Music Teachers' Association held their first regular project in the auditorium of Queen Alexandra Public School before an audience made up of many of the city's music teachers, their students, and the parents of the students. This was the first of what is hoped to be many future lecture recitals by leading Canadian music educators.

The speaker of the evening was Mr. Reginald G. Geen, a former Belleville resident of many years ago, being a brother of Messrs. Ernest and Percy Geen of this city. Mr. Geen graduated from the Toronto Conservatorium at Albert College and the Toronto Conservatory of Music early age of 16, pursuing his studies later in England and France. Since his appointment as public examiner at the Toronto Conservatory in 1924 he has conducted examinations throughout the Dominion. He is nationally known as an authority on vocal teacher and has appeared as concert pianist and organist in many large centres. He now lives at Oshawa, he is the director of the General Motors Choral Association and was recently elected Dominion President of the Canadian College of Organists. He has appeared in organ recitals in this city at previous times.

Ann. Focused In 1914

Mrs. Leonard Dandeneau, president of the local ORMTA, introduced Mr. Geen to the audience. Before commencing his topic of the evening Mr. Geen traced briefly the history of the Ontario Branch beginning in Owen Sound in 1914, at which time he was one of the city's founders. Other associations were formed in western Ontario during the years that followed, originating in the OMTA in 1936. The formation of the association was done mainly for the purpose of maintaining the necessary high standards for the teaching of music and to promote progressive ideas and to encourage scholarly and systematic preparation for the art of teaching. It was also established to encourage a definite ethical standard of professional conduct among the teachers, resulting in the protection of students from those of the unqualified teachers. Membership is qualified to teach adequately. This association now has 1,500 members with 39 branches in Ontario.

The Art of Practice

Mr. Geen chose as his subject "The Art of Practice" and in part an item of interest to all teachers, students and parents alike, the course of his lecture he covered practically every angle that practising the piano could encompass.

Among the many points covered were the necessity of scale practice, proper fingering and articulation, chord and arpeggio playing, melodic phrasing and rhythmic accentuation, musical relaxation when playing, proper pedaling and also its much abused misuse, practising in relation of music and its practising to school work and home work, the projection of an interested attitude on the part of the teacher to other activities (such as sports and hobbies) of the student, the overcoming of disinterest to music practising on the part of the pupil, the preparation for examinations, the forcing of pupils to practise and the correction of this, and the parents object in becoming more co-operative and helpful to pupil and teacher alike.

Much Time Wasted

These were only a few of the topics delivered with such interesting effect by Mr. Geen. Interspersed with his lecture were illustrations at the keyboard of the new ways and rights of each subject discussed. Humorous anecdotes and personal incidents in Mr. Geen's long teaching and lecturing career added greatly to the enjoyment of the talk given.

One noteworthy sentence spoken was that 75 per cent of all practice time spent by students was entirely wasted, with ideas given to overcome this. At the end of his lecture Mr. Geen analyzed a Chopin waltz completely, then performed it correctly. He concluded by playing a Chopin Nocturne seldom heard.

Following the lecture a reception was given for Mr. Geen at the home of Mrs. Leonard Dandeneau on East Bridge Street.

Talks Will Begin In Washington On January 3rd

Washington, Nov. 22. (Reuters) — The Churchill-Truman talks will begin in Washington Jan. 3, it was learned from an authoritative source today.

While the full agenda has not yet been drawn up, it was stated here that the talks at the White House will last for at least a week and in scope will constitute the most important Anglo-American conference since the end of the Second World War in 1945.

A new topic—control of American air bases in Britain—appears likely to take a priority place on the agenda.

Usually well-informed sources here say Churchill wants an agreement which would give Britain much more control than she has over the U.S. bases on the grounds that she could be drawn into a war against her wishes as the result of a sudden clash between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Authorities here point out that under the existing unwritten agreement with Britain, the U.S. government alone could decide if and when bombs flown from British soil should be used against a third power, and any moderating influence which Britain could bring to bear on a dangerous situation would therefore be lost.

Churchill will meet Canadian government leaders in Ottawa after his visit to Washington. Results of discussions here may provide the basis for some of the talks there.

Rain Almost Certain Before Grey Cup Game

Toronto, Nov. 22 — (CP)— The weather man today refused to predict what the weather will be in Varsity Stadium for Saturday's Grey Cup football game.

Fred Turnbull, chief forecaster for the public weather office here, said "Anything can happen".

"The cold polar masses completed a 600 - mile rain to sleet northwestern sections of the province deep into the cold zone. At 7:30 this morning, the scrimmage line formed up on the Kapuskasing - Soo position."

Mr. Turnbull said the warm tropical mass, although giving ground, is far from defeated. The surprise Texas attack he predicted yesterday now is under way, with rain reported northward to Ohio.

His guess today was that the weather scrimmage line will form Saturday just about through Toronto. Toronto could have:

"Continuous rain or snow with temperatures near 30 or on the other hand — should the cold air be held only slightly to the north — a balmy spring-like day.

"However, between now and game time, rain is almost certain for Toronto and most sections of southwest Ontario."

THOSE NEWS RELEASES

Some explanation should be forthcoming from someone about the case of Ferdinand DeMara, 29, of Lawrence, Mass. Mr. DeMara has posed successfully as a surgeon aboard one of the vessels of the Canadian navy and performed a large number of surgical operations. He travelled under the name of Dr. Joseph Cyr, with the naval rank of surgeon-lieutenant. It seems Mr. DeMara borrowed the name, medical diploma and identity of a genuine Dr. Joseph Cyr, of Edmundston, N.B.

The most curious part of this affair was the manner in which Mr. DeMara was detected in his imposture. Mr. DeMara's expoosure came about through the real Dr. Cyr reading about the "brilliant" surgical exploits of his namesake, as described in the "news releases" which had been sent out by the Royal Canadian Navy itself.

This news release, which described the bogus Dr. Cyr's delightful career, so glowingly, caused others besides the real Dr. Cyr to become curious. In the end, it was found that Mr. DeMara had never attended any medical school and that his knowledge of surgery, if any, had been self-acquired.

Can a man with no medical training really perform difficult surgical operations? Or are those people who prepare "news releases" just a trifle over-enthusiastic about their work, if per-entitlement is the right word to describe their activities?

A WISE DECISION

The United States Supreme Court has just made a ruling, according to the Christian Science Monitor, by which anyone who can prove he has been injured by reason of false information maliciously given to the Federal Bureau of Investigation may seek redress in the courts.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation, which is usually referred to as the "F.B.I." and which is the police force of the United States federal government, has raised a scream of indignation, as might be expected.

However indignantly the F.B.I. may scream, the United States Supreme Court is unlikely to pay any attention to it. The Supreme Court judges are not going to take any chances on having the American F.B.I. transformed into an Ogpu or a Gestapo.

As the Christian Science Monitor points out: "It is possible that the F.B.I. may be denied an occasional useful tip, but national security bought at the price of grudge bodies police powers better would put national freedoms in no little danger from their protectors."

A GOOD MOVE

The Ontario department of lands and forests deserves to be congratulated on extending the special open season of one week in December on deer in some 20 southern Ontario counties. (The only areas in this region affected are the counties of Northumberland and Durham and Monaghan township.)

Most of these areas are half tame, or more than half tame, because they have been protected by the farmers and their sons. In many instances, the farmers leave food for them during the difficult months of the winter, and regard them pretty much as pets.

In any event, the farmers of Ontario have no desire whatever to see their properties overrun with hunters who not only trespass but frequently tear down fences and cause other damage, such as shooting valuable livestock.

JOURNALISTS IRKED

Here is how Webster's New International Dictionary defines "journalistic"

"Characteristic of journalism or journalists; hence, of style, characterized by evidence of haste, superficiality of thought, inaccuracies of detail, colloquialisms, and sensationalism."

Sigma Delta Chi, which is the American national professional journalism fraternity and which has been holding a three-day convention in Detroit, says this definition is "a slander against the thousands of educated journalists of the United States and other English-speaking countries."

Further, Sigma Delta Chi has called upon G. and C. Merriam Company, the famous publishers of Webster's New International Dictionary, to "renounce and recall" this definition and to "adopt a fair and proper definition."

Statisticians employed by the government of the United States have discovered that volunteers for the armed forces are cheaper than draftees.

It costs Uncle Sam $53 to induct a draftee, who serves for two years, and $63 to get a volunteer sailor, marine, soldier or airman, who serves for three years.

DAY AFTER

Knees today are rough and sore;
That's from playing on the floor.
Blistered thumbs no salve can ease.
That's from winding toys with keys.
Tired this morning! With a yawn:
"Yes. They had me up at dawn."
How that bump upon the brow?
Don't recall exactly now.
Must have happened, truth to tell:
One of several times I fell
Playing football in the yard.
That boy tackles well, and hard.
Foolish at my age to try
Things like that, they say, am I.
Should know better. With a grin
This I tell them: "Rub it in!
Scold me now, but if I'm here
I shall do the same next year."

THANKSGIVING

"What shall I render unto the Lord for all his benefits toward me?

I will take the cup of salvation, and call upon the name of the Lord." (Ps. 116:12-13.)

These two verses express the truth which lies at the basis of all sound religion, namely, that salvation is a gift from God. There is no task we can do which will result in the salvation of our souls. All we can do is to accept the provision which God has offered, after letting go the inferior type of life we have been living.

This is the Thanksgiving season. What can we do to show our thanks to God for all his blessings to us? We can use those blessings to help God's purposes - we can accept the blessing of regeneration and transformed life which He has offered to those who have faith in Him through Jesus Christ.

We do not work for our salvation: we accept it. It is God's gift. What God most wants from us is not diligence in some work which we do for Him, but receptive of nature, but simply the willingness to accept and gratefully use the gifts He has to offer.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Any time you start brooding about the advances of socialism, all you have to do is jump in your car and go for a short drive. In ordinary, everyday traffic you will see manifested the basic lawlessness and anti-social nature of man.

If you haven't a car, you may not be worrying unduly over the advances of socialism. In that case, you must wait until socialism gives you a car. Then go for a drive. Having got your car, you will then find that socialism can go no farther.

A motor car seems to release the true character of man. Until the arrival of the motor car, it looked as if the teaching of a couple of thousand years of prophets and philosophers was having some effect on us. Man was largely pedestrian; and when not pedestrian, he was riding in social groups in trains, street cars and horse-drawn buses. In groups, we had learned to some extent to submit to social laws for the general good. We had no escape. Maybe we pushed and shoved a bit, and tramped on one another's feet. But we blamed that on circumstances.

Then came the motor car, and we were free to be more in public as our natural and basic instincts directed. And that directive was to heck with it and all right.

Speeding and cutting in on other drivers are two of the sins most commonly thought of as anti-social. We like to believe that the anti-social characters among us are the hot-headed, pushful and arrogant. Not so. To get the full demonstration of the essential selfishness of human nature, you must take into account the mild, nice, gentle man who double park on shopping streets "just for a minute" while the distance they have to carry a bundle by hand; the rank and file of us all who drives slow on fast, park where we like, turn, twist, stop, go, entirely as our personal desire commands.

SOME SMALL TALK

Not much in particular;

* * *

Must make a low bow in the direction of columnist Harold Weir for his telling essay on the closing of a Vancouver night club because of what "might" take place there. A tight, forceful piece on some dubious thinking by an old hand with words. Other things I liked last week: The CJOR late-night satire of Victor Writers, a sophisticate among the Neanderthal glee jockeys, and altogether a mighty pleasant fellow to have in your living room. . . The work of John Fisher, the old Maple Leaf Kid, himself, in the recent royal tour broadcasts. . . Evelyn Waugh's "Black Mischief," which I've just got around to reading. Wonderful scene where the hero discovers he's eaten his flapjacks. . . Sidney Katz's powerful magazine piece on why "Red" Hill went over Niagara Falls.

Speaking of magazine pieces, you'll find Pierre Berton's article in the new Maclean's called "The Great Vancouver Sex Affair". Berton writes about one poor fellow who had to make his choice between living here in Paradise or—shudder—going to Toronto.

The young man was gazing out of the executive's window", Berton writes, "and with a sweep of his hand he indicated the fairness of Vancouverism. "Where else in the world," he said, "could you get a view like this? What other city has this setting? I wouldn't trade this place for anywhere."

"I regret to hear you say that, the executive told him, "because I am going to ask you to go to the east. For more money."

"The young man gazed at him incredulously. The corner of his mouth began to twitch. He stood motionless a long-out-of-print definition by Menchen of a skeptic. Goes this way:

No Cheap Beef With Dear Labor

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

In the course of your editorial on "Fewer Cattle—Dearer Beef", I note that you quote Dr. J. W. G. MacEwan, former dean of animal husbandry at the University of Saskatchewan, as having pointed out that "in 1901, Canadians owned 1,938 cattle per 1,000 population; in 1950, there were only 850 cattle in Canada per 1,000 people."

The above compressed wordpicture delivered a clearer message to the city reader than I had gathered from a careful reading of this "beef price" problem story since it first broke. Your editorial puts it, "the cow jumped over the moon."

I get the distinct impression, however, that the trend to which Dr. MacEwan points is largely related to today's technique along the pavements, i.e., of working as many hours as possible, for as many dollars as possible.

So far as I am concerned, if my neighbor wants to eat margarine or margarine, that is his privilege. On the other hand, it does seem to me that the excellent quality which the consumers in town and city get from enthusiastic dairy farmers' breasts' spreads and 'Bobbin' steaks' we are liable to discover that the results are disappointing, that is if I can make-out from my reading of various kinds—including the grocery bills—what we are supposed to be winning on the margarines and lowered-quality beefs which are now on the milk, bacon and cheese 'roundabouts'?

The final closing line in the above editorial marrits the attention of the people at the controls in our lamination politics. Whether one comes along with a means of supplying Canadian farmers with an abundant supply of cheap labor, there is no immediate prospect of cheaper beef. Back, the long range prospect is that beef is likely to remain relatively expensive for a long time. Yes, and it deserves to be remembered that, while it takes three years to build a milking cow of prime beef, in those same three years, the native's population will increase by about one million—i.e. natural increase plus immigrants.

HOW MUCH ALIVE, HOW NEARLY DEAD?

The refined food from which most Americans get most of their daily calories is notably deficient in three essentials of good nutrition, namely vitamin B complex, calcium and iodine.

Milk, cheese, peas, dried beans, nuts and peanuts are the best food sources of calcium.

Sea fish and shell fish, fresh dried or canned, are the best food sources of iodine. Sea food, however, should be used three or four days a week, not just occasionally, if it is to furnish the an.ount of iodine necessary to maintain vim. Not less than a pint, or growing children two pints of milk or its equivalent per day is necessary to supply the minimum nutritional requirement of calcium. And whole wheat flour or home cracked wheat must replace at least half the white flour in the diet to insure adequate intake of vitamin B complex.

Lest the word vite throw you (and Webster too), permit me to quote the definition given in the pamphlet Young Folks and Old Folks, available on request if you provide stamped, self-addressed envelope):

Vite means the preservation of the characteristics of youth; better-than-average nutritional condition as manifested in lower death-rates, better growth and better development (in animals or man); extension of the prime of life in both directions; material improvement of the life expectation of adults; and physiologic level of positive health throughout the entire cycle; greater pep; more vitality; the highest degree of natural immunity; and an adequate fund of reserve power to tide over emergencies and strains; the get to the top. ## TODAY'S TALK

WHAT THE WHOLE WORLD NEEDS

Thomas E. Marshall, who was at one time Vice-President of the United States, himself an humble man, by reason of his fame largely by a single remark made in a speech, has said it was this—he said: "What this country needs is a good five-cent cigar!" Of course, there was an idea behind this that carried a greater significance than mere statistician. It put a people to thinking, which is always a good plan.

The entire world has gone through crisis after crisis since the Marshall era. He might say at most many times that five cents, but things have actually now needs more than anything else, in the humble opinion of this newspaper writer, is a revival of religion. A few "Billy" Sundays, "Billy" Grahams—did a good job in his day. In every great city where he held his meetings crime almost immediately lessened, and people began to think of their spiritual welfare and less of their material well-being.

The eventual influence of Gandhi still lives in the world, in my youth the noted evangelist, D. L. Moody, in his great meetings, stirred millions with his earnestness and simple sermons to the multitude that flocked to hear him. There lies in the hearts, I am sure, of millions the hope that there may be a revival of religion that will sweep the world! There is no defence so powerful as that of religion and the fact that the communism's greatest worry!

Remember, it is that nation whose God is the Lord," says the Bible. Never in history have religious leaders had such a wide opportunity and remarkable sales, as today! The world is full of a hunger for that which gives peace to the mind and heart. Never have there been so many fears in the world. We need a return to religion to wipe them out. People who put their trust in God do not fear. What a beautiful note of confidence is struck in that wonderful line—"Thou will keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee."

The accident death poll over a 30-hour period last Thanksgiving was a record 201.

Two British Soldiers Killed In Canal Zone

Port Said, Egypt, Nov. 22 — (Reuters) — Two British soldiers were killed, bombs were tossed at a British army headquarters and telephone communications cut in the latest wave of violence reported today in the troubled Suez canal zone.

The soldiers were killed last night in an ambush in the dock area of Port Said.

The men had been visiting their families, evacuated a few weeks ago to the western side of the Suez canal.

Their truck was sprayed with a burst of tommy-gun fire as it was about to enter a dock gate. Two other soldiers were wounded.

This attack brought British casualties in the Suez canal area since last weekend to nine dead and six wounded.

Bombs were thrown at a school being used as a British army headquarters in Ismailia. There was no damage and no one was hurt.

Egyptian "liberation" fighters struck again today at British communications and cut all British military telephone lines between Port Said and a British army headquarters at Moascar, near Ismailia.

They backed lengths from three cables a few miles south of Port Said.

Moascar is the most important nerve centre in the canal zone, with telephone links to all British garrisons and camps.

Dav. Branscombe Wins $100 Music Scholarship

The award winners were selected after auditions on the basis of their musicianship, their academic standing and reports on their character from their high school principals.

There were 112 students nominated as applicants for the scholarships; 47 boys and 65 girls. Pianists numbered 62, 15 boys and 49 girls. There were 20 violinists, ten of each sex, and 29 others who played various other instruments. A surprisingly large number of nominees were products of the new instrumental high school music course taught in many Secondary Schools.

"I like Koreans. And I like their country, I didn't at first, but I think the way the 'vice-burners' worked with us in the hills opened my mind. I certainly admired them."

Indicative of Jim's feelings about Korea was his reaction to Lee Jung-Ok, 22-year-old Korean university student who has been chief interpreter with the 2nd Patricias since their arrival, and also "O. C. rice-burners."

"The Canadian government should do something about him" said Ramsay.

"Somebody, why not the regiment, should sponsor Lee and the two or three like him who have been with us and who would benefit their country after receiving higher education in Canada."

Among the items on the debit side are what he terms "ovation injustices" and the U.N. army policy of leaving troops too long in the line at the time, coupled with the unavailability of leave centres or rest camps on an adequate scale.

"Jim's headed back to college once he's released from his contract with the army. Already he has arranged for a refresher course on his high school work, and next autumn it will be either commerce or law at U. of A.

Movies and Bottle Chief Remedies For That Depressed Feeling in U.K.

By FRASER WIGHTON

London, Nov. 22—(Reuters)—The movies and the bottle are the most popular remedies for depression in Britain, where one citizen in three complains his feet hurt and a lot of women would prefer to be men.

These are among many curious facts about the average Briton which have been unearthed by the British Institute of Public Opinion, affiliate of the American Gallup Poll.

Asking thousands of people thousands of questions over the last 15 years, Institute interviewers here have discovered these things:

The average Englishwoman is 5 feet, 4 inches tall, weighs 130½ pounds, has brown hair and blue eyes, and believes the way to her husband's heart is through his stomach.

The average Briton is 5 feet, 8 inches tall, weighs 155 pounds. He chooses chicken and roast potatoes as his favorite meal, prefers soccer to other games, dogs to cats, brunets to blondes. He would pick his wife not for looks but for skill in making him comfortable at home.

The majority of husbands and wives here say they want no more than three children.

In a booklet, Behind the Gallup Poll, published by the newspaper News Chronicle, these further points are disclosed:

The majority of people believe that 23 is the best age for a girl to get married.

Women worry more than men though both worry about the same things. Number one anxiety is money, others are fear of war, food problems, old age, housing and lastly unemployment.

The typical wife thinks the family should help out with the housework. Three out of four husbands say emphatically that themselves wash up, light fires and give a hand with all the domestic chores. But wives are not so sure these claims are justified.

One woman in three of those approached said she would like to be a man.

The average woman wants her husband to be affectionate, tolerant, unselfish and cheerful. She ranks these qualities a long way above his ability to bring home a good pay packet—or even faithfulness.

A typical Englishman thinks the prospect of lasting unemployment.

A typical Englishman thinks most wives nag too much, and hardly any man wants to become a woman.

Women spend about half-an-hour longer in bed than men, which is possibly why they live longer.

Typical British breakfast is tea, marmalade or jam, and bread.

In bringing up children the majority believe in spanking, but only one in four thinks school teachers should do it.

Three out of four Britons gamble at least once a year.

Men are slightly more hesitant than women that a girl should pay part of an evening's entertainment when a boy takes her out.

Women's Activities

ST. PAUL'S W.A.

Stirling — The November meeting of St. Paul's W.A. was held in the church parlors on Tuesday afternoon.

Rev. R. R. Bonsteel, of the Rawdon circuit was guest speaker. He spoke on the Women's Association from a ministerial point of view, and stressed the magnificent contribution women made to the work of the church by their faithfulness and their dedication of everyday activities with an eternal point in view. The fellowship of working together was the keynote of speech.

Particularly did he wish to impress that the harmony part of fellowship of working together at menial tasks was good for the soul.

Mrs. J. B. Thompson read the scripture from Acts 4:23-30 based on the courage attained by trusting in God and doing right.

Mrs. D. Donohoe gave a reading and Mrs. Baker favored with a piano solo. Mrs. H. Wells reported for the Sunshine Workers.

The December meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. R. A. Patterson and a good attendance is requested.

Mrs. R. B. Duffin and her helpers served delectable refreshments.

MELROSE W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting of the W.M.S. of the Melrose United Church was held on Wednesday last at the home of Mrs. J. E. Embury, with Mrs. Harold MacFarlane presiding and she conducted devotional period.

Mrs. E. M. Badgely, the secretary, gave a report of the October meeting when Mrs. John English entertained the members of the W.M.S. and the young members with the members of the recently organized Baby Band.

Mrs. John Milligan, group leader, took charge of the program which is on "Home Missions" and introduced the study book "From Lakes to Northern Lights".

Home Mission work is nation building in a Christian way. Daniel Webster said, "Whatever makes men good Christians, makes men good citizens", "We are living in one of the most critical times in the history of the world and there is need of a great crusade to extend the ministry of the Christian Church in Canada. Through Home Missions we are still helping to maintain the church in small settlements where without the aid of Home Missions the Gospel could not be preached."

Miss Mary MacLaren told about the early days of the former Presbyterian church at Melrose which was most interesting to all. Mrs. E. M. Badgely also told many interesting items about the former Methodist church at Melrose. All the members were most grateful to these two ladies for imparting so much past history of these two churches.

Mrs. Sherry Demill and Mrs. Wilmot Embury, respectively, told about Canada and Home Missions.

Miss Beatrice MacFarlane gave the report of the meeting of the presbyterial recently held in Shannonville.

Mrs. E. Pascoe and Mrs. E. M. Badgely were appointed as a committee to bring in a slate of officers at the next meeting which will be held at the home of Mrs. Russell MacFarlane.

The president closed the meeting, and the hostess served refreshments and a social hour was enjoyed.

LEGISLATION COMING UP

Toronto, Nov. 22 (CP) —Mayor Hiram McCallum told a women electors' meeting last night that he understands legislation permitting the Ontario government to take over all provincial isolation hospitals will be introduced at the next meeting of the legislature.

Bridge Street United Church Holds Christmas Bazaar, and Tea

Bright blue skies with cirrus clouds like stately ships upon a placid sea, and tangy, sun-warmed air made a perfect setting for a perfect Christmas bazaar and tea yesterday afternoon in Bridge Street United Church under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary.

Into a bower of Christmas evergreens, bright glistening flowers and the fragrant, aromatic scent of spruce and balsam, the thronging guests, patrons and friends were most graciously welcomed by the president of the Auxiliary Mrs. J. Marsh and Mrs. Duncan McTavish, and then passed on to the receivers of custom, Mrs. W. D. Gilbert and Mrs. H. B. Fetterley.

Following a brief address by the pastor of the church, the Rev. Duncan McTavish, who reminded the assembled guests "that Thursday is "Thanksgiving Day" in the land across the border, we here in Canada should also be thankful for a land of plenty, and for a land in which freedom to worship was maintained, and for the things we have". He also wished the bazaar every success and extended his appreciation for the amount of work the Auxiliary had put into it. After a short prayer of dedication, the bazaar and tea was officially declared opened.

The large assembly room was devoted to the tea appointments, and the long tables, each in the rectangle by twisted strands of red, a white picket fence and green gift, were most attractively prated with green branches, red bows, and clusters of huge Florida cones sprayed with silver.

Lovely Centrepiece

Within this enclosure were the little guest tables, each with its dainty white linen cloth. A lovely tea table with its immaculate damask linen centred by a charmingly arranged floral centrepiece of exquisite deep red and snowwhite 'mums and sprays of asparagus fern, background by antique Scottish silver tea urns. The deep red velvet curtains upon which were sprays of glistening red poinsettias and scintillating strands of holly, and the Christmas trees, like sentinels of Christmas, all added to the lovely effect.

Those who invited to the tea-room included: Mrs. P. C. McGuire, Mrs. Ralph Parks, Mrs. G. Campbell, V. Rowbotham, D. Houston, J. Parrott, H. Robbins, P. C. Parker, Denyes, S. Anderson, T. McMullen, W. Soule, R. E. Kuntze, S. Wiley, F. Carmellen, V. White, W. Fox, H. Wilbur, D. Williams, R. Schryver, R. Gunsolus, L. Jones, F. Martin, W. Riley.

The Cup That Cheers

Making the delicious tea were, Mrs. I. Reikey, Mrs. L. Rolsf; replenishing plates and teapots were, Mrs. Dallas, Mrs. C. Steele, Mrs. C. Clark, Mrs. W. Oliver, Mrs. Heagle, Mrs. Henry, Mrs. Chick, Mrs. Mrs. Sager. Mrs. C. R. Clapp, Mrs. E. Denyes, Mrs. A. E. May and Mrs. D. Bradley added a most pleasing note to the overall effect.

In the adjoining room were the various booths, each bearing out the Christmas theme with festoons of evergreens, huge red bows, ornate pine cones, and garlands of red and green. The first booth was that of the home cooking, conducted by Mrs. B. Howard, assisted by Mesdames Hurlburt, Northcotte; Burr; Curry Thompson, Moon, Francis and Miss Down.

Dream Foods

Here was an array such as dreams are made of; fragrant loaves of homemade bread, Parkerhouse rolls, buns, tea biscuits, muffins, pies, including raspberry lemon, with mounds of golden-tinted meringue; orange coconut cream; apple with crusts that melt in the mouth and mines; date tarts filled to bursting with nut-meats; Chinese chews; nut and maraschino cherry-topped Chelsea buns; white cakes with mounds of cream icing flicked with coconut, angel cakes piled high with boiled icing—as sticky. but, oh, so good! date bread; orange loaf; rice and date loaf to be eaten hot with chili sauce or cold with salad; jars of mixed pickles; delicious grape and apple jelly.

The deli booth was a fairy land of lacy dresses in organdy, satin, silk, prints; in all colors, pink, blue, yellow, peach, red; three piece infant suits with hats to match, a lovely dotted Swiss apron edged with lace and blue French knots; knit sets of bonnet, coatee and booties, service; while a line of dresses added their note of color and attraction. The conveners were, Mrs. Harold F. Mott, assisted by Mrs. Charles Hyde, as convenor, and Mesdames R. Garnett; J. Mitchell; G. Anderson; G. S. Croak; H. Fox; S. Kerr; R. McCabe; Lyneiman; C. Miller and E. Wallfield, were busy packing the various items for the waiting customers.

Candy Nosegays

The candy booth was the most attractive with its crisscrossed hoops of red and white, its huge candy canes, one at either side, and toe great assortment of red containers, filled with their enticing tid-bits of creams, divinity fudge, chocolate fudge and chocolate nut-topped. Besides these there were little nosegays of colored fruit drops surrounded by rosettes of blue, pink and red, with their ruff of lacy paper doilies—a delightful and unique touch, lovely for place cards. This was under the convenorship of Mrs. G. Countryman assisted by Mrs. G. Herron, as co-convener and their assistants, Mesdames H. Lee; W. Brown; C. Allison; F. Cooke; A. M. Richards and Miss Helen Salman.

The children's booth, convened by Mrs. C. Hermiston and Mrs. Allan, assisted by Mesdames Stanton; Grant, Fisher; Elliott; Bennerry; Bowden, Madden and Miss Norma Clarke had a fine assortment of anything a child might need. There were lovely rayon satin dresses in pale green, lovely yellow and pink; plaid skirts in jumper effect; plaid shirts and blouses; knit bonnets, bootees, smocks and a toy duck which drew considerable attention as he bumbled along, as well as fancy tows's and wash cloths.

Arabian Nights Collection

The miscellaneous booth was true to its name, for here amid its festoons of red and green and swaying lites of elongated bells, it reminded one of the robbers' cave in the 'Arabian Nights' with its heterogeneous assortment. Here as usual, the crowd, was three deep, and needed some gentle elbow work to get even a peep in, but when one did, what treasures met the eye. Lovely lace doilies in yellow crochet with frills of crochet chains, pairing an interesting inscription, "The bread of Life"; tumbler mouffs in all colors; handkerchiefs with crocheted lace edges, one especially caught the eye having "Albert College" in one corner, and edged with black, yellow and green, the college colors; there were pin-cushion hats in variegated crochet; mitts, earrings in gold, silver, shells and what-have-you; bracelets, needle cases, cups and saucers, mitts, squashes, and one very green pumpkin that must have been lost; a sort of 'concertina' shopping bag made from bamboo strips which opened and closed flat to suit the occasion; colognes of different fragrances; and other items too numerous to mention.

In charge of these were Mesdames Adsett, Massey, Vermilyea, Fairman, Montgomery, Sherry, Morrison, Mather, Brucin, Miles and Buchanan.

Many Aprons

The apron display was "out of this world." Aprons in blue, and yellow, and pink, and red, of all designs and sizes, some half-over some all-over, some heart-shaped some almost square and finished off with a pixie, ruffle, or a new comer to the bazaars was one having a slip-on band, instead of celluloid which ran through the band and clipped around the waist, an aid to the ironing task. Besides the aprons there were pyjamas of denim suitable for little play suits, heavy duty apparel, in lengths from two to three yards. These ensembles were in colors of soft green, blue and white pin stripe and in dull navy.

Convening this booth were Mrs. D. W. Grills and Mrs. Wood assisted by Mesdames R. Bateman, McMillan, A. L. Davis, A. Gilroy, A. Wilson, H. Selden, H. Phillips, Broad, Rieves and B. Evans.

Last but not least was the little booth at the end of the room disguised by the Christmas theme showing silicoth toys in blue, of Bambi and cow ducks in tartan; clay figurines; lapel ornaments of animals and birds; shell pins and earrings; and pot-holders in pink, blue, and yellow crochet, and wall plaques. In charge were Mrs. Hall assisted by Mrs. Marshall; Mrs. C. Cunningham; Miss W. Sherry; Miss Donna Wansbrough and Miss Margaret Ann Vermilyea.

Much appreciation is tendered conveners of this exceptionally well-planned bazaar and charming tea; also to Mrs. William Rolland for the beautiful centrepiece; and to all those who assisted in making it so pleasingly successful.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

If you've got a good husband, don't be in a hurry to leave him.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I was married when I was 18 and I have a baby boy.

When I was married, I loved my husband very much, but now my feelings seem to have changed. He is very good to me, but I have to live with him in his home since the baby came. Before we had the baby, he was in the service and I was living super in his home near me, but now that we are together again, I just don't know what has happened to me.

We are living in my mother's house at present, as we have lived for a while, and we are keeping house for the rest of the family. He is so glad to be here with us, and I don't want to hurt him because I know he loves me. Yet I somehow still find it hard to be near him.

Should I stay with him or not? I am only 17 now, though I will be 18 soon.

A. M. G.

Dear A.M.G.:

If you are married to a man who loves you, and is good to you, and whom you don't and never want near you in the beginning, there certainly must be a way for you to straighten out your present state of mind and be happy with him again. There are too many girls of your age who married too young, and then found themselves with husbands who soon became indifferent to them, and even mistreated them, for you to let a good man go without making a real effort to find out what is wrong between you, and make a new adjustment.

What you really need is to have a long talk with someone who understands the kind of problem you have, and can help you to understand it, too. There are people like this somewhere near you, and if you would like me to suggest one to whom you might go, and will send me a stamped self-addressed envelope, I will be glad to give you this information.

He proposes—she wants a year to make up her mind

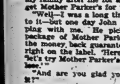
Dear Miss Fairfax:

For several years, I went with a girl I loved very much but then, after a slight misunderstanding, we broke up. This only lasted for two months, however, and we are now back together again. The reason we broke up was that I did not state my intentions to her as I know I should have done.

Now, however, I have made it clear I want to marry her, and her answer was a "I feel I need a year to think this over, but can't we continue datings?"

Should I agree to wait a year for her to decide whether she wants to marry me or not, or should I ask for a definite answer now? It seems to me a year is quite a long time to wait for an answer. Don't you agree?

Lee



Dear Lee:

Since you shd this girl have been going together for several years, I agree that she ought to know her mind by this time. It would be entirely different if you had been friends only a few months, but a friendship of "several years" should have given her ample opportunity to know you well enough to be able to decide whether or not she wants you for a husband. I suspect that she was piqued by your failure to propose earlier, and that she is trying to make you suffer for it.

I think you are fully justified in asking for a definite answer right now.

GAVE OVERMUCH BLOOD

Tokyo, Nov. 22 (AP)—A United States sailor—who prefers to remain anonymous—gave a pint of blood to a mobile blood bank that visited navy headquarters yesterday. On his way back to work he collapsed. Shipmates carried him back to the bank, which returned his pint of blood.

WHAT THEY ARE SAYING

"Notice any difference in the tea, Jane?"

"I sure do. It's Mother Parker's, isn't it?"

"Yes, but come now, Betty, you couldn't really tell."

"Oh, yes, I could! Didn't I have my family after me for a month to get Mother Parker's for them?"

"Well—it was a long time coming to it—but one John was dying to sing with me. He picked up a package of Mother Parker's—read the money back guarantee printed right on the label. 'Here,' said he, 'let's try Mother Parker's—we can't lose.'"

"And are you glad you did try it?"

"I'll say I am—Mother Parker's is simply delicious—we rave about it to everybody."

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about FOOD ... What's Cooking?

Michael Angelo might have been a baker.

The great artist of the middle ages was found in his father's bake shop when he was a boy, and learned the intricacies of baking as the art was then practised.

Who knows but that if Michael Angelo lived today he wouldn't have become a cake decorator or an ice sculptor or a canape specialist? In a modern bakery he would have found many items which were then unknown—soft drinks via straws, dough-mixing machines and other gadgets that made the art of cake baking comparatively easy.

In a banana cake, mashed bananas are the liquid instead of a cup of milk. Only a small quantity of milk is added to keep the batter from being too stiff.

The cake layers may be covered with sweetened whipped cream and sliced bananas, or a simple butter frosting. Because of the moistness content of the bananas, the cake will stay fresh for two or three days.

Banana Black Walnut Cake

2 cups sifted cake flour
2 1-2 teaspoons baking powder
1-2 teaspoon baking soda
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-3 cup shortening at room temperature
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1-2 cup chopped black walnuts
1 cup mashed bananas
1-4 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Preheat oven at 375 degrees. Grease two 8 inch cake pans. Line bottoms with waxed paper which has been greased.

Measure the sifted flour. Sift again with the baking powder, baking soda and salt.

In a large mixing bowl stir the shortening to soften. Gradually add the sugar, beating until light and fluffy. Add the 2 eggs one at a time gradually beating until well blended. Stir in the chopped nuts.

Combine the mashed bananas, milk and vanilla.

Add the dry ingredients and the mashed bananas alternately to the shortening mixture. Turn the batter into the prepared pans. Bake 25 to 30 minutes or until top of cake is firm when lightly touched.

When cake is cool, cover with any desired frosting.

Women's Institute

MOUNTAIN VIEW W.I.

The November meeting of Mountain View Women's Institute was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Miss Lillian Sprague.

Owing to the inclemency of the weather, the attendance was smaller than usual. The president, Mrs. E. Hall, was in charge. Plans were made for the community banquet to be held on Nov. 23, and a number of other business details were taken care of.

Donations to the Cemetery fund, amounted to $25. Miss Eggert of Detroit, Mrs. N. Gibson and Mr. Oral Lauder $5; Mr. C. Sprague, $2.

Delegates

The delegates to the Area convention, Mrs. C. Barber, Mrs. A. Wallbridge and Mrs. S. Barber, all gave interesting reports; Mrs. W. Barber read Mrs. S. Barber's report as she was unable to be present.

The topic for the month was "Agriculture", under the convenership of Mrs. C. Sprung, who was assisted by Mrs. A. Wallbridge, Mrs. B. Anderson, Mrs. W. Burkitt and Mrs. C. Barber, each giving interesting readings on this subject.

Mrs. W. Barber gave "Current Events" for the past month.

The meeting was brought to a close, and the lunches, assisted by Mrs. Donald Jones, served refreshments and the ladies all enjoyed a short social time.

Mrs. C. Barber thanked Miss Sprague for her hospitality.

The December meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Clarke Sprung.

Last month the Mountain View Women's Institute sponsored a Hallowe'en party which was held in Mr. Stanley Barber's garage.

There were many varied and interesting costumes and also many prizes given. Probably the most interesting costume was that representing a cow, by two boys.

The children were all treated to candies and all present enjoyed many pieces of all kinds of pies and coffee.

Mrs. and Mrs. S. Barber were tendered a vote of thanks for the use of their garage for this annual event.

GOOD MANNERS

Girl shouldn't be so bitter as to lose self-respect

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The man to whom I was engaged broke our engagement, on the most flimsy excuse. Now he has the nerve to ask me to return the engagement ring, which is a very beautiful and expensive diamond solitaire. Since he broke the engagement, shouldn't he leave it to my choice as to whether or not I wish to return the ring?

As a matter of fact, shouldn't he leave it to my choice as to whether or not I sell it?

Bitterly Disappointed.

Be a right-thinking girl, wise girl . . . and do what you know you should do, return the ring. Nothing, no matter how beautiful or how expensive, is worth making you as bitter as you obviously are, or making you do something in such bad taste as you may be contemplating. I couldn't possibly imagine that you would want to wear this ring as symbolic of your unhappiness and deep chagrin. And in the pressing fury of your bitter disappointment, don't stoop to do anything so degrading as selling the ring. Return the ring . . . forget it and the occasion as soon as ever you can . . . and start on a fine new path of living and of friendships. No regrets . . . only high-hearted thoughts!

Merry idea behind her birthday gift to him

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A chap I've known for several years has recently moved with his family to a quite distant city. When he lived here, we worked for the same company, and always had lunch together (at a nearby soda fountain!) on his birthday . . . much fun. I never gave him a birthday present and we never exchanged Christmas presents, but I thought it might be amusing to send him a birthday present on his birthday (the middle of December). Would this be proper?

Marie T.

Yes, if you send him something in the spirit of the fun you and he had at your soda-fountain birthday "luncheon-party"! Instead of our birthday lunch party at Joe's soda fountain I hope you'll welcome these cigarets (or 'this book' or whatever the gift). Happy Birthday to you. . . .Happy Birthday to you!"

Passing serving-dishes at table.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Most any meal that she does is correct—she passes the serving-dishes from her place at the table to the right—but my sister insists they should be passed to the left. We would like to have you tell us who is right.

Theresa R.

There is no set rule about this . . . but your mother's way is the customary way, and it does seem the more natural way.

BEAUTY

Correct manicuring routine

To the woman who has a weekly appointment at the beautery to have her nails put in form, finger-tip loveliness is no problem. The manicurist files and scrubs her hands, gets after the cuticle so it won't creep up on the nail fabric, lays on the rosy glow and that's that.

It isn't money that keeps thousands of women from enjoying this splendid luxury: it is lack of time. Women who toil all day in shop, office or factory, or who are engineers of the domestic machinery, may find it difficult to beat it once a week to the pulchritude works. And the pink nails should have attention at least once a week.

The home manicure calls for first class instruments. Nail file and curved, needle-point scissors should be of high grade steel if they are to work satisfactorily. Since they last a lifetime, one should not buy cheap ones. Other items are beveling files of emery board, orangewood sticks, nail white pencil, nail brush, polish and polish remover.

The first step in the removal of polish. The next is the shaping of the nails. This will be speedier and easier if the nails are dry.

File from sides to centre, forming a rounding oval line. Be careful not to work too far down at the sides. If you do that, the flesh will grow there, and cause troublesome. Pass the orange wood stick under the eaves and have a second filing with an emery board.

Soap and water freely to soften the cuticle. Use a nail brush briskly. While your hands are in the suds, pass a nail white pencil under the eaves, being careful not to press too far down under the nail. Rinse with warm water and dry.

To the nails of one hand apply cuticle cream. Friction it in well. Massage briskly up the circulatory streams that give coloring to your nails. Starting at the top of the nail and encircling it, use the orangewood stick, gently lifting the flesh. Instead of pressing the cuticle away from the nail, use a rotary motion.

If you have been doing rough work, you may flush up some hangnails. Snip them away with the scissors, holding the points downward. Avoid making the slightest wound, as fingers are easily infected. Another soapy hand washing to remove the cream. Apply polish lightly, making two applications, letting the first one dry before you start the second.

Club Activities

HOLLOWAY ENERGETIC CLUB

The regular meeting of the Energetic Club of Holloway Street Church was held on Friday evening.

During the devotional period the Scripture "The Beatitudes", was read by Dorothy Forward, the meditation by Lloyd Townsend, closing with prayer by the president, Don White.

It was decided to hold a meeting at the end of the month and the annual turkey dinner in December.

The program was in charge of Madge and Milt Burtt, and their group. Miss Linda Grills sang a solo, followed by two readings by Terry Sillsbury, which were well appreciated. Mr. Gordon Brown played two violin solos which were enjoyed by all.

The remainder of the evening was spent playing games, the winners being, Ruth MacMillan and Jim Scriven.

Refreshments were served and the meeting closed in the usual manner.

Canadian Assoc. of Consumers Says Women Buy Dearest Goods

By KAY KEX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Housewives are getting too conditioned to high prices. When they do find something that's cheap they won't believe either their eyes or their noses. They will squeeze it, smell it. Finally, they'll end up by asking the clerk what's the matter with it.

If he says nothing is wrong they won't believe him anyway. They'll go off in high dudgeon and buy something that costs twice as much. Because it's twice as expensive, they'll be certain it must be good.

The Canadian Association of Consumers is worried about this too-good-to-be-true attitude among shoppers and is trying to stamp it out.

Want Expensive Food

"Let us plan our buying carefully, and . . . allow more time for our purchasing," it says in the bulletins it distributes monthly.

The C.A.C. told of an experiment in British Columbia in which the manager of a chain grocery store tried to prove that consumers buy by price. He divided a batch of identical tomatoes, selling part of them for 25 cents a pound and the rest for 29 cents. At the end of the day all the 29-cent tomatoes had been sold. Hardly any of the 25-cent ones were touched.

The Ontario Fruit and Vegetable Growers Association found in a survey that when foods went below a certain price, people wouldn't buy them. Hence, at the height of the lettuce season people wouldn't buy a five-cent head of lettuce.

We saw the same thing happen in Toronto—at the St. Lawrence market. Chickens were selling at one stall for 59 cents a pound. One woman was suspicious.

"What's the matter with them?" she asked the vendor.

He was indignant. "Nothing's the matter with them," he replied.

She moved on, but we bought one. It proved to be the cheapest and best chicken we've eaten in ages.

Just goes to show that nobody can afford to be suspicious all of the time.

Luncheon Dish

The C.A.C. recommends this luncheon dish to budget-conscious housewives:

After vegetable soup has been made from a meaty soup-bone, cut all the meat from the bone and put it through a food chopper with an onion. Scoop the marrow from the bone, add to the meat. Add parsley, seasoning, parsley, salt, pepper to taste.

Moisten with soup. Cook until the onion is clear. The mixture should be of a consistency to spread easily. Make thin pancakes. Spread with the mixture and roll like a jelly roll. Keep warm in oven until ready to serve with the soup.

Chicken scrapple is another C.A.C. budget dish.

Ingredients (for eight servings) 3 1-3 cups chicken broth; one tablespoon all-purpose flour; one cup corn meal; one-half teaspoon salt; or one teaspoon if the broth has not been salted; one-quarter teaspoon poultry seasoning; two cups ground cooked chicken.

Heat half the broth in a double boiler. Blend flour, corn meal, salt and poultry seasoning. Mix with the remaining cold broth. Slowly stir the corn meal mixture into the hot broth. Cook, stirring until the mixture thickens. Cook for 20 minutes. Stir in the chicken. Pour into a well-greased loaf pan. Cook quickly. When firm cut in slices. Roll in flour and fry until brown. Serve with chicken gravy.

The following members were appointed a nominating committee: Mrs. A. C. Austin, Mrs. L. Bryant and Mrs. H. Gainforth. Sewing completed after the meeting closed.

In presenting the financial statement, the secretary, Mrs. L. Dorland, stated $145 was cleared at the sale of meals at the Scott community sale on November 6. Also a small balance from the ball game banquet.

The leaders of the girls' "Homemaker Club" reported 13 girls taking the course in "Cotton May Be Smart."

The delegates to the Belleville convention, Mrs. Alden Arthur and Mrs. R. Redcliffe, gave a full report of the session.

Kingsville Bird Sanctuary

Mrs. Fred Peister gave a descriptive paper on her recent visit to the Jack Miner Bird Sanctuary at Kingsville, and the Dey and Sons rose gardens at Port Dover. Mrs. C. D. Cole gave a paper on "Grandmothers."

As this was a grandmother's meeting, the oldest grandmother present, Mrs. Arthur Vardy, and the youngest, Mrs. Lyle Leavitt, were presented with inexpensive gifts.

After the singing of the National Anthem, refreshment were served by Mrs. Elgin McMaster, Mrs. Kari Austin and the hostess and a social time enjoyed by the 25 ladies present.

The executive of the Young People's Union met at the parsonage on Sunday evening to make plans for their annual church service.

Drowns in Swimming Pool

Susan Spencer

Tragedy has again struck Mr. and Mrs. Richard Spencer of Aldershot, Ont., only a year after their son was fatally injured when he fell down a flight of stairs, the frozen bodies of their four-year-old daughter, Susan, and playmate, Linda Carr, were found recently at the bottom of a private swimming pool near Aldershot, Ont. Children had apparently been sliding on pool when ice broke.

Drew Protest Announcement Made by Claxton

Ottawa, Nov. 22—(CP)—George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, yesterday protested the announcement in Rotterdam by Defence minister Claxton that Canada will foot the bill of approximately $100,000,000 for the building of four or five new airdromes in western Europe.

That type of announcement, Mr. Drew said, should have been made in parliament because it represented government policy which should be debated by the people's representatives.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said he would not attempt to answer Mr. Drew's protest until he knew exactly what Mr. Claxton had said. But he would be "very much surprised" if the defence minister had said what Mr. Drew said he did.

Then the prime minister added: "No such policy has been decided by the Canadian government."

The government recognized, he went on, that appropriations would have to be voted for such expenditure and that they must be debated in parliament.

Mr. Drew quoted a Rotterdam dispatch reporting Mr. Claxton's announcement before a press conference held in connection with the arrival of Canadian troops joining Gen. Eisenhower's North Atlantic army.

The defence minister also was quoted as saying Canada plans to send enough arms to equip two European divisions, making a total of five divisions equipped with Canadian weapons. Canada also is to build permanent barracks.

That, Mr. Drew said, is an "extremely important" announcement of policy which should have been made to parliament.

If it was the government's decision to build airfields at a cost to the Canadian taxpayer, the representatives of the people should be told so the matter could be discussed.

Mr. Claxton's announcement, he protested, is indicative of the government's tendency to "completely disregard" the fact that it is the executive with a duty to the representatives of the people when such vast sums are to be spent.

Egypt Demands Prohibition Of Atomic Bomb

Paris, Nov. 22—(AP) — Egypt called today for immediate prohibition of the atomic bomb as the first step to world disarmament. She was the first non-communist country to support the Russian stand on arms reduction before the United Nations' general assembly's political committee.

Ally Andrace, Ambassador to Greece, said Egypt believes the atomic weapon should be barred just as poison gas has been outlawed.

The western Big-Three proposals for disarmament by stages, Andrace declared, seem to have been carefully thought out. But his country did not like their delaying control of atomic weapons until the last step.

Andrace spoke in advance of the British minister of state, Selwyn Lloyd (after 9 a.m. EST).

The Egyptian viewpoint today appeared to be a sharp change in that country's stand. As a member of the security council until two years ago, Egypt's representative on the council's atomic energy commission had favored the western majority position on atomic control.

This stand called for future international control of atomic energy. But since her recent difficulties with Britain over the Suez Canal and the Sudan, Egypt, in the U.N. has been openly critical of the west, although Andrace today disclaimed that his country is taking sides with Russia.

"We don't want a Pax Americana, we don't want a Pax Britannica, we don't want a Pax Sovietica," the Egyptian delegate said. "All we want is peace—short, clear and neat."

The western plan calls for an inventory—and verification — of each country's stock of arms and armaments, followed by progressive disarmament to agreed levels and outlawing of the atom bomb. It includes provision for supervision.

Today's session began with an endorsement of the western proposals by The Netherlands delegate, D. J. Von Balbusch. Canada yesterday announced support of the plan.

Archbishop Stepinac May be Released By Premier Tito

New York, Nov. 22—(AP)—The New York Times says today that Premier Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia will announce "in the near future" the liberation of Archbishop Aloysius Stepinac.

In a dispatch from Rome, C. L. Sulzberger, the Times' chief foreign correspondent, says:

"The archbishop will be sent back to his native village of Krasic, where he will be permitted to live as a private individual and clergyman with full restoration of his civil rights on the condition that he does not engage in political activity considered to be against the interests of the state."

Archbishop Stepinac, now in Lepoglava Prison, has served five years of a 16-year sentence on charges including wartime collaboration with the axis powers.

Sulzberger says the archbishop will not be recognized as the Roman Catholic primate of Yugoslavia by the Belgrade government.

Sulzberger adds:

"Officially speaking, Archbishop Stepinac is to be released on the ground that he has served a considerable portion of his sentence under conditions of good behavior and thus is eligible for what would be termed 'parole' in the western world.

"It appears obvious, however, that Marshal Tito in fact wishes to rid himself of a source of considerable embarrassment in his relationship with the democratic powers . ."

Get-Away Car In Slaying Case Found in Toronto

Toronto, Nov. 22 — (CP) — R.C.M.P. officers said today that a sleek black Cadillac used a month ago in the New Jersey gangland slaying of racketeer Willie Moretti is believed to have been found here in possession of a former jockey and his Vancouver-born girl friend.

Police said they do not believe the couple had anything to do with the death of the American crime lord.

Officers said the pair — Peter Perry and Lauretta Nesbitt, 19-year-old dancer — were arrested at the border on a charge of being in possession of a stolen car.

Inspector J. S. Cruickshank of the R.C.M.P. said New Jersey police had asked that the car be held. It was reported that U.S. investigators are on their way to Toronto to question the couple now out on bail.

The car is a $5,000 machine which Cliffside Park, N.J., police say was the get-away car for four killers who shot Moretti in a restaurant Oct. 4.

R.C.M.P. officers said the pair may have bought the car without knowing it was stolen.

Angers and Fears Have Own Effects on Body's System

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Reporter)

New York, (CP) — Getting mad or getting scared, does powerful things to the human body.

Blood pressure kicks up. Pulse quickens, hands sweat, face muscles tense. Once it was thought the changes were exactly the same regardless of whether you were angry or afraid. Your adrenal glands released a shot of adrenalin, to get you ready to fight or run.

Now for the first time a psychologist tells of finding physical differences brought on by these two emotions. The differences are in the degree of some of the changes, Dr. Albert F. Ax of the University of Washington told the American Psychological Association.

In fear, your pulse rate rises more than in anger, he said. The glands even more. The amount of blood pumped by the heart increases more. So does the systolic blood pressure, the pressure when the heart is contracting.

In anger, he found, there's a greater drop in temperature of the hands and face than in fear. There's a greater rise in diastolic blood pressure, when the heart muscle relaxes between beats.

The differences may be due to the fact there are two kinds of adrenalin, Dr. Ax said. Injections of one kind brought reactions in people more like those when they felt fear. The other kind of adrenalin made them react more like they do when they're angry.

Machine Can't Lie

Dr. Ax used a polygraph, a machine akin to the lie detector, to measure the physical changes caused by fear and anger. Humans can be wired up to it to measure eight changes at one time—pulse rate, blood pressure, heart stroke volume, breathing, sweating of palms, temperature of fingertips and face, and tension of forehead muscles.

He wired up volunteers, men and women, to the machine. Then came some tricks.

To produce fear, the polygraph was rigged to give slight shocks. But Dr. Ax and his associates put on a stunt, acting panicky in pretense that something had gone wrong with the machine, indicating it might electrocute the volunteer. A big spark snapped, on a circuit not connected with the person's body. Most of them were afraid.

To produce anger, at another testing, Dr. Ax told the volunteer that he had had to rehire a technician who was incompetent, and nasty in temperament. This technician appeared, bumbling to cause delays, and blaming the volunteer for not co-operating. The volunteer got angry, and the polygraph again measured what happened to him.

The people were interviewed afterward to learn whether they had seen through the tricks. If they had, their measurements were not counted. This work was done when Dr. Ax was at Harvard University.

The effects of other emotions can be studied in the same way, he said, and the findings and method may be helpful in treating people who are emotionally sick. Such people often try to hide what they really feel.

Officers Appointed For Girl Guides

Stirling—A meeting of interest to the general public was held last Wednesday evening in the auditorium of the public school when the parents of the would-be Guides had the opportunity of meeting Mrs. R. D. Arnott, the Guide Commissioner accompanied by Mrs. Samuels, who is a captain of "A" company in Belleville.

Mrs. Arnott spoke of the work of the Guides and the necessity of forming a Guide Association. "This," she said, "would act for the Brownies and the Guides." Officers Appointed

Mrs. Arnott took the chair during the nomination and Mrs. Faires acted as secretary for the election which resulted as follows:

President, Mrs. D. W. Rodgers; secretary, Mrs. R. B. Bell; badge secretary, Mrs. W. Bolte; finance convener, Mrs. F. Long; treasurer, Mrs. B. Woodbeck; camp chairman, Mrs. J. Sleeper.

CONVICTED OF SLAYING

San Francisco, Nov. 22 (AP)—John P. Crozier, 59, was convicted yesterday of slaying his landlady nearly 29 years ago. The jury recommended life imprisonment for the strangling and robbery of Mrs. Elizabeth Platt on Jan. 13, 1922. The crime had remained on police ledgers as unsolved. Then, a year ago Crozier confessed to the slaying.

Oven-baked beans go beautifully with hot brown bread . . .

Here is nourishment as appetizing and economical as any cook could devise. Everybody knows that beans have a high caloric content and when they are oven-baked by Heinz chefs and drenched with Heinz own Tomato Sauce, you have a hearty flavour treat at low cost. Heinz makes four kinds of oven-baked beans. Look for them all at your grocer's. Also note below recipes for a warming cold-weather feast.

RECIPE

"Stanley of the West" says sadly he has family's verdict, "Stanley, you serve a finer fish of broiled Baker Crowned Cod than anyone from the special Government Station at Boston. You serve a finer fish of broiled Crowned Haddock than Boston's 57 Streets to give you a run for your money. You serve a finer fish of broiled Crowned Cusk than anyone in Newfoundland. It's just as good as anyone can serve it. But you can't serve a finer fish of baked fish than baked Crowned Cod. Especially if you've mothered crumbs over the fish and baked until the crumbs are golden brown."

ALL-BRAN MOLASSES HOT-BREAD

Ever buy a car from this angle?

SURE, a trim new Buick makes a mighty pretty picture when you see it in your driveway, or watch it wheel by.

But if you could get a mechanic's-eye view of this big, broad beauty as it sits on a lift, you'd see an impressive picture of rugged brawn that makes Buicks give such a good account of themselves on the road.

You'd see the full-length torque-tube drive that firms the whole power relay system, and steadies your going like a giant hand beneath you.

You'd see all four wheels cushioned by stout coil springs that are completely service-free, practically breakproof—and a principal reason for the ever-level Buick ride.

But mainly, you'd see the massive foundation that backbones every Buick—the deep, wide, X-member frame that's rugged as a rock, and a brute for strength.

So when you look at the beauty of a Buick—the big mileage power of its valve-in-head Fireball Engine—and the money saving ability of its Dynaflow Drive*—don't overlook the tough stamina that goes with it all.

And whether you're looking at a Buick CUSTOM, a Buick SUPER or a mighty ROADMASTER, don't overlook the fact that a '51 Buick, with all its heft, costs less per pound than any other car of comparable size, structure and weight.

Better come see us first chance you get—and find out what a smart buy this is—from every angle.

NO OTHER CAR PROVIDES ALL THIS:

DYNAFLOW DRIVE*—saves stroke on driver and car.
FIREBALL POWER — high-compression, valve-in-head 8-cylinder engines (Roadmaster, 322 hp, Super 224 hp, Custom, 220 hp, Super and Custom with Dynaflow, 188 hp).
PUSH-BAR FORTIFYING—combines smart style and unsurpassed protection.
WHITE-GLOW INSTRUMENTS—greater clarity at night.
TORQUE-TUBE DRIVE—true-line ride, improves driving control.
4-WHEEL COIL SPRINGING—cushion ride, saves servicing cost.
DUAL VENTILATION—outside air fed separately to right or left of front compartment.
SELF-ENERGIZING BRAKES—hydraulic—actuply pedal-pressure fore boosts at brake drum.
DREAMLINE STYLING—tapered, car-length fenders, gleaming bumpers on most models.
Many Self-locking luggage lid, Sky-Lite parking brake, Two-way ignition lock, Safety-Rim rims, Hi-Poised engine mounting, Body by Fisher.

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

Frank S. Roe, Ex-Railroad Engineer Writes History of Canadian Buffalo

Edmonton. (CP) — Frank G. Roe, a retired locomotive engineer, has seen but one buffalo in his life.

But he is the author of a scholarly, 1,000-page history of the shaggy, one-time roamer of the western plains. Last month the University of Alberta recognized his work by conferring an honorary degree.

It took Mr. Roe 15 years to write in his spare time the book which has been acclaimed as the only complete work on the North American buffalo. It contains more than 3,000 footnotes, some of them full essays in themselves.

The only buffalo Mr. Roe ever saw was in a zoo at Brandon, Man., in 1924. But he remembers seeing as a boy the bleached bones of the once-plentiful "monarch of the plains" about his father's Alberta farm.

Came From England

The Roe family arrived from Sheffield, England, in 1884, only a few years after the last of western Canada's large buffalo herds had disappeared. Frank was 15 then, and his early memories later inspired his life's study of the buffalo.

Although he had left school at the age of 11, he furthered his education by reading and as a young man on the railway he studied his spare time by study. He began the buffalo story in 1925.

"I always had the author's itch—by accident, I guess," he recalls. "Then the idea of the buffalo story occurred and memories crowded in to give body to my reading about them."

His source material included periodicals 50 to 60 years old, and books and magazines from the university, public and provincial libraries. He breathed life into his study with personal recollections of the buffalo country.

Had Retired Father's Books

He also had the use of 200 volumes on the subject in the personal collection of Dr. A. C. Rutherford, former premier of Alberta.

"Without Dr. Rutherford's collection I could never have done the work," Mr. Roe says. "It contained material not found elsewhere between Toronto and the west coast."

Mr. Roe helped his pioneer father build the sod house in which the family lived southeast of Lacombe. Later he himself homesteaded for 15 years—until hail storms one year and heavy snow the next forced him out of the grain-growing business.

He switched to railroading in 1909.

"Sometimes I'd go four days without turning a wheel when I was on railway spare board," he said. That allowed him his time for study. It took 15 years—1925 to 1940—to write and rewrite the buffalo story.

Mr. Roe, retired for the last eight years, now lives in Victoria, B.C. He is planning a new book, an account of the old buffalo trails, many of which were still visible when the Roe family arrived in western Canada.

MADOC

ST. PETER'S PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH ANNIVERSARY

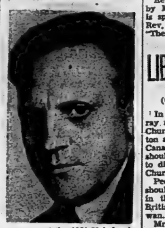
Madoc — Large congregations at both morning and evening services at St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Madoc, were privileged to hear fine sermons by Rev. Walter Paterson, M.A., B.D., graduate of Trinity College, and Dublin University, Dublin Ireland, who is at present residing at Millbrook, Ontario.



At the morning service, Rev. Mr. Paterson chose as his subject "The Unspeakable Gift; as his Bible reading 2 Chronicles 9:1-15. Dr. K. Mara sang a solo "Just for Today."

At the evening service, special music was offered, opening with a trumpet solo "O Holy Night," by Mr. Wason of Cloyne, with Ronald Robertson at the organ, and a vocal solo "My Task," by Mr. W. Rothwell.

During the offertory, a trumpet solo "The Holy City," by Mr. Wason was followed by the choir singing "It Is Well With My Soul." A quartet of Messrs. Hughes and Rothwell, Mrs. W. Hulin and Mrs. J. Smith, sang "Now God be With Us."

Message Clear

Rev. Mr. Paterson again gave an outstanding sermon, "The Choice of Moses," reading as his lesson Hebrew 11. Reared from a baby in all the luxury of Pharaoh's court Moses gave up position, wealth, luxury, refusing the pleasures of sin and lived the life of a shepherd for 40 years, afterwards leading his own people out of bondage.

Winner of the 1951 Nobel prize for literature is Par Lagerkvist, above, Swedish author of the novel "Barrabbas." He has also achieved fame as a philosopher and poet. — Central Press Canadian.

"Comparing his life with the living of today, I am not willing to give up the many evils that surround and live in the life of a true Christian?" Rev. Mr. Paterson left much food for thought with his congregation.

Organ and piano accompaniments were used by Ronald Robertson and Mrs. Reid for the singing of the hymns during the service. Colored and white chrysanthemums were lavishly used for decorations.

Ministerial Association

Centre Hastings Ministerial Association held its regular meeting in Trinity United Church on Monday afternoon. The special speaker for the meeting was Rev. Dr. Lindsay, a missionary recently returned from West China. Rev. W. Paterson was also a guest.

Ministers in attendance were from Trenton, Stirling, Marmora, Tweed, Flinton, Queensboro and the resident ministers of Madoc village.

While the men were attending the meeting at the church, their wives were entertained at the parsonage where they enjoyed a program.

Following the meeting the ministers joined the ladies at the parsonage where Mrs. Lane, assisted by Mrs. Good, Mrs. Heslip, Mrs. Walsh and Mrs. Poynter, served a cup of tea and refreshments, and a pleasant social hour was enjoyed.

LIBERAL MEMBER

In the main debate, Mr. Murray noted that Prime Minister Churchill plans to visit Washington and Ottawa in January. The Canadian government, he said, should take advantage of the visit to discuss immigration with Mr. Churchill.

People from the British Isles should be encouraged to settle in the rich lands of Northern British Columbia and Saskatchewan.

Mr. Churchill also should be asked to earmark for export to Canada steel needed to complete rail links with undeveloped parts of Canada. A railway should be built, said Mr. Murray, from Prince George, B.C., through the Peace River district to the Yukon and Alaska.

Mr. Noseworthy said there were more than 10,000 unemployed in Toronto on October 31 and predicted the total will reach 20,000 before winter sets in. This was six per cent of the labor force and the national employment service felt anything over three per cent was "serious".

He blamed the unemployment on taxes on consumer goods, restrictions on credit and other

Jobless Increases

Official bulletins from the employment service showed the number of jobless in Ontario is 50 percent higher than a year ago, with unemployment in plants producing furniture, rubber, textiles, building materials, carpets, blankets, shirts, men's hats, work clothes, gloves and woolens.

There now are more unemployment in Toronto, said Mr. Noseworthy, than before the outbreak of the Korean war, which had served to stimulate Canadian production.

"It is high time that the government gave some consideration to overhauling its policy for combatting inflation," said Mr. Noseworthy. "Had it set out deliberately to budget for a depression, it could not have done a better job than it is doing."

Rona Arsenault (L-Bonaventure) said the Progressive Conservative party has one platform for Quebec and another for the rest of the country. Recently Henri Courtemanche (PC-Labelle) one of the "Progressive Conservative party's chief lieutenants" in Quebec had criticized federal aid to universities. The aid had been supported by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader.

TWO MILLION

The campaign was far from being the province's most bitter but it was by no means the quietest. Only occasionally did tempers flare into battle-and then only when Mr. Thomson's part-time work as a lawyer for the Department of Veterans' Affairs came under discussion.

But the campaign also was notable for the criticism by both Progressive Conservative and CCF speakers of the Toronto Star's election coverage. The newspaper strongly supported the Liberal party and Mr. Thomson. Opponents said a "deal" had been made by which the Star would be given post-election favors in the event of Mr. Thomson's election. The Liberal leader and the Star denied this.

Made Bitter Attack

Last night, in the final speech of the campaign, Mr. Jolliffe made his bitterest attacks on his opponents.

He said the Progressive Conservative party "is still the party of George Drew, who of all political leaders in this country, despises and detests the laboring people of Canada."

Premier Frost had "denied to the people of Ontario a labor code with teeth in it" and in the face of "an appalling housing shortage" had initiated "no housing policy at all." The keynote of the premier's election campaign had been "complacency."

Mr. Jolliffe predicted personal defeat for Mr. Thomson and declared: "After tomorrow the Liberal party in Ontario, if any members are left, will be looking for another leader."

Mr. Thomson, a candidate in Ontario riding, which he represented in parliament, professed on the eve of the election to be more concerned with his 12-year-old Ayrshire cow, Red Bell, than over the outcome of the vote. Red Bell is "expecting", and there is a possibility that the calf will be born today. If so, the Liberal leader said this would be a good omen for his party.

Premier Frost, 56, spent the day before the vote making the rounds of Lindsay, where he is contesting Victoria riding. He visited 17 factories and shops, greeting nearly every person he saw. He stopped often to shake hands with pedestrians.

The Liberals rested their case chiefly on a contributory hospital care plan. They also promised general tax reductions, farm subsidies and trade union security. The Progressive Conservatives pledged to work for human betterment, the protection and conservation of natural resources and the "creation of a healthy environment for individual improvement."

The C.C.F. promised an expanded housing program, a subsidized hospital plan as soon as possible and higher old age and workmen's compensation pensions.

Strong Armed Patrols Sent To Flooded Areas

Rome, Nov. 22.— (Reuters) — Rigorous security measures were taken yesterday by northern Italian authorities to prevent looting by the growth of plundering and racketeering in areas flooded by the Po River.

Strong armed patrols have been sent to the flood-bound area. Anyone found prowling around the abandoned homes of 300,000 flood victims risked being shot.

Meanwhile, 30,000 rescuers worked feverishly in the grim knowledge that the mighty Po is threatening fresh disaster down its 375-mile course from the French Alps to the Adriatic. Already at least 100 persons have lost their lives.

In the northwest, three days of heavy rain have raised the Po almost 35 feet. Lake Lugano and Maggiore, on the Swiss-Italian border, rose ominously. Scores of small rivers burst their banks.

The evacuation of Adria, almost completely under water, continued all night under the glare of powerful floodlights. At least 10,000 of the town's 25,000 residents were believed still marooned there.

With many families clinging obstinately to their homes, it is impossible to assess accurately the number of deaths. Some estimates run into the thousands.

Rescue teams— including British and United States soldiers from Trieste—have had to drag some people away from their possessions.

Four-Fifths Under Water

In Rovigo province, now four-fifths under water, one small boy was found clinging to a tree, almost dead with cold after three days. Unable to unclench his frozen hands, rescuers had to cut the whole branch away to move him.

In the midst of the confusion and tragedy, communists and their opponents continue their political feud. There have been many allegations of communist organizations creating confusion in rescue work, and one communist mayor near Venice has been removed from his post for obstructing the authorities.

Italy's 2,500,000-member communist party, strongest in western Europe, hit back by accusing the government of sabotage and cold-blooded neglect.

Premier Alcide de Gasperi said last night flood damage has reached "terrifying figures." He said there had been talk of damage amounting to between 300,000,000,000 lire and 500,000,000,000 lire ($280,000,000 to $420,000,000) in Rovigo province alone.

One Problem to Solve Before Space Flight

The pioneer spirit is hitting on all sizes in nine-year-old Harold Bezon of St. Louis, Mo., whose dreams are completely out of this world. Harold is holding here his plans and a model for a rocket he designed. He believes it should fly to the moon. The young designer says he doesn't know much about fuel yet, but he "hopes to get a chemistry set for Christmas," and soon dispose of the fuel problem. Harold sent the plans to U.S. military authorities who agreed Harold has something but would wait until he had solved the propulsion problem. — Central Press Canadian.

A Little Humor Brightens Oil Deadlock

After spending six weeks in U.S. discussing Anglo-Iranian oil deadlock with top Washington officials, Iranian premier, Mossadegh, was presented with, fittingly enough, a miniature oil well, just before he boarded plane from Washington for Cairo. Both the premier, right, and Wallace Murray, former U.S. ambassador to Iran, were greatly amused by the incident. Mossadegh's parting words to U.S. newsmen indicated he is still 'hopeful" that his country and Britain can settle their oil dispute. — Central Press Canadian.

Hun Reds Tell Canadians Troops To Go Home

BY DOUGLAS ROW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the Canadians in Germany, Nov. 22—(CP)—Soon after the Canadians moved into barracks in the Hannover area someone scrawled on a nearby wall an invitation for them to go home and a communist newspaper published an article deploring their use of quarters which might be need for Germans living in "misery and squalor."

It was communism's feeble salute to the latest western troops to come to Europe. But the surprising thing about it is that although the 27th Brigade is concentrating only 40 miles and less from the Iron Curtain, communist activity appears to be about as inconsequential as it is back home.

There have been incidents in Hannover which some people think may be red-inspired, but other people don't. Small groups of Germans have shouted Canadians. A German girl dancing with a Canadian has had her face slapped by a German civilian. Canadian orders are to act with restraint under such circumstances.

But this outward appearance of communist impotence doesn't mean they aren't being watched. Security arrangements are broad and extensive on the assumption that a red fifth column must operate in west Germany.

Every German who works for the Canadians or British is screened. Any soldier who wants to date a German girl to a military dance must give three days' notice for screening, mostly for health reasons but partly political.

The newspaper article was published in Hannover's Die Wahrheit or Truth and it contained the familiar red tactics of taking a legitimate grievance and slanting it for their own ends.

Truth quotes an unemployed German there are 60,000 in Hannover, living within sight of the barracks as regretting that more and more foreign troops are coming in to live at the expense of "wretched" Germans.

This ignores the Canadian policy of paying Canada's own costs rather than taking occupation money from the Germans. It also runk counter to the pleasure of German officials that the Canadians are simply taking over quarters already in British use.

Incidentally, from the window of the barracks where this is being written, many homes are visible. They are all homes many Canadians would be pleased to own.

Supreme Court Upholds Injunction Forcing Closure

Toronto, Nov. 21 — (CP) The Supreme Court of Ontario today upheld an injunction which Nov. 1 forced closure of the McKinnon Industries Foundry at St. Catharines. The company normally employs 800 foundry workers.

The injunction was obtained by W. W. Walker, St. Catharines alderman and florist, who claimed foundry fumes damaged orchids in his greenhouses.

The judgment denied a company motion to have operation of the injunction suspended until a new foundry is completed next May.

Counsel for the company said McKinnon Industries has defence contracts for both Canada and the United States.

PAY TRIBUTE TO GREEKS

Paris, Nov. 22 — (CP)—Canada today paid tribute to Greek fighting forces and the United Nations' special commission on the Balkans for keeping Greece free.

R. M. MacDonnell, minister of the

R. M. MacDonnell, minister at the Canadian Embassy in Paris, told the U. N. special political committee that Canada supports a proposal to wind up the successful operations of the Balkan commission and replace it with a standby group of the U.N. peace observation commission.

He said a Russian charge that the Balkan Commission is a tool of the United States is an old red herring.

Western Defence Problems Will be Aired at NATO Rome Meeting To Be Held Saturday

Canadian Navy Washes Hands Of Bogus Surgeon

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 22—(CP)—The Canadian navy has washed its hands of the young American who successfully passed as a doctor until tripped up by fame.

Now it's the immigration department's turn.

Ferdinand Waldo Demara, Jr., 28, of Lawrence, Mass., today faces an immigration board of inquiry which will decide whether he is in Canada illegally.

Discharged yesterday for fraudulent entry, Demara stepped directly into custody of the immigration department.

First, though, Demara, who enlisted in the navy as Dr. Joseph Cyr of Edmundston, N.B., went through the routine of any man leaving the service. He saw the paymaster and the medical and other officers.

A spokesman said the navy is through with Demara. He added, however, that the service is prepared to return him to his point of enlistment, Saint John, N.B.

As it has in the past, secrecy surrounded Demara's parting with the navy. Reporters covered both gates at H.M.C.S. Naden throughout the afternoon, but his departure was missed. Presumably a navy staff car drove him to the immigration building, where he was interview by Inspector John Dorman.

The navy said Demara was discharged "for misconduct, namely fraudulent entry." It said there were no penalties attached, such as loss of pay, pension payments, or the right to wear the uniform in the immediate future.

The American was credited with brilliant feats of surgery while serving aboard the destroyer Cayuga. The publicity which followed led to his downfall.

He was suspended from duty when his identity was challenged by New Brunswick authorities who learned that the medical papers of the real Dr. Cyr had disappeared last winter.

A board of inquiry found that Demara was not a doctor. He had served in the U.S. navy as a pharmacetical mate and was experienced in emergency medical work. For a time he worked at the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary in Boston.

COMMUNISTS RESPONSIBLE

Manila, Nov. 22 — (AP)—The publisher of a weekly anti-communist magazine, his wife and two bystanders were injured last night by a bomb thrown into a car in the heart of Manila's shopping district. The publisher, Chua Peng Han, told police he believed Chinese communists were responsible.

Paris, Nov. 23—(CP)—North Atlantic Treaty members aim to bring into focus at their Rome meeting the major problems of western defence.

Original plans to make final decisions at the meeting opening Saturday have been shelved. Another session of the N. A. T. O. council is expected to be set for January when the 12 member countries will meet under the chairmanship of L. B. Pearson, Canada's external affairs minister.

The Rome session will tussle with these big problems, some of which have caused the delay in decision-taking:

1. Progress towards formation of a wielded European army made up of forces from France, Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

2. The military, economic and political situation in each of the 13 member countries in relation to over-all N. A. T. O. plans.

3. Europe's economic difficulties.

These problems will be viewed in relation to Russia and Soviet satellite powers to decide defence requirements.

Military experts of the six European countries have been working for a February completion of plans for the joint European army of 43 divisions and are reported to have made considerable progress. But there is still difficulty over how seven-eighty over the forces is to be handled on a joint basis. The exact role which would be a part of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's defence forces along with British, United States and Canadian troops.

Efforts to speed up the Atlantic defence program to have a force ready by next year in the event of sudden aggression against western Europe, will be approached in the light of revelations made by the "three wise men" who have been studying the situation in each member country.

The "wise men" who make up the temporary council committee are Averell Harriman of the United States, Sir Edwin Plowden of Britain and Jean Monnet of France. Finance Minister Douglas Abbott of Canada reported to them last week towards the end of a series of individual conferences which the "wise men" conducted with representatives of each N. A. T. O. member.

Military buildup plans will further be influenced by the European economic situation which has appeared grave recently with France and Britain in serious economic straits. Both countries have been forced to limit their dollar expenditures and it is feared their situation could prevent attainment of defence targets.

PREMIER IMPROVES

Athens, Nov. 22 — (AP) Premier Nicholas Plastiras confined to his bed with a heart ailment since last Thurs. has improved, a medical bulletin revealed yesterday.

Margaret Meets Young American At Swank Affair

Paris, Nov. 22 — (AP) Princess Margaret had an unscheduled meeting with a young American from Chicago at the swank Hertford Hospital ball last night.

The brash midwesterner, 24-year-old Charles Norris, didn't get to dance with her. But he did get two royal smiles.

Norris, after seeing a newspaper picture of the princess borrowed a black tie, dug 8,000 francs (23) out of his pocket, and went to the swank affair.

Inside he admiringly watched Princess Margaret dance with a succession of young French noblemen. He decided he just had to meet her.

So he walked up to a knot of male admirers surrounding the princess, stretched out his hand, and said:

"Excuse me, Your Highness, I should like to present myself. I am an American and my name is Charles Norris."

"I am delighted to meet you," said Margaret with a smile.

"I wonder," continued Norris, "whether I might have a dance with you."

"I'm terribly sorry," replied the princess, "but I seem to be booked up just now."

She smiled again as Norris bowed and backed away.

Information Will Be Given Member 'In Confidence'

Ottawa, Nov. 22—(CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent objected in the Commons yesterday to an opposition motion for production of correspondence respecting Canadians who have travelled behind the Iron Curtain since January, 1950.

John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) who had placed the motion before the house seeking information on persons who have gone to Russia, Poland Hungary or Czechoslovakia, agreed to withdraw it after the prime minister promised he would be supplied information "in confidence."

Mr. Diefenbaker said he did not seek the names of Canadians with legitimate business in eastern Europe, but those who went behind the Iron Curtain and then came back to Canada to spread communist propaganda.

The prime minister said he objected because production of the correspondence would be an infringement of the principle of passport-record secrecy.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he had asked for the correspondence because on a previous inquiry he had been told that only 18 persons had made such trips, he did not believe this information to be correct. He was seeking information only of those persons who went abroad to attend so-called international meetings and got invitations to Moscow.

New Tent, But Same Old Truce Story

Communist newsmen stand with their hands in their pockets as they view the new tent erected at Pan Mun Jom for the U.N.-communist truce-talks. The old tent leaked so much that the communists furnished a new one. Latest reports from Pan Mun Jom indicate that near-stalemate in truce negotiations continues. —

Hockey Player And Family Hurt in Crash

Owen Sound, Nov. 22 — (CP)—Hockey player Douglas Gillespie, his wife Carnita and their three-year-old son Robert were injured Wednesday night in a car - truck crash on a narrow bridge south of Hanover.

Gillespie, centre of the 1951 Allan Cup champion Owen Sound Mercurys and playing coach of the 1950 Mann Cup lacrosse champions, suffered a fractured breastbone, broken ribs, torn knee ligaments and bruises and cuts.

Mrs. Gillespie suffered a cut forehead and scalp, lacerated knee and bruised back. Robert has a jaw fracture.

All are reported in good condition.

The truck driver, Walter Wilkin of Hanover, was not hurt.

Pope Accepts Deduction Of Modern Science

Vatican City, Nov. 22 (CP)—The Pope today accepted the "well-founded deduction" of modern science that the world was created about 5,000,000,000 years ago.

In what was believed to be one of the most scientifically-learned speeches ever delivered by a Pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church, he declared that modern science had led to the conclusion that the world was created by God.

He addressed scientists attending an international conference.

The Pope said the existence of God, "so essential to the life of every man," receives confirmation by "every deepening and progress in scientific knowledge."

Dynamite Dikes To Speed Raging Flood Waters

Rovigo, Italy, Nov. 22—(CP)—Frantic workers today dynamited dikes along the still-rising Po River in an effort to speed the raging flood waters to the Adriatic Sea.

More towns and villages were menaced hourly by the waters from Italy's mightiest river—rising at the rate of two inches an hour—as it pushed its eastward course across the country's richest region.

One gap was blasted early today in the retaining wall near this stricken provincial capital.

Two other blastings were scheduled later today.

Many diehard villagers opposed the dike-breaking — certain to loose water at their own doorsteps. Some refused to budge from their homes.

In the southern half of the Po basin, in Reggio Emilia province an unknown assailant shot and killed a rescue worker. Police believed the killer was fighting to stay in his home.

More than 100 persons have died and estimates of the homeless from two weeks of floods range between 200,000 and 250,000.

Property damage so far is estimated at more than $100,000,000.

DEFICIT MAY SPELL END

Waterloo, Nov. 22 — (CP)— A $4,753 deficit in operating the ball field here may spell the end of city baseball, members of Waterloo board of park management blasted Wednesday night.

W. C. Toletzki, board chairman, said the deficit may be handed to city council for payment.

"If the city doesn't help, we might as well drop baseball altogether," said Edward Good, board member.

U.S. Calling for Peace But Involved in Undeclared War Gives Thanks for Blessings

New York, Nov. 22 — A country anxious for peace, but involved in an undeclared war one-third of the way around the globe, today gave thanks for its blessings.

Even in Korea, where the United States has counted more than 100,000 casualties in 18 months of bitter fighting, U. S. soldiers in many instances had at least a reminder of Thanksgiving Day at home.

At one front-line post, the mess sergeant prepared a menu ranging from stuffed celery hearts, olives and shrimp cocktail to hot mince pie. One division on the eastern front employed helicopters to fly hot turkey to an infantry company on Heartbreak Ridge.

Vice-president and Mrs. Alben W. Barkley headed at Kimpo airfield, northwest of war - torn Seoul, for the Thanksgiving Day visit with the troops.

President and Mrs. Truman, with Chief Justice and Mrs. Fred Vinson as their guests, were spending the holiday at the "little White House" at Key West, Fla., where the president has been vacationing.

Their menu, typical of many throughout the country: shrimp cocktail, turkey, dressing, gravy, cranberry sauce, sweet potatoes, peas, plum pudding.

Truman Gives Message

The president had pointed up the significance and tradition of the Thanksgiving Day, saying in his formal proclamation:

"More than three centuries ago the Pilgrim Fathers deemed it fitting to pause in their autumn labors and to give thanks to Almighty God for the abundant yield of the soil of their homeland.

"In keeping with that custom our hearts impel us, once again in this autumnal season, to turn in humble gratitude to the giver of our bounties."

Open-air football fans and stay-at-home television viewers had a wide choice of games today and over the weekend.

Generally, cold and clear weather was in prospect throughout the country. Snow was forecast in some western areas.

Although prices for the traditional big dinner were up, there was an abundance of turkey.

2,000 British Troops Said For Canal Zone

Portsmouth, England, Nov. 22 (AP)— Two thousands British troops today boarded the aircraft carrier Illustrious for service in the Middle East.

The war office said the troops probably will be assigned to the Suez Canal zone, where serious clashes have occurred between Britons and Egyptians.

The carrier will sail tomorrow.

The war office also announced the 1st Battalion of the Scots Guards is to be flown to the Middle East between Nov. 24 and Dec. 1.

The Outsiders

By Jane Abbott

She dropped her hands. Her face was white and tight.

Chris did not move from the fireplace. "Do you know you are very selfish!"

"Oh!" She jerked back in her chair as if he had struck her. "I'm not!"

"Yes you are," asserted Chris quietly. "You're not looking at this situation from any angle but your own. You love your brother."

"I—I don't, now," broke in Jeremy.

"I'm not so sure of that. But, grant you don't now, you did, not so long ago. You had good times together. I imagine you were very close. You were proud of his success in his work— you helped him, you said. Your brother met a girl and fell in love with her and wanted her. You wanted to keep him to yourself which is why I say you are selfish."

Jeremy sprang to her feet, her face red and dark with reproach. She drew herself very straight. "I'm sorry I told you. I thought you'd understand! And you don't. Please don't say anything more about it."

She had put a sweater over the back of the chair. She picked it up, crossed to the door and opened it and walked through it without another word, or a turn of her head.

Chris watched her until she disappeared from sight and then he went into the house and carried the broom back to its place in the lean-to kitchen. With it out of sight he could give his whole thought back to Eliza.

About half-past five of that same afternoon, his business in Cranford finished, George Culbert went into the Grill and Bar of the Colonial Inn and sat down in a booth in a corner. He always chose this booth because of the girl who waited on it, Sadie Rosinski. She was broad-faced and blunt-nosed, her fair cheeks had a clean pink firmness, and George Culbert ran his fingers along her forearm as he gave his order. "Rye and soda. Make it double, honey. I'm on top of the world today."

He felt, in truth, that he was. Everything was breaking right.

He had not written to the Bendley Mills; he had "phoned to them long distance." Direct contact would speed the matter up and it was more private to telephone from Cranford than in his office, where one of the men men might come any minute. He'd had the luck to get through to Morris Bendley, the big shot of the Bendley Mills. Morris Bendley had set a day 10 days off for a conference and had agreed to drive up to New Interval.

Bendley had intimated that he wanted the sale, if sale there was, closed with as little delay as possible. The red tape involved in clearing the people out of the valley would hold back the construction of the new dam and it was important to get at that as quickly as possible. Culbert, on his part, had admitted a willingness to hurry things.

Eliza had agreed with him this morning that it wasn't sense to throw good money after bad. Scare her along that line and she'd be ready enough to sign the valley away.

The breakdown of the beater had played into his hands, just as he had planned it should. Even with it patched up, as it would have to be, to forestall another accident, manufacturing would be slowed down. Miss Eliza Forrestal would see what that did to the profits! She could read her figures at least. His figures!

He felt pretty certain that she did not know how much she had —if she did she would not swallow so easily the hard-up talk he dished out to her. Well, it wasn't up to him to enlighten her!

He ordered a steak and a drink to top off his celebration.

He drove back to New Interval, very much satisfied with life in general and George Culbert in particular.

As he reached the Beebe house and slowed to turn in the drive, Marilyn Streeter's small figure darted out from the dark shadow of a tree, one hand lifted to signal him to stop. He stopped and she jerked the door open and jumped into the car.

She cried breathlessly "I've been waiting forever for you to come!"

She wore her red sweater and a red flower in her hair.

"What's the idea?" But he grinned down into her face and he was already turning the car back into the road.

"I haven't seen you for such ages—I mean to be alone with you! John's gone over the hills that old woman's dying, really dying, I guess, this time. The kid came for John. And I thought it was a chance—I saw you drive up the valley this afternoon, and I've been watching for you to come back. Take me somewhere George!"

Nervousness threaded her voice; her hand slipped under his arm and clung to it.

"Where?" The softness of George Culbert's smile changed a little.

A mile or so down the road was an abandoned farmhouse and barn. George Culbert remembered. Not so far away but that they could be back before John Streeter got home.

"Last night—my party, I mean, it was awful, wasn't it, George?"

"I thought everything went off all right."

"Oh, it was horribly dull! That Jeremy Penny—I never met such a stick. And I don't think Eliza Forrestal's much better. George you don't like her more than you do me, do you! Bringing her last night, and taking her home. . ."

"I have to keep a stand-in with her," put in George, in a conciliatory tone. "Jealous, were you baby?"

"I could have torn out Eliza Forrestal's eyes! Your's too. And it was really just that! Keeping a stand-in with her? I don't know why I didn't think of it, after the things you've said to me about liking me. More than any girl you ever met—all that."

"Did I ever say that?"

"You know you did! You're teasing me!" She drew a sharp, desperate breath. "Oh, I wish we could drive and drive and never go back to New Interval!"

The low bulk of the farmhouse suddenly had loomed up at his left. He swung the car to the side of the road, stopped the motor.

Marilyn sat up straight. "Why are we stopping? I meant. . ."

"To kiss you," said George Culbert.

He laughed, and with a little cry she slid out of the car. He saw her fall on the steep incline going down the road, but she got up again and ran on and then darkness swallowed her.

Soby choked her breathing and her ankle hurt painfully where it had been wrenched when she fell, but Marilyn ran on through the darkness. To get away was her only thought. To get home.

Oh, she hated him, hated him.

Then she had feared—the rattle of a car behind her. Terrified she stumbled down into the ditch at the side of the road, threw herself flat, face down in it, her arms over her head.

But the headlights picked her up. The car came to a stop and the next moment a man's voice said over her "what's the matter?"

Marilyn struggled to her feet. "I—I hurt my ankle!"

"That all! Thought you'd been hit by a car. That you were dead, way you lay. Say, you're the doctor's wife!"

He was a young man, big of build. He was wearing the denims the mill men wore and an old windbreaker. He was scowling as he regarded Marilyn. "I'll give you a lift back, if your ankle's hurt."

"Oh, if you will, please." Sobs still shook Marilyn's voice.

He put out a hand and helped her out of the ditch and into the car. He was still scowling darkly but Marilyn was too grateful to sink back into the seat of the car to care what he might be thinking of her.

He did not speak as they drove to New Interval. Nor did Marilyn, drawn into her corner, sick from the pain of her ankle, more sick with burning hatred.

They reached the valley, the house. The young man stopped the car.

"Thanks, a lot."

"No trouble. You'd better have the doc strap up that ankle right off."

"I will," said Marilyn and got out and limped up to the house.

A light was burning in the kitchen. John was home. . .

"What in the world has happened Lyn?" he asked, his eyes going over her.

She looked down at herself, saw the dirt from the ditch on her sweater and skirt, felt it on her face, in her hair. She felt it deep in her, out of John's sight. The pain from her swelling ankle beat in her in sickening throbs.

"I—I went for a walk. I—fell down— someone brought me home. . ." She swayed a little, groped for a chair. "My—my ankle. . ." John's arms caught her as she fainted.

A group of men stood in the mill yard the next morning. They talked about the manager. About his knowing that the blades in the beater were cracked and doing nothing about it. About his laying Dave Wilson's accident to his own carelessness!

They dragged out older grievances. Every one said they somehow cursed the manager; and others, as expressively spat hard to the ground, when his name was spoken.

Then Loren Matthews joined them. He was Tom Matthews' grandson. He had Tom's commanding bulk; his hair was thick and dark now but some day it would be white and bushy and his eyes like his grandfather's, would blaze out from under jutting, shaggy brows. They had a grim look to them, now.

He heard one of the men speak the manager's name as he came up and repeated it, adding "dirty dog! Listen to what I know of him!"

They drew in a closer circle around him and he told them of passing the manager's car, the evening before, pulled off the road. "At the old Quinby house, two miles down. Wasn't no one in the car. My lights showed that." And then, along a place, there in the ditch was the doc's wife, lying flat on her face. First I thought she'd been hit and thrown there but when I spoke she lifted her head. She was scared sick. Couldn't close her mouth, way a kitten can't after a dog's chased her. She was running away from him all right.

SCOUTS

Frankford The First Frankford Boy Scout Troop held their weekly meeting in the Community - Memorial Hall, Friday night with a fine turnout. Presentations were made to several Scouts for their good work on "Apple Day," and for those having top sales in greeting cards.

Scout Earl Rogers, recipient of the Silver Cross from the Governor-General on Monday, was called on to speak to the boys, telling about his trip to Ottawa. The Scouts had an opportunity to examine the award first-hand. The Scoutmaster enlarged on Earl's comments, and the boys were quite enthused over the whole affair.

A recreation period was enjoyed, following which one group of the Scouts took semaphore instruction, while First Class first aid was studied by others.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lodder were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Teal, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith.

The Missionary Rally held in the Frankford United Church Sunday evening, and on the points of the Church, was most successful. A capacity congregation listened to the address to none Dr. Ashley W. Lindsay of Toronto, a returned missionary from Trinidad. Dr. Lindsay has spent over 30 years in that land, and had many informative items to mention about that land.

A Choir-praying rally was held in the Frankford Community Hall Friday evening with a fair turnout. Mr. George Mountenay, president of the local association, was chairman for the evening. Speakers included Mr. Elmer Sanderock, the candidate; Dr. Emerell Scott of Belleville; Mr. Harry Rollins; Mr. E. G. Parker and Mr. Joe Short, both of Belleville.

Entertainment was provided by Mr. Ream Halphey of Belleville.

Evening Auxiliary

The regular meeting of the Evening Auxiliary of the Frankford United Church was held in the Rose-Lavery Hall Friday evening with a good attendance. An impressive worship service opened the meeting.

Election of Officers.

First on the agenda was the annual election of officers. On completion of the ballot, the new executive was as follows: president, Mrs. John Beech; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Herb Moore; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Olive Williams; secretary, Mrs. Mildred Ketchason; treasurer, Mrs. Raymond Brooks; pianist, Mrs. Greg Martin; assistant pianist, Miss Helen Charlesworth; Missionary Monthly secretary, Mrs. N. Woodcox; supply secretary, Mrs. Mervin Jackson, and Christian stewardship secretary, Mrs. Harry Slingerland.

A short program was presented following which refreshments were served by Mrs. Mac Wilson, Mrs. Ernest Wallace and Mrs. Helen Whitney.

There will be a change in date for the Christmas meeting of the Evening Auxiliary, so members are urged to watch for future announcements of that date.

Frankford Murphy had a workout in the Bowledrome Friday night, getting into condition for the big "Turkey Roll" to be held on the last night of bowling before Christmas in the Frankford Bowling League.

The Frankford Hunting Club enjoyed a successful deer hunt this season. In spite of adverse hunting conditions, bad weather and other difficulties, the 14 members of the club were successful in bagging their limit.

"Uncle Ezra" Lockwood really shone in the culinary department, keeping the boys' chuck full of good food.

Jim Hills was top marksman for the camp, winning the buck pool. Harry Revoy, better known in social circles as "Bung," established himself as undisputed camp snoring champion. Accordingly to reports, the camp looked like an accordion in use, once the champ got settled away for the night.

It was learned that one of the members had a little difficulty with his pyjamas. It appears that they had undergone a bit of stitching before the owner left home.

All in all, it was a successful trip, and a good time was had by all.

Mr. and Mrs. Thorbet Smith visited relatives in Peterborough over the weekend.

The First Frankford Boy Scout Troop is still badly in need of an Assistant Scoutmaster. The troop has appealed to the public on numerous occasions for assistance in this department, but to date no one has responded. If one of the Scouts does happen to get into trouble of any kind, there are always plenty of people to criticize both the boys and the Scoutmaster, yet no one seems to be willing to help them. Surely, there is one citizen of the whole village, who has sufficient public spirit to come out and help in this worthy cause. Any person interested, see either Bob Bates, of the Frankford Lions Club, or Gene Lohnes, Scoutmaster.

The quartet from the Frankford United Church Choir took part in special services held in Thomasburg Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Murdoch, of Madoc, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Carlisle.

Mrs. Caleb Patrick and son Bryce, Mr. Bob Carlisle spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Solmes and family in Pereland.

Mrs. E. Elliott of Colborne spent this week with Mrs. G. Vandervoort.

Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Hall were Friday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Milford McCauley.

Mrs. Don Kellar spent Tuesday in Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Smith and daughter were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Offenburger in Toronto. They also attended the Santa Claus Parade.

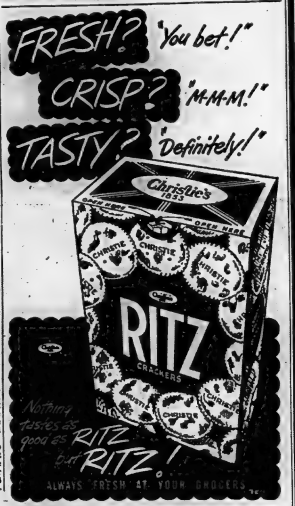
Mrs. Jonas Keechiel and granddaughter, Mary Jane Leuning of Kitchener, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Solmes and Mrs. Ed. Strome.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin Watson and Carol Calvin, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Curry and children, spent Saturday in Toronto, where they attended the Santa Claus Parade.

Mr. and Mrs. Mac Wilson and children were Sunday supper guests of Mr. C. E. Wilson and daughter Jean of Trenton.

Mrs. Don Kellar entertained a number of ladies at a brush party on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Trod Wannamaker were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Watson.



Rev. Strong of Millbrush, was a Sunday guest of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cooney.

Mrs. V. Cooney is spending two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cooney and son in Long Branch.

Mrs. C. Kellar spent a few days last week visiting her daughter in Whitby.

Do Not Increase Manufacturing, Australia Urged

By LOUIS L. LECK
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Sydney, Australia — (CP) — Ever since the depression of the 1930s Australian governments have followed a policy of building up secondary industry.

Now Colin Clark — considered by all, the most provocative and by some, the silliest economist in Australia — has suggested that the country is forsaking its destiny by not developing its primary production.

In an article published by the Commonwealth Bank — Australia's central bank — he argues that Australia should call a halt to industrial expansion and reverse the policy of the last 20 years.

Favors Rural Workers

"Since 1938-39 we have run our rural labor force down from 530,000 to 450,000 and raised our factory labor force from 542,000 to 889,000," he says.

"Each rural worker now is producing on the average 50 per cent more goods a year than he was in 1938-39. It is very doubtful whether the average product a man-year of those engaged in manufacture has increased at all.

"It is not even as if this enormously enlarged factory labor force were enabling us to dispense with some of our imports.

"After, allowing for price changes, we find we are now importing quantities of goods greater by approximately 90 per cent than in 1938-39.

Only Bad Dream

"In effect, in 1938-39 we were importing the value equivalent of the labor of 190,000 Australian manufacturing workers. Today it is the equivalent of 850,000 workers.

"The idea of an economically self-sufficient Australia proves to have been nothing but a bad dream.

Each Australian worker in primary industry is now producing one and a half times the quantity of goods he was in 1938-39, says Mr. Clark. By exporting these goods we can obtain three times the quantity obtainable in 1938-39.

"Many people are not yet aware of the astonishing but indisputable fact that Australia employs a much larger proportion of its labor force in manufacture than does the United States of America," he declares. "We had already exceeded this proportion slightly before the war."

Farmers Hurry To Harvest Turnips And Husk Corn

Toronto, Nov. 22. (CP)—Farmers in Western and Central Ontario this week hurried to harvest turnips and husk corn before snow makes outdoor work impossible.

Considerable corn remains to be picked in Elgin county, the Ontario Agriculture Department said today in its weekly crop report. In Victoria, field of turnips which were buried by snow a week ago now have been harvested.

In Wellington County, where earlier this week heavy rain caused "spring-sized flooding", turnips and corn still are in the fields.

Milk production has dropped in Eastern Ontario. Dairy cattle now are stabled there, Lennox and Addington county report that wet weather has prevented threshing of clover seed.

In Cochrane North, potatoes now sell for $3 a bag, 50 cents more than their price in Dufferin County in Western Ontario.

Pseudo R.C.N. Doctor Discharged

Dr. Joseph C. Cyr

Ferdinand W. Demara

Abrupt finale to a fantastic naval career was spelled when Canadian navy authorities announced discharge of pseudo Surgeon-Lieutenant Joseph Cyr, who is actually Ferdinand Waldo Demara, Jr., of Lawrence, Mass. Demara, allegedly using papers belonging to the real Dr. Cyr, of Grand Falls, N.B., served on Canadian destroyer Cayuga in Korean waters and won high praise for his surgical feats. Medical authorities of other U.N. forces in Korea agreed with the Canadian authorities that there was nothing to indicate that Demara did not possess the experience of a fully qualified medical man.—Central Press Canadian.

Mrs. A. W. Smith Stresses Need Of Trained Personnel

Bancroft — "The Indians living on reserves in Canada's more remote areas will revert back to their belief in witch doctors and medicine men unless the Christian Church can provide more trained personnel who will work in the fields," said Mrs. Alexander W. Smith at a meeting of the women of St. Paul's United Church in Bancroft on Monday night.

Mrs. Smith, a graduate of the United Church Training School, told of her experiences as a missionary on an Indian Reserve in the Berens River district of Manitoba. She stressed the great need for health education and told of the heavy mortality due to the lack of application of health rules necessary to combat the communicable diseases, especially tuberculosis, to which these people are greatly susceptible. Throughout her speech she showed her warm feeling and regard for the descendants of Canada's original inhabitants.

This was followed by a travelogue of historical spots in Florida, enriched with colored slides, shown by Miss M. M. Willcox and Miss A. Coates, deaconesses of the United Church of Canada in the Maynooth mission field.

In introducing the speakers, Mrs. E. Laundry told of a new United Church training school for women workers, to be built in Toronto in 1953, and the campaign which will be launched to finance the project.

HERE'S ONE ROCKET THAT DEFIES SCIENCE

Several times a year young scientists at Glendale Reaction Research society shoot rockets high into the air from their private base on the Southern California desert. Once in a while a rocket gets away from them. One rocket, seven feet long, powered with solid-fuel, got away with a smoky start and seemed to be heading for an altitude record for amateur rocketry. It is shown at left leaping into the air, spewing white smoke over the desert floor. Then, at right, one second later, it went "wham" about 500 feet off the earth, its fuel exploding with spectacular display of smoke, ending in the ear-shattering explosion. The trial ended the shortest rocket flight in history. However, the young scientists are not dismayed. They'll continue working with rockets for pleasure and knowledge. (Central Press Canadian)

Tom Gard's Note Book

Autumn always brings a number of tasks to the home owner, especially if he is a gardener. A few days ago I noticed such a man preparing for winter. He had already constructed a reel for his garden hose, impressing upon me the need to drain it after use, then to store it dry in order to prevent the rubber from rotting. Well, his idea is worth copying.

HAMPERS FOR CLOTHES

His wife was just as handy, in fact she had converted a bushel basket into a clothes-basket by enamelling the outside white, and the inside lined with colourful chints. This seemed to be the envy of her neighbours.

DOOR-MAT FROM BOTTLE TOPS

There was a youngster in the home, the kind that thoughtlessly ran in after school without wiping his feet. Dad soon corrected this by collecting bottle tops, then in a few minutes he made a door-mat by nailing the tops in even rows on two pieces of pine joined with a pair of cleats. I noticed that the tops were nailed closely together.

ORANGE CRATES FOR SHELVES

This chap turned out to be quite an amateur craftsman, and he liked every thing in order. He was very proud of two shelves he had constructed from orange crates, one to serve his purposes in the basement, and the second one, nicely finished, for the living room.

Rough Play, Penalties Aplenty Mark Senior, Junior OHA Games

(By The Canadian Press)

Weekend hockey officials must have thumbed through just about every page in the rule book last night. The Ontario Hockey Association was a riot.

There were two games in the senior loop and one in the junior. Here are the penalties handed out: 36 minors, 13 majors, three 10-minute misconducts and three match misconducts.

In one game alone, the junior battle between Windsor Spitfires and the seventh - place Waterloo Hurricanes, a total of 108 minutes in penalties was meted out. That included 10 majors and a misconduct.

The last-place Spits came from behind to win the game 6-5.

In another penalty-ridden contest, Stratford Indians edged Kitchener - Waterloo Flying Dutchmen 3-2. That game featured three match misconducts, among other minors.

Rough Stuff

However, in the other tilt, players concentrated more on scoring goals than going for players. Sarnia Sailors vaulted into last place in the senior circuit by virtue of a 4-3 victory over Brantford Redmen.

The junior game at Windsor was the most explosive seen in years and was highlighted by a third-period donnybrook.

Bob Provo led the Spits, scoring twice, while singletons went to Willie Ross, Rod McAvoy, Joe Zorko and Elmer Skov. Jim Connelly and Paul Oliver potted two for Waterloo and Gerry Hoolon added the other.

The Stratford win was the fourth straight over Kitchener-Waterloo. Jack Thaler scored twice for the winners, his second goal proving to be the winner. Dinny Flanagan scored the other. Doug Verity and Ed Stankiewicz were Dutchmen marksmen.

An unassisted marker by Rudy Reauchamp at 6:27 of the final period gave Sarnia their triumph. Stu Cousins, Ted Gervais and Ollie Haddon added the others with Bill Hrudnik scoring twice for the losers. Ab Holota hit for the final marker.

There is a night off tonight but seven games will be played Friday.

Toronto St. Michael's will meet the powerful-scoring Toronto Marlboros for the first time this season and hope to end their unbeaten streak in junior play. Other games will see Galt at Guelph, St. Catharines visit Barrie Flyers and Waterloo will be at Kitchener.

All six senior teams will swing into action with Owen Sound Mercurys taking on Stratford, Hamilton visit Brantford and Sarnia will be host to Kitchener-Waterloo.

Regina Fans Head East For Grey Cup

Regina, Nov. 22 (CP) — Regina's Union Station looked like the scene of a cattlemen's convention Wednesday as close to 500 white-Stetsoned Saskatchewan football fans boarded two special trains that will carry them to Toronto for Saturday's Grey Cup game.

There was no holding the whooping crowd, or Toronto-bound fans and the hundred more that packed the station to see them off.

It was the noisiest, gayest and most colorful crowd that Regina has seen in many years, but only an example of a bigger and better show that fans hope to put on if their Roughriders return with the Grey Cup. They will play Ottawa Roughriders.

The fans were decked out in the distinctive white Stetsons, plaid shirts and blue jeans that will spell the west to the men of Toronto.

The wild cheering all but drowned out the chugging of the train engines as they pulled away from the station platform. The Green train left at 1.30 p.m. MST (2.30 p.m. EST), and the White train followed it 20 minutes later. Green and White are the Roughriders' colors.

The excited fans on the trains looked forward to perhaps the most boisterous week of their lives and the hundreds left behind on the platform began to wonder whether they shouldn't have foregone Christmas celebrations this year in favor of the Grey Cup trip.

For the special 500, the 42-hour trip to Toronto will be like no other trip they've taken before. Everything from a daily Grey Cup News, printed on the train, to square dancing in special recreation cars, will be provided.

The invasion of Toronto is being as carefully planned as a military manoeuvre, with mayor-elect Gordon Grant in charge.

Thirty costumed Regina girls will distribute 15,000 miniature loaves of Saskatchewan bread during the Grey Cup parade through Toronto. Also distributed will be 10,000 Roughriders extra editions of the Regina Leader-Post.

Bantam League Starts Saturday

Six teams, a miniature National Hockey League will comprise the Belleville Hockey Association's Bantam League this season, included are Dan Cowley's Bruins; Stan Hagerman's Maple Leafs; George Jackilin's Rangers; Harry Brown's Red Wings; Henry Therrien's Black Hawks and Hector Lalonde's Canadiens.

"Red Dorran has been named chief coach with Don Barrett and Bill Holway giving their services as referees.

The bantam schedule gets under way on Saturday morning sharp at nine o'clock with the Maple Leafs clashing with the Bruins; Red Wings meeting the Black Hawks and Rangers tangling with the Canadiens. Players are requested to be at the arena on time to start the triple-header sharp at nine o'clock.

BOXER IMPROVES

Duluth, Minn., Nov. 22 (CP)— Heavyweight Laverne Cole, 24, St. Paul, suffered a brain hemorrhage in a fight last night but he was reported today to have "improved a great deal."

Cole regained consciousness early today and doctors said surgery probably won't be necessary. An attendant at St. Mary's Hospital said Cole might be released later this week.

Cole's professional fighter

Cole, a professional fighter since 1950, was leading Danny Boutwell, Stillwater, Minn., on points in the fourth round of their six-round preliminary when he was hit in the stomach.

Bruins Recall Jack McIntyre

Boston, Nov. 22—(CP)—The recall of rookie left winger Jack McIntyre from Hershey of the American Hockey League was announced by general manager Art Ross of Boston Bruins.

The swift, sharpshooting 175-pounder won a place on the Boston National Hockey League squad but suffered a broken collarbone in a pre-season exhibition game against Hershey.

McIntyre has been playing his way back into condition the last two weeks with Hershey, and is expected to play for the Bruins against New York Rangers here next Tuesday.

Ross also said that Pentti Lund, who suffered an eye injury 10 days ago against Chicago Black Hawks, is out of the hospital. The mask has been removed from his eye—injured accidentally by a stick—and Lund is expected to resume skating in a week or so.

Regina, Nov. 22 (CP)—Regina's Union Station looked like the scene of a cattlemen's convention yesterday as close to 500 white-stetsoned Saskatchewan football fans boarded two special trains that will carry them to Toronto for Saturday's Grey Cup grid classic.

Senior Hawks Edge Peterborough 'Petes' 6-5 For Fourth Straight Victory

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

CLOSE ONE!

"Dat Lefort, she's wan dang good goalie, Yes!" At least that was the consensus up around Peterborough way last night when the Hawks nipped the flying Peterborough Petes by a 6-5 score to climb alongside the Peterborough Eagles in the top slot. The performance of Les Fort was nothing short of sensational and the Hawks goalie although injured twice refused to say "uncle" and remained in there to help in a big way his mates to last minute victory.

The game was fast and furious but both teams have played better hockey in the past. Big Vern Goyer although held to two scoring points, one a goal, was again the hero of the piece digger-doodling around the Petes defence and following the goalie out of position to score a neat and handy game winning marker in the dying minutes.

The Jones, Desjardins, Barrett line were the glory boys last night with Desjardins notching a couple and Jonesy getting one and one.

And that's this we hear about the Petes protesting the Eagles game of Tuther evening when the feathered crew downed them by a 7-4 count. Seems as though the Birds used Parnell, new ex officer in the RCAF who works in Trenton or some place and has a home in Peterborough. Petes say it "aint cricket" and they're going to do something about it, or else. Just one big happy family up there in Peterborough.

COULD BE!

Some American sports writers and sportscasters are viewing with mere tolerance the various "probes" into sport which they declare will spell ruin to the athletics of the future. Jim Evans, Chicago radio sports authority calls it the "sterilized sport of the future, planned and operated by those who know nothing about it."

He predicts that if the so-called authorities have their way, sport will be played without players or every player in the future will be accompanied by a secretary, a certified accountant and his own license bureau official. Coaches will have to be normal without complaints to them in authority if they wish to reprimand or praise their star athletes. To top it off, Evans says those who are trying to remedy what they believe is wrong with sport, know plenty about law but nothing about athletics.

WOTTA MAN!

Down around the Mississippi State college campus they are hailing the current college hero with more than the usual razzle, for after all, Frankie Chance, college quarterback is said the best-upper class boy of a gridiron hero ever to be the wheelhind star of the shmoal. Chance does not tower any six-feet two with shoulders like the walls of a basement conference, nor does he boast a poundage of 250 upward. If you go into strolling across the campus you probably would think him for a prof's pet or a model for a pencil factory.

However Chance is the toast of the college football crowd and the terror of opposing teams. His quarterbacking thus far has been more or less sensational and don't be surprised if you see him picked for the All-American squad. Chance, it seems, weighs just 122 pounds and can be tucked in the hip pockets of his starry backfielders. He looks like a chunk of animated goalpost which was broken off at the 5.4 mark. But, brother, can the guy play football.

HAIL THE CHAMPS!

The Belleville junior soccer club, champions of the Eastern Ontario Junior Soccer League will be given the tribute of champions at a banquet to be held in the Orange Hall, Belleville, Saturday night. Frank Fulwell, M. P., donor of the Fulwell Trophy emblematic of the junior title will present the award to the team through its captain Bill Hay. Lionel Rinker cn the coach of the team which not only won the loop title but behaved creditably both on the field and off it. Congratulations, Fellas.

SHOULD BE GOOD!

An outstanding hockey attraction for fans of this district has been lined up by Manager Jim McCormick of the Kingston memorial Centre for tonight when the Toronto Marlborough, junior "A" league hockey meet the powerful Montreal Canadiens, junior stars of the Eastern Junior League. The Marlies are unbeaten in sixteen starts while the Canadiens boast the proud record of winning 15 out of their last 16 games. This should be junior hockey at its best and probably will be a rehearsal of the Memorial Cup playdowns since both squads are tops in their various leagues.

Tonight in Memorial Arena the Belleville Hockey Association midgets and juveniles held forth with plenty of young aspirants out there striving for spots on one of the teams in each division. Six midget records will form the league this season, an increase of two over that of last year with four juvenile teams going to the post in their divisions. This is an increase of fifteen over the city's juvenile output of a year ago. There is plenty of room for referees and coaches in the BHA's minor divisions and those desirous of helping should report to the Arena either on Thursday evenings or on Saturday mornings at nine o'clock. Your help will be greatly appreciated.

TURK BRODA, 37-year-old substitute goalkeeper of the Toronto Maple Leafs and one of the best-loved players to ever perform in the NHL, will be honored at Maple Leaf Gardens on the evening of December 22 with a special Turk Broda Night. This is Turk's 14th season with the Maple Leafs and he's played all his NHL hockey with Toronto. It's only fitting that Turk is given a "Night" of his own as he's given hockey fans throughout the National Hockey League many a big night with his sensational play.

Goyer Scores Tie-Breaker In Rugged Hard-Fought Game; Lefort Stars Although Hurt

High scoring Vern Goyer was held to a single marker in Petes-hornets' last night but it was the payoff tally. His shot with less than three minutes to go before the end of the third period gave the Quinte crew a 6-5 verdict over the Petes and pulled them into a top-place tie with Eagles in the OHA senior B group standing.

The crowd was not large for the speedy, clean and close contest, Hawks getting six of the nine penalties. They led in the first frame 2-1, but Petes outscored them 4-1 next best for a 5-4 lead. Hawks tied it early in the third and won in the dying minutes of play.

Lefort Stars

The Doran-coached Hawks had a fair margin on play in the initial inning, but it was all Petes the next chukker as Jim Ellis charges fairly perversed goalie Maurice Lefort. He stopped a golf swinging shot by Junior Watt on the check and then set to take 10 minutes out for repairs in this stanza.

Play was fairly even in the hot third period, but the Hawks got the tying and winning goals. Both netminders made a flock of brilliant saves in every chapter.

The Desjardins - Jones-Barrett trio was the first line to figure in on all three Belleville goals. Desjardins led the team in tapping with four goals, one each went to Goyer, MacDonald, Wardhaugh and Jones. Barrett clicked for three assists and Jones for two, as one each was counted by Desjardins, Doran, Goyer, Mason, MacDonald and Semark. Curly Mason topped the homesters with two tallies, Ted Collins, Junior West and Ron Horton having one each. Two assists were marked to West and Cec Leonard, as Garvey got one.

Hawks flew early but a West-Horton thrust was close and Lefort hunt his arm stopping a hot drive by Watt. Petes opened scoring from Desjardins and Barrett on close-in combination and flip shot. Desjardins made it 2-0 right away with his line-mates aiding in a scramble, Collins got one back in a scramble on the opposite end, Garvey helping, and then Jopling drew a boarding penalty. Back back when Desjardins got in once more to bat home a rebound, Jones and Barrett combining up the play. Semark was waved away for high-sticking just before the gong to end the period.

Petes In Second

The Petes poured in to dominate play opening the middle stanza. Gus Leonard came close once and then set up West for a score. Gus got another but it was ruled in the crease. Mason tallied one assisted by Jones West and Gus Leonard [illegible] up the count. The Floyd-[illegible]-Collins trio threatened a space and Lefort kept kicking [illegible] out. Horton's back [illegible] from outside Fulwell, M. P., donor of the Fulwell Trophy emblematic of the junior title will present the award to the team through its captain Bill Hay. Lionel Rinker cn the coach of the team which not only won the loop title but behaved creditably both on the field and off it. Congratulations, Fellas.

MAURICE LEFORT

Mosher being in on the sweep down the rink. Jones came from again, and Dugan pulled a nifty solo dash. Garvey was chased for slashing, followed by Wardhaugh for tripping. When Garvey returned, the Ellis outfield gauged up boldly but couldn't get the winning marker.

Later play was up and down fast with each goalie in turn on the jump to stop hot rubber from point blank range.

Goyer, acting as a floater, picked up a pass on a play started by Semark and MacDonald, slipped through around defence fast and pulled goalie out in a neat finish with the winning goal. The Petes battled furiously then but it ended that way. Semark was bumped hard and left the game, and Mason missed in close just at the windup.

Teams:

Belleville: Goal, Lefort; defence, Schrieder and Semark; centre, Goyer; wings, MacDonald and Mosher. Alternates, Jones, Barrett, Desjardins, Day, Doran, Wardhaugh, Bastedo and Trumble.

Petes: Goal, Harding; defence, Jopling and K. Leonard; centre, Wade; wings, Steele and Wyatt. Alternates, G. Leonard, West, Mason, Horton, Dugan, Garvey, Collins and Floyd.

Sasky Riders Lose Another Star Player

Toronto, Nov. 22 (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders, already crippled for Saturday's Grey Cup final here, yesterday suffered another blow.

Del Wardien, a great defensive back, sprained an ankle in practice and probably will be absent when the Roughies tackle Ottawa Rough Riders in the National football classic.

"I don't know what can happen to us next," said Coach Harry Smith. "That leaves us with 38 ball players. What hurts is that most of the guys we need are out or badly on the limp."

Wardien turned his ankle when he hit a soft spot in the field. Other injuries include end Jack Russell, taking heat treatment for a battered knee; halfback Al Bodine, limping on a swollen ankle and centre Don Ettinger and quarterback Glenn Dobbs, both wearing heavy foam rubber coverall over battered ribs.

The western champions brought a large assortment of footgear with them. It includes "lumberjack" shoes with corrugated rubber soles and felt uppers, just in case there's an icy field Saturday. They also have running shoes for a hard, dry field and big cleats for mud.

Meanwhile, Toronto got ready for a mammoth downtown parade Saturday morning with floats, bands, cheerleaders, cowboys and beauty queens.

'Specs' Toporcer Has Gone Blind

Rochester, N.Y., Nov. 22 (AP) — The brother of George (Specs) Toporcer died last night. Specs has lost the sight of his left eye—leaving him blind.

"Specs" entered the hospital in August for treatments of a detached retina of the left eye. The 53-year-old manager lost the sight of his right eye about four years ago.

Woody Dumart Placed On Inactive List

New York, Nov. 22 (CP) — Manager Lynn Patrick of the Bruins disclosed last night that the veteran Woody Dumart has been placed on Boston's inactive list due to the roster limit but remains on the payroll.

Dumart, who will be 35 next Dec. 23, has been hitting the banquet circuit making speeches for the Bruins while the National Hockey League club is on the road.

The left winger, veteran of 13 N.H.L. seasons, appeared only seven of the Bruins' 17 games to date, mostly as a penalty killer, and had only one assist. Last season Dumart scored 20 goals and collected 21 assists in 70 games.

With Dumart inactive, the only member of the old Kitchener line still with Bruins is centre Milt Schmidt who at 33 still is going strong. Bobby Bauer, right winger of the famous line, left the Bruins several seasons ago.

Bruins' Fisher Scores Three In Deadlock With Rangers; Leafs Defeat Chihawks 5-1

(By The Canadian Press)

A shifty young right-winger enjoys the best night of his National Hockey League career last night, and all at the expense of his former team mates.

Dunc Fisher, a 26-year-old product of Regina, spent two seasons with New York Rangers, before he was traded to Boston Bruins last year.

And last night the 165-pound winger personally accounted for all Boston goals as the Bruins battled to a 3-3 deadlock with Rangers in New York.

Bruins Come Up

The stalemate enabled Bruins to creep to within a single point of third-place Montreal Canadiens. Rangers stepped into a fifth-place tie with Chicago Black Hawks, who dropped a 5-1 verdict to Toronto Maple Leafs in the only other game.

Fisher scored once in the first period and twice in the third. In every case, his goal put Bruins in front.

Paul Ronty[illegible] gave tying marker for Rangers at 15.00 of the final period.

After Leafs tallied the only goal of the first frame, Herb Dickenson, playing his first N. H. L. game since being called up by Rangers from Cincinnati Tuesday, tied it up in the second.

Fisher put Bruins ahead again early in the furious third period only to have Ron Stewart pick up Don Raleigh's rebound and ram the puck home to make it 2-2.

The second-place Leafs, snapping out of a scoring lethargy, were paced by the No. 2 combination of Ted Kennedy, Sid Smith and Tod Sloan. The combination accounted 79 goals in the regular schedule last year. Last night each got one.

The win brought Toronto to within three points of the league-setting Detroit Red Wings.

Harry Watson and Danny Lewicki—who returned from Pittsburgh and replaced centre Max Bentley, out with the flu—were the other Toronto marksmen. Clare Martin saved the Hawks from a shutout the final frame.

Marking his first appearance for Chicago last night was centre Sid Finney, called up from St. Louis Flyers of the American League, the Calgary, Alta., puckster was used sparingly in the first and third periods.

Tonight the Hawks journey to Montreal for a game with Canadiens while New York will be at Detroit.

Jackie Robinson Wants Increase

Los Angeles, Nov. 22 (AP) — Jackie Robinson, Brooklyn Dodger flashy second baseman, says he'll ask for a substantial raise in 1952.

He would not disclose to an interviewer yesterday what kind of a boost he wants but it is believed he will hold out for at least $50,000. He was paid $35,000 this year and last.

Robinson, 32, figures he has "at least two more years of major-league baseball left in my system."

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

Carl Voyles, returning his belief that Canada should have a football commissioner, said yesterday he thought Frank Clair, coach of Toronto Argonauts, would be the ideal man for the job.

Voyles, coach and general manager of Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the Big Four, said in an interview that "what football needs in Canada is a commissioner who knows the game from all aspects. One who is honest, fearless and who could rule with an iron hand."

Voyles who came here last season from Brooklyn Dodgers pro football club, said that Canadian football has outgrown the present system in which the Canadian Rugby Union has the last say and the eastern and western leagues run their affairs independently.

In Toronto, Clair said he is flattered by Voyles appraisal, but "my first love is coaching and I think I'd prefer to stick with it."

Vancouver Combines of the inter-city Lacrosse League said yesterday they will recommend that all senior clubs withdraw from the Canadian Lacrosse Association because they have insufficient representation in the association.

George Gray, Combines secretary, said at Vancouver "we will recommend that all senior leagues band together to form a separate organization, capable of running the Mann Cup playoffs."

He said the C.L.A. was under continuous fire for "bungling this year's Mann Cup and Dominion championships here. Game slips were constantly shifted from one arena to another and attendance dropped sharply."

The recall of rookie left winger Jack McIntyre from Hershey of the American Hockey League was announced last night by general manager Art Ross of Boston Bruins. McIntyre suffered a broken collarbone in a preseason exhibition game against Hershey.

Ross also said that Pentti Lund who suffered an eye injury ten days ago against Chicago Black Hawks, is due to return shortly. The mask has been removed from his eye—injured accidentally by a stick—and Lund is expected to resume skating in a week or so.

At New York, veteran Jimmy Bivins of Cleveland was caught up with back-pedalling Charley Burley of Philadelphia, who won in the second half of their 10-rounder last night to win a split decision at St. Nicholas Arena. Bivins, a 3-to-1 favorite, outpunched his lanky rival 104 to 100 1-2. Only 848 fans paid $1,848 to see the bout which was televised and broadcast.

At Bremerhaven, Germany Sgt. Curtis T. (Curt) Simmons said yesterday he hopes to be out of the army and back to the United States next summer in time to resume pitching for the Philadelphia Phillies. Simmons, the 22-year-old son of Philadelphia's 1950 pennant winners, said his term of enlistment ends next June and "unless war comes or something else happens I should be back in the United States by May."

Boxer Sues T.V., Sponsors

Philadelphia, Nov. 22—(AP)—A $200,000 damage suit was filed in U.S. district court yesterday by former heavyweight boxer Al Ettore in connection with a television version of his 1936 bout with Joe Louis.

Ettore charged the defendants, the Philco Television Broadcast Corp., Cheseborough Manufacturing Corp., Consolidated, sponsors of the televised fight films, and Clayton, Dec. & Lord advertising agency, with showing the films without his consent and deleting the third round of the fight-a round in which Al claims he held his own with the Brown Bomber.

Louis knocked out Ettore in the fifth round.

Ettore admitted he lost four of the five rounds but alleged that the film version, displayed twice in two years, was "garbled and distorted" and has caused him to lose business in his tavern and exposed him to ridicule.

SOME NEVER ATTEND

In 1948, the average Canadian attended the movies 18 times, paying about $7 in admission.

Football fans, mostly the plaid-shirted variety, were treated to a preview of Grey Cup action when the Regina Roughriders got their inaugural practice under way in a Toronto church a few hours after their arrival for the Canadian championship playoff on Nov. 24 in Toronto. Everyone, including the neighbor's kids—all 100 of them—were invited to see Glen Dobbs, above, in action, saw a portent of what a great signal-caller and a real quarterback which is proof of the statement that Dobbs is truly a triple-threat star.

(By The Canadian Press)

The leaders in the American Hockey League's western and eastern divisions met last night and fought to a deadlock.

Pittsburgh Hornets, showing their heels to four other clubs in the western division, battled to a 3-3 overtime draw with Hershey Bears.

The Hornets now have 30 points for 14 victories and two deadlocks in 17 starts, eight points more than the second-place Cleveland Barons.

Hershey leads the eastern section with eight victories and three ties, three points ahead of Buffalo Bisons.

Cleveland last night slapped a 3-1 defeat on the tail end Syracuse Warriors at Cleveland.

Gladu, Joe Carveth and Steve Wochy scored for the Barons and Armand Lemieux got the only Syracuse goal.

Gladu started in the first and third periods to hold Pittsburgh to a tie before a crowd of 3,862.

Dave Creighton and Joe Scherbatiuk tallied for the Bears and the Pittsburgh goals were scored by George Armstrong and Ray Timgren.

Ottawa Tunes Up on Sarnia In 'Five-Cent' Football Game

By ERWIN FERCKE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 22—(CP)—It has not been the fashion in the past for the capital to fuss about its Rough Riders during the football wars. This year's eastern Ontario champions, however, have found particular favor with Ottawa's football faithful and a record-sized crowd is scheduled for this afternoon.

The Ottawa Junior Board of Trade is behind the big football cavalcade which will see off the Riders to Toronto and the Grey Cup final against Saskatchewan Roughriders Saturday.

The 15-car parade, will feature Mayor Charlotte Whitton in one car with Riders officials, coach Clem Crowe riding in splendid isolation in another and the players spread over the remainder.

Riders qualified as the east's representatives in the east-west classic by defeating Sarnia Imperials 43-17 yesterday before a film crowd at Lansdowne Park here. They are the seventh Ottawa team to be a eastern championships since the inception of the Grey Cup final in 1921.

"Five-Cent Game"

Coach Clem Crowe wasn't particularly enthusiastic about yesterday's contest against the all-Canadian Imperials.

"A five-cent game with five-cent officiating," said the one-time coach of the professional Buffalo Bills. His dim view was partially caused by a shaking up handed out to Riders fine passcatching outside, Anton Baldwin, and defensive halt Ted McLarty. They suffered ankle and knee injuries but the word today is that both are likely to be in shape for Saturday's game.

Halfback Pete Karpuk, who played a fine running game and collected two of Riders seven touchdowns, thought Sarnia was guilty of clipping and piling on after tackles in the first half.

"We could have played it a lot tougher," said Karpuk. Snap Dog Lemay and Howie (Thumper) Turnbull also said they thought Imperials were unnecessarily rough.

Red Douglas, Sarnia coach, said his O. R. F. U. champions "really didn't get going until the last half."

Sy Murano, big 220-pound Sarnia middle, didn't think Riders "are so tough. They're no thing right. It's the passing not the ground attack that earns them their touchdowns."

Also not too impressed by the Ottawa ground attack was Pistol Pete Martin of Regina. The Saskatchewan Roughrider lineman, bobsling around on crutches as the result of a foot injury last month scouted the game for the western champs.

"Unless Bob Gain wasn't putting out, he's highly overrated," said Martin. "Our big boy Martin Ruby will eat him."

Gain, Rider import from the University of Kentucky, didn't do much tackling but he booted eight points on seven converts and a kick to deadline, and blocked one Sarnia kick.

Matt Anthony and Pete Karpuk bagged a pair of touchdowns apiece for Ottawa with Steve Hatfield, Bob Simpson and Turner each getting a major.

For Sarnia, George Curtis was impressive as quarter while Perk Johnston, Corky Duchene, Archie McCaffer Eric McKeever and Johnny Charuschuk made good gains. Duchene scored all three Sarnia touchdowns, the last on a 30-yard gallop through a hole in the left side of the Ottawa line.

Most of the Imperials scoring came after the Riders had run up a 19-1 edge at halftime.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Nov. 22—(AP)—The case of the reluctant heavyweight will be tried in Madison Square Garden tomorrow when Bob Baker takes on Clarence Henry. . . Baker is ranked fourth in the heavyweight division now and is tabbed as a real "comer." . . But his trainer, Lou Ledbetter, almost had to shanghai him out of a YMCA gymnasium to make him a fighter. Bob preferred weight-lifting—and maybe he was right; a bar bell can't hit back. . . Baker finally agreed to fight because he likes to eat and then he nearly ate himself out of the heavyweight class, if such a thing is possible. . . He got up to 225 pounds and had quite a task taking off 10 pounds. . . He's supposed to be taking things seriously now—not a shot at Ezzard Charles in sight for the winner, but Henry is a terrific hitting pounder and Bob has a lot of body to punch.

Sheets and Shells

Sarnia Dickenson, recently acquired by the Rangers, drives harness horses during the summer. Bob's owner not get shells for using a hockey game. . .

Former star Mike Les MacMitchell, now assistant registrar at New York University, has begun training junior coach Emil Von Elling for a comeback aimed at the 1952 Olympics. . . Yogi Berra's hit line on the banquet circuit: "I don't do much in the way of talking. At home my wife does the talking. On the road its Jackie Farrell who does the talking. And when I sign my contract, its George Weiss who does the talking."

Hamilton Seeks Int. Grid Title

Hamilton, Nov. 22 (CP) — It may be two-out-of-three now for Hamilton's ardent football fans.

This is the year when gridiron rooters from both their teams capture three titles. The junior Tiger-Cats clicked by defeating Edmonton for the age-limit title, the senior Tiger Cats were ousted by Ottawa in the Big Four final —now it's up to the intermediate Hamilton Panthers.

Panthers Saturday meet the Royal Montreal Regiment for the eastern Canada crown and the right to play St. Boniface, Man., in the Canadian final at Toronto's Varsity Stadium Dec. 1.

Not in years has Ontario sent such a strong team against the Quebec title-holders. Panthers are undefeated this season, winning 10 straight in their own group schedule before defeating Oshawa in a two-game totals-points series for the Ontario crown.

In the 12 games, Panthers have scored a total of 334 points, as against their rivals' 25. Only two touchdowns have been scored against the locals who boast a line that experts say ranks as good as any in the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union.

Sam Scoccia, former senior Tiger-Cat who plays middle, has been a pillar of power for the Panthers while inside Charley Watterman and Ray Jones have been considerable action in the locator company.

The team is coached by Merle Hapes, former New York Giant and Hamilton Tiger star. This season was his first attempt at coaching Canadian football.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, November 23

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Mars' aspect stresses patient understanding and no hostless. Intelligent persuasion, reasoning most effective. Fine day for personal advancement, useful effort in "small" things.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Rather mild influences for personal and artistic gain but there's promising for sound everyday work and business, for conferences seeking advancement (earned), and good investments.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—You may have to furnish impetus, imagination, add improved ideas and twists for mental or physical tasks today. Mechanics, shipping, railroading, where tools, machinery are used are more favored.

June 22 to July 22—(Cancer)—Not too helpful perhaps for some private interests especially for very personal gain, but a day for benefits generally in industry, trades, rolling stock, research, military affairs.

July 24 to August 23—(Leo)—Sun and Jupiter aspects fine. Top favored: Sound financial transactions, marriage, unified social labor and workers, producer-commodities necessary for good living, health, etc.

August 24 to September 23—(Virgo)—The sort of day to show how efficient you Virgoans are when much is up to your ingenuity and perseverance. Friendly Sun rays to encourage practical endeavors, also the unusual.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—About same as for Taurus and Virgo. Be guided by sound advice but not dissenters. There is never a day that won't produce some good, today is no exception. Try, and win eventually.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Sun and Jupiter give strong benefic rays. Helpful elements can be garnered from several directions. Practical matters, industry, manufacturing freshly favored. But be tactful, kindly.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—More generous for you than for many now, and more can and will be expected of you in sincere efforts and co-operation, with your government, fellow associates, family. Pitch in.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—No day for attaining wholly personal wishes but there are sound benefits for the steady worker, true thinker, for healthy ambition. Sun aspects urge greater good in all things.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—In-between for your sector but you can, with keen foresight and action, point it up top-notch. Objective action, determined attention to essentials and details will achieve.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—May have to demonstrate how much you really can do when everything isn't easy sailing. You are capable, talented, keep to a systematic and ambitious routine. Your day; use it well.

YOU BORN TODAY: Are sincere, generally wise, optimistic but also cautious. Usually frank, honest, almost inclined to be blunt at times. You have zeal but may have to correct tendency to delays; then last-minute rushing, causing strain, needless worry. Watch not to be over-zealous: this, too, can be harmful. You can accomplish wonders with medium goals and not too strong help from others. Consistency of effort best in your Zodiacal sector. You can attain high success even in speculative ventures if they have true value. Birthdate: Franklin Pierce, 14th U.S. Pres.; Sir Gilbert Parker, novelist, statesman; Boris Karloff, actor.

WHY WE SAY

... A spy farce ...
This expression, heard everywhere when old the cases, started in Spain during its recent civil war. As Franco's insurgent armies encircled Madrid, his general called to the opposition: "Your columns are around Madrid, while the fifth is already at work within the city." (Thanks to Harry Pache, Winnipeg, Canada).

Cloak and Dagger Drama in Greece

A U.S. helicopter crewman helped to smash part of a communist spy ring in Greece when he aided Greek police in finding a red radio outfit whose short signals were discovered by police. Photo shows an exterior view of red spy's underground hideout at Glyfada, a seaside suburb of Athens. The men are shown trying to find the marble slab covering the entrance to the vault, where red operator of two powerful transmitters was trapped. Police confiscated considerable amounts of communist documents which the operator had not burned. — Central Press Canadian.

Gloria Swanson Will Continue In Production

Philadelphia, Nov. 22—(AP) — Gloria Swanson says she will continue to play in the Broadway bound production of "Nina" despite disatisfaction with her part.

The actress let that be known yesterday after it was reported she intended to leave the show.

"Nina" is due to open in New York Dec. 3.

Miss Swanson admitted she had tried to leave the production earlier but added: "People have bought tickets for the show and I don't want to disappoint them."

The fault, Miss Swanson said, lies with the translation of the French play.

She said she wanted to get some "fresh minds in to doctor the play" or perhaps keep it on the road a little longer to refine it.

But producer John C. Wilson said the play will go to Broadway as scheduled and Miss Swanson is staying in the cast.

Edmonton To Be Mighty City Mayor-elect Hawrelak Says

By GRAHAM TROTTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Edmonton —(CP)— A dapper young man of Ukrainian descent took over as Edmonton's mayor recently and vowed he'll "sell" Edmonton far and near.

At 37, William Hawrelak is the second-youngest mayor in Edmonton's history. That is fair shakes, as a salesman was convincingly demonstrated in the recent civic election when he ousted former Mayor Sid Parsons by a landslide vote.

"The future holds a real destiny for Edmonton," said Mayor Hawrelak in a post-election interview. "I hope to help make it possible. We've got to tell people everywhere about our oil, gas and agricultural economy."

Negotiated Big Loans

Throughout the election campaign he emphasized that he, as a business man, was best suited to negotiate big money loans badly needed by Canada's fastest-growing city.

Mr. Hawrelak rolled up a majority of more than 18,000 votes—second highest in Edmonton's history—out of the 51,000-odd votes cast in the three-way mayoralty fight.

The stocky young bottling works proprietor reached the mayor's chair after a meteoric career in civic affairs. He was first elected to city council as an alderman in 1940 — after an unsuccessful bid the previous year — and acted as mayor for 3½ months last winter while former Mayor Parsons was ill.

While he was acting mayor, he spent much time in the east talking up his city in New York, Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa. In New York, he helped negotiate a city loan of $10,468,000 on the United States open market.

Must Borrow

Mayor Hawrelak can't see any immediate end to Edmonton's large-scale borrowing. He says he has written assurance that the city can borrow big amounts against next year in the U.S. despite reports that financiers are becoming wary of the money-hungry oil-boom town.

"We're growing five times as fast as any other city so we need five times as much money," he said. "The requirements of a growing community should be met immediately instead of waiting until funds are readily available."

He lists Edmonton's biggest needs as provision of more civic utilities and off-street parking.

The dark, wavy-haired mayor freely admits that he has long hankered after his present job. A career of constant administrative work — he'll graduate as inspector, life insurance salesman, Dominion agricultural inspector, school trustee, alderman — has been stepping stones to the chief magistrate's post.

Laborite Ability

He comes by this ability naturally. His father, who emigrated to Alberta from the Ukraine in 1898, was active in community administration, setting up about 25 school districts and a municipal district.

The original family homestead at Waseg, Alta., about 60 miles northeast of Edmonton, now is leased out by Mayor Hawrelak.

In 1930 he was packing his bags for Kingston, Ont., to take a Queen's University course in commerce when a hailstorm wiped out his father's grain crop. Economic conditions forced him to forego a university education.

Mayor Hayrelak still takes an active interest in his leased farm and, like many other Edmontonians, is interested in several oil ventures. But he says he's still waiting for these to pay off.

Messrs. Duffin and Fairs were remembered with a box of homemade candy for their part in this effort and another box was sent to the boys at CJBQ, Belleville radio station, in recognition of the free publicity over the air last week.

A large array of aprons, included those of dainty flowered print, two-tone aprons, a beauty of yellow broadcloth and another of printed dimity with pink bias strips in perpendicular style; several coverall aprons of pretty print. Some were trimmed with rick-rack braid and others with bias binding. The styles were for dress-up occasions and the usual housework. Each member was asked in November to donate one article for this table.

The door prize, a lovely hostess set, the gift of a Toronto firm, was won by Mrs. Reg. Shadbolt of Madoc.

Messrs. J. L. Donohoe, Jack Sager, Harold Morrow and Don Donohoe looked after the door arrangements with other assistants.

At midnight, a large number of Institute members served refreshments which consisted of sandwiches, light cake, chocolate cake and coffee.

The kitchen was convened by Mrs. J. L. Donohoe, Mrs. John Kane, Mrs. Jennie Donohoe, Mrs. Claude Tucker and others with about 20 other members serving the refreshments.

The dance was well attended with ten sets on the floor for dancing after midnight and seven up until 11 o'clock. There were several squares intermingled with a lot of round dancing to popular tunes, both old and new.

Over 30 Institute members were in attendance at the function and the finances should be gratifying.

67 Nominated For Various Civic Offices

Only Few Electors On Hand When Nominations Open

Three of This Year's Council Up For Election

Keen interest in the forthcoming municipal election was forecast here this morning when no less than 67 persons—a near all time record—were nominated to stand for the various municipal offices.

Ten men and one woman were nominated for the office of mayor with seven persons being nominated for the one vacancy on the public utilities commission.

There were 32 nominations for aldermen with seven to be elected and 17 were nominated for the 14 seats on the public school board.

Many Names Submitted

Only a few electors were on hand when Assistant City Clerk Gordon Lummis opened nominations at sharp 11 o'clock. For the first 15 minutes only a few nominations were received; there was a flurry of papers handed in at the half-way mark and then just before closing time at 12 o'clock officials of the clerk's office were literally swamped as nominators got their papers in before the time limit.

Only three of this year's council are up for re-election. They are Aldermen Chas. Hyde, William Argue and Claude Tice.

Alderman A. M. Haig is stepping up to contest the office of mayor, while Alderman Urias "Sandy" Lummis resigned from council to contest the vacancy in the Public Utilities Commission. Two other aldermen whose terms of office are up this year—Aldermen Fred Deacon and Ormonde Butler, are not offering themselves for re-election.

The formation of the Bay of Quinte High School Area and the dissolving of the local board of education resulted in an added number of persons being nominated for public school board.

Ward System

With the city reverting to a public school board election of school trustees will be by the ward system with two members to be elected for each of the seven wards in the city. Seventeen were nominated for the 14 seats on the board. There will be acclamations for school trustee in two of the city's seven wards. These are Bald-win and Dinsdeery wards.

Candidates have until nine o'clock Saturday evening to qualify. Where a candidate has been nominated for more than one office he must signify the office for which he wishes to run, otherwise he will be considered to be running for the first office for which he is nominated.

Following is the list of nominations for the various civic offices, with the nominees' names followed by their proposers and seconders.

Agree on Price Increase of One Cent a Quart

Toronto, Nov. 23. (CP)—Toronto milk distributors and producers have agreed on a price increase from 24 to 25 cents a quart for Toronto consumers.

The application, which provides for an increase of 50 cents a hundredweight for farmers, giving them $4.70 a hundredweight, went before the four-man Ontario Milk Board today.

Mayor Hiram McCallum, consumer representative on the Board, announced he would oppose the increase on grounds the board has been able to obtain financial statements from only 11 of 13 of 4,000 milk producers in the Toronto market area.

False Tip Given Provincial Police

Campbellford, Nov. 23. (CP)—Eight carloads of Ontario Provincial Police—about 35 men in all—descended on Campbellford Thursday afternoon, seeking three men who fled Don jail in Toronto, Nov. 4.

It is understood they were acting on an unconfirmed tip given them by a woman.

Armed with rifles, shot guns and automatic weapons, they surrounded a house in the northeast part of town, but after questioning the owner of the house, they left.

Today Sergeant Stanley Palmateer of the O.P.P. detachment in Peterborough, who led the raid, said the tip came from "some foolish lads" police had heard secondhand.

The three men who escaped from the Don jail were Edward Jackson, 29, Edwin Boyd, 37, and William R. Jackson, 25.

Will Not Oppose Party Leaders

Lindsay, Nov. 23 (CP)—Premier Frost said today he does not think Progressive Conservative candidates would oppose two party leaders defeated in Thursday's Ontario election if they seek to enter the legislature in by-elections.

"This is generally conceded to be the customary thing," Mr. Frost said, "and I think that courtesy should be extended to them."

Liberal leader Walter Thompson was defeated in Ontario riding and C.C.F. leader E. B. Jolliffe in York South.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Nov. 23 (CP)— Synoptic: Barley this morning another cold air mass pushed to the south of the Great Lakes to bring flurries but only moderate cold to Southern Ontario. Temperatures in Northern Ontario last night averaged from zero to 10 below. This air will be warmed considerably before reaching southern Ontario and temperatures tonight near Lake Erie and Lake Ontario will fall to 25 to 32 above.

There are indications on this morning's weather map that a new disturbance will develop in the southern Mississippi Valley late today and bring some snow to southern Ontario over the weekend.

REPORT WRECKAGE SIGHTED AMONG JAGGED PEAKS

Ground, Air Searchers Sent Out in Force

Rome, Nov. 23 (AP)—Clearing skies sent ground and air searchers out in force today to pin down reports on a United States Air Force plane missing since Monday with four men aboard.

One unconfirmed report said wreckage had been sighted among the jagged peaks of northeast Italy's Dolomites mountains, 40 miles east of Bolzano.

Another report, from a traveller in Trieste, Italy, said the plane was shot down by Romanian army border guards as it touched the iron curtain on its flight from Germany to Belgrade.

Neither report could be confirmed officially.

Bad weather and fog which previously had hampered the search cleared today. Twenty U.S. planes based on Treviso Air Base in northeast Italy swept the skies during that section and Yugoslavia.

Italian police and U.S. ground searchers were working in the Dolomites, trying to check the reported sighting of wreckage.

The U.S. Embassy in Belgrade said Tuesday that the pilot of the C-47 transport plane reported having fired on by Hungarian and Romanian border guards.

But the Embassy report said he apparently realized he was lost and turned back. Its later report he said he was near the Croatian capital of Zagreb, headed towards Udine, at the foot of the Italian Dolomites.

An American Air Force officer directing the search from an Italian air base said information received by radio from Wiesbaden, Germany, reported the wreckage had been sighted near the crest of the mountain village of Pieve Di Cadore.

However, U.S. Air Force headquarters at Wiesbaden could not confirm the report.

One search plane from Treviso air base over Yugoslavia in the case yesterday and strayed from the triangular search area specially assigned to the Romanian border.

Princess' Smile Softens General

Supreme Allied Headquarters, Europe, Nov. 23 (AP)— Princess Margaret today got General Dwight Eisenhower waiting on pins-and-needles for their date for tea today.

The general, visibly impatient, paced the reception hall at his headquarters until 4:30 p.m. when Princess finally showed up.

Allied officers later said her Royal Highness' car took a wrong turn en route to supreme headquarters Allied powers in Europe.

Said Eisenhower, when Princess Margaret finally rolled up before the prefabricated building that houses SHAPE, 12 miles from Paris:

"Your Royal Highness, it is nice to see you."

"Thank you," said the Princess, smiling.

Russia Warns Middle East Countries Against Joining Western Defence Plan

London, Nov. 23 (AP)—Moscow radio said today that Russia has warned the countries of the Middle East against joining the American-British backed plan for Middle-East defence.

Participation in the plan, the broadcast said, "will cause serious damage to the relations existing between the Middle-East countries and the Soviet Union."

The broadcast, monitored in London, said Deputy Foreign Minister Gromyko handed notes to the envoys of Egypt, Syria, Lebanon, Iraq and Israel in Moscow Wednesday.

The following day the Soviet position was relayed through Cairo to the governments of Egypt and Israel.

The notes marked a sharp Russian reaction to the plan proposed by the United States, Britain, France and Turkey, for a mid-east defence group linked with the Atlantic Pact.

Egypt already has rejected the western plan. Other mid-east countries have not taken a stand.

In Tel Aviv, a foreign-office spokesman said today Israel will not make formal, written reply to the note.

There was a possibility that Israel's reaction might be given orally to Soviet diplomats here or in Moscow.

Wins Decisive Victory

Hon. Leslie Frost, Premier of Ontario

Hon. Leslie Frost, whose Progressive Conservative government has been returned to power in one of the most decisive election victories in Ontario's history. Mr. Frost's party will have about 79 of the 90 seats in the new legislature. All 18 of the Frost cabinet ministers were re-elected, most of them by heavy majorities.

Re-elected in Hastings Ridings

Elmer Sandercock, who was re-elected in Hastings West, in Thursday's landslide victory for the Progressive Conservative elected in Thursday's general party.

Roscoe Robson, representative of Hastings East in the Ontario legislature, who also was re-elected in Thursday's general election.

E. Sandercock, Roscoe Robson, Conservatives, Easily Carry Two Hastings County Ridings

Traditionally Conservative Hastings County kept pace with the greater majority of its sister constituencies in the Ontario election yesterday sweeping the Progressive Conservatives back into power in both its ridings.

Both the sitting members in the Ontario parliament were re-elected by majorities that exceeded those of the former election.

In Hastings West, Mr. Elmer Sandercock swept to victory over his Liberal and C.C.F. opponents by a majority of 3341 while Hastings East returned Mr. Roscoe Robson with a 3198 majority.

Unofficial figures for Hastings West released last night by Chief Returning Officer Urias Lummis are as follows:

|---|---|
| Elmer Sandercock (PC) | 10,291 |
| Angus B. Duffy (L) | 6,950 |
| Ernest Gibbs (CCF) | 1,286 |

From Madoc Chief Returning Officer Arnold Gasbel announced the following returns for Hastings East:

|---|---|
| Roscoe Robson (PC) | 6,229 |
| Don Carruthers (L) | 4,031 |
| A. Whitehead (CCF) | 605 |

In Prince Edward-Lennox Northern Whitney, Progressive Conservative rolled up a 1277 majority over former member Don Baxter, Liberal.

In the city where Hastings West headquarters was located returns started to trickle in as early as 7.30. From the start Mr. Sandercock showed a majority and never took an early lead that mounted gradually until it reached figures that denoted election with practically little more than half the 123 polls reported.

In Madoc the same situation resolved itself at the Hastings East headquarters. Early returns denoted strong Robson majorities and these crescendoed steadily until the Progressive Conservative's election was conceded with little more than fifty per cent of the returns in.

Mr. Sandercock took an imposing majority in the city recording 4485 votes to Duffy's 2882 and Gibbs' 578. His majority here was

FAST CLIP SET IN BUSINESS BY GOVERNMENT

Several Bills Pass Without Discussion

Ottawa, Nov. 23—(CP)—The commons is setting a fast clip in disposing of the government's legislative program.

It showed an almost-unprecedented pace yesterday in putting through five items of government business so swiftly the house for the first time in years passed up an evening session for lack of anything to do.

Possibly preoccupied with the day's Ontario general election, the commoners rattled the bills through with short discussions and no opposition. They cleaned up the government's scheduled program for the day and night, plus one bill more, well before the afternoon session was over.

Today, they will deal with a government proposal to increase the pensions for disability and death in war.

Yesterday, four measures got third and final reading in the commons; another got second reading and the sixth received first reading. All were brought in by the government.

The senate heard Senator A. N. McLean (C—New Westminster), advocate the appointment of a federal co-ordinator to bring railway managements together to eliminate "duplication and waste." He introduced a bill in the house speech debate.

Hour Proposal

The commons heard a proposal from Percy Wright (CCF—Melfort) that some of the unpaid balance owed by Britain to Canada on a 1942 loan be used to help British settlers get established on farms or in small industries.

The balance owing on the original $1,000,000,000 loan is $222,800,000. Mr. Wright suggested the fund be used to ease the difficulties of immigrating Britons who now are able to take out of Britain only a small amount of capital.

The house gave third and final reading to a measure to continue the loan on an interest-free basis until Jan. 1, 1954.

Another measure given final reading in the house yesterday would empower the banks to operate only five days a week.

Third reading came yesterday day was a government bill to consolidate and revise the statutes dealing with the management of financial administrative practices.

The commons adopted a resolution preliminary to the bill and then gave the measure itself first reading.

HEC FOWLER DIES

Vancouver, Nov. 22—(CP) Hector (Hec) Fowler, 71, one of Vancouver's pioneer grocers died Wednesday in hospital here. Active in the city's affairs in the ing days were over, he was an executive member of the Vancouver Athletic Club team which brought the Mann Cup here for the first time in 1911.

Australian Describes New, Simple Technique for Making Artificial Rain

Pasadena, Calif., Nov. 23—(AP)—Australian scientists claim discovery of a new and better way to produce rain artificially, and they make it sound simple.

All you have to do, one of them says, is spray low-hanging clouds with water.

Admittedly effective on the warm, low-hanging clouds characteristic of tropical regions of the South Pacific areas, the system should be capable of producing 1,000,000 tons of rain from one section sprayed on the base of a cloud formation, the Australians say.

Dr. E. G. Bowen, a physicist member of the Australian Commonwealth Scientific and Research Organization, described the scientists' technique yesterday in a speech at the California Institute of Technology. With it, the Australians hope to convert arid vast desert into fertile farmlands.

Up to now, clouds have been seeded with dry ice or silver iodide crystals to make it rain. Dr. Bowen said the water method is more effective, especially under conditions encountered in his country.

"We could carry five tons of water in a medium-sized aeroplane," he explained. "That should be enough to make some 5,000,000 tons of rainfall. But I wish to emphasize that thus far in our painstaking research we have used only a few hundred pounds of water at a time."

He said two more years of basic research may be necessary to learn all the facts and possibilities of the water spray system, but added:

"Results of these experiments are most promising. I'm convinced that similar results could be obtained in the United States."

Liberal and C.C.F. Leaders Defeated In Avalanche

Conservatives Will Have 79 Seats in New House

Toronto, Nov. 23 (CP)— A mild-mannered small-town lawyer today headed an Ontario government with the greatest majority in the province's history.

Leslie Frost's Progressive Conservative administration was re-elected in yesterday's general election by a margin that was nothing less than a landslide. And a heavy vote smashed the Socialist CCF as a political force at least for the life of the 24th legislature and left a weakened Liberal party as the official opposition.

The final standing, with the standing after the last election:

| | 1951 | 1948 |
|---|---|---|
| Prog. Conservative | 79 | 53 |
| Liberal | 7 | 13 |
| CCF | 2 | 21 |
| Liberal-Labor | 1 | 1 |
| Labor-Progressive | 1 | 2 |
| Total | 90 | 90 |

The closest previous parallel to yesterday's result was the 1939 election when the Conservatives under the redoubtable G. Howard Ferguson returned 91 members in a 112-seat House. In 1934 when the legislature was reduced to 90 seats, the Liberal party was swept into power with 96 seats.

But its victory sweep the Frost administration obtained 49 per-cent of the total vote, the highest percentage since the Liberals' 51 percent in 1937. With counting or ballots all but complete, the vote count of 1,707,668 had been tabulated. The record vote came in the 1945 election when 1,- 768,793 Ontarians cast ballots. Some 3,000,000 were eligible this time.

Liberals Official Opposition

While the result left the Liberals' seven-man representation as the official opposition of some immediate interest to political experts the smashing defeat of the CCF. The party's leader of nine years, E. B. Jolliffe, lost his seat. CCF standards fell right and left. In only one industrial riding and in one largely goldmining northern seat did it elect candidates.

Wants Liberals Divorced From Toronto Star

Hamilton, Nov. 22 (CP) — James Osbaldeston, president of the Hamilton East Liberal Association, said today he intends to place before the Ontario Liberal Association a resolution proposing "that we divorce ourselves from the Toronto Daily Star until it presents its news in a more sensible manner."

Mr. Osbaldeston telephoned this statement of intention to the Hamilton Spectator. Criticizing newspapers which presented editorials on their front pages during the Ontario election campaign, he attributed Liberal defeat in yesterday's election to the Star and added:

"Other papers replying to the Star and presenting editorials on their front pages last night have struck a similar blow at the Progressive Conservative candidates if such practices had continued for another week. People just want the facts, unbiased facts. They don't want the truth varnished and they resent being told what to do."

A. A. Branch Invites Public To Hear Talks

On Sunday afternoon the Belleville branch of Alcoholics Anonymous is holding its annual meeting in Richard Ivey Centre which the public is invited. Two special speakers from Toronto will address the meeting.

The unique organization is not, in any sense a secret fraternity although the names of its members are never publicized for obvious reasons.

Its technique, however, is simple. It is an organization that uses its efforts to assist in rehabilitating the individual who finds himself powerless to win a battle against alcohol by himself.

There are no membership tags in the A.A. There are no pledges, fees or other "strings." The only requirement is an honest effort and sincere desire to stop drinking.

Each year the city branch of this organization sponsors an open-to-the-public meeting for the purpose of informing those interested of the educational and instructional phases of its programs. These are used in need of the assistance of the organization, and those interested in public welfare are cordially invited to attend.

Special Service

The A.A. It, is stated, has graduated to a specialized form of service from which the members assist each other as well as others of those who need their help. There is no class distinction. People of all walks of life rub shoulders in an effort to become better citizens of themselves. It is approved by medical, clergy and legal authorities as well as various government authorities.

Crown results say that 23 per cent are helped permanently after one attempt; another 23 per cent are "permanents" after the second try and a fair number the balance are given assistance toward a better abode-lic education.

The seamen, who arrived here today, lived on fish caught with crude lines and rain water collected in strips of canvas.

The roof, which brought them to the middle of the South China Sea, broke completely from the ship when she foundered.

They were picked up by an Italian freighter which brought them here.

Russia Protests Violation Of Siberian Border

Washington, Nov. 23—(AP) — Russia has protested to the United States that an American plane violated the Siberian border. A note from Moscow said the plane was fired on by Soviet fighter craft.

This was learned today, and may explain a Moscow press announcement of the decoration of two Soviet Navy fliers for outstanding performance of their service duties.

The circumstances paralleled the awards given Soviet fliers who shot down an American Navy Privateer plane early last year.

While there was no official comment on the matter, it was learned that Russia filed the protest Nov. 7.

On that date, Hugh Cumming, who is in charge of the U.S. embassy in Moscow in the absence of Ambassador Alan G. Kirk, was called in for an interview with Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

Neither Moscow nor the state department disclosed at the time the subject of the interview.

However, it was learned the Russian note was presented then.

Persons familiar with the matter said Cumming charged that an American plane deliberately crossed the border in the area of Vladivostok, that it was tracked and fired upon by Soviet fighters, and was last seen disappearing toward the sea.

These persons did not say the date of the alleged border violation.

Vladivostok is Russia's great naval base on the Pacific Ocean coast, Siberia adjoins Korea.

The Russians are understood to have reported to the U.S. plane was of the reconnaissance type.

Mossadegh Given Hero's Welcome On Return Home

Tehran, Nov. 23 (CP)—Premier Mossadegh received a hero's welcome when he returned to Iran today from a fruitless mission to Washington and a triumphal trip to Cairo.

A frenzied welcome reached a hysterical pitch when a man tried to throw himself under the wheels of the premier's car in a "sacrifice." Police saved him.

Police estimated that 250,000 persons thronged the airport to greet the frail Nationalist leader, whose government is facing a financial crisis threatening the country with bankruptcy.

The city put under strict military guard to foil any attempt to stage a revolt against Mossadegh's regime, under growing criticism at home for failure to solve the financial crisis stemming from Iran's nationalization of her oil resources.

The frail premier appeared wan and worn from his mission of the past six weeks.

In Cairo, Mossadegh had urged Egypt and Iran to work closer together in a joint fight against "British imperialism." During his Cairo stay he and Premier Mustapha El Nahas Pasha of Egypt decided to begin talks about tighter economic and cultural pacts between the two countries.

(A Reuters dispatch from Cairo said Egypt has agreed to buy Iranian oil.)

Election Sidelights

(By The Canadian Press)

Agriculture Minister Kennedy who was premier for six months, succeeding George Drew, was returned to his Peel riding. First elected to the legislature in 1919, this was his eighth successful election.

W. M. Nickle, son of W. F. Nickle, attorney-general in the Ferguson government in the 1920s, retained his Kingston seat for the Progressive Conservatives.

A blizzard swept Algoma-Manitoulin riding, east of Sault Ste. Marie, leaving both the voters and election workers trying to send in returns from remote areas.

Campbell Calder, Liberal member of the last legislature for Lennox and a candidate for the Liberal leadership a year ago, went down to defeat by John P. Roberts, Progressive Conservative.

Ari. Child, Progressive Conservative candidate for Wentworth and a famed Hamilton "tiger" hockey goaltender, was playing a tie game at one point in the night with 25 of 175 polls reported, he and J. L. Eaton, CCF candidate each had 3,075 votes. Child finished the scoring efforts of the CCF however, and won the riding from Mr. Easton, former member.

One of the most prominent residents of Ottawa East stayed away from the polls yesterday — Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent. While he occupies the official residence at 24 Sussex Street in Ottawa, the Prime Minister is a resident of Quebec City where he maintains his permanent residence. His office reported the Prime Minister did not consider himself a voter in the riding of Ottawa.

Blizzards swept across Sudbury riding in the evening, delaying returns from outlying areas. An unofficial report from stormy, in Haldimand-Norfolk riding where heavy rain was reported across the southern Ontario district.

The highly-regarded speaker of the House of Commons, Hon. W. Ross Davis was re-elected in Windsor-Walkerville, an Austrian stronghold. Hon. Davis, former minister of RCAF chaplain service during the Second World War and was first elected in 1945. He was appointed speaker in 1949.

Here's one for the election books. Aurele Chartrand, Liberal retained his Ottawa East seat in the Ontario legislature by polling exactly as many votes as his two rivals. He had 10,503 against 3,326 for Gerald Verner, Progressive Conservative, and 1,225 for Henry Robert, CCF.

Toronto St. Andrew re-elected Labor - Progressive (communist) candidate J. B. Salsberg, he was also elected to municipal members in the last legislature, and was one of six candidates put up by his party.

Farquhar Oliver, 47, leader of the Liberal party from 1947-50 and House Liberal leader in the last two sessions, was defeated in Grey South. He was first elected in Grey South, in 1926 and was public works and welfare minister from 1941-43.

In Lindsay, Premier Frost's wife, Mrs. Jessie Frost will have her husband at home than campaigning, told reporters: "Next time, we'll let someone else do the running." The premier replied:

"Every election she says the same thing."

LIBERAL

In approving the good-government program of Premier Frost —in a sharp six-week campaign he made one promise—the Conservatives reiterated that put forward by Walter C. Thomson, leader of the Liberal party. Mr. Thomson's pledge was to win election himself, promised more social services of all kinds, including a contributory hospital-care plan and a greater industrial expansion.

Mr. Thomson, who accepted defeat with the remark: "there will always be another day" became his campaign for election almost as soon as he was elected governor, two years ago. He made 159 political and 87 non-political speeches in 13 months and 12 days in almost every part of the province. He retained his seat in the Commons, where he represented Oshawa, until last month.

An issue in the campaign, sharp, sometimes bitter throughout, was the part played by the Toronto Star. The paper campaigned vigorously supported Mr. Thomson and his policies. Results of the paign brew was such that it drew both CCF and Progressive Conservative fire. Complaint was made that the paper and Mr. Thomson had made a "deal." These were denied.

First Campaign

For Premier Frost, 56-year-old Lindsay lawyer, this was his first campaign as party leader. He took over in 1949 the provincial mantle doffed by George Drew when the latter became national head of the party.

In winning his first election with a resounding majority he proved himself a better votegetter than such political greats in other years as Sir Oliver Mowat, premier in 1896 and viewed as one of the Liberal party's greatest leaders, and Sir James Whitney, Conservative premier from 1905 to 1914.

Mr. Thomson's immediate plans were not disclosed. If he wishes to lead his party in the house, one of his seven-man band must resign his seat to open up a seat for a byelection. Or Paul Martin, CCF leader has been Liberal house leader and was re-elected yesterday in Grey South, could continue in that opposition.

The problem of a house leader for the C.C.F. forces was not as pressing. It seemed likely that W. Ross Macdonald, leader of the Canarse South, would provide the needed leadership. The other C.C.F. member is T. D. Thomas of Oshawa, vistor over Mr. Thomson who ran a poor third in the 1949 candidate field in Ontario riding.

Of particular interest to political historians was the knock-out by the socialist C.C.F. of the 17 seats in the Toronto area, which is the province's most densely-populated sections, all but one went to Progressive Conservative candidates.

The exception was Toronto St. Andrew where the Labor-Progressive (communist) candidate, Joseph Salesberg, was re-elected. His majority was pared from almost 5,000 in 1949 to 1,300 more than 1,300 in 1951. In neighboring Toronto Bellwoods, A. MacLeod, the Labor-Progressive leader, lost to a Progressive Conservative.

Proved Insufficient

Labor support for the C.C.F. forces in industrial ridings proved insufficient to stem the Progressive Conservative tide. In the Windsor area, the CCF-backed United Automobile Workers Union (CIO-CCL) had urged by its leaders to vote as a bloc for Labor's "political arm". The vote in Essex South proved a test of a major union's power to direct its rank and file vote.

Mr. Jolliffe attributed his party's crushing defeat to "lack of a political issue" in the campaign. The C.C.F.'s percentage of the popular vote was 31 per cent in 1948 compared with 19 per cent in 1951. It got only five per cent of the vote in Essex-Centre and failed to run a candidate—in its first serious bid for political power in Sudbury.

In contrast, the Liberals' percentage increased from 29 in the last election, when it ran 23 candidates to the legislature, to 31 yesterday—when it returned only seven men.

Veterans of the Liberal party fared badly in the election yesterday. Harry Nixon was returned in Brant but no candidate was represented in the legislature since 1919. Mr. Oliver was successful in Grey South, which first sent him to the House in 1926. W. J. Hoodless of Niagara Falls is back. Windsor's Mayor Arthur J. Reaume—a newcomer to the legislature—defeated the sole C.C.F.'s Gordon B. Ellis in Essex North.

Indicative of the setback to the C.C.F. was the loss of three seats to in Industrial Hamilton. All went in to the Progressive Conservatives, one of whom is Ari Child, well-known hockey goalie, who captured Hamilton-Wentworth.

Entire Cabinet Returned

Highways Minister Doucett learned of his re-election in Lanark as he lay in hospital in Ottawa. The minister suffered a broken thigh and other serious injuries in an automobile accident Nov. 8. He will be away from his desk for a considerable time.

The trend to the Progressive Conservatives was apparent almost as soon as the polls closed at 7 p.m. EST. The re-election of the government was indicated at 8:27 p.m. in the Canadian Press trend analysis and from then on, it was clear that Premier Frost had a landslide.

A jubilant Premier Frost accepted the verdict of the electorate with what he termed in a broadcast "a feeling of great humility." He appealed to all parties to "join together, regardless of how we voted in the past, in order that we may as a united people face the challenges and complexities of today."

Still to be tabulated is the vote of Ontarians with the forces overseas or on duty in Canada's overseas. An estimated 5,000 were eligible to vote. Some with the 27th Brigade in Germany or 27th Brigade troops still in Canada and others in Germany. Official result is expected to be announced in about 10 days.

A Quiet Election

It was one of the "quietest" elections held in several years, according to veteran observers. Returning officer Reg Bryan called victory in the Progressive Conservative headquarters while naturally the Liberal and CCF top spots were glum following what was one of a crushing defeat.

Victory demonstrations were anti-climactic following the news early in the evening that a Conservative victory was assured. Only a few hundred Liberals at the county buildings, Chief Returning Officer Bryan's premises and his staff leaned back and rested a few minutes until the count with all polls reported in. It constituted something of a record, it was stated. There were no demonstrations and the headquarters was devoid of spectators. The room was cleared by 10.30.

The same situation was apparent in Madoc. Heavy defeat of Liberal Don Saunders was conceded early in the evening apparently took the edge off any celebrations by Conservatives. Voters took the situation as being the-best-for-all-concerned of the "old days."

Mr. Sandercock in a brief victory statement said that the people of Ontario had stated their views "in a democratic manner. The efficient government under the leadership of Premier Frost will be retained. I was vindicated in the sweeping victory throughout by a crushing electorate," Mr. Sandercock said. He paid tribute to the party organization, and voiced his wholehearted appreciation for the help rendered by those who in his successful effort as a "second-termer" in the Ontario government.

"It was much better than we expected," Mr. Sandercock remarked, following the announcement of his victory. "It was a very overwhelming victory one that was much more decisive than the last."

Mr. Robson was given a fine reception as returning officer declares of his riding with Deseronto especially turning out to welcome the Conservative candidate. He visited Tweed, and Madoc among other centres and in each place received loyal welcomes. Deseronto he was met by a band and a large group of supporters.

Public Interest High

Public interest in the election was as high as usual. A battery of telephones in the newsroom of this newspaper rang in a consistent flow of calls from 7:30 till eleven o'clock. Operators at the Bell Telephone Company gave splendid service in relaying calls from all parts of the city and district to this office and their work was no small contribution to the efficiency and despatch with which the calling public was notified of the returns.

There were no public demonstrations in Picton where Norris Whitney, former warden of the county, was returned victorious over Don Baxter, Liberal. Mr. Whitney visited Napanee and other parts of his constituency to express his appreciation of the support of the electorate.

Congressman Critical Of British Attitude

Strasbourg, France, Nov. 23— (Reuters) — A United States congressman today hit out at Britain for her negative attitude towards European unity.

He urged Europe—and Britain in particular—to "get down to brass tacks and do this job of European unity."

Congressman Howard Worth Cenn, Va., said he had come to Strasbourg to hear how European unity could be achieved. But the American and European parties were much in evidence. During the night the cold forces made some strides as the first serious snowfall of the winter began to drop this morning marked the arrival of the Arctic breezes.

The surprise attack of the tropical currents, suggested yesterday, has been driven off a temporary retreat by the cold. The polar forces held the line, giving no opportunity for a breakthrough.

"It now appears that the polar forces will hold the northernmost line off to the south, providing a cool, cloudy afternoon with some light snow. Other storms will, however, develop along the southern edge line today and tonight and the chances of one breaking through the line is certainly not beyond the realm of possibility."

Toronto, Nov. 23 — (CP) — Weather for tomorrow afternoon's Grey Cup football game probably will be cloudy and cool with some light snow, the public weather office said today.

The forecast Saturday morning: Cloudy with occasional snow. Winds overnight.

Here is the special Grey Cup "communique," fourth of a series:

"The cold-polar versus warm-tropical battle fought over the past week is much in evidence. During the night the cold forces made some strides as the first serious snowfall of the winter began to drop this morning marked the arrival of the Arctic breezes.

THE ONTARIO ELECTION

The Ontario general election held Thursday has resulted in a sweeping victory for Hon. Leslie Frost and his Progressive Conservatives.

The Progressive Conservatives not only retained nearly all the seats they held at the time the legislature was dissolved; they made significant gains from both the Liberals and Co-operative Commonwealth Federation.

The Frost government's victory was in some degree a tribute to Leslie Frost himself. During the fifteen years or thereabouts which he has spent in politics, he has been involved in no unsavory episodes. His conduct, in the legislature, on the public platform and in private life has set an example that others might well follow.

The victories scored in Hastings West by Elmer Sandercock, and in Hastings East by Elmer Robson were not only a tribute to the government with which they voted in the legislature; they were a tribute to these two men themselves. Both have served their constituencies well. The voters have returned to power the good service which each has given to the people of Hastings county.

Probably the most convincing argument which Mr. Frost used in telling the people of Ontario that he was the man to head their government for another four or five years was that Ontario was the lowest taxed, per capita, of any of the Canadian provinces. During the eight years in which he has been provincial treasurer, he also mentioned more than once, Ontario has had a balanced budget every year. At the same time, the services which Ontario's government has given to its people have been at least as good as those provided by any of the other provincial government, and superior to most.

The Ontario Liberals, it would seem, we believe, was due partly to the type of campaigning in which Mr. Thomson indulged himself. Mr. Thomson, we believe, made far too many extravagant and unrealistic promises.

The dismal failure of the CCF to achieve the showing its leaders predicted was only a small part of an international trend away from all forms of socialism. Leftists were given an opportunity to make good their promises in Great Britain, New Zealand, Australia and elsewhere and have been rejected in each. Their ability to maintain themselves in Saskatchewan is probably due to the fact that a large number of the people there are of non-British and non-French ancestry and have had little experience in democracy as it is understood either in western Europe or in North America.

Some parts of the world have never had good government. By comparison with some other parts of the world, Ontario has never had anything but good government. Ontario's entire history has been a history of growth, expansion and prosperity. The growth of Ontario's industrial power in recent years has placed this great province's industrial capacity within sight of, if not actually equal to, that of such great states as Michigan and Ohio.

The election is over. Let us all forget the bickerings which accompanied it and unite to see that our vast province continues in the future as it has in the past to lead the rest of Canada in progress and development.

The new Frost government, like the old one, will represent all the people of Ontario, work for them and serve them. As Hon. Leslie Frost said when he was in Belleville only a few days ago: "I want to do the best I can for you all."

We believe he will do just that.

MORE FOLK, LESS FOOD

According to the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization, the world's population has increased 12 per cent since before the war, but the world's food supply has increased by nine per cent during the same time.

Before the war, the food supply was sufficient to provide an average of 2,380 calories per head per day. Today's production will supply an average of only 2,260 calories per day per head.

The experts who know all about such matters say that 2,260 calories is "enough to sustain life, but not enough to encourage physical or mental activity."

It is thus apparent that, even if the world's food supply were distributed absolutely equally, on a per capita basis, there still would be not enough.

FOR EUROPEAN DEFENCE

Hon. Brooke Claxton, Canada's minister of national defence, who is at present on a trip to Europe, turned up at Rotterdam, Holland, the other day to help greet the Canadian 27th Infantry Brigade on its arrival there.

After the Canadian infantrymen had been welcomed to Europe by General Eisenhower, Mr. Claxton made a speech. In his speech, Mr. Claxton disclosed that Canada has sent or is sending enough army to Europe to equip five Eurcrean divisions, also that Canada plans to build "four or five" airfields in Europe at a cost of "about one hundred million dollars."

MY COUNTRY

What can be offered by our foes
Exc...ing all that we possess?
Where round the world are fewer woes
And more of unchecked happiness?

What Godless country can display
So many homes and temples fair?
How could a man our land betray
Who once had breathed its wholesome air?

What is there under tyrant might
That men can think of, hear or see,
That can surpass the precious right
Of living as a people free?

Some thinking strange I understand
And can be patient with, but Woe
Who would destroy our glorious land
Are foes of God and freedom's foes.

That the Frankford Fair dates back to the year 1838 was learned by the large gathering which attended the Armistice supper given by the Sidney and Frankford Agricultural Society at Frankford. The supper, which was given in an address given by Lieut. Col. Ponton of Belleville, who from his archaeological store was able to present to the officials of the Fair Board letter authorizing the Sheriff to conduct an agricultural fair or mart at Frankford in 1838, the first year of Her Majesty's reign. The letter was signed by Sir George Arthur, Lieutenant Governor and by the then Attorney General, W. A. Najer-man. This is probably the oldest agricultural fair in the parchment proclamation that is to be found in Ontario. The next date which Col. Ponton has been able to find is the authority for holding the Agricultural Fairs or Marts at Tweed and Shannonville in 1856. The above article named above was Allan MacDonell.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In observing one another's behavior these days, it is kindly of us to remember that no generation since the days of the Greeks has been so subjected as ours to arts and crafts of the drama. Movies, radio, television, and the endlessly illuminated popular magazines are not merely squeezing the stuffings out of us with conceivable dramatic situation of life, but they are being served up so liberally that hardly a human being is left in the land who is not being subjected to a course of drama. Only a generation ago, you had to read books for it. The theatre offered it to a very limited clientele.

Therefore, if we detect amongst your family and friends an inclination to dramatize themselves, you must admit that it is only natural. Real life was always duller than the novel, even in Grandma's day. That is why novels were popular. Real life is enormously duller than the movie, radio and television dramas that are everyday fare for the mass of mankind today, and if you think for a min-popular magazines.

ute that all those crowds sitting in the dark of movie houses all over the country aren't going a long quiet itching, then you have a very impressionable human organization. If all the millions who all brooding in their humdrum living rooms weren't full of live, blood and thunder booms from their radios and television set by it, then indeed we are clods.

It could be that the unrest and disturbance of the world by it, then indeed we are clods.

It could be that the unrest and disturbance of the world by it, then indeed we are clods might be in some measure the result of this infusion, this saturation of our generation with drama. The deep inner disturbances of nations has often resulted in disturbances up our the top level of rule and of government. If this generation's disturbance comes of a desire for drama, we are certainly getting it up at the top.

We may confidently say, then, that peace and quiet will descend upon the earth when nobody goes to the movies any more, nobody listens to radio or looks at television, and when everybody stops reading the fiendishly illustrated popular magazines.

Hamilton reported broadcasts weren't considered by newspaper coverage and only tended to prolong them.

PRAISE FOR SALLY

It's always a little saddening to discover that an idol has feet of clay.

Most have been a lot of people who, since the days of Hitler, when they read Ernest Hemingway's "Across the River and into the Trees," one of the most banal novels of this or any other century and indeed, a kind of travesty on all the powerful books behind the old giant.

Still, as a man who has long wondered at that shrine, I would forgive Hemingway for this temporary insanity. The man who wrote "A farewell to arms" and "The sun also rises" and the Short Happy life of Francis Macomber" and "The snows of Kilimanjaro" can be forgiven anything.

I'm bound to report, however, that my ardor cooled another swift 10 degrees when I came across Hemingway's latest gem in which his description of a bottle of ale.

You'll doubtless have seen this in the cold, cold pages of Life Magazine, big enough to shelter a wandering tribe of Bedouins. It's devoted to Hemingway's tribute to the purity, body and flavor of Hemingway's pet drink, Bass, ale, by F. Ballantine & Sons.

Like "Across the River, etc." Hemingway's tribute to Bass ale is a dreadful parody of the style and strength of his writing in the days when he had it, but it is better than anybody.

"We keep it iced in the bald here with chunks of ice packed around it," he writes, hurrying, perhaps to get an advertising agency's deadline, "And you ought to taste it on a hot day when you have worked up a real thirst. Because there were sharks after him."

I suppose Mr. H. is hot for the buck, like any lesser man, but some of the greatest writers in the world when he becomes a short order cook and I grieve that my own hero has sold out.

You Believe It?

The testimonial type of advertising, on the whole, is becoming a pretty ludicrous affair.

In the latest one Hemingway's seduction by the hucksters we had Henry Morton Robinson, author of best-selling "The Cardinal" ballyhooing for Ballantine's "In tensions generated by modern life begin in fantasy, so whenever I pluck a dewy-cold bottle of Ballantine Ale at the refrigerator." Who's next? Thomas Mann?

What disturbs me is that nine out of ten of these are fraudulent. Behind each is the mechanics of making a business deal with a famous personality, timed with the release of a new picture or book on the you-scratch-my-back-I'll-scratch-yours theory.

But that interests me somewhat less than the reader response.

Does any reader really believe that Igor Cassini says "Heubleins Cocktails are the pot of the smart set"? Or that Lauren Bacall says "I love to sup a man smoke a Canadian Club"? Or that Pearl Buck says Chesterfields "is the only one with the Big Flue"? Or that Patrice Munsel says, softness between Brady the international quack and Brady the follower of Hippocrates. We comprehend upon the following:

A feeling of fatigue, heaviness and stiffness in the legs, with areas of tingling, pricking or crawly sensations; tenderness of the main nerve trunks and especially tenderness upon pressure on calf muscles; burning sensation in the soles of the feet and numbness of back of foot and ankle; weakness in legs, becoming so great after a short walk that the legs collapse.

And that, says Hippocrates firmly, is as far as we can go. But there's no good reason why we can't discuss, among ourselves, what the poor lad who finds himself in possession of such symptoms should do about it, is there, Hip?

First, of course, he or she should consult a physician. If the physician you select is one who brings customers along with such palpable hokum as "neuritis," "neuralgia," "rheumatism," "run down condition," "need of a tonic" and the like without stirring off his fat behind sufficiently to make a proper examination, that's your hard luck.

Then you consult the physician there's no reason why you should not inquire, if necessary, whether your trouble can possibly be mild beriberi? If the doctor resents the proud inquiry by lathing at your foolish notion you will know at once that there is no sense in your need medical care. On the other hand, if the doctor has spent more than 30 years behind the progress of medicine he will give the matter due thought or accidental beriberi careful consideration in the diagnosis and treatment of any such case.

Still, ordinary citizens, like the have their personal problems and famous, seem quite willing to have their personal problems used for the advertising agencies.

I note, for example, that Mrs. Dorothy Spalding, of Detroit, is willing to tell the world about her very oily skin and a Miss Kit Robertson, out of Vancouver, does not consider it a confidential matter to tell of her difficulties with her best-selling "Canada," also in the interests of somebody's medicated cream.

But in this strange and unreal place, the world of the advertisers, and I hate to see a great writer like Hemingway in those crowded latitudes.

ALONE

Children often cry out in the night because they are afraid of being alone. As grown-ups, the fear of being alone does not diminish for many of us.

One reason why we do not like to be left alone is because we hate to face ourselves as we really are, and the worst thing about facing ourselves as we really are, is the fact that we are confronted with which can perhaps make us pretty miserable. We think of what we might have been and of what we are. We think of the kind act left undone and the opportunity gone forever to serve a loved one. We are oppressed with the realization that some moral weakness pathway.

is eating away at our lives, destroying our happiness, and rendering us unfit for the spiritual destiny we are sure God meant us to be here.

Conscience is a terrible result in every human life. The way to deal with it is by confession and repentance. Some people have driven it down into the sodden of a bad conscience all their lives. They don't seem to realize the happiness that is waiting for them. There is no source of joy so deep as that which comes from the discovery of evil and the realization that the wrong doing of the past has been wiped out by forgiveness, restitution, and the determination to follow a different

ENDEMIC AMERICN BERIBERI

For several days have been debating with myself whether to express my many heretical symptoms that I have given in the past. A debate, you might say, between Brady the international quack and Brady the follower of Hippocrates. We comprehend upon the following:

A feeling of fatigue, heaviness and stiffness in the legs, with areas of tingling, pricking or crawly sensations; tenderness of the main nerve trunks and especially tenderness upon pressure on calf muscles; burning sensation in the soles of the feet and numbness of back of foot and ankle; weakness in legs, becoming so great after a short walk that the legs collapse.

And that, says Hippocrates firmly, is as far as we can go. But there's no good reason why we can't discuss, among ourselves, what the poor lad who finds himself in possession of such symptoms should do about it, is there, Hip?

First, of course, he or she should consult a physician. If the physician you select is one who brings customers along with such palpable hokum as "neuritis," "neuralgia," "rheumatism," "run down condition," "need of a tonic" and the like without stirring off his fat behind sufficiently to make a proper examination, that's your hard luck.

Then you consult the physician there's no reason why you should not inquire, if necessary, whether your trouble can possibly be mild beriberi? If the doctor resents the proud inquiry by lathing at your foolish notion you will know at once that there is no sense in your need medical care. On the other hand, if the doctor has spent more than 30 years behind the progress of medicine he will give the matter due thought or accidental beriberi careful consideration in the diagnosis and treatment of any such case.

The prevention amelioration, relief, correction and cure of beriberi, mild or severe, accidental or oriental, acute or subacute, is essentially the problem of subsisting on an adequate diet—adequate in the sense that it supplies not only fair proportions of protein, fat and carbohydrate but also the minimum daily requirements of vitamins and minerals necessary for normal health, growth and functional efficiency.

In this country the beriberi that prevent, relieve or cure beriberi is to exclude refined white flour and polished white rice from the diet and use instead only freshly ground whole wheat flour (send stamped self-addressed envelope for pamphlet on how to do) and crude or "raw" brown sugar or its cruder sugar cane. Blackstrap molasses made in the open kettle way—not the stuff commonly sold as "molasses" from the sugar refinery. This revision of the diet would bring the daily intake of vitamin B from the present inadequate fraction of a milligram to something like the 2 milligrams the American diet of yesterday supplied.

Merely supplementing the inadequate diet of most Americans with vitamin B complex concentrate, and supplementing even the revised diet in like manner, especially desirable when complete revision of the inadequate diet is difficult or impracticable. In the Wheat to Eat pamphlet I tell how to do this.

Please remember, knuckleheads, that revision of the diet and the daily ration of B complex is not something to "try" for a week or a month. It is plumb silly to expect that improving your diet for a month or a year will keep you fit for the rest of your life. The suggestions I offer are not available only if followed from now on. If you have been living on sugar your body you may as well sit back and enjoy your beriberi.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Hump on Nose

At age of 9 I suffered a fracture of the nose. Nothing was done for it and it left me 16 i. have a hump. How much would it cost to have this corrected? (Miss E. S.)

Answer—I'm sorry I can't tell you what it will cost. Best course is to ask your own doctor to refer you to a surgeon known to recommend a plastic surgeon. That way you are less likely to run into a fake or a charlatan who would overcharge you.

Unhappy Baby

Answer—Perhaps the dimsli is unduly influenced by the prodigious amount of propaganda handed out over the home via radio and television. The notion that beer "strengthens" any one in any circumstance is indeed a beery one.

FRANKFORD

District Governor Visits Lions Club

Frankford—The Lions Club of Frankford held their regular bi-monthly meeting in the community hall on Wednesday evening, with a fair attendance. It was a big night for the club, with Deputy District Governor Lion Kenneth Gray, of Canaoque, the guest speaker for the evening.

Following the opening of the meeting Lions and guests sat down to a bountiful repast of venison donated by Lion Oscar Empey, prepared by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Legion.

The Lions enjoyed a treat in the way of entertainment, as the quartet from the United Church choir, featuring Ernie Wallace, Frank Terry, Harry Slingerland and Al Sindlemyer, favored with several musical selections, with Lion Holt Madill presiding at the piano.

Congratulations were extended to Lion Art Duncan, who has been appointed to the office of Chairman in Zone 11 West. This is indeed an honor to the Frankford Lions Club to have a member in this office, particularly, as competition is very high. Knowing Lion Art's capabilities in conducting meetings, and in elocution, it can be assured that he will handle his new office in a manner which will be a credit to Lionism.

Guest Speaker

Guest speaker, Lion Kenneth Gray, brought an informative and inspirational talk, outlining the manner in which Lionism first came to be. He paid tribute to the pioneers in the Lions Club International organization, and gave the Lions a few pointers in the way in which members of the club were expected to conduct themselves. On completion of his address he was warmly applauded.

President Preston Chase declared the meeting adjourned shortly after eight o'clock, and all who departed from the hall left with a deeper appreciation for Lionism.

France Is Irked By Egypt's Slap At Morocco Rule

Paris, Nov. 23 (AP) — France walked out of the United Nations' trusteeship committee today in protest against an Egyptian speech blasting French control of Morocco.

Egyptian delegate Fouad El Pharaony attacked France in the committee meeting for refusing to give Morocco its independence.

At this, French delegate Leon Pignon and his staff of advisers left the room, after insisting that the committee has no right to discuss political matters.

The Moroccan question was not on the agenda of the committee, although the Arab countries have indicated they will seek to place it before the general assembly.

The Egyptian remarks were made during a speech on information reports from governments responsible for trust territories and other non-self - governing areas.

A French motion to adjourn the discussion on the ground that the committee has no right to decide such a question was defeated 24 to 17, with four countries abstaining. The majority was made up mostly of Latin American, communist and Arab countries.

Plan Resale Price Maintenance Practices be Ended Attacked By Canadian Retail Federation

Ottawa, Nov. 23—(CP)—A proposal that resale price maintenance practices be abolished was attacked by the Canadian Retail Federation today on the grounds that such a move "could undermine the basis of Canadian democracy."

The federation, in a brief presented to parliament's special committee on retail price-fixing, said the MacQuarrie recommendation against price maintenance would:

1. Restrict competition.
2. Raise distribution costs.
3. Abolish a principle of freedom that a man may offer his goods or his services to whom he pleases.

The proposal already has been attacked and condemned by Canadian beauty aid manufacturers and druggists.

Today the retail federation urged the parliamentary committee to reject "this dangerous recommendation" against a practice which has "done much to maintain the position of the small retailer in this country."

Though only a minority of products were sold under prices predetermined by manufacturers and suppliers, resale price maintenance had a stabilizing effect on the economy.

Minimum resale prices also tended to become maximum prices. Consumers had the assurance they would not be subjected to excessive prices that might otherwise be charged in areas where distributors might have a monopoly.

Moreover a manufacturer who put inventive genius, production skill and promotional advertising into an article should have some protection against the possibility that his reputation could be debased by lost leader selling at a low cost.

The federation argued that the MacQuarrie committee created a "basic misconception" when it stated in its report that resale price maintenance, to be effective, must be enforced by a "private system of law."

Banks Can Close On Saturdays If They Wish

Ottawa, Nov. 23 (CP) —The Commons yesterday approved legislation to allow Canada's banks to close on Saturdays if they want to.

Third reading was given a bill authorizing the banks to operate only five days a week. Should they close Saturdays the bill provides that notes falling due on that Saturday shall be considered due on the next day of business—Monday.

The measure now goes to the Senate for approval.

The Canadian Bankers Association, which sought the change in the bills of exchange under which Canada's chartered banks operate, has said that the amendment will not mean that all banks in Canada will close on Saturdays.

The association said in submissions to the finance department that it personally is given for Saturday closings, it will be implemented only where it does not interfere with the ordinary carrying out of business.

The association operated banks will not "take advantage of the situation" and though they did not, branch banks will be satisfied the five day week. It probably will only be certain branches of banks in the larger cities. Other branches would remain open on Saturdays in these cities to do ordinary business.

The association spokesman said the association sought the amendment mainly for banks in Toronto and Vancouver where lack of staff has made things difficult.

FRANKFORD

District Governor Visits Lions Club

Frankford—The Lions Club of Frankford held their regular bi-monthly meeting in the community hall on Wednesday evening, with a fair attendance. It was a big night for the club, with Deputy District Governor Lion Kenneth Gray, of Canaoque, the guest speaker for the evening.

Following the opening of the meeting Lions and guests sat down to a bountiful repast of venison donated by Lion Oscar Empey, prepared by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Legion.

The Lions enjoyed a treat in the way of entertainment, as the quartet from the United Church choir, featuring Ernie Wallace, Frank Terry, Harry Slingerland and Al Sindlemyer, favored with several musical selections, with Lion Holt Madill presiding at the piano.

Honored Guest

Another honored guest for the evening, was Scout Earl Rogers, who was honored recently by the Governor General of Canada. Lion Arnold Sickels told about trip to the capital city, and the events which took place there. Scout Earl was the Lions an opportunity to see the Silver Cup which he had received.

Congratulations were extended to Lion Art Duncan, who has been appointed to the office of Chairman in Zone 11 West. This is indeed an honor to the Frankford Lions Club to have a member in this office, particularly, as competition is very high. Knowing Lion Art's capabilities in conducting meetings, and in elocution, it can be assured that he will handle his new office in a manner which will be a credit to Lionism.

Guest Speaker

Guest speaker, Lion Kenneth Gray, brought an informative and inspirational talk, outlining the manner in which Lionism first came to be. He paid tribute to the pioneers in the Lions Club International organization, and gave the Lions a few pointers in the way in which members of the club were expected to conduct themselves. On completion of his address he was warmly applauded.

President Preston Chase declared the meeting adjourned shortly after eight o'clock, and all who departed from the hall left with a deeper appreciation for Lionism.

GAMBLING CLEANUP

Singapore—(Reuters)— Juvenile roadside gamblers—youngsters between 13 and 16 years old—who bet on "invisible" horse races "wheels and "wheels of fortune," in Singapore's busy streets and crowded alleyways are being cleaned up by the police.

George Wishart Gives Excellent Travelogue

A number of Canadians became better acquainted with the beauties of their country at the Good Companions' meeting on Tuesday evening.

Mr. George Wishart, of the Dominion Parasite Laboratory, showed excellent slides of his trip through England and other parts of Europe.

As the images appeared on the screen, Mr. Wishart gave his audience the background details. He visited the old Cathedral, that you felt as if you were viewing with Mr. Wishart, the beautiful lilies in the garden, the rhododendron growing wild in the English countryside; the magnificent interior of St. Paul's Cathedral. You helped to feed the pigeons in Trafalgar Square and watched the changing of the Horse Guards at Whitehall. You stood in thoughtful reverie before an old Roman wall, you traversed Princess Street in Edinburgh in Scotland and you felt there was no prettier street in the world. You crossed the channel and saw the Eiffel Tower in Paris.

In Berne you noticed vegetation planted on old coal piles. In Amsterdam you saw more bicycles than you had ever seen in any one place at any one time in Asbury Park, watched cheeses being marketed. In Stockholm, Copenhagen and Oslo you were delighted with the beauty of the cities. And, everywhere you went, you were filled with admiration for the people of these countries, who were certainly an industrious people as evidenced in the appearance of their homes and land and you found time to build and attend sports houses, music halls, and other cultural centres.

Mr. Wishart is to be congratulated on the fine and varied set of pictures he acquired during his trip.

Harold McNish expressed the thanks of the club to Mr. Wishart.

The business meeting, conducted by president, Lew Andrews, and refreshments, brought the evening to a close.

Nursery School Amazes Parents

London (CP)—A model nursery school, feature of a "new schools" exhibit here, was an eye-opener to parents and educationists.

Every detail was in harmony and everything was fitted to a child's size and strength.

The children were filled with a small coat-rack, miniature wash-basins and towel rails. The classroom walls were covered with gay murals, and all shelves and cupboards were placed at the right height for children under five years of age.

Shining toys on the floor were all carefully chosen to instruct and train the child, while a colored asphalt playground had a sandpit, pool and climbing frame for the more adventurous types.

Tarkington's Comedy 'Clarence' Well Played by Collegiate Actors

By H. T. RANKIN

On Thursday evening, as simple crowd viewed a performance of Booth Tarkington's romantic comedy "Clarence," at Belleville Collegiate Institute. The three-act play was first produced on Broadway in 1919, featuring such famous stars as Mary Boland, Hans Hayes and Alfred Lunt. Written as a commentary on the problems of the veteran of World War I, the drama has come full swing from the post-war era to-day, so soon after World War II, is timely once more.

From the punctual first curtain, throughout four riotous acts, the B.C.I. Drama Club presented an excellent amateur production. The cast, although a comedy, is definitely a major production, and calls for numerous complicated groupings of a large and active cast. This problem was handled with ease by the director, Miss Eva Richardson, and her assistants.

A second major problem in such a long play, was mastered by the principal characters. The action was never permitted to drag, and the lines, following in rapid succession, did not seem one moment too long.

Margaret Wheeler, as "Mrs. Martyn", opened the play and formed the theme played around with the action of the first act revolved.

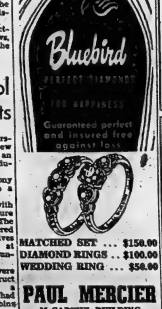
Bruce Smith played a quietly humored "Mr. Wheeler", father of a problem family. In a difficult part for so young an actor, his portrayal was handled most convincing.

The second Mrs. Wheeler was played by Jarka Novak, who gave a remarkably adult performance. Her wonderful use, that of the older women of the cast, was smart, colorful and most attractive.

"Bobby Wheeler", the precocious son of the house, escaped a natural pitfall for the child role of Douglas McIlraith, who fitted the part as though he had been born to it. The brother-sister relationship of Bobby and Cora Wheeler, (played by Marilyn Leonard), was fully projected to the audience by a fine pair of young thespians.

Miss Andrews performance of the lord, Cora, left nothing to be desired. It is hope that the part was not a self-portrait!

Joanne Cameron, as "Violet Pinney", the apex of the Wheeler family triple (or rectangle?), provided the romance of this romantic comedy. The personality of the lovely, attractive young actress was aptly caught.



"Pelle", the pet Irish rabbit, with her convincing brogue, and Dinwiddie, a butler, who outwitted everyone himself, were most adequately played by Joan Doig and Bill Cook.

John Campbell, as "Robert Stew", a villain developed his part to the utmost and portrayed it much to the pace of the play.

I have left the starring role to the last. Such a part is a great opportunity and a something of a responsibility. Bob Langlois, as the veteran mule-skinner-cum-entomologist, good points to the Wheeler family, made the most of his opportunity. In the title role of the play, he ran the gamut from comedy-pathos to slap-stick, from spirited repartee to moonlight and roses. In all phases he was most effective, and gave a better than amateur performance.

The stage sets, particularly the house scene, were charming and featured a very effective landscape background.

Mr. Cooper and his large B.C.I.V.S. band provided excellent entertainment and further brightened a pleasant evening.

Gracious, Big Fans' Return to Fashion

London—(CP)—The inclination of London and Paris dress designers to use the fan with more lace fans,with some of their more exotic gowns is causing fashion writers to recall the "language of the fan."

In the "old days," the fan in a lady's hand spoke a language of its own. If she wished to communicate with gentlemen without speaking, she could do so by judicious use of the fan.

If she were annoyed at something, for instance, a twirl of the fan in the left hand meant "do not speak to me." A warmer message, "I love you," could be conveyed by opening the tip of the shut fan, or its handle, to the heart.

Holding the half-open fan, or its handle to the lips meant "you may kiss me." If the lady wished to talk to the man, she would hold the fan with the fingers and fingers. And if he was neglecting her, she would fan herself very slowly, quick motion.

Fashion writers note this could be a useful method of silent telegraphy—providing the modern male takes the trouble to learn the code.

Frances Hyland Making Good On British Stage

Regina (CP)—Frances Hyland of Regina, 23-year-old actress, never has the proud records of making the jump from Saskatchewan drama festivals to the London stage.

From touring the prairies with university drama groups she has advanced to an important role in "The Winter's Tale", appearing at a theatre of the famous Edinburgh festival.

She stepped into the role of "Perdita" when "Winters Tale" opened at the Lyceum Theatre, owing to the illness of Virginia M. Kenna.

Miss Hyland was assisted by the I.O.D.E. when she went abroad for a two-year course at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art in London. She was discovered there by Daphne Rye, casting director of Tennant Productions, Limited, actress given by the students last year.

After seeing her again in a touring performance of "Deep Are the Roots," Miss Rye engaged her to play "Perdita" in the London production of "A Streetcar Named Desire" with Vivien Leigh.

Advice Given by Anne Heywood On How to Find Suitable Work

By ADELAIDE KERR

New York—(AP)—If you want to find the right job, choose the work that comes naturally to you says Anne Heywood.

She has helped nearly 5,000 persons change careers in 10 years. Heywood's case what came naturally all was a knack for getting the right person into the right spot.

But she herself tried 34 jobs in many different states before she found one career pattern crystallized. Then she launched the career-changing clinic here two and a half years ago, and found herself with so many clients that now she has a group therapy method.

She has interviewed 5,500 people who wanted to change their careers, and says that 87 per cent of them made the change successfully.

What Comes Naturally

Don't she urges, choose your life work because you "majored in mathematics," or a big deal goes with it, or it offers a chance to travel or pays prideful it —

"The secret of finding your life work is doing what comes naturally—as naturally you think everybody can do it," Mrs Miss Heywood. "Ask yourself what you remember easily. The things that stick in your mind are the things you have a natural faculty for doing.

"If, after you have finished a piece of work, you get a terrific feeling of virtue and achievement, you're likely to be doing the wrong work. What you should feel is self-indulgence."

Observation has convinced Miss Heywood everybody has a talent which can be of service to some segment of society, and they can prove it if they keep punching long enough.

Has Written Book

Miss Heywood, an Iowan, has boiled down what she has learned about job problems in a new book "There's a Right Job For Every Woman." She writes a radio and plans a television show. Every time she sits her ideas she is deluged with pleas for help from people who say they hate their work.

"Society seems to be doing everything possible to insure up the natural magnetism by which the thing that's for you is attracted to you," she said. "People are crazed on the subject of doing 'creative work.' They must be writers or editors or lawyers—or at least executives. Kids who are geniuses with machines must get a college degree and then try to make like a bigsiot in business.

"Wives keep husbands at jobs they sate, because they want 'security.' Husbands keep wives in kitchens they hate, because 'women are really happier at home.' There are a lot of displaced persons like this."

Sailor Girls Are Back Again At Moncton

Moncton, N. B.—(CP)—"Bellbottom Annie" is coming back to Moncton about the middle of November with an advance guard of more than 150 Canadian army women recruits, to be stationed at the Corps' communications "base" for a 6-month technical course.

The sailor girls, including Wrens who manned the first naval radio station here during the early the Second World War, had preliminary training at H. M. C. S. Cornwallis, Deep Brook, N. S., the navy's big entry training base.

They come here as trained communications workers.

"It's not like the navy I knew in the war," said Wren Petty Officer Vivian Wright of Victoria, who spent 21 months in the naval service. "It's not going to be a little confusing but it will straighten out shortly.

"We're part of the navy now but not under special regulations like in the old days. Work is work. There's quite a difference."

Only one thing has bothered the girls so far—they never get enough letters, one of the best morale boosters in any service. Once friends and relatives settle down to that there won't be a problem located group of girls anywhere.

NOTE TO THIEVES

Frankfurt, Germany,—(Reuters) —Anti-theft devices are appearing on American-owned cars here saying: "No need to break in—this car is empty." Reason: Berlin's growing habit of leaving car doors unlocked and nothing of value inside the car.

GOOD MANNERS

Ex-engaged girl should bad re-turn gifts . . . and consult with friend

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My engagement has recently been broken, only two months before we were to be married. I had received many shower presents and engagement presents, and several wedding presents. I decided to follow the advice I believe I read in your column and ask the donors if they wished me to return the presents. They all insisted that I keep the presents. I didn't want to keep these presents—I never did want to keep them, for they make me most unhappy to have them in my possession—but now I don't know how to return them. What is your advice?

Margaret S.

No, dear Margaret S.—I have never, never advised that a girl whose engagement has been broken was to ask the donors if they wish to have their presents returned." To me this way-of-doing just does not make sense. And I should think it would always result in the impression you brought about by your question. When the ex-engaged girl says, "Would you like to have me return your present, now my engagement is broken?" I just couldn't imagine the donor saying, "Yes, I would like to have you return it." So of course (be very is for the girl not to ask, but simply to return each present to the giver, with a short note of appreciation for the giver's kindness, and graciously explaining that since the reason for the present no longer exists, the present is being returned. Then the ex-engaged girl has done all she can to right the gift-situation.

For advice to your now? I suggest you return each present with a note reading something like this: "I know you will understand why returning your present. . . . It was meant for an occasion that no longer exists and so I feel I should not keep it. Please do understand, and please do know how deeply I thank you for your dear thought and for your good and generous kindness."

Proper, practical: to put return address on Christmas cards

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper to write one's return address on Christmas cards?

Reader

Yes. It's proper. . . . It's practical . . . it's sensible. . . and it's good insurance for the safe arrival of the cards. The return address may be written or printed in the upper-left corner of the front of the envelope, or on the flap. Or it's a good idea to use stickers printed with the name and address. (P.S.: Christmas-time is the time when most of us get our address-book in up-to-date condition. . . and return address, the latest addresses, are a great help in this.)

How to sign a guest book in private home

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

How should one sign the Guest Book in a private house; specifically, in a country house? I had never encountered this situation until last Sunday. When I was asked to sign, I signed (for example) "Mrs. David" and my husband signed "John Davis" but when we talked it over afterward, we wondered if we should have signed our first names as we don't know the hosts very well and the occasion's tone(ship is still in the "Mr." and "Mrs." stage.

A guest book is an informal social book . . . and you and your husband were absolutely correct in signing your informal names. To have signed your formal names would have been most unsuitably formal.

SCANDINAVIAN CAPITAL

Evening Silhouette

By VERA WINSTON

IDEAL for the more mature figure, a nice choice for a pleasant evening of informal dining and dancing or theatre-going is this model in emerald green tissue faille done in a soft and supple weave. It has a double tiered peplum in front, the loose flowing side panels overlapping the second layer. Other details are an inverted pleat down the front and a jewelled buckle on the tailored self belt.

Fashion Flashes

A MINIMUM of jacket is pretty sure to be coupled with a maximum of skirt these days. Black velvet makes a pretty late-afternoon suit, the brief jacket lined with white satin. It is worn with a white satin blouse. The skirt flares widely from a narrow waist.

SPLENDOR is the theme of some of the evening outfits seen this season. A full-length evening gown of electric yellow brocade is worn with a jet-sad-braid embroidered velvet matador jacket.

DESIGNED specifically for a limited travel wardrobe, are many charming fashions intended for cruise or resort wear. Christian Dior does a dance frock—with halter top and full skirt—in layers of maroon and yellow net. Over it for dinner wear or for outdoors is an instep-length coat dress of Alencon lace in maroon. Coat has a slit-tied sash of yellow moire ribbon, a beautiful color scheme.

MOVING OVER into the field domain is the fitted line, very attractive in the hands of our coat designs. Alaska seal is used for a fitted coat which has curved skirt fullness accented by double bands—one of fur, one of braid—that are worked out from the hipline to the hem. The snug bodice is sleeveless, with very big self buttons, and has a wide-pointed high-placed collar.

IT'S NATURAL that those deep charcoal and dark brown tones, so prevalent in dressier coats and suits just now, should be worn with pale accessories. So the newest hats are in very pale tones —deep off-whites, very pale aquas and grays. A creamy white satin hat, a small bicorne, is embroidered all over with white paillettes and accompanies a deep brown and gold brocade theatre coat.

NOWADAYS we want it to rain so that we can sport handsome raintogs. Adapted from a costly import is a corduroy raincoat with side-buttoned collar and sleeves that unbutton to the elbow.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her husband's in service, overseas

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 19, and have been married for two and a half years. My husband's in the R.A.F. overseas.

I get letters from him twice a week, and lately he has been accused of going with other fellows. Even though he is in service so far away from me, he doesn't want me to go anywhere except to work and back home, nor even to the movies.

He has always told me he loved me, but if he really did, would he pay any attention to stories people tell him about me that are not true? I love him, and I don't want to give him up, but ever since we have been married he has made my life miserable by his jealousy. I tell him he has got to trust me like I trust him. Shall I put up with this situation, or what shall I do?

E.E.C.

Dear E.E.C.:

As you doubtless realize, your problem is one that a great many other young wives have when their husbands in the service. Most of these boys want their wives to continue not to go out with anybody else while they are away, and try to limit their lives unreasonably. It is understandable that they are afraid of becoming a case of "out of sight, out of mind" with their wives, but unfortunate that they can't see that if there is real love between them, nobody else can harm their relationship.

Try to compromise

Perhaps if you try to arrive at some compromise with your husband with regard to your recreation while he is gone, he would come to understand that young girls can't cut themselves off from all social life for an indefinite time.

Meanwhile, I bet you tell him you will not go out alone with any other boy, but that you would like to go to parties and to the movies and other places with your girl friends or in a group. He certainly should have no objection to that. If he agrees to this, you will, of course, be very careful to keep your side of the bargain, and never let yourself be seen in any situation that could possibly give rise to gossip about you. If you are quite understand how "untrue" stories about the behavior of young wives get back to absent husbands, unless there is some basis for them.

He's shorter than she—does it matter?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 19, and like a boy who is 14. There is only one thing wrong. That is, he is two inches shorter than I. Is there anything particularly wrong about this?

B. D.

Dear B.D.:

Not a thing.

KILL HUGE CROCODILE

Darwin, Australia—(Reuters)—Cattlemen have killed a monster crocodile that for years had terrified the Wickham River area 400 miles southeast of here. Nearly 25 feet long and six feet around it had killed several horses by grabbing their noses at the river bank and hauling them in.

BEAUTY

Dressing the plump figure.

Whenever you see a heavy-weight in slacks you wonder if she has ever seen her reflection in a full-length mirror. Is it possible that she loves her own curves, wants to display them? There should be a law to protect the public eye from such beauty errors.

If a woman with the pillow shape hasn't the will to delete the adipose cushions by means of dieting, which is no real hardship, she should at least be thoughtful to attire. By the simple matter of cutting down on sweets, fats and starches she can burn up her fat cells. When she gets down to normal weight she will look better and feel better, because lugging around extra tonnage is an exhausting job in itself.

It seems silly to wear the kind of clothes that call attention to bulk when so much can be done to create the illusion of less width. But look at some of them. They wear tight skirts that reveal quivering folds of hips, thighs, abdomen and buttocks. Loose lines would conceal them. They seem to love sweaters that call attention to their overstated females. Tight sleeves are not for plump upper arms. The longer and looser the sleeves, the more slender the arm appears to be.

The V cut is kindly to the plump neck and the large bust. Necklines are out of order, as they form a cross line, make the neck look shorter, while long chains are favorable to appearance. Button earrings are out; pendants no better for plump faces. Decorations of all kinds should be limited, even considerable thought. The simpler and plainer the attire, the more style.

If the torso is fat, the belt should be placed high; if legs are long, out of proportion to the torso, the belt should be lowered. The position of the waistline will do much to make proportions more pleasing. Usually it is better to have no cross line at all at the heavyweight's center.

Quite as important as line is the selection of fabrics. Plain materials are more slenderizing than patterned ones; thin fabrics are more becoming than stiff silks or brocades that stand away from the figure. Black, of course, is the most figure-flattering color. White won't do; creamy tones are acceptable.

Cook that carrot!

Raw carrot addicts may be surprised to know that only 5 per cent of the carotene, the vitamin A, is lost when carrots are cooked. Carotene is the substance widely recommended to soldiers in World War II as an aid for night vision. Not only is the 5 per cent loss insignificant, but if carrots should be eaten raw, only one third of the carotene is absorbed by the body.
